PURCHASE OF DIZZY DEAN SWINGS N. L. ODDS TOWARDS CUBS

St. Louis Cards Trade Dizzy Dean To The Chicago Cubs For Cash And 3 Players

Quick Sale Boosts Bruins' Pennant Hopes In The National Race

NEW YORK, April 18—(AP). — The breath-taking deal that sent Dizzy Dean, one of the game's greatest pitchers, from St. Louis Cardinals to Chicago Cubs in exchange for three players and a cash sum estimated up to $150,000 still had the boys standing around with their mouths ajar to-day as the big league campaign got off to a jerky start at Washington and Boston.

Catching everybody except the two clubs concerned flat-footed, the transaction caused bookmakers to shatter all speed records in revising their odds in the National League scramble, brought a hurricane of protest from St. Louis fans, and generally straped the polish off American League previews, in which the champion New York Yankees engaged Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators entertained Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics.

A Quick Transfer

Never so far back as anybody could remember had a development so vitally affecting a pennant race been broached on the eve of conflict. Dean scarcely will have time to move and find his fit in a Cubs uniform before all 16 teams in the two leagues go off in a cloud of dust to-morrow.

Manage Frankie Frisch of the Cards maintained a moody silence on the loss of his crack righthander, refused to say how it would ffect his team's chances. In the past, Frisch on numerous occasions has said privately that he would love to struggle along without Dean's eccentric services. But Dean has been a much easier gent. to get along with this spring, and there was no doubt that Frisch and the Card players had high hopes "Ole Diz" was going to make a comeback and help pitch them to a pennant.

Grimm Delighted.

Charlie Grimm of the Cubs made no attempt to conceal his delight at acquiring such a pitcher as Dean. If Dizzy regains his old form, the Chicago mound staff will be a power-house.

"I'm tickled to death we got him," said Cholly. "I wouldn't say this will mean the National League pennant, but it makes us better prepared."

In the opinion of a majority, this was putting it pretty mildly. The average reaction among the fans was: "Well, that means that the Cubs are in." But Bill Terry of the Giants refused to make any such concession. He doesn't think Dean's got it any more.

"I don't believe for a minute that the man traded to Chicago is the Dizzy Dean we have known," said Bill. "I don't believe that Branch Rickey would have let him go if he still were a potential 20-game winner. So this deal doesn't necessarily make the Cubs a favorite to win the pennant. Until I hear that Dean still is the pitcher he was two years ago, I will go on picking the Giants to win again."

Cards on Downgrade?

With Dean gone and Curt Davis, obtained from Chicago in the deal, his only potential pitching replacement, the Cards go into the race a crazy-quilt club, weak except in their hitting. Some think they might even slip into the second division. Pittsburgh looked like the only outfit capable of mixing it with the Cubs and Giants.

"We won't buckle this year," promised Manager Pie Traynor of the Pirates. "We have pitchers who can go the route, and we're as strong or stronger at every position than last year. We're headed for high places."

No other National League pilot held out pennant hopes.

Cornwall Unable To Play April 29

MONTREAL, April 18 (CP).—The Quebec Amateur Lacrosse Association Saturday approved April 29 as the opening date for its senior group. The association was informed also Cornwall Flyers, a new entry, would not be able to play against the champion Montreal Canadiens in a double-header here on that date because the Ontario team has not had enough practice.

A new set-up was made in playing times. The seniors will play three periods at 20 minutes each.

ST. BONIFACE EVENS SERIES WITH GENERALS

TORONTO, April 18 (C.P.). — Saw-off in the St. Boniface Seals-Oshawa Generals hockey series for the Memorial Cup will be played here to-morrow night with no one who has seen the first four games caring—nor daring—to predict the outcome.

In winning 6-4 on Saturday night to even the series, Seals again demonstrated that nothing can be taken for granted in junior hockey. For 50 minutes St. Boniface appeared a beaten team and Oshawa had everything under control.

Then that latent power which the Manitobans possessed but never produced exploded with a terrific force. When the smoke cleared Seals had scored five goals for an astounding victory.

Few in the vast throng of more than 13,000 would have given a penny for St. Boniface's prospects at the start of the third period. Thoroughly shaded up to that time, the Westerners trailed 2-1 in goals. Half-way through the session, Generals garnered another goal and the fans sat back with a "well, it was a good series" attitude.

Seals Turn Tide.

But the crowd reckoned without the Westerners' will to win. Gangling Paul Couture flashed a brilliant solo effort to reduce the Oshawa margin to one. Hermie Gruhn, threatening to score since the series started, came through with a long overdue goal to even the count.

Whip Shortt shot home his second goal of the period to give Generals the lead again.

Doc Dafoes was then chased for slashing at Bill McGregor, leaving Oshawa shorthanded. Seals stormed the Generals' goal and first McGregor, and then Bert Janke hammered home goals which proved to be the money markers.

Canadian And Japanese Davis Cuppers Who Meet This Summer

First round Davis Cup play in the North American zone finds Canada's racquet-wielders back to the international wars after three years' absence, stacking up against the net forces of Japan. The matches will be played in either Vancouver or Montreal late in July. The make-up of Canada's team has been announced and the squad is shown ABOVE with their opponents-to-be, the latter snapped as they set sail for England and tournament play prior to their Canadian matches. The Japanese in the TOP ROW, LEFT to RIGHT, Reizi Murakami, Fumiteru Nakano, Tamio Abe, former Davis Cupper and manager-captain of this year's team, and Jiro Yamagishi. The wearers of the Maple Leaf, in the LOWER pictures, LEFT to RIGHT. Laird Watt of Montreal, Doug Cameron of Vancouver, Bob Murray of Montreal and Ross Wilson of Toronto. None of the Canadian players has had Davis Cup experience, although Watt was named for the last team in 1934, but did not play.

OSHAWA WINS JUVENILE TITLE

TORONTO, April 18.— Oshawa McLaughlins had much more luck than the Generals Saturday and the kids under Frank Black's command captured the all-Ontario juvenile hockey championship with an 8 to 2 victory over Sudbury Saturday afternoon at the Gardens.

The triumph climaxed a grand season for the club sponsored by Les McLaughlin and among the players on the roster are plenty of likely looking future stars of junior ranks.

Oshawa led 2 to 1 at the end of the first period, increased their margin to 3 to 1 in the middle canto and then wound up a five-goal spree in the final session. Delmonte paced the scorers with three goals, Cory got two, while McBrien, Wilson and McCullen notched the remainder. Gasparini and Blake were the Sudbury snipers.

Oshawa—Goal, Turner; defense, Jackson Murphy; centre Wilson; wings, McCullen, Peters; alternates, Delmonte McBrien, Cory, Daniels, Salter, Morris.

Sudbury— Goal, Thompson; defense, Allard, McGinn; centre, Castaldi; wings, Keaney, Marinoff; alternates, Gasparini, Obomsawin, Galardo, Blake, Brideau, Germa.

Referees— Art Smith and Jim Primeau of Toronto.

BALKED HIS SNOOKER

LONDON—(CP)—Neuritis in arm and shoulder prevented Alec Brown from continuing in the world's snooker championship and Fred Davis automatically passed into the next round as a result.

SCHMELING STOPS DUDAS IN FIFTH OF HAMBURG BOUT

HAMBURG, Germany, April 18.—(AP). — Max Schmeling, German heavyweight contender, fired rights and lefts to the face and body to score six knockdowns and gain a five-round technical knockout Saturday night over Steve Dudas of the United States.

The scheduled fifteen-round bout was Schmeling's last "tune-up" for his championship match with Joe Louis June 22, and left little doubt in the minds of the 23,000 fans who packed Hanseaten Hall that the German is in prime condition. Least doubtful of all was Dudas, dazed, though not out, from the battering.

Schmeling gave me the hardest licking I ever had," said the Edgewater, N.J., heavyweight. "I am certain he will knock out Louis if he remains in his present condition."

Max smiled broadly, and announced he would sail shortly for the United States to begin training for Louis.

The Black Uhlan completely outclassed Dudas, sending him to the canvas six times for counts ranging from three to eight before his manager threw in the towel. Schmeling weighed 194½, his rival 195.

Schmeling's sharp uppercuts and stinging rights drew the steam from Steve's punches and a sharp left to the midsection forced Dudas to the floor for a count of six in the third round. From then on the American was steadily on the down grade.

Ben Foord of South Africa appeared in the semi-final bout against Walter Nuesel, Germany's second-ranking heavyweight, and was disqualified in the eighth round of a twelve-round scrap for rough tactics and foul blows.

SEABISCUIT GAINS $15,000 VICTORY

SAN MATEO, Cal., April 18. — (AP).—Seabiscuit, black bullet of the United States turf, sounded his latest challenge Saturday with a convincing victory in the $15,000 Bay Meadows Handicap. The time for the 1¼ mile, was 1:49, a new track record.

Gosum was second and Toady, veteran stake star, took third money.

Seabiscuit, given a perfect ride by George Woolf of Cardston, Alta., swept into the lead shortly after passing the mile post. At the finish he was flying along as easily as out for a morning workout. He won by three lengths.

The old track record of 1:50 2-5 was established by Don Roberto last year.

Seabiscuit, coupled with his stable mate Advocator, paid $2.40 to win, $2.20 to place and $2.20 to show. Gosum returned $3 and $2.20 and Today $2.20.

Olympics-Preston Battle To 1-1 Tie

GALT, Ont., April 18.—(CP). — Winnipeg Olympics and Preston Rivulettes battle again to-night in the second game of their two-game, goals-to-count series for the Lady Bessborough trophy, emblematic of the Dominion women's hockey championship. The teams played a 1-1 draw in their first game Saturday night.

Both goals were scored in the first period, Miss G. Pitcher tallying for Preston and Miss M. Gault for Winnipeg. Thereafter the westerners laid down an effective checking barrier and fought back grimly when the speedier Rivulettes unsuccessfully tried four and five-girl attacks.

Five of the six penalties were handed out in the third period after the girls started rougher play. For minutes at a time one team or the other had a two-girl advantage in playing power in the final period.

LEAFS GET ONE OVER WEEKEND

NORFOLK, Va., April 18.—Nearing the end of their spring training schedule the Maple Leafs claimed their first victory in five starts over New York Yankee-sponsored opposition, by shading Norfolk Tars 3 to 2 here Sunday afternoon. Saturday the Tars captured a 3 to 1 decision from the Canadians.

Although the Leafs outhit the homesters 10 to 4 to-day, it took a miserable error on a pop fly to short to provide them with the tying run, and which also led to the winning marker in the eighth inning.

The Yankee's class B league farmhands displayed remarkable defensive skill in both Easter week-end games. The six moundsmen, who did three-inning stretches, gave everything they had, but most of them probably couldn't have gone past the three innings and still retained their effectiveness.

WINDSOR WINS FROM OTTAWA

TORONTO, April 18—(CP).—Hotbed of Canadian senior basketball, Western Canada can count on a strong finalist when the Dominion final rolls around shortly. Either Vancouver Westerns or Winnipeg St. Andrew's look like good bets to succeed University of British Columbia Thunderbirds as champions.

The senior situation has boiled down to Westerns and St. Andrew's in the west and Windsor Moose Lodge and Ottawa Glebe Grads in the East. Westerns and Moose Lodge are one game up in their respective series for sectional championships and the right to enter the final. The four teams swing into action again tonight.

Westerns came from behind in the last eight minutes Saturday night to trim St. Andrew's 40-33. If St. Andrew's manage to square the series tonight the third and deciding game will be played Tuesday. Moose Lodge also came from behind to defeat in the last few minutes 29-26. The same playoff dates apply for the eastern teams.

Centre Bud Marquardt, a star with Winnipeg Blue Bombers football team, was one of the sparkplugs of St. Andrew's team. When he left the game in the second half because of four personal fouls Westerns found the task of winning easier. The Saints led 21-15 at the half-way mark.

Captain Dan McCann of Ottawa was ruled out of the game late in the second period against Moose Lodge when he was given his fourth penalty. Phillip Fields of Windsor sank a foul shot to tie the score when McCann was sent to the sidelines and shortly after Fields scored two more full throws.

Gordon Tilley sank two more baskets for Glebe after this display of accuracy by Fields but these were offset by a foul shot by M. Wiseman and baskets by Glen Sherman and Jack Blair. Windsor led 10-8 at half-time.

Trail Smoke Eaters Hang Up Second Straight Hockey Win

Westerners Defeat Cornwall 8-2 Before 5,000 Fans On Saturday Night

CALGARY, April 18 (CP).—Trail Smoke Eaters, masters of a passing attack seldom surpassed in senior amateur hockey, are only 60 minutes from a Canadian championship today after two straight victories over Cornwall Flyers.

Although a five-minute penalty was the turning point as Smoke Eaters won 8-2 here Saturday night in the second game of the Allan Cup final, few of the 5,000 fans expected the series would be prolonged beyond tonight's contest. Trail won 6-4 at Saskatoon Wednesday.

Flyers, expected to be tired by a long rail jaunt and the 2,000-foot altitude jump from Saskatoon, had much the better of the play for more than the first period, but Smoke Eaters got the first goal at the 13.33 mark and were never headed.

Twice the doughty Cornwall crew battled from behind and were still fighting until the last whistle but after the unlucky penalty to big Mike McMahon allowed Trail to break a 2-2 tie and defensive lapses gave the opportunist Smoke Eaters a chance to get two more, the St. Lawrence River crew had no hopes of salvaging the game.

A Costly Penalty.

McMahon, burley defenceman, was attempting to steer a puck into the corner when his stick accidentally drew blood on Mel Snowdon's face late in the second period. Big Mike was sent to the box for five minutes, and before he returned Johnny McCreedy had put Smoke Eaters ahead 3-2.

Dick Proulx was the most dangerous Flyer, but had tough luck around the net, getting only one goal after taking a pass from Farrand Gillie.

Harvey McClelland, who got into the game despite a stay in hospital at Saskatoon, shot the second Cornwall counter.

Perras played another grand game, highlighted by his second period performance when four Cornwall players spent time in the penalty box. A gash over his eye, suffered stopping Kowcinak's shot in the third, will not prevent him from playing tonight. Four stitches were put in the wound.

MARMORA EASTER SERVICES ATTRACT LARGE AUDIENCES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 18.—Easter, "the queen of seasons bright" in the church's year, was observed at St. Paul's with joyous services. At the 8 a.m. celebration of Holy Communion there were forty-seven communicants while at the Choral celebration at 11 a.m. fifty-nine partook of the sacrament, constituting a record number of communicants.

The church was beautifully decorated for the festival and Rural Dean A. J. Caldwell who officiated throughout the day, delivered impressive sermons.

At the Choral celebration, Maunder's Communion service was sung. In lieu of voluntaries, instrumental duets were played by S. B. Wright violin, and Mrs. H. Rennie organ, the choice being "Invocation" by Borowski and "Marcia" by Raff. Mr. Wright also furnished violin accompaniment to the organ for the hymns.

Two anthems were rendered by the choir, the first being "All hail the risen King," with Mrs. T. B. Wright taking the solo and the second Caleb Simper's "Now is Christ Risen," with W. L. Rigg as soloist. In the evening Mrs. C. Nichol and S. R. Rundle sang a duet "Christ Arose."

A service of Holy Communion was held at Holy Trinity in the afternoon with Miss Beatrice Caldwell presiding at the organ. Flowers on the altar were in memoriam of the late Mrs. Matilda Gallagher who passed away on Good Friday 1935.

At 10 a.m. there was the usual children's service at St. Paul's when Lenten mite boxes were brought in by scholars and others, the total yield for the Mission funds of the church in that way being slightly in excess of $22.

At the Sacred Heart Church large congregations attended Masses at 8 and 9.30 a.m. Rev. Father Agnew officiated at the earlier Mass while Rev. Father Keeley sang the High Mass. Beautiful Easter lilies and daffodils adorned the altar and sanctuary.

Large congregations were also present at St. Andrew's United church where Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth preached special Easter sermons and anthems were rendered by the choir. A floral display in front of the pulpit added to the general beauty of the interior of this sacred edifice.

Harvey Appoints Road Superintendent

BUCKHORN, April 18.—At a recent meeting of the municipal council of the township of Harvey, W. R. Thompson on motion of Councillors Irwin and Flynn was appointed road superintendent and the necessary bylaw was passed. Mr. Thompson will receive 40 cents an hour while on duty.

The council also set, on motion of Councillors Hall and Flynn, the wage rate for the current year at 25 cents an hour for man and 50 cents an hour for man and team.

The next meeting will be held on Monday May 16 at Hall's Bridge at 10 r.m., as Court of Revision.

Off For Sing-Sing

MEN WHO FEEL OLD

Get Back New Youth, Energy, Vitality

Too many men to-day feel tired out all the time—can't work, hate to get up mornings, haven't the vitality to do the things they used to do. A weak unhealthy liver caused by modern living, soft foods, lack of exercise, is the chief reason. Your liver is the storehouse for glucose or the "energy part" of the food you eat—it supplies energy to muscles, tissues and glands. If it is not strong and active no wonder you feel old! Take "Fruit-a-tives", it will build up your liver like nothing else will. You'll be surprised how young you soon feel. 25c., 50c., all Druggists.

Jackie Coogan Sues His Mother

Jackie Coogan, former child star, filed a suit for four million dollars against his mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein, shown ABOVE. The Erstwhile juvenile screen star demanded they turn over four million dollars in property and other assets which he earned in his days on the screen. The young actor, now 23, declared his mother, Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein, and stepfather refused to give him his estate since he reached his majority. Coogan, reportedly accuses his stepfather of dissipating part of his assets on the horse races through bets made through the $100 window.

TWEED

TRAPPER DROWNS IN CLARE RIVER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 18. — Felix Genore, 35 years old, farmer in the Township of Hungerford, was found drowned in four feet of water in the Clare River, near his home, on Friday night. Genore failed to return home for his evening meal after inspecting his line of traps, causing his family anxiety and resulting in a search that culminated with the finding of the man's body in the Clare River. Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson of Belleville ordered an inquest, which was held on Saturday morning at Tweed, at which time it was established that death was due to accidental drowning.

Genore, a farmer, also operated a line of traps bordering the Clare River and Stoco Lake and had left home late on Friday afternoon. He was found two hours later by his brother Joseph. Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed was notified and investigated the matter as County Constable. Following investigations Dr. Robertson immediately ordered a post-mortem, while all evidence was adduced at the inquest held on Saturday.

North Africa and the Mediterranean.

Wants No Part of Spain.

The main points to be covered were considered to be roughly the same as those of the Anglo-Italian agrement, signed on Saturday in Rome. Under the Italo-British agreement, Italy reassured Great Britain she had no territorial or political aims in Spain, adhered to in the 1936 London Naval Treaty, and agreed not to seek influence in Arabian territories bordering the Red Sea; Great Britain agreed to work through the League for recognition of the Ethiopian conquest.

Both agreed to maintain the status quo, and the pact becomes effective when Italy withdraws her forces from insurgent Spain, which she agreed would be at the latest at the end of the Civil War.

France's agreement with Italy probably would be along similar lines: Acknowledgment of mutual interests in the Mediterranean; agreement to respect existing colonial spheres in North Africa; exchange of military information; mutual promises to let Spain work out her own destiny after the Civil War ends; French promises to seek legalization of the Ethiopian conquest, and Italian recognition of French interests in East Africa.

With such a parallel agreement in his pocket, Premier Edouard Daladier could go to London, as is expected, April 28, and stand a good chance of getting the increased diplomatic backing France wants from Great Britain. French observers say that if Mussolini fails to live up to the agreement the two countries, Great Britain and France, will be in an identical position and co-operation will be necessary.

FAREWELL TO BACKACHE!

Her back ached—she felt miserable—no pep—she couldn't be "bothered" to go out—lost contact with her friends and was lonely. Her sister advised her to take Dodd's Kidney Pills. Her backache soon vanished—enthusiasm and energy returned—her eyes sparkled—her step was sprightly—and once again she was her "old self." 115

TRENT RIVER W.I. HAS BUSY SESSION

(Examiner Correspondence)

TRENT RIVER, April 18.— Members of the Women's Institute held a busy session at their meeting Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harry Mann when there was an attendance of twenty. The secretary Miss Doris Scott was absent owing to illness and her mother Mrs. John Scott acted in her place. The rather unique roll call was "My Mother's Maiden Name." Letters acknowledging cards which had been sent to bereaved were read.

The members decided on needlecraft as the project for co-operative program. Among the numerous correspondence received was a letter from Toronto requesting a donation for the Tuberculosis Fund. A letter from the Department of Education concerning the Girls Department was read.

One dollar was donated for the Tuberculosis Fund, also a gift of tobacco was ordered to be sent to Mr. Norman Wight who is a patient at Hamilton Sanitarium. One hundred white cross safety pledge plates for automobiles were ordered for distribution throughout the vicinity.

Owing to the pressure of business the paper on current events by Mrs. Thomas Sedgwick was postponed for another meeting. Mrs. Thomas J. Brown had charge of a pie contest, Mrs. Earl Greenly winning the prize—salt and pepper shakers which were donated by Mrs. George Dart. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

The May meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Lewis when election of officers will take place.

8 YOUNG BOYS

four companions, unable to swim, were drowned. Young Wellman could not say how he got to shore.

Edward Wellman, 12, brother of Joseph; James Dune, 12; his 6-year-old brother Leroy, and Joseph Lelorme, 14, lost their lives as the punt, found on shore a few minutes earlier, sank beneath them. Six-year-old Billie Delorme was rescued from a motorboat as Joseph, after trying vainly to pull the craft, swam to shore.

As the punt filled with water through its leaking seams, the elder Wellman plunged fully clothed into the river. He tried to drag the sinking boat to shore, "but it was too heavy for me." Joseph added: "I then began swimming for all I was worth. I didn't know how many of the others could swim. I was frightened, too. I don't remember how I did get to shore."

The six Wallaceburg boys were playing together along the banks of the Sydenham, in the heart of the Kent County town about 15 miles north-west of Chatham. When they came across the frail, home-made punt a proposal to cruise on the river was quickly taken up. The accident occurred in mid-stream.

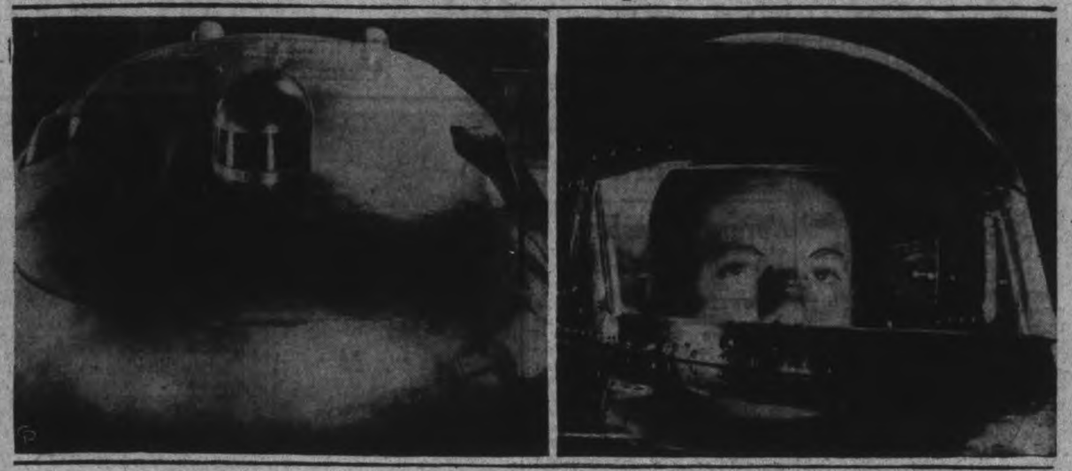
Alarmed shore residents brought others to the scene as the boys were seen to be in difficulties. But before a motorboat, manned by Jack Bachus and Don Lee, arrived over the spot only the younger Delorme boy remained afloat. Harold and Desmond Cleary, aged 13 and 14, respectively, several times sought ineffectually to swim to the rescue.

Hundreds of residents of the town of 4,300, breaking up the annual Easter parade, lined the river banks as firemen, police and boy scouts dragged the deep water for the bodies. Clasped in one another's arms, the bodies of Edward Wellman and the Delorme boys were recovered 45 minutes after the punt sank.

Not for some time was it learned a fourth boy had been drowned. Police, interviewing Joseph Wellman at his home, ascertained six had been in the boat. Dragging operations were resumed and the body of the younger Dune boy was brought to the surface within 20 minutes. Meanwhile, resuscitation efforts on the three bodies recovered earlier had proved futile.

Dr. Harry A. Taylor, coroner, announced last night there would be no inquest.

To Make Assault On Speed Record



Latest of the attackers on old man time is this speed tank which is little more than a wheeled-bullet. Built for Mr. John Cobb, noted British race, this "Railton" car will try for the world's land speed record on the Bonneville salt flats in Utah. The car weighs 3 tons and has two 1,250 horse-power motors. The streamlined body can be lifted off the chassis to change tires and refuel. Note the conning tower which encloses the cockpit. On the RIGHT, Mr. Cobb is shown in the cockpit of his speed-wagon.

YOUTH 18 ADMITS HOLDUP, CAR THEFT

MONTREAL, April 18—(CP). — Charles Edward Lampron, 18, pleaded guilty Saturday to holding up a taxi-driver and stealing his automobile. He was remanded until April 21 for sentence.

Lampron admitted being one of two men who ordered Eugene Lapierre out of his car April 5, and drove away with the machine. The car was recovered near Napanee, Ont., where the two men in it told police they had rented it here.

They were allowed to go free, though the vehicle was impounded. Lampron was arrested later.

WESTWOOD

A.Y.P.A. COUNCIL TO GIVE PROGRAM

WESTWOOD, April 18. — The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. of St. Michael's Church, Westwood, was held on Tuesday night. Alfred Reed led in prayer.

The district council of Peterborough has offered to put on the program at one of the meetings. Alfred Reed moved that they be invited to attend the next meeting. This was seconded by Scot Elmhurst. A number of the members of this society have subscribed for a monthly A.Y.P.A. paper.

The meeting was then handed over to the program convenor, Alfred Reed. A cotnest, "What do you know," was played and enjoyed by all. Chocolate bars were given as prizes.

Lunch was then served and a hearty vote of thanks was given by Alfred Reed to Mr. and Mrs. Birdsall for the use of their home. The meeting closed with the singing of Aul Lang Syne.

50 SHIP CREWS

Sullivan said the terms of the agreement were:

"No discrimination against strikers.

"The union can meet with the companies to represent their members.

May Join Any Union.

"Members of the crew have the right to join the organization of their own choosing, which was the reason for going on strike."

Peter C. Campbell, Toronto barrister, in a statement on behalf of the companies said the following had been agreed upon:

"There shall be no discrimination by the companies by reason of what has recently taken place and all men who came off the ships by reason of the strike will be reengaged providing they return immediately.

"There will be no objection to employees joining the union of their choice.

"The companies are willing to treat any union as spokesman for its own members but will not recognize any one union as representing all its employees.

"That the companies shall be free to employ anyone whether he is a member of a union or not.

"There shall be no interference by the representatives of any union with the men who are not members of the union."

130 Pickets On Duty.

During a conference last night between union and company officials, more than 130 pickets patrolled the Toronto waterfront, nearly three times the number that paced the wharves Saturday. Reports circulated five vessels owned by strike-affected companies would attempt to clear during the night. No disorder resulted.

At Goderich, word of the settlement sent 45 members of the crews of three vessels aboard their ships. The boats were the Rhane and Waterton of the Scott Misener Steamship Line and the Donovan of the Union Transit Company. Earlier, unconformed reports said a bus load of sailors was en route from London, 50 miles distant, to man the Rahane which had had steam up for several hours.

NAB JEWEL THIEF

OTTAWA, April 18—(CP).—Following a trail of broken plate-glass windows, police last night arrested Augustino Capello, 41, and charged him with shopbreaking and theft of $708 worth of jewellery.

Police spotted Capello after he had slashed four plate-glass windows. Before catching him, however, Capello had time to smash another. A heavy hammer and the jewellery, taken from one of the stores, were found in his possession.

LAD 4 HIT-RUN VICTIM

MONTREAL, April 18—(CP). — Struck as he crossed the street, four-year-old David Reid was killed yesterday in Suburban Ville St. Pierre by an automobile that failed to stop after hitting the youngster.

"I don't care whether they find the motorist or not," Peter Reid, the boy's father said later. "It's too late now. I suppose it might save some other little boy's life, though."

CAMPBELLFORD

$1,200 REALIZED TOWN TAX SALES

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18.—The Campbellford Treasurery was enriched by about $1,200 as a result of the tax sales held during the past two weeks. Five properties were sold at the adjourned sale held on Thursday afternoon and among these was a house and lot to George Flint, the property being located on Naseby Street. A. Dalgleish purchased a lot with a frame barn located on it and situated on Wallace Street. His bid was $105. C. Nicholos paid $25 for a lot on Inkerman Street and Berry M. Hopkins got a house an lot on Sebastopol Street for $200. George Moore got the bargain of the day when he purchased a two storey frame dwelling with five rooms located on Naseby Street for $75.

"Wine" Tasted Strange

RICHMOND, Va. — The congregation of the Negro Trinity Baptist Church thought the communion "wine" tasted strange. Deacon J. C. Myres investigated. He found that another deacon, sent to the storeroom for wine, had pulled out a bottle of furniture polish by mistake. Sixteen communicants became ill.

The Peterborough Examiner

PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, CANADA, MONDAY, APRIL 18, 1938

Seven Killed In Riots

BOMBAY—A casualty toll of seven slain and at least 68 injured was counted today in the wake of Sunday's street rioting between Moslems and Hindus. Police were called to end the clash and were obliged to fire two salvos in the air before they were able to disperse the combatants.

BRILLIANT SUNSHINE GREETS CITY'S EASTER PARADERS

Easter bonnets took a drenching late Sunday afternoon when rain tumbled down after brooding about it most of the day. The streets were teeming with young things garbed in the newest fashions in all the rainbow's splendour—but the rainbow came before the storm this time.

Brilliant sunshine and clear blue skies in the early part of the afternoon coaxed a large crowd to downtown streets and across to the Peterborough Lift Locks either to watch or to show beauty passing by. The late afternoon squall caught most of them totally unprepared.

Here some of the Sunday boardwalkers, undaunted by the fact that Peterborough has no boardwalk. In (1) Mary McLean, 221 London street, LEFT, and Helen Dwyer, American Hotel, were caught by the Examiner's cameraman as they strolled up Hunter street towards the Peterborough Lift Locks. (2) Peggy Plumpton (LEFT) and Shirley Plumpton, 96 Stewart street, were going to Sunday School when this picture was taken. They were dressed in shining yellow. Rhoda Cullen, 190 Charlotte street (3), found spring in the green grass and warm breeze in front of St. John's Church. In (4) are Frances Nolan, 297 King street (LEFT) and Jennie Monaghan, 251 Princess street, strolling along George street at Hunter street. (5) Perce Atkinson of St. Mary's and Edith Guiry, 502 Water street, found the spring weather enjoyable.

SCARLET FEVER CASE AT JAIL

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, figuratively tacked a scarlet fever card on the county jail this morning as Leo Therrien, a prisoner, was transferred to the Queen Mary Hospital with the symptomatic rash of the fever.

There was nothing figurative about the quarantine of the jail Dr. Fraser ordered for a week. If any of the six prisoners in the celled section is due for release in the next few days he is going to be out of luck until the card is removed. No visitors are allowed, and if any persons should be committed to jail within the week apparently the quarantine won't be drastic enough to keep them out. They may have to run the chance of an additional penalty of catching the disease, although there is no official word to that effect. One section of the jail may be available for any offenders this week.

The Therrien case was discovered by Dr. Morgan, jail physician, and as the patient had been a prisoner for three weeks it was thought the disease had been contracted from some recent visitor.

CONTRIBUTION.

The Grenfell Labrador Medical Mission gratefully acknowledges the following contributions: Miss M. Harrison, $2.00; Mrs. Carver, $1.00; Mrs. R. M. Waddell, $10.00; Mrs. Robert Neil, $3.00; Lily Lake Sunday School, 15.00; Mrs. F. Mather, 10.00.

FREE OF ICE.

The ice is all out of Clear Lake and a considerable portion of Stoney Lake is also reported free from the wintry covering that has gripped it since last December. The upper part of Stoney Lake was not yet clear Sunday, but the expectations are that it soon will be.

ROWBOAT STOLEN.

Provincial Constable David Silvester received word this morning that R. H. Knox's rowboat had been stolen at Rice Lake. Mr. Knox believes that poachers took his boat and that it is being used on the lake at the present time for illegal fishing purposes.

FISHERY CASES.

Fish and Game Inspector I. J. Lyons has three cases of alleged breaches of the fishery laws coming before Magistrate Langley in police court Wednesday morning. Two involv charges ofe fishing through the ice, and the other of fishing at the Peterborough lock with unbaited hooks.

120,000 BUNS SOLD.

Peterboro bakeries produced 10,000 dozens of hot cros buns for sale in the city and district last week. Most of them were baked for Good Friday. One company alone turned out 5,400 dozen, another 1,500 and so on down to the smaller shops who had their share of the trade. It seems that 120,000 buns might be some kind of record.

HOLIDAY TRAFFIC.

Provincial Traffic Officers McClure and Broughton reported Sunday that while the holiday weekend traffic over their beats had been brisk, it by no means approached record proportions. The driving technique showed an improvement for Officer McClure had no accidents to investigate and his colleague only a minor mishap.

ATTRACTS A CROWD.

Wilfred Jacobs, well-known Burleigh Falls Indian, had the most interesting of all the displays on the local market Saturday when he exhibited a large snapping turtle in a box. The big fellow, caught by Jacobs in Stoney Lake, was surrounded by a crowd all morning. The guide explained that snapping turtles are deadly enemies of the bass. "They grab the male bass when he is watching the spawn," Jacobs said, "and kill a great many of those game fish."

TO ATTEND FUNERAL.

Representatives of the congregation of St. Paul's Church who will attend the funeral of the late Rev. Robert Pogue at Stayner, Tuesday afternoon, are Rev. Dr. Barr, Herb Sherwood, James Savigny, Archie Davidson, W. A. Logan, J. E. Flett and James Dutton. Former minister at St. Paul's church in this city, Rev. Dr. Pogue died during the week-end.

BROOKLIN HORSE SHOW.

Farmers of the district who are interested in horses are advised to mark their calendars for the horse show at Brooklin over in Ontario county on May 24.

TO ADDRESS C.C.F.

John Mitchell, provincial president, will be the guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Canadian Cooperative Federation at the Moose Hall this evening (Monday). A large crowd is expected and the C.C.F.'s draw, tickets on which have been sold during recent weeks, will be made.

LUNGE SPAWNING.

Lunge have been seen spawning recently in the shallows along the shore of Little Lake and the river north of the C. P. R. bridge. One of them that was noticed for a minute or two off the end of Sherbrooke Street the other day was estimated at around twenty pounds.

"DOCTRINE OF ATONEMENT"

"Doctrine of Atonement" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon for First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, Ont, on Sunday. The Golden Text was, "I and my Father are one." (John 10:30). Selections from the Bible included the following from Ephesians 2:13, 18; "But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father." Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, included the following, "Jesus aided in reconciling man to God by giving man a truer sense of Love, the divine Principle of Jesus' teachings; and this truer sense of Love redeems man from the law of matter, sin and death by the law of Spirit—the law of divine Love."

MAN FOUND DEAD IN HOTEL ROOM

Harvey A. Owen, 52, a guest at the Hotel Champlain, was found dead in his room at that hotel at 2.40 o'clock this morning by firemen and policemen called by the hotel staff to investigate, after the failure of any one to see Mr. Owen since Saturday had aroused alarm.

The deceased, who had been a resident of Peterborough for a number of years, lost his wife last autumn when she died very suddenly at the Kawartha Club. She was a sister of P. J. Kenny of Peterborough. Mr. Owen has a sister in Montreal and who was notified of her brother's death this morning.

Mr. Owen had not been seen by the hotel staff since Saturday. His room was locked on Sunday and it was assumed that he was visiting friends. However when nothing was seen of him late last night and his room was still locked early this morning, it was decided to investigate and the fire department was notified.

Firemen George Gimblett, Jr. and Foster visited the hotel and a ladder was placed up to the window of Owen's room, and Gimblett climbed up and looked through the window, reporting that he could see a man lying on the floor. Sergt. John Thompson, who with P. C. Percy Sexsmith had arrived on the scene instructed the fireman to climb in the window and open the door of the room, when it was found that Owen was dead.

Apparently the end had come on Saturday evening for the man was in his underwear and the bed not been slept in.

Owen had been staying at the Hotel Champlain since the first week of April and was under the care of Dr. J. M. O'Brien.

Coroner Dr. Herb Young was informed of the finding of the body and a postmortem examination was held to-day.

REABORO FARMER SELLS SEED GRAIN

W. K. Reid of Reaboro visited the Peterborough market for the first time on Saturday and disposed of a load of seed grain. He told the Examiner that Lindsay was organizing a market for farmers similar to Peterborough's and their first market day was on Saturday. In starting out that morning Mr. Reid turned south to Peterborough rather than the somewhat shorter distance north to Lindsay. The prices he quoted for graded seed were: sweet clover $6.25; alfalfa $15; alsike $16; and red clover $16.

R. A. Wood of Millbrook brought in a truck load of potatoes, Cobblers at 50 cents and Wee McGregors at 60c.

W. G. Dunford of Lakefield quoted 35 cents for 4½ pound pails of dark honey.

Two Cars Damaged Campbellford Crash

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18.—A head-on collision was narrowly averted when on Friday evening Donald Stevens, Seymour, attempted to pass another car as he drove up the hill at the west end of Bridge street. Failing to see Charles Allen who had stopped before entering the through street, Stevens swerved into him and considerable damage was done to both cars. It is reported that Stevens accepted full responsibility for the accident and although Provincial Constable Campbell was summoned to investigate no charge was laid.

Paris' Observatory "talking clock" which automatically announces the time every 10 seconds, was consulted by telephone at least 5,000,000 times last year.

94 Years Old

Mrs. Coleman Elliott, 567 Aylmer street, who celebrated her 94th birthday on Saturday, is seen here admiring a plant that is in the spring of its life even as she is in the autumn of hers, which was a birthday gift. In good health, still possessed of all her faculties, this remarkable old lady still reads and enjoys life to its full extent. She was at home to admiring friends who called all Friday afternoon.

JOHN A. TROKE IS TRANSFERRED HERE

REGINA, Sask., April 18—John A. Troke, superintendent of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, Regina, for the past three years, has left the city for Peterborough, Ont., where he has been transferred. Mrs. Troke will accompany him east.

Mr. Troke has a record of 23 years with the company and, in being transferred to Peterboro, is being given the first, oldest and most successful division of the company's service. He will visit the head office in New Yoork before taking over his new duties.

Mr. and Mrs. Troke were honored by agents and their wives from Regina and Moose Jaw at an informal reception in the Hotel Saskatchewan, Sunday, when they were presented with a club bag and a bouquet of roses, respectively. M. Pinker, agent, and Mrs .Pinker made the presentations on behalf of the 35 present.

Mr. Troke's departure was announced with regret by President M. Willoughby at the Kiwanis club luncheon Monday.

During his residence in Regina, Mr. Troke was active in many community affairs, besides in the Life Managers' and Life Underwriters' associations. He is past president of the Life Underwriters' association of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., and at the time of his transfer to Peterborough was chairman of the Regina Life Insurance Managers' association.

RANCH RAIDERS KILL NINE

QUERETARO, Mexico, April 18—(AP).—A raiding gang killed nine ranch hands yesterday in an attack against the ranch of General Emilio Acosta, member of Congress. The general escaped injury, it was reported here, by barricading himself in the ranch house and returning the raiders' fire. One of their number was believed mortally wounded.

Bank Holiday On Main Street

Easter Monday along main street, a bank holiday, and business starting the week in low gear. The Empress Hotel getting a cosmetic treatment of new paint; the patient pop corn vendor on the corner, expectant of trade in spite of its ebb tide. You'd hardly say opportunity was knocking at his door in those discouraging circumstances, bankers on a holiday, business apparently dawdling, a sprinkle of rain and the sky overhung with threatening clouds, but there he was all set for sales of pop corn, if any, just about the morning coffee hour. How about a little homily on a prerequisite of business success as suggested from the curb-side salesman—being on the job with goods to sell in the off chance that someone might happen along with a nickel and a notion for pop corn!

News light on the ticker back at the office. All comparatively quiet on all fronts except that apparently Joe DiMaggio was about to surrender to Colonel Jake Ruppert at $25,000, a mere baseball item of major importance to the followers of the Yankees.

Bluebirds on George Street? A pair of them as becomes the mating season, and both in bright new plumage of azure hue that might reflect the sky if the clouds would drift away. She had a sprig of lilies of the valley in the lapel of her suit coat that looked as if it might have been tailored. He was wearing only the left of a pair of yellow gloves. He carried the right glove in his left hand because his right hand was otherwise engaged—holding hers as they walked along on clouds no one else could see. Romance and a lyric note that called up a couplet from Browning, about all being well with the world, but the same thought was caught in simple lines from an old honeymoon song Joe Halpenny used to sing:

"And life was just as rosy
As a sunny day in June."

It wasn't rosy for the pop corn man nor for most of the other folks along main street; it was just a drab Monday morning, beginning Easter week, but the dullness seemed briefly relieved by the passing presence of bliss. On to business again, and you hear a group of automobile sales, three flocks of them, that indicated something a lot better than normalcy, a real chunk of inspiration to pass along to main street, but the soft pedal is turned on, for the time being at least. Nine thousand pelts bought by Lechs, a large measure of confidence in the future, eventually to become darker raiment for 'bluebirds" when their spring succeeds to winter.

CHURCHES FILLED ON EASTER SUNDAY

The joy of the resurrection, the triumphant climax to the Easter season, was celebrated in all Peterborough Protestant and Roman Catholic churches on Sunday. Churches were crowded to capacity with among the largest tournouts in years, at both Sunday morning and evening services.

At St. John's Anglican Church extra seats were pressed into service to accommodate the overflow crowd, St. Paul's Presbyterian and George Street United Churches were crowded, and long lines of cars were parked for blocks around all city churches.

Special services were held throughout all the city and Holy Communion was celebrated by thousands of worshippers. Special baptismal services were held in the morning at Murray Street Baptist Church and at Park Street Baptist Church. At St. Andrew's United Church the choir sang the caniata, "The Risen King," by Schnecker, in the evening. "The King of Glory" was sung by the choir of Knox United Church in the evening. At all churches special Easter music was sung by the choirs. The churches were beautifully decorated with lilies and spring flowers. St. Peter's Cathedral was banked high with lilies.

SMALL BOY IS CRUSHED BY TRUCK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 18.—Jerry Howe, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Howe of Haliburton, met a terrible death in that village on Saturday evening. The little fellow was playing in the laneway at his home, and attempted to climb up the side of a large truck driven by his father. He slipped and fell, falling under the machine, the double wheels at the rear passing over the entire length of the child's body.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's, had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia, Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

Bruce Kemper himself answered the question. "I'm his publicity man. I see that he gives the right organizations the right gifts and the papers get wind of it. I don't let the public forget him."

"Why does he want to be remembered?" Barbara asked coldly.

Bruce Kemper laughed. "Why shouldn't he be? He can't write or paint or sing so he has to do something to attract attention. I wrote a yarn about him once and he liked it. That's why he took me on."

When the door bell rang, Barbara hastened to tell Garry that she would be down at once. She did not want him to find these people in her rooms. His first sight of her home must be with lamps shining, flowers, sweet and fresh in the bowls, cushions in place, not in a mad panic on the floor.

Julia reached the mouthpiece first. Her lilting tones were a thing of everlasting sweetness and light when she spoke. "Oh, Garry Page! BARBARA went into the hall to greet Garry. She had told him about Julia's unexpected visit but she wanted to explain that these people were not her friends, this party was not her idea.

"Hello!" she called down the long well of darkness up which he came.

"Hi! I hear music," he sang back.

Before Barbara could reply, Julias tones, liquid and molten gold, dripped their way through the hall. "These noisy friends of mine insisted on doing the 'Apple'." Isn't it a silly dance?"

"Silly, me eye! Come along, gal, it's your turn." Jimmy Minton seized her as Garry reached the last step. Then he recognized Garry. , "Oh hello, Page."

"Hello, Minton." Garry's face was stern and his eyes were steady. He made no movement toward the room.

Barbara spoke quickly. "These are Julia's friends and this is her party. Shall we go?"

She caught the relief in Garry's face but his mouth did not relax. "Who are the people? he asked quietly.

"A man wso used to work on the Post at home and a couple I haven't met."

Garry nodded. His eyes had seen the confusion in the room. He smiled at Julia. "Thanks for inviting me but Barbara and I have previous plans."

Out on the sidewalk, Garry smiled down at Barbara. "Let's walk. There's an Italian restaurant across Sixth avenue that used to have good food and an out-of-door garden. We can get a booth and talk."

The hurdy-gurdy man, who sometimes played on Ninth street, sent a song after them. It was a new song that he had not used before. At the corner Garry stopped a peddler and bought Barbara a smooth white gardenia for the throat of her simple black dress.

They were at their table, with its red and white checkered cloth, when he pulled a package from his pocket.

"Just a souvenir from the other side," he said.

"I love packages. You never know what is going to be in them," she answered as she started to untie the colored cord. But she wasn't quite happy yet. The scene at the apartment had been upsetting. Garry didn't seem to want to talk about it. Maybe he thought he had been mistaken about her.

She opened a paper in the package and lifted out a billowy chiffon handkerchief whose green was as emerald as her bracelet or turban. There was a mystic black design that veined it. The paper had the name of the Liberty Shops, in London, on it. She had heard of them. They were beautiful, expensive, the last word.

"Oh Garry, you darling! I love it."

There was a little box, a jeweler's box. Maybe a buckle or a bracelet. Instead it was a vanity case that held the same tone of green.

"Now you'll match," Garry said as delightedly as a child who gives his mother a cream pitcher for Christmass and watches the family pouring cream on their oatmeal from it.

The gifts, simple and beautiful, restored the thread of companionship, but Garry's chin was stubborn still. Finally, he said: "Barbara, do you know Jimmy Minton well?"

"I never saw him until an hour ago. He's one of the people Julia had found.'

"Good! Better keep clear of him. Warn Julia. He's married you know. Has been several times, but I mean he has a wife who hasn't been to Reno or Paris yet. I once covered a case that involved him and he's hated me ever since."

So that accounted for the hostility.

"He won't be back again," Barbara promised. "I'll warn Julia."

They talked then about all the things that had happened. It seemed to Barbara that it had been only a night or two before that she and Garry had sat at a table and chatted together. Now they were finding a hundred topics that they could share, a dozen people that they knew. The waiter was serving the dessert when Ruth's name came up.

"Let's drop in on her," Garry said. "Is she home now or at Southampton?" He went to telephone and Barbara sat listening to a girl who sang an Italian love song to the accompaniment of a tinkling piano. But the earlier merriment and magic if the day were quite gone. Julia's party had spoiled something lovely. Garry had seen her, Barbara, in a disorderly environment. She would rectify that by having him come to dinner very soon.

"Ruth's hame," Garry said when he came from the telephone. "Just got in from the country, and wants us to hurry over."

There were stars in the sky, river lights on the water, and the bridges hung, slim and beautiful in their suspended space, as Barbara and Ruth and Garry sipped iced punch on the terrace and talked.

Barbara wished that she need not go home. There would be cigaret burns in her favorite cushions, and liquids spilled on the rosewood of the old piano the previous tenant had left. One by one her mind conjured up the punishment the apartment must be taking.

When the conversation swung around to Julia, and Ruth expressed her sympathy at Barbara's unwelcome guest, Barbara spoke impulsively.

"I can't quite think I live there any more. Funny, isn't it, how you can create an atmosphere and somebody can sweep it away?" She shuddered. 'I dread to go back."

"Then don't. Stay here tonight. I have lots of rooms and it's always cool. You kept me one night when I needed sympathy."

Barbara sighed. "I don't feel safe about things with Julia in command. She isn't used to people like this Minton man. She's selfish in a manner but that's because everybody has told her she's pretty and spoiled her. But she isn't cruel. I'd better protect her."

Barbara looked so small, curled up in a big chair, with her greenish-gray eyes and rust hair shining in the night light, that Garry laughed.

"You'll need the state police for your own use, honey." When he reached Barbara's address, he gave her his telephone number. "Minton is a bad egg. If you can't get rid of him, better call me. I won't go up—I'd probably knock the mutt down."

The party was still in progress. It had grown, from the sounds. The door was closed now, and heads were sticking out of other open doors. One neighbor spied Barbara.

"What is going on up there?" she asked.

"I'm ever so sorry. I've a cousin visiting me and she's having a party I'll send them home."

A girl's shrill voice broke the heavier noise. "Jimmy Minton, you mean it? You'll take us out on the sound now, tonight?"

"Minton, the playboy?" a man asked at another door.

Too embarrassed to answer Barbara went her way. There were books on the floor, and the logs had been scattered over the room. One drapery was down. One lamp was upset. It had been the type of party of which she had read in accounts of horrible brawls. And it had taken place here, in her own lovely room where she had planned to hold serenity, peace, quietness and love forever.

Barbara began to tremble. Her face felt cold and her hands lost their sense of feeling.

"Get out!" She spoke the two words evenly and coldly. Nobody moved. "Get out!" Was this her voice screaming among the rafters of the low ceiling? Couldn't anyone hear it? She didn't know what the broom was doing in the living room but she picked it up and pointed to the door while she screamed again. She noticed that Bruce Kemper was gone. Someone whom she had not seen before took the broom out of her hands, pushed her through the door, and locked it. Too enraged to protest she walked down the stairs and out of the iron gate to the street.

"Garry!" He was leaning against a post.

"I've been listening to the brawl. I thought either you or the invaders would be out in a minute. Want me to give them the bum's rush, or want some bacon and eggs and coffee first?"

When they had finished eating at the coffee shop counter around the corner, Garry said. "I'll take you back to Ruth's. Minton never goes to bed before seven and he's taken a liking to your place."

But then Barbara saw Minton in the coffee shop. "Look, that's Minton and two of the girls at the party."

The wealthy playboy put in an order for two dozen fried egg and bacon sandwiches and five gallons of coffee. He inspected the pies that reposed under glass bells and chose half a dozen kinds. When he finished, he saw Barbara and Garry.

He bowed low. "Ah, my friends of the early evening!" He attempted to put his hand on Barbara's shoulder. She shuddered and drew away, and swiftly Garry's hand went out and came down on the man's jaw. He swayed, wobbled, sat down on the floor. The sting had restored him to a degree of sobriety.

"I'll get even with you for this, Page, if I never do another thing!" he said.

Suddenly Barbara thought of Peter — Peter working at the old desk, wearing the green eye-shade, safe in the inland place where he lived with dignity and kindliness. She loved Garry, she adored Garry, but she wanted to go home!

Man Has a Complex About His Importance That Is Beyond Understanding—Maybe a Deflation Program Will Help Him Find a Fairly Decent Balance

Why do men think: That it is all right for them to get paunchy, bald-headed and middle-aged, but that it is a crime for women to grow old, lose their looks and their girlish figures?

That they look like Robert Taylor with a two days' stubble of beard on their faces, but that a woman looks like heck with her hair done up in curling pins? That a man wants his date always to look like a Daily Hint from Paris, but a girl is proud to be seen out with a man who looks as if he had been fished out of the ragbag?

That he is bestowing a favor on a girl when he pays her any attention and she should register as much delight as if she had drawn a prize in a lottery? That every girl is just dying to hear them talk about themselves and tell all the details of their school days, and everything that happens at the office and what they said to the boss and the boss said to them, and what a wonderful old bus their automobile is, but they never want to listen to her when she tries to tell them the story of her life?

That a girl is just simply crazy about dancing with them, even when they step on her feet and maim her for life? That they are entitled to collect five dollars' worth of petting for taking a girl to a 25-cent movie? That, no matter how dull, homely and poor they are, every woman they meet is trying to marry them?

That the girl of 20 marries a rich old man for himself alone? That the gold-diggers who hold them up and rob them are artless little creatures who don't realize what they are doing and who beg Papa pretty-pretty for emerald bracelets as a little girl does for a doll? That they understand women and no woman could fool them, when a moron girl baby could take them for a ride?

That even if they never could get through grammar school they know more than a female college graduate, and that the only reason the girls they work with get better salaries than they do is because of favoritism? That a woman hasn't the same right to work and earn a living as they have, no matter how much she needs the money?

That it is a sin against Nature for any woman to hold a job that pays more than $20 a week? That the Tired Business Man needs diversion after his hard day at the office or the factory, but that the Tired Business Woman can get all the change and amusement she needs by doing the housework when she gets home after pounding a typewriter or standing behind a counter for eight hours? That all the responsibility for making a happy home rests with the wife, and that she should make things gay and lively and keep on smiling, even when the husband is a grouch, who dumps all the nerves and temper and irritability he dare not show the balance of the world on his own family?

That wives are to blame for the high cost of living and should be miracle-workers who can run a house without running up bills and conjure good meals out of the air? That wives should keep themselves beautiful and glamorous and work like coal-heavers to hold their husbands' love, but it isn't necessary for a husband to do anything to hold his wife's love. He can't lose it.

That wives should forgive their husbands' side-stepping and welcome them back with songs of joy when they return home after their litle excursions down the primrose path, but that a man is justified in dragging his wife into the divorce court if she even indulges in a mild flirtation?

That all the amusement that any woman desires is stay ing at home with the children, though one Sunday afternoon's taking care of little Johnny reduces them to nervous wrecks? Funny, isn't it, what men think about women.

Don't Let Nerves Wreck Your Happiness

Tantrums Shatter Friendships

"Leave me alone! I hope I never see you again," Kit sobs.

Of course she doesn't mean it. High-strung and sensitive, Kit makes herself miserable, exasperates others by the very qualities that should give her unusual fascination and charm.

"But can anything really be done about nerves?" you ask. Certainly. When you can study them as impersonally as you would a sprained ankle, they're half cured.

What are their causes? Commonest of all are worry, fear, jealousy. Face them squarely. Recognize that worry is often a bad habit; fear and jealousy, the results of a keen imagination.

And how to get rid of them? Understand and sympathize with other people's problems. They're pressing, too. Release pent-up emotion in new activities—tap dancing, gardening, club work.

In our 32-page booklet a well-known physician tells how to overcome insomnia, irritability, fatigue; how to relax and live joyously.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SWALLOW

Uncle Wiggily Longears stopped for a moment in the kitchen of his hollow stump bungalow on his way to the back door.

"Did you want anything, Mr. Longears?" squeaked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I mean anything to help you go adventuring. That is where you are going, I suppose?"

"Yes," answered the rabbit gentleman, "I am going adventuring. I am going out for a swallow," and he twinkled his pink nose at Nurse Jane.

"Oh, if you want a swallow of water, Uncle Wiggily," said Nurse Jane, "why not get one here at my kitchen sink? I'll bring you a clean glass."

"It isn't that kind of a swallow," said the rabbit gentleman. "We are well into Spring now, you know, and the birds who did not go for the Winter to the Southland, are back with us. I can recite a little verse about them if you would like to hear me."

To See a Bird

"Of course I want to hear you," said Nurse Jane. And Uncle Wiggily recited this:

"Once more the birds are with us here,
The happiest time of all the year."

"Oh, how lovely!" exclaimed the muskrat lady housekeeper. "It sounds like a valentine. But the time for valentines is past."

"The time for valentines is past, But the swallow bird flies very fast."

That was Uncle Wiggily's next verse and Nurse Jane said it was lovely and that he should be in the valentine business and then she asked:

"Is it a swallow bird you are going out to see?"

"Yes," answered Mr. Longears, "it is. I noticed some swallows flying in and out of the old barn I use for a garage and I want to watch them build their mud nests."

"Aren't you thinking of mud pies such as Tootsie and Wootsie made?" asked Nurse Jane. "The idea of a swallow making a nest of mud!"

"Oh, but they do—at least barn swallows do," said Uncle Wiggily.

"They are very interesting birds and if you like you may come out to the old barn to see my swallow."

"Thank you, but I must wash the dishes," said Nurse Jane. There were many dishes in the hollow stump bungalow for Uncle Wiggily and his wife had many rabbit children who had carrot oatmeal and lettuce pudding and parsnip bread every morning before they hopped to the Hollow Tree School. There they recited their lessons to the Lady Mouse teacher.

Called Swifts

"I'll help you wash the dishes," said Uncle Wiggily to his muskrat lady housekeeper, "and then you may come out to the barn to see my swallow."

"Oh, thank you," squeaked Nurse Jane, that being her way of talking. Soon the dishes were washed and a little later Nurse Jane and Uncle Wiggily and also Mrs. Longears went out to the barn.

"There are the swallow now," said Uncle Wiggily pointing to some birds darting over the barn.

"How swift they fly," said Mrs. Longears.

"Sometimes swallows are called swifts because of their speed," said Uncle Wiggily.

"They are lovely birds," said Nurse Jane. "I cannot believe they make their nests of mud."

"Come in the barn and see," invited Mr. Longears. Se he and his wife and Nurse Jane went in and then, all of a sudden, Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy jumped, put a paw up to her eyes and cried out loud.

"What's the matter?" asked Mrs. Longears.

She found out, and as shall you, in the next story, which will be about Uncle Wiggily's shooting birds. Please don't let the umbrella sprinkle water on the little gold fish girl.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHEN HOMERS NOD

ALL HOMERS nod when they get sleepy. That last rubber of a long evening is the one to watch if you like to see revokes, leads out of turn and efforts to ruff tricks with a suit which is not the trump. Rare is the player who has learned to use a little more care at that stage, to protect himself from such lapses.

(Dealer: East. Both sides vulnerable.)

The bidding on this deal started with East, who bid 1-Heart, South overcalled with 1-Spade, West passed and North bid 2-Spades. South took this to three and North to 4-Spades.

When the heart A was led, the declarer took time out to decide how he would go about making the contract and after due deliberation played the 6 from dummy and the diamond 4 from his own hand. When he attempted to take the trick, his opponents called to his attention the fact that spades were trump, not diamonds.

When this matter was cleared up, East led a spade. This lead out of turn brought South back to life and he discovered he now had a good chance for game. He called for a heart lead. West played the 2, dummy the 9, East the 10 and South ruffed. The spade Q was next cashed, followed by the spade K. The heart 8 was led, East covered with the Q and South ruffed. The spade A was played and the two high hearts cashed, on which South discarded a club and a diamond. When a diamond was now led, East played the 10 and South the K. The diamond J now threw East in the lead with the A, and East was obliged to lead a club.

Those whose birthday it is may have some very promising conditions during the year, with good opportunities for progress and financial expansion, as well as the support of important personages, friends or employers.

A child born on this day may have a bright, friendly and winsome personality that may gain for it the support of friends and those in power. However, it may also have rather peculiar or irregular traits of character, with tendencies to questionable methods in business.

Walsh—Fox

HASTINGS, April 18.—A pretty wedding was solemnized at Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Roman Catholic Church, here, this morning, when Veronica, youngest daughter of Mrs. Veronica and the late William Faux, became the bride of Edward Walsh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Walsh of Keene.

The church was prettily decorated with the festive flowers of Easter.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Elmer Faux. Miss Kathleen Walsh, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, and Edward Faux, brother of the bride, was best man. Father Costello said the nuptial Mass.

Following the wedding ceremonies, a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride.

Dunstan—Clements

The marriage was quietly solemnized Friday evening by the Rev. W. McArthur, pastor of Bethany Gospel Tabernacle, of Cora Edith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Clements, of Bailieboro, and James Leonard Dunstan, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Dunstan of Peterborough.

The attendants were Miss Marion Kellar and Clarence Davis, both of this city. The young couple will reside in Peterborough.

West—Joyce

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18. — The wedding was quietly solemnized at St. John's parsonage on Saturday evening of Maida Joyce, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Joyce, Sebastopol street to James West, son of Mr. and Mrs. William West of Hastings. The only attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Fenice Joyce and Arthur Turner of Hastings. The bride wore a powdered blue sheer crepe dress with matching hat and accessories and following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. West left on a motor trip to Toronto and other points. On their return they will reside in Hastings.

MacGregor—Jay

All Saints' Church was the scene of a very lovely Easter wedding Saturday afternoon, when Madeline Harriett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Jay of Aylmer street, became the bride of Alexander Robert MacGregor, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. MacGregor of Brantford. The Rev. Canon J. D. Paterson officiated.

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion with Easter lilies, narcisi and snapdragons, with white satin bows marking the guest pews.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march played by the organist, Mrs. W. A. Logan, the bride was a charming picture in a fitted gown of white satin with long train, and longer veil of embroidered net caught in coronet style on her hair with orange blossoms. Her gown was made with high neckline, long fitted sleeves and trimmed in front with tiny covered buttons from neck to waistline. She wore lace mittens, silver slippers, and carried a bouquet of Bettertime roses.

Miss Wilma Hall, who attended as bridesmaid, was most attractive in a lovely gown of green net over taffeta, beautifully appliqued with large roses near the hem. Silver clips trimmed the neckline of the gown which was made with short puffed sleeves and finished with a sash of green taffeta, caught with a large green flower at the front. Her hat was of tiny rose petals with shoulder length veil of pale pink net, matching her pink lace mittens, and her slippers were silver. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

The best man was Ronald MacGregor, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Henry Jay, the bride's brother, and Albert Hamilton, cousin of the groom. During the signing of the register, Miss Olive Rowe sang, "God Make Thee Mine."

About forty guests attended a reception held at the Empress Hotel following the ceremony. The bride's table was arranged with daffodils and pink candles, and centred with the three-tiered wedding cake surrounded with fine tulle. Daffodils also decorated the small guests' tables.

Mrs. Jay, mother of the bride, received with the bridal party, wearing a gown of black sheer over taffeta, with bodice made of tiny ruched ribbon, and sash of cerise and iris chiffon. She wore a hat of grey straw with crown of tiny rose petals, and small veil, grey accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mrs. MacGregor, mother of the groom, was gowned in navy triple sheer embroidered in white eyelet, and finished with white ruffle at the neck and tiny buttons in the front. Her hat was of navy felt, with matching accessories and a corsage of red roses.

Following the reception the guests were further entertained at the home of the bride's parents on Aylmer street, from where the young couple left later by motor for their honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec.

The bride travelled in a frock of navy sheer with lace collar and cuffs, navy tailored coat with white satin collar, matching hat and accessories. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Alexander R. MacGregor will reside at 347 Charlotte street.

The young couple received a very large number of gifts from their relatives and friends. Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. A. MacGregor, parents of the groom, Ronald MacGregor,, Miss Jean Elliott, all of Brantford; Miss Grace MacGregor, Reg.N., sister of the groom, Hamilton; Mrs. A. MacGregor and Miss Helen MacGregor, grandmother and aunt respectively of the groom, also Raymond Webster, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Towns and daughter, Martha, the Misses Marjorie and Ena Towns, all of Dundas; the Misses Evelyn and Dorothy Sexsmith of Lindsay.—(Brantford and Hamilton papers please copy)

We Noticed

...in spite of the weather, the streets were brightened with many a gay and pretty new costume for the Easter parade.

...among chic hats, a perky little turban made of flowers in all colors and covered with a navy veil that fell to its wearer's shoulders.

...and a dream of a hat made of fine black straw in approved sailor style, with large bow of apple green taffeta and two lovely huge velvet roses in orange and yellow.

Style Whimsies

For the timorous maiden, the new nightgowns that glimmer in the dark will have strong appeal. They are made of photographic pfints on platinum, which makes them shine in the dark.

Beige, light navy and toast are good novelty colors.

It is anticipated that the vogue for boleros will continue right on through the summer.

Dinners of the Week

(By MARY MOORE)

All These Meals Have Been Served, Eaten and Approved

SUNDAY (Guests)
Chilled Orange Juice and Pulp (see note)
Roast Chicken with Onion, Sage and Bread Stuffing
Pan Roasted Potatoes
Buttered New Pears and New Small Onions Radish Roses
Open Face Rhubarb Pie with Criss Cross Top Coffee

NOTE: We have been buying only Florida oranges these past few weeks, because two of them will yield eight ounces of juice. But the youngsters have been wanting to prepare them "like grapefruit" so I sit many minutes every morning lately loosening sections from halved oranges, and now the doctor has discovered he likes them this way best too so if these articles seem skimpy it is because I am spending most of my life preparing oranges for the family breakfast, lunch, dessert and first course at dinner.

MONDAY
Chicken Chop Suey or Chicken a la King
Tomato, Celery and Lettuce Salad Mayonnaise
Peach Cobbler Coffee

TUESDAY
Halved Hard Cooked Eggs with Curry Sauce on Toast Points

Grateful To Friends

Mr. and Mrs. A. Cremasco wish to express their appreciation of the very friendly interest and support given by so many of the citizens of Peterborough to their son Victor Cremasco, in winner first prize as a singer in Ken Soble's amateur radio competition a week ago.

Constipated? You Should Get at the Cause!

Lots of people think they can't be "regular" without frequent trips to the medicine chest. "I just dose up and get it over," they tell you. But doctors know they don't "get it over" at all—until they get at the cause of the trouble!

Chances are it's simple to find the cause if you eat only what most people do—meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

IN MEMORIAM

CROWE.—In loving memory of a dear Mother, Sister and Brother, Mrs. Alfred Crowe, Evelyn and Kenneth, who passed away April 16, 1916.

No length of time, no lapse of years
Can dim our loved ones' past,
For treasured memories hold them dear,
And will, while life shall last.

—Ever remembered by Violet.

THOMPSON.—In loving memory of James H. Thompson, who died April 19, 1936.

Calm and peaceful he is sleeping
Sweetest rest that follows pain;
We, who loved him, sadly miss him
But trust in God to meet again.

—Ever remembered by Teressa and Granddaughters Rita and Lily.

Yes—The Boss Had His Reasons!

Tired, Good-for-Nothing Feeling . . . Will Ruin Anyone's Chances

IF you feel logy—tired—unable to cope with things, it may be due to sluggish intestines—the result of too little bulk in the diet. Post's Bran Flakes may be just what you need to correct it. They help supply this needed bulk. You'll find Post's Bran Flakes unlike any other cereal you ever tasted—full of wholesome goodness and with a delicious, nut-like flavour you'll really enjoy. Eat them every day. If this does not readily relieve tired, listless feeling, see a physician.

AUDIENCE ENJOYS PLAY AT WARSAW

WARSAW, April 18—"Three Pigs" an amateur play presented by the United Church Women's Association was very successful. The parts were well taken. The cast: Emily Weston, Mrs. Gerald Payne, a wealthy, cultivated woman who wants to adopt some one and ends by adopting three, must to the horror of her Aunt Euphelia (Mrs. George Weller) who lives with her and is very overbearing, and unloved by the servants, Sarah, the Irish cook (Mrs. Charlotte Cooper), Lizzie, the maid, sister to Sarah (Mrs. Harold Payne).

Emilie's proteges are Marguerite, an ill-mannered, habitual gum-chewer and slang-user (Merle Bell), Madge (Florence Bolton), a dainty delicate girl of a sweet disposition. She had been brought up by an Italian woman (Mrs. Latta) who had cared for her along with her own younger children. Peg (Mrs. John Morgan) a lively earnest girl, eager to make others happy. Euphelia did not approve of them but as she was dependent on Emily she had to put up with them.

Mrs. Arthur Payne was the director.

The young people's meeting on Monday evening was well attended. In the necesary absence of the president, Miss Esther Menzies presided. The feature of the evening was a talk on Van Dyke's poems by Rev. J. W. Wilkinson.

FRENCH LEADERS ASKED TO LONDON

PARIS, April 18—(CP-Havas). — Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet were officially invited today by the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, to visit London to discuss the diplomatic situation.

Beginning April 28, the visit of the French statesmen is expected to last for two days.

According to diplomatic observers, the French and British statesmen probably will discuss increased contacts between the general staffs of their two countries.

Authorized sources said the French Government is considering sending an Ambassador to Italy about May 15. The post has long been vacant because of French reluctance to accredit a new envoy to King Vittorio Emanuele as Emperor of Ethiopia.

If a Franco-Italian pact similar to the Anglo-Italian agreement which is to be signed in Rome late today were negotiated, this objection no longer would apply.

I.O.D.E. Planning Birthday Party

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 18.—The I. O. D. E. Bemmerside Chapter will celebrate their twelfth birthday in Campbellford on April 29, with a Birthday Tea at the home of Miss Dorothy Kingston according to a report of their meeting held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. R. A. Connor. Miss Hazel Atkinson was appointed convenor for the occasion and Mrs. E. C. Roberts will assist in receiving. Mrs. H. Hawthorne and Miss E. Ferris will pour tea and Mrs. Norman Brown will be in charge of the dining room. It was decided that a large birthday cake with a small flag to represent each year of the organizations life would be raffled. Following the discussion of several items of charity work the members enjoyed a game of cards which was won by Mrs. A. J. Armour. A dainty lunch was served by the hostesses Mrs. P. M. Locke, Miss E. Ferris and Mrs. E. C. Roberts.

NEURITIS

"Kept from work for 3 weeks"

Anyone who has experienced the pain of Neuritis knows only too well how this ailment will put a shoulder, arm or leg out of action. Not only do you have the sharp pains to contend with, but perhaps fear of lying up and losing your job, too. Mr. V. H. says:

"My left arm kept me from work for three weeks with Neuritis. I went to one man, and he gave me oil, but it was no use. I then went to another, he gave me ointment, that was no use. Then I tried a bottle of Fynnon Salt, and within a few days, I was ready for work."

This is only one of the many cases where the regular use of Fynnon Salt has helped Rheumatic ailments. Why is this particular remedy so beneficial? Because it gets down to the cause. A ¼ teaspoonful of Fynnon Salt in a glassful of water releases a combination of Sodium, Potassium and the elements of Lithium—"Salts of the Earth" similar to those that give famous Mineral Springs their beneficial properties. They work through your system, assisting in breaking up the painful Uric Acid crystals, driving out poisons, and assist the liver to fuller action. Large bottle of Fynnon Salt 75c at all druggists'. 32

SAVIOR OF MADRID MADE "DICTATOR"

MADRID, April 18—(AP).—General Jose Miaja became the supreme head of military and civilian affairs to-day in the southern four-fifths of government Spain, cut off from Catalonia by the insurgents' break through to the sea at Vinaroz.

The bald, bespectacled "Savior of Madrid," most famous of the few army officers who have remained loyal to the government, was vested with the highest powers several days ago by Premier Juan Negrin.

General Miaja's first act was to declare the government would continue its fight, despite the Vinaroz setback, and that every effort would be made to maintain normal conditions in the territory under his control. In his first interview, General Miaja minimized the seriousness of the government's situation and expressed confidence final outcome of the war would be favorable to the government.

It was estimated approximately 10,000,000 persons live in the part of government Spain under General Miaja. Besides Madrid, the principal points are Valencia, Alicante and Almeria.

NATIONALISTS ASK AFRICAN REPUBLIC

CAPETOWN, April 18. — (CP). — South Africa's political arena, for years the scene of heated party rivalry, is buzzing again with unprecedented activity. Party rallies, open-air meetings, vans with blaring loud speakers and intensive house-to-house canvassing have become the daily fare of the National in one of the most spirited general election campaigns in the history of the union.

Offical nominations will be filed April 26 with polling May 18.

From the comparative calm of prosaic debates revolving around local issues, candidates have found themselves thrust into a vortex of heated battle over such major questions as international commitments, Empire relations, national defence, racialism and economic rehabilitation.

Pointing to more recently international developments and the possibility of another world war in the not too distant future, Dr. Daniel F. Malan, leader of the Nationalist forces, has charged the electors to weigh their verdict carefully. The approaching election, he declares, undoubtedly will be the most important and critical to South Africa's long political history.

On a platform calling for establishment of a republic independent of the British Crown and Empire, non-intervention in foreign disputes, adequate defences to safeguard the country's neutrality and a program of advaced social legislation, Dr. Malan hopes to lead his followers to victory.

LEOPARDS RUN AMUCK

Spears of the villagers proving ineffective, expert hunters were called to villages in the Garhwal Valley of India to fight leopards and bears that had been driven down from the Himalayas by snow and heavy rain.

The Ins And Outs Of French Politics

When this photo was made, Leon Blum (RIGHT), leader of the French Socialist party, was on top of the political world and is shown giving a rather cold handshake to Edouard Daladier, whose cabinet place Blum had just confirmed. Now Blum is out and Daladier is premier with more power than Blum ever had. The chamber of deputies have granted Premier Daladier dictatorial powers over the nation's economic life until July 31. The chamber's action came on the heels of Daladier's strategic stroke that broke the strike that had paralyzed France's arms industry. Daladier's next move is reported to be the seeking of an armed alliance with England.

Conservation Of Poor Farms By Forestry Being Planned

Trees Instead Of Swamps Slogan Of New Ontario Association

TORONTO, April 18.—Representatives of reforestation committees in forty counties of the province met in York County Council chambers and formulated an Ontario Reforestation and Conservation Association whose ultimate aim will be the converting of hundreds of thousands of acres of swamp and poor agricultural land into forests.

The slogan of the new association will be trees instead of swamps and the conservation of poor farm land by forestry instead of agriculture. Its newly elected officers are Reeve James Rennie of Markham Township, president; Reeve W. H. Casselman, Chesterville, vice-president; W. A. Porter, London, secretary; W. W. Gardhouse, York County, treasurer.

Determined to have its widespread program of reforestation started as soon as possible, the association unanimously adopted a resolution urging the Provincial Department of Reforestation to conduct a detailed survey of the five reforestation zones in the Province of which the forty counties are a part.

The Provincial Government was also asked by the association, in a resolution, to enact immediate legislation to prevent the destruction of small trees, it being pointed out that hundreds of people invade the forests around Christmas time and cut down thousands of young pine trees as well as destroying many more. It was this ruthless destruction that was annoying to the association.

Reeve A. E. James of Uxbridge reported that his area has a reforestation tract of 1,500 acres and 1,500,000 trees. Other counties experimenting 1,000 acres, Northumberland with along that line are Durham with 1,200 and Victoria with 2,000. Hastings has several thousand privately owned acres under growth.

The western zones, pioneers in reforestation programs, are somewhat ahead of the others in progress, with Simcoe leading the way with 4,000 acres under cultivation. Bruce with 1,500 and Norfolk with 1,200.

Monroe London of Simcoe, declared the western zones, were making school children conscious of reforestation values. Each school has a section of land set aside for tree planting and a variety of species are grown. The conservation and reforestation is being included as part of the school curriculum.

DISCOVERS NATIVE RACE

On his return to Europe a Dutch professor has reported that after travelling in dug-out canoes up the Marowijne River in Dutch Guiana he spent eight months with tribes of natives who had never seen a white man before.

BE ABLE TO LAUGH

WOODSLEE, Ont., April 18—(CP)—Work hard while you're young and never lose your sense of humor, was the recipe for lengevity handed out by Norman Davis of this Essex County village as he celebrated his 90th birthday today.

As a youth he left the parental homestead in Clark Township, Durham County, to farm in Essex County, where he hewed a clearing, built a house for his bride, and tilled the soil. Forty-five years ago he retired and moved to Woodslee.

WORRIED PARENTS GET SON ARRESTED

MONTREAL, April 18—(CP). — Police said last night the disappearance of a taxi 10 days ago and subsequent request by the family of a 19-year-old Montrealer to locate him resulted in his arrest on a charge of attempted hold-up; while a non-support warrant has been taken out against his companion.

Eugene Lapierre, a taxi-driver, told police two men escaped with his car after a vain attempt to rob him. The men hailed his taxi, Lampierre said, and when their destination was reached one of the pair pointed a gun at him, ordering him to hand over his money. Instead, Lampierre jumped out and ran.

Investigation by police disclosed the car had run out of fuel near Napanee, Ont., and that the two men were questioned by Ontario Provincial Police when unable to produce the car's registration card. They had hired the machine in Montreal, they said. Leaving it in a Napanee garage, they failed to return for it and Ontario police lost trace of the two.

Meanwhile, a report of the disappearance of the 19-year-old youth was made to the missing persons' bureau here and a non-support charge was laid against his companion.

AN ONION RECORD

WINDSOR, Ont., April 18—(CP)—Essex and Kent County acreages planted in early set onions will set an all-time record this season, according to a survey of growers. Planting will continue late in the season due to good market prospects, and therefore the acreage will be considerably greater than that of previous years.

Planting of onion seeds began yesterday and continued today in both counties. The largest crop will be sown on 500 acres of Erieau marshland.

C.I.O. To Hold First Convention

John L. Lewis, LEFT, head of the C.I.O., has announced that the organization will hold its first constitutional convention early next fall to set up a permanent rival organization to the American Federation of Labor. Lewis also intimated that the name of the organization may be changed from the Committee for Industrial Organization, although the initials C.I.O. would probably be retained. Arrangements for the convention have been turned over to Sidney Hillman, RIGHT, and Vice-Chairman Philip Murray.

FRASERVILLE

The Women's Association entertained the members of Bailieboro and Bensfort W. A. at their regular meeting held at the home of (Rev.) Mrs. E. M. Cook on Wednesday afternoon. About fifty were present and a delightful afternoon was enjoyed by all.

An interesting program was led by the president, Mrs. W. A. Wood. A poem "Smiles" was given by Mrs. H. Ouellette.

Mrs. Robert Holden and Miss Jean Holden sang a very beautiful duet, accompanied by Mrs. Cook at the piano. A humorous reading and encore was given by Miss Jean Holden.

Rev E. M. Cook introduced the guest speaker, Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas of Peterborough, who gave a most interesting and educational address.

Two amusing contests were conducted by Mrs. Ouellette. Tea was served by the Fraserville W. A.

A table of fancy aprons, pillow cases, etc, in charge of Mrs. R. Downs, found ready sale and a nice sum was added to the W. A. treasury.

HAVE YOU Stomach Upsets?

IF you are troubled with gas, sour stomach, heartburn, if you are weak and lack appetite, try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery now. It stimulates the appetite, improves the action of the stomach, makes the food digest better. Read what Mr. Clarence House, 53 Main St., St. Catharines, Ont., said: "I had no pep, had to force myself to eat and after eating I would belch gas and had acid indigestion and heartburn. I had sour stomach quite a bit, too. I used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it helped to relieve the stomach upsets and gave me a real appetite and I was able to eat almost anything." LONDON CADI JUMPS MAXIMUM ON HIT-RUNNER

Utilize Our Gold At Home Says Campbell

Public Works Minister Would Cease Export; Issue Paper Money at 4-1, Improve Conditions

LONDON, Ont., April 19 (CP).—Monetary reform to use Canada's gold "to the best advantage for Canada" instead of shipping it to foreign nations "as though it were so much butter and cheese" is advocated by Hon. Colin Campbell, Ontario Minister of Public Works.

He told the third annual convention of the Western Ontario Federation of the 20th Century Liberal clubs here last night Canada should do what he said European nations were doing and use its own gold to bolster its supply of currency. Canada was exporting $80,000,000 or more in gold each year "at a time when the currency in the country is less than immediately after the war."

"We took paper money for this gold and the buying nations expanded our product into a greater volume of paper money," Campbell said. "Why could not Canada likewise have issued $4 in paper money for every dollar's worth of gold she purchased from our own mines? No doubt the mine owners would take good Canadian money for their product."

Not Inflationary.

The proposal to bolster a lagging currency supply was not unorthodox or inflationary. "It seems to me we don't know how to use our natural resources," said the Minister. "European nations with less gold than we have, with less natural resources than we have, can carry out major spending programs and buy all the implements of war they can pile up. And they can pay for them."

There was a "crying need" for monetary reform in Canada. A vigorous policy should be put into operation as soon as possible to check the flow of Canadian gold out of the country. The Dominion possessed gold and there was no sound reason why it could not be used to improve the country's financial picture.

Paul Martin, Liberal member of Parliament for Essex East, told the convention Canadians should think in terms of one nation rather than as a group of provinces. Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said Conservative House Leader Macaulay was to be complimented for the way he co-operated in getting the business of the Province done at the last session of the Legislature.

Douglas R. Nairn of Goderich was elected president, succeeding Campbell Calder, London. Other officers: Vice-President, Claire Blissett, London; Secretary, Thomas Gibson, London; Treasurer, C. Nicholl, Chatham.

BEAVERTON BANK HEAD USES PISTOL AS POLICE ARRIVE

BEAVERTON, April 19.— Provincial Police are still investigating the affairs of R. Y. Buglass, manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, who attempted to take his own life on Saturday, while Provincial Officers and two officials of the bank's head office were in an outer office. He was charged with attempting suicide, and is at present confined to his home under guard.

According to the police, Buglass, who was due to retire on superannuation May 1, went into his private office and fired a shot from a .44-calibre revolver into his side just below the heart. His wife was in an upstairs apartment, and on hearing the shot came running down to the office. Buglass is said to have admited to her that he fired the shot.

Condition Not Serious.

In the outer office at the time were the two officials from the head office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and Inspector George McKay and Constable W. H. Clarke of Oshawa. They rushed into the private office and saw the manager standing with a revolver in his hand. His condition was found not to be serious.

Officers of the Attorney-General's Department at Queen's Park are reported to be directing an investigation into certain aspects of the bank manager's dealings with customers, and further developments are expected to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Buglass are prominent residents of Beaverton, and both have taken an active interest in community affairs.

MILK PRICE SET AT $1.51.

TORONTO. — Ontario Milk Control Board announced to-day the manufactured price of milk for the first half of April is $1.51 a cwt., unchanged from the March price.

Sewing On Patch John Mitchell, newly elected provincial president of the Canadian Cooperative Federation, had to prove his ability in a field where leadership is usually conceded to women, when he addressed the Peterborough C.C.F.'s annual banquet at the Moose Hall on Monday night. Mr. Mitchell, in common with all other men in attendance, had to sew a patch on an apron that had been draped over a chair. There was another motive in the sewing—each man had to enclose in his patch a silver donation. In this picture the president's efforts are being watched with critical eye by Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas, vice-president.

TRUCKER KILLED 5 IN 2 OTHER CARS HURT IN COLLISION

SIMCOE, Ont., April 19 (C.P.).—Donald Howell, 30-year-old greenhouse employee of Port Dover was killed when the truck he was driving collided with two other cars, two miles south of Hagersville last night. Howell was pinned to the ground by the door of the truck.

Five occupants of the two other machines suffered cuts and bruises, but are not thought to be seriously hurt. An inquest will be held.

Howell, driving a truck belonging to Thomas Ivey & Sons, florists of Port Stanley, by whom he is employed, was following a car driven by Clifford McKeen, which stopped on the right side of the highway to make a turn.

Howell swung around the standing machine and crashed into a car driven by Arthur R. Smith of Simcoe, who was with his wife and two children. The truck rolled over on its side at the same time hitting McKeen's car. Smith's car shot through the west guard rail, breaking off two posts.

McKeen and Mr. and Mrs. Smith had head and body bruises and the children were bruised and suffered from shock. McKeen seemed the most seriously hurt with possible head injuries.

Cat Pal Acts Guide For Blind Dog

Clanwilliam, Man., April 19 (CP).

BOBS, an 18-year-old sheep dog, who played nurse to a tiny kitten five years ago, today was being repaid for his kindness. Whenever the dog, now blind, deaf and feeble, wanders on to the road, Old Top, the cat, flicks her tail in Bob's face or pushes him with her paws.

DAYLIGHT SAVING STARTS SATURDAY

TORONTO, April 19 (C.P.). — Scores of cities in Eastern Canada and the United States move the clock ahead an hour before going to bed on Saturday night, and daylight saving time will be effective in most cases until midnight, September 24.

Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, and a dozen or so Ontario cities and towns make the annual time-change together, though a few of them revert to standard time before September 24. Among these are Hamilton, Dundas, and Burlington, which get back to normal on September 10.

Included in Ontario places following the lead of the larger cities at midnight on Saturday are Welland, St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, and Trenton. Whitby moves the clock ahead on April 28 and Guelph on April 30.

Three cities in the Maritimes will have daylight saving time, Dartmouth, N.S., and Halifax effective May 1, and St. John, N.B., May 21.

Regina Alone in West.

Only Western city observing "fast time," Regina made the change on April 10. Winnipeg citizens, after a one-year trial, voted in a plebiscite last December against experimenting further with daylight saving time.

A scattering of Ontario cities and towns will come into the fold in May and June for varying periods—Kingston on May 1, Cobourg on May 16, Belleville June 1, Sudbury June 5, Peterborough June 12, and Napanee June 26.

Brockville will have fast time only during July and August.

The change will be made at 2 a.m. on Sunday in New York and most of New York State, all of New Jersey, Ohio, Delaware, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, and Rhode Island; in Philadelphia and most of Pennsylvania; Chicago, and most of Illinois; Chicago and Minneapolis.

ITALY AND FRANCE TO 'BURY HATCHET' MAY INVITE U. S. IN

PARIS, April 19—(AP)—Italy and France decided today to undertake friendship talks without waiting for appointment of an ambassador to Rome, and a source close to the French foreign office said the question of extending "international cooperation" to include the United States would be studied.

Inclusion of the United States would be discussed during the visit April 28 of Premier Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet to London, it was said. Though no specific questions were placed on the agenda it was indicated the entire scope of diplomatic, financial and economic collaboration would be considered.

Jules Blondel, French Charge D'Affaires in Rome, consulted Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano today and it was agreed to begin conversations for a general settlement of problems between the two countries immediately. At the French foreign office it was hoped an agreement could be signed within 10 days.

Schools To Stress Health Studies

TORONTO, April 19.— (CP).—The Ontario Department of Education announced to-day the outline of a new course of study for Grade 10, the second year in High school.

"There is added stress on health studies in the High schools," stated Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education. "Of course this outline of the division of time is just a suggestion—it is subject to change if the need is indicated."

The new course gives 7½ per cent. of the time to health education, 20 per cent. to English and 15 per cent. to social studies.

Jails Driver, Cuts License Off One Year

Claims Present Penalty Is Not Severe Enough

LONDON, Ont., April 19.—(CP).—Declaring the maximum penalties for hit-and-run drivers were not sufficiently severe, Magistrate Menzies in court today sentenced 31-year-old George Gruber of London to 30 days in jail fined him $10 and costs, or an additional 10 days and disqualified him from driving a car for one year.

Gruber admitted he was driver of a car that struck Fred Maudsley, 28, of Thompson Road at the corner of Adelaide street and Hamilton road April 10 and failed to stop. He also admitted he was driving without an operator's permit.

"This is one case where in my opinion the maximum penalty is not enough," declared the Magistrate. "There seems to be an epidemic of striking down pedestrians and then leaving them to suffer or die."

Fred Maudsley told the court he was standing waiting for a bus at the corner of Adelaide street and Hamilton road on April 10 when he heard the sound of skidding tires.

"I was knocked unconscious," he said. "I spent one week in the hospital."

William Bradley told the court that Gruber's car hit his automobile at Rectory street and kept right on going.

Conant Asks Public To Aid.

TORONTO, April 19 (CP). — Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced today an attempt would be made to enlist the aid of the public in enforcement of highway laws by facilitating communication of information by private citizens to law enforcement bodies.

Mr Conant said violations of traffic laws resulting in injuries had "become so widespread and so serious" that he had instructed Provincial Police to co-operate fully with municipal forces in the investigation of cases.

"A hit-run driver may injure a man in Toronto and in a few hours be as far away as North Bay," he said. "This calls for co-operation of Provincial Police, though the responsibility may be primarily that of the local force.

"In the final analysis traffic law enforcement depends on good citizenship. It is physically and financially impossible to have enough constables always on hand where these things occur. There are always citizens who see what happens or obtain information which would help bring offenders to justice.

"We intend to appeal to all people who have such information to report it to the authorities."

Security Dealer Fined $1,000

LONDON, Ont., April 19—(CP).—Fred H. Armitage, Toronto and Hamilton financial man was fined $1,000 by Magistrate Donald Menzies to-day after he pleaded guilty to two charges laid under the Ontario Securities Act.

Armitage still faces trial before a judge and jury on criminal charges as well as trial by magistrate on two more charges under the Securities Act.

A few minutes after the fine had been imposed, Armitage was taken to a bank, where he obtained the $1,000 and then returned and paid the fine. It was one of the heaviest fines imposed in city court in years.

CATERERS ON TOUR

MONTREAL, April 19.—(CP).—A group of leading British hotel men and caterers will sail for Canada and the United States April 22 in the liner Duchess of York, Canadian Pacific officials announced to-day. The ship is due here May 1 and after a day's stay in Montreal the visitors will leave for Ottawa, Toronto and Niagara Falls. They will visit New York, Washington and Atlantic City also.

Landlord Takes Windows Out To Oust Family

Baby of Quarantined Reliefers Ill With Measles; Owner Threatens to Cut Water Off as Next Step

WINDSOR, Ont., April 19 (CP).—Contending he has been endeavoring to have them move from the residence for the past two years, landlord J. T. Reynolds has resorted to more severe methods in an effort to evict the quarantined family of James Grant. Today the house was minus seven windows.

The window removing came Thursday but the Grants continued to "hold the fort" today. They insist they will stay in the house until welfare authorities find them another abode. At present a three-months-old grand-daughter is ill with measles.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant contend Reynolds has endangered the life of the sick child by removing the windows. Several have been boarded up, but the upstair's openings remain uncovered.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant deny they have been repeatedly requested to vacate and maintain Reynolds mentioned it a year ago but had not pressed the matter since

Although he said he was sorry the child was ill, Reynolds contended he was not responsible for the child's condition. He said he had attempted to find employment for Grant but without success. Grant was a former railway employee and was crippled in one hand in an accident.

"It is too bad when a man owns his house, pays his taxes and then can't do what he wants with it," Reynolds said. "I have been asking the Grants continually for the past two years to get out so I could let my son move in."

Reynolds contended it cost too much to obtain an eviction order through legal means. Besides Mr. and Mrs. Grant, a married daughter and her child make up the family.

"I think I'll have the water shut off," he said, when asked his next move.

BRITISH TRADER RICKETT SWINGS MEXICAN OIL DEAL

MEXICO CITY, April 19 (AP).—Mexico, whose oil exports in the first month of government control of the industry were about 250,000 barrels as against 2,000,000 barrels a year ago, is ready to conclude the first important sale to foreign buyers.

Reliable sources said today a contract had been prepared for 3,000,000 barrels of oil to cost $2,800,000, and that it would be taken up by Francis M. Rickett, British promoter, and Bernard E. Smith, New York broker.

Officials of two of the companies, which President Cardenas put under government management by expropriation on March 18, said they understood letters of credit already were arranged.

The chief problem to be solved, it was thought here, was whether tankers could be obtained to effect shipment.

Because of lack of foreign markets since expropriation was effected, oil production has been curtailed sharply. All storage tanks are filled.

The 250,000 barrels exported in the past four weeks came from wells the Government already owned and on existing contracts.

The acute situation was of increasing concern to the 18,000 employees of the expropriated companies, many of whom feared consolidation of Government operations could cost jobs.

It was reported the Government was planning to give farm lands to some of those who will be jobless as a result of the situation.

COACHING ON THAMES

SOUTHEND, England—(CP). — For the first time in 30 years, passenger boats known as "water coaches" are plying the lower reaches of the Thames River.

TWO HURT IN FALLS

WINDSOR, Ont., April 19.—(CP). —A Windsor man and an eight-year-old boy were injured last night in falls. Charles Hamilton, 40, Windsor Utilities Commission lineman, was injured when a power pole to which he was strapped by his safety belt, fell.

Fred Pastorius, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Pastorius had climbed to the roof of a public building to retrieve a ball, when an official shouted to him. The boy hesitated at the edge of the roof then jumped, falling 35 feet to the ground.

Russia Criss-Crossing Nation With Railways For War

Secret Line Parallels Trans-Siberian to Mongolia--Another Goes Into Ukraine

By Richard G. Massock
(Associated Press Foreign Staff.)

MOSCOW, April 19 (A.P.).—Russian laborers, including hundreds of thousands of convicts, are criss-crossing the vast Soviet domain with new railways designed to serve as lifelines for Soviet troops in any future war.

Known to be under construction are:

The Lake Baikal-Amur River line in the Far East, paralleling the Trans-Siberian Railroad.

A railway between Ulan Ude, capital of Buryat Mongolia, and Kiakhta, on the border of outer Mongolia, Russia's protege.

Half a dozen other lines in strategic regions, including the Ukraine, on the western frontier.

Most important strategically is the Baikal-Amur line, wrapped in the greatest secrecy. It has become almost legendary, with only occasional references to it in the press.

Some 1,800 to 2,000 miles long, it is believed to be about two-thirds finished, with 1,000,000 men, including convicts, working on it.

Informed persons say it branches off the great Trans-Siberian trunkline at Taishet and runs north of Lake Baikal to some point on the Amur, perhaps to the new industrial city of Komsomolsk or to Niko-

CALCUTTA, India, April 19 — (CP-Reuters) — H. F. Broadbent, Australian flier attempting to break Miss Jean Batten's Australia-England solo record, landed here today at 11.59 a.m. G.M.T. (6.59 a.m. E.S.T.) after a flight from Singapore by way of Rangoon.

Although he is following a different route to the one Miss Batten took, Broadbent appeared to be slightly ahead of the times recorded by the New England air woman.

Clerks Win Pardon Get 20 Years Pay

Istanbul, Turkey, April 19 (AP).

TWO TURKISH Government clerks who spent twenty years in the penal settlement in French Guiana will be reinstated when they've learned their native language again.

Meanwhile they'll get twenty years' salary accumulated since their conviction.

Stopped by Allied guards in Istanbul in 1919, Ali Murtesa and Mehmet Hilmi killed a French corporal. A Military Court sentenced them to life imprisonment. Intervention by President Lebrun, at request of the Turkish Government, obtained their pardon.

CAUGHT AT FIRST BREW

NORTH BAY, April 19—(CP)—Arthur St. Pierre, 24, of Cache Bay, had just finished making his first homebrew when in walked a Royal Canadian Mounted Policeman, St. Pierre told the court here today as he pleaded guilty to an excise act violation.

He was fined $100 in costs with a three-month jail term as an alternative. Police said his mother likely would pay the fine.

REV. DR. POGUE IS LAID TO REST

STAYNER, Ont., April 19 (CP).—Rev. C. Flatt of Victoria Harbor, carried out a last request of the late Rev. Dr. Robert Pogue when he took part in funeral services to-day. Fellow clergymen paid high tribute to Dr. Pogue.

Rev. Mr. Flatt was minister at Gerrard Street United church, formerly Methodist, when Dr. Pogue was at St. Enoch's, formerly Presbyterian, in Toronto. They both resigned with the prospect of the two churches being united in Church Union in 1925. Dr. Pogue has been a member of Simcoe Presbytery with Rev. Mr. Flatt.

Nearly all ministers of the Presbytery of Simcoe attended. Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr of St. Paul's church, Peterborough, where Rev. Mr. Pogue had charge for 17 years, was also present at the service. The body lay in state at United church, Stayner, until mid-afternoon.

Bus lines of Moscow, capital of the Soviet Union, are being extended to total more than 600 miles.

Tonsil Operations Suspected Of Being Mostly Ritual

"No Particular Reason Or Result" Is Finding Of Medical Research Council Probe

LONDON, April 19 (C.P.). — The Medical Research Council of Great Britain has issued a report that "gravely doubts" whether the majority of tonsil operations are any more than "a routine prophylactic ritual for no particular reason and with no particular result."

Thirty public boarding schools were used to secure the data, 22,126 boys and 7,600 girls providing information. The study took five years, and the committee found that at the beginning of their inquiry about half the children had had their tonsils removed, and that this proportion increased through the years of observation by more than six per cent.

The committee found it "obviously important" to determine whether this wholesale eviction of tonsils was necessary. Doctors admit they have only a hazy idea as to the purpose of the two almond-shaped glands on either side of the throat where it comes into the mouth. But that doesn't warrant them, the committee feel, to remove them without causes.

An Aid in Certain Cases.

"Though realizing the value of the operation in carefully selected cases," it said, "we have grave doubts as to whether the majority

Last Minute News Flashes

TORONTO. — Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced today a charge of theft of bonds had been laid against R. Y. Duglass, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce at Beaverton. Duglass, recovering in hospital from a revolver wound, already has been charged with attempted suicide and theft.

BUCHAREST. — Corneliu Codreanu, leader of the outlawed iron guard, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by a court martial here to-day on charges of slandering Nicholas Jorga, former cabinet minister.

TORONTO. — Attorney-General Gordon Conant said to-day he was "rather disposed" in favor of an appeal against an Ontario Appeal Court quashing conviction of John Comba of Renfrew on a charge of murder arising from the death of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick. Definite action will be delayed until his department receives the minority judgment of Mr. Justice F. R. Latchford.

BOSTON.—Leslie Pawson, Pawtucket, R.I., today won the Boston Athletic Association's 26-mile, 385-yard marathon to repeat his victory of 1933.

NOTED ORGANIST DIES

LONDON, April 19 — (CP). — Sir Richard Terry, 74, for many years organist in Westminster Cathedral, and an authority on Roman Catholic religious music, died last night in a London hospital.

For many years he was an outstanding lecturer on music and editor of musical publications, including the Musical News and Herald.

In addition to religious work, his published music included "The Shanty Book" and "Salt Sea Ballads."

Veteran Foreign Units Faced By Heavy Odds

Barcelona Heads Shove Every Avajlable Man in Line To Hold River Defences Despite Supply Shortage

HENDAYE, France, April 19 (AP).—The Barcelona government moved up all available troops today to reinforce Canadian, United States and other units of the International Brigade defending Tortosa, overlooking the Mediterranean from the south-eastern tip of Catalonia.

Insurgent warplanes incessantly bombed the coastal highway from Tortosa to Tarragona, midway along the 95-mile highway to Barcelona, in an effort to halt the movement of men and supplies.

Some 20,000 government militiamen, led by veteran foreign units, were facing greatly superior forces across the tortuous Ebro river south of Gandesa to the sea.

The insurgents, fighting their way to the outskirts of Tortosa last night, occupied suburbs on the right bank of the river and began shelling the city.

The government installed light field artillery in the low-lying hills back from the river to dispute the insurgent crossing.

Government machine gunners poured a searing cross-fire from their prepared line of defences on insurgent advance guards attempting to establish bridgeheads. The government defence was weakened, however, by lack of materials.

STUDENT TRADING ADVOCATED BY U.S.

TORONTO, April 19 (CP).—An "intellectual reciprocity" between Canada and the United States was urged by Dr. Alan Valentine, president of the University of Rochester, in an address last night to the 77th annual convention of the Ontario Educational Association.

To encourage an exchange of students between the two countries, he offered a four-year undergraduate scholarship at the University of Rochester to a Canadian secondary school student chosen by the O.A.E.

There was still sufficient difference between Canadian and United States cultures for both countries to benefit by a wider scale of student exchange, he said. He considered such exchanges among the most enduring features of international bonds.

Canadian educationists were urged to guard their Anglo-Saxon ideals and avoid pitfalls of "vocationalism, softening of the brain and inflexibility" into which many United States universities had stumbled.

Best in The World.

Hon. Albert Matthews, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, in a brief address to the convention, said the Province was fortunate in having teachers unsurpassed in the world in their scholarship.

Other addresses were heard from Dr. V. S. Blanchard, director of physical education in Detroit public schools and Wayne University; Miss Ruth Whitney Jones, physical education instructress at Horace Mann School in New York, and W. J. Salter, St. Catharines, Ont., president of the association.

Mr. Salter said education was dependent on "industry, intelligence, integrity, common-sense and hard work." Its main function was still intellectual advancement," he maintained. He derided modern "catchwords" of educationists that "the function of education is to develop character and build citizenship."

Small Girl Hurt, Kicked By Horse

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 19. — On Sunday afternoon Isabelle Pacey, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pacey, of the Norwood Road, received quite serious injuries as a result of a kick from a horse.

Mr. Pacey had turned out a team of horses belonging to Bert Preston to pasture about the home, when one of the horses, which was apparently quiet, but feeling in a playful manner, kicked at the little child who was playing outdoors.

Her parents, seeing their daughter was seriously injured, summoned Dr. W. N. Campbell of Hastings, who found Isabelle had been seriously kicked in the chest.

NO FENCE-HOPPER

COOMBE HILLE, England, April 19.—(CP).— Brig.-General A. C. Critchley, Canadian-born sports promoter, hasn't quite decided whether one of his wild pheasants is lazy or just wise. Rather than fly over a fence at the foot of his garden it struts back and forth each morning waiting for the keeper to make his rounds. When a man opens the gate the pheasant follows him through to the adjoining field and disappears.

The pheasant stays away until nightfall when it returns to await the opening of the gate to admit it to the garden.

RICE CHINESE TREAT

WASHINGTON, April 19.—(AP).—A United States Commerce Department expert, upsetting popular notions, asserted to-day that 150,000,000 Chinese seldom eat rice. The reason, said Ruth Spicer, is that rice is too costly for large portions of the population north of the Yangtze Valley and is eaten only on festive occasions. Millet is the staple food of these people, she said.

PACT BREAKERS MAY BE NAMED BY ROOSEVELT

House Move Asks List Of Those Tied With U.S.

WASHINGTON, April 19 (A.P.).—Representative Scott (Dem.-California) introduced a resolution yesterday to require President Roosevelt to name any nations which have violated treaties to which they and the United States are signatories.

His proposal would require Mr. Roosevelt to send to the House of Representatives the dates and manner of violations, specifically, of the Kellogg-Briand Treaty, the Nine-Power Treaty guaranteeing China's independence, and the pact outlawing war signed at Buenos Aires last year. Action in the resolution, either by the House of Representatives or the Senate Department, was uncertain.

Scott previously introduced resolutions calling for repeal of the Neutrality Act and of the arms embargo affecting Spain.

"We couldn't get any action in the House Foreign Affairs Committee on either of those other two," Scott said, "so I decided to try this scheme. I simply want the President to name the nations which have violated our solemn treaties."

MUSICAL PROGRAM MILLBROOK SOCIAL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 19.—A pleasant social evening was enjoyed by pupils of the local Continuation School on Thursday, when the members of Group 3, Ken Kidd convenor, of the literary society, acted as hosts and presented the program.

The chair was taken by the group convenor, and the program opened with a chorus, "A Gold Mine in the Sky," the setting being attractively arranged with three of the girls, Eleanor Bigelow, Barbara Argue, and Bea Fallis, seated round an open compfire, the other members of the group singing from the background and hidden by a screen, while all lights in the rooms were turned off. Accompaniment was furnished by Marie Douglas at the piano, and Billy Kerr with the violin.

A vocal duet, "Blue Hawaii," was sung by Barbara and Eleanor, and a piano duet was played by Mary Eakins and Marie Douglas, all numbers throughout the evening being heartily applauded. A trio, "Whispering Hope," by Barbara, Eleanor, and Bea Fallis, completed this part of the entertainment, and the business period immediately followed. The matter of disposing of the piano, owned jointly by the Continuation and Public Schools, with the former having the larger share invested, was discussed in detail; the committee appointed to look into this matter, Ken Kidd, Jack Arundel, and Orval Wainman, reporting prices and other information already collected. Definite action will be taken later.

Games, dancing, and the service of refreshments, brought a pleasant gathering to a close, after the National Anthem had been sung. William Edworthy presided at the piano for the dancing.

BRIDGENORTH

Easter services were fittingly observed with the pastor, Rev. C. C. Miller in charge. The choir rendered special Easter music.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and daughter Lois of Stirling are spending Easter with Mrs. Weaver's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Telford.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Touchburn of Toronto are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Melville McWilliams.

Mrs. Trew of Detroit has taken up residence at the village again.

Miss Mildred Heard of Peterborough is visiting at Frank Moore's.

R. T. Petterson of Hamilton is spending the Easter vacation with his family.

PLAN 2 MILLION $2,500 U.S. HOMES

NEW ORLEANS, April 19—(AP)—Delegates to the 70th convention of the American Institute of Architects discussed today a proposal that their profession co-operate in a campaign to build 2,000,000 houses costing no more than $2,500 for families with incomes of $30 a week or less.

Walter D. McCormack, chairman of the Institute's committee on housing, made public today details of the report which will be presented to the convention's second day session tomorrow.

McCormack declared, however, that the ambitious program did not need the Institute's formal approval, saying:

"Whether the Institute endorses the proposed plan or not does not matter. There are enough of us agreed on the idea to go ahead independently with the organization work.

"We are going to propose an organization of architects, federal agencies, and manufacturers of building materials, to work out the solution of the small home problem."

Included in the original cost of $2,500 would be the architect's fee, material, plumbing, heating and wiring, he said. It would not include the land.

He said probably 200 designs — of homes with three bedrooms, bathroom, living room, and kitchen large enough to eat in—would be drawn up.

The $2,500, five-room home would be built of brick, wood, stucco, concrete, or even steel—depending on the locality—and extra rooms could be added for $500 each, McCormack said.

SAVING ON LIGHTS

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 19 (AP).—By dimming the street light this city expects to save $100,000 during the coming year. Public Works Commissioner Louis A. Harding said last night he had revised the candle-power schedule on street lights to bring about the saving. One thousand candle-power lights have been cut to 600, 600 to 400, and 400 to 250.

DRUNK IN A CAR

COBOURG, Ont., April 19.—(CP).—Alex McAvoy, Toronto, was arrested early to-day on a charge of being drunk while in charge of a car. The arrest was made after an accident in which McAvoy's car missed a curve east of Cobourg and upset in a ditch.

Peterborough Firemen Went To Aid Of Toronto Thirty-Four Years Ago

TORONTO, April 19.— (CP).—Thirty-four years ago to-day, Toronto's most spectacular and expensive fire broke out in the heart of the wholesale district. Firemen and apparatus came from Peterborough, London, Hamilton and Buffalo to fight the $12,000,000 blaze, which lasted for a week.

Three men serving as "rookie" firemen on April 19, 1904, are now senior ranking officers of the Toronto Fire Department. Chief George Sinclair, Deputy Chief Duncan McLean, and Platoon Chief Alex. Gunn are among the few men still with the department who fought the "big fire," which started in a Wellington street warehouse.

PROPOSE SCHOOLS CO-OPERATE, GET BETTER EDUCATION

TORONTO, April 19 (CP).—Increased educational facilities for rural students in Ontario could be obtained through greater co-operation of the schools, C. S. Paxton, St. David's, Ont., said in an address today before the Rural Trustees Section of the Ontario Educational Association convention here.

He suggested educational broadcasts to supplement school work with students making receiving sets.

"In sparsely settled districts there are many one-roomed schools that must be self-contained institutions, but in the more thickly settled parts of rural Ontario much good can be accomplished by a closer association of nearby districts," said Mr. Paxton.

"Schools have co-operated successfully for years in hiring school nurses and itinerant music teachers. Why not extend the system to agricultural, domestic science and manual training teachers."

Rural trustees should promote adult education studies and should provide vocational guidance for students, Mr. Paxton said.

He praised the new course of studies in Ontario schools. "Where competent teachers have entered into the spirit as well as the letter of the new course of study, there is a desire to work and a spirit of happiness that I have never observed before in school work."

"So much is heard about educating boys and girls off the farm. It is not the school that does this. It is home conditions, and our slowness to realize that if the town boy or girl has time for recreation, provision must be made also for the rural boy or girl."

Boy Routs Newsmen With Questions

Montreal, April 19 (CP).

REPORTERS crowded around 10-year-old Ronald Earson of Calgary when he arrived Monday aboard the liner Duchess of Bedford, but the lone young traveller launched such a barrage of questions there was little chance to obtain his views.

The Calgary boy wanted to know whether the Dominion Government or the steamship company owned the gangplank, and what were the names of the reporters questioning him and the streets and number where they lived.

Before fleeing the inquisition, reporters learned the boy had been visiting a grandmother in Scotland for six months. The head stewardess said her young charge gave less trouble than most passengers—"but what a man for questions."

laievsk, at the river's mouth. Just how far track has been laid is a secret. It was begun three years ago.

Real Engineering Feat

It is a stupendous engineering undertaking, with great mountain ranges to be pierced and rivers to be bridged.

Militarily it promises to be one of the world's great strategic lines, in view of the ever-present threat of a second Russo-Japanese war.

Somewhere north of Manchoukuo, Japan's protectorate and continental military base, it will be connected by branch lines with the trans-Siberian which runs so near the Manchoukuo frontier as to be vulnerable to Japanese attack.

The new railway is designed to be an independent supply line for the red army in the Orient, and its tracks are believed to lie some 200 miles or more north of the trans-Siberian.

The 150-mile line to the Mongolian border also is vitally connected with the strategical situation in the far east. It will connect Siberian defence centres much more closely with outer Mongolia, which Joseph Stalin has said Russia would fight to defend.

Intensive reorganization of Soviet railroads began in 1935. The 35,000-mile Russian system inherited from the Czarist regime has been expanded to some 53,000 miles, but its efficiency has been disappointing. The daily average of carloadings has risen from the 50,000 of a few years ago to nearly 80,000, but is still short of the 85,000 of the latest five-year plan. Rolling stock shortage is one reason.

'Muzzy' Robson 74, Up At 6 To Work

HOLLYWOOD, April 19 (AP).—May (Muzzy) Robson, the only great-grandmother among the movie stars, observed her 74th birthday today by getting up at 6 a.m. to go to work.

Over her tea and toast, Muzzy read her lines for the day, looked at the script for her next picture and OK'd another offer from a studio.

The career that began on a Brooklyn stage in 1883 still stretches into the future for May Robson. It is her staff of life. The last year, she says, has been the busiest of them all—biggest salary, biggest income tax.

Last week, though she and good health are twins, Muzzy admits her muscles acquired quite an ache. The doughty septuagenarian had to lie on her stomach underneath a covered wagon for nearly an hour on the stage set of "The Texans," and fire a rifle at a marauding Indian. Yes, she says, she got her man.

Prime Roast Ribs, Napkin Under Chin Is Chef's Idea Of A Feast

Chicago, April 19 (AP).

WHEN top-ranking chefs get together, here's what they consider the high point of the "perfect dinner"—roast prime ribs of beef, to be eaten with the napkin tucked under the chin.

The menu and several strict rules of dining were in readiness today for a dinner at which the Chicago chapter of Les Amis d'Escoffier will pay homage to the "Emperor of Cooks"—the late Auguste Escoffier of Paris.

The rules, offered by Armand Chevalley, president of the Chicago association of chefs of cuisine, were:—

1. Napkins must be tucked under the chin (the "old fashioned European way done when food was food and conviviality high").

2. No "shop talk" or discussion of politics and religion.

3. Anyone who takes "that wee drop too much" leaves the table.

4. No places of honor; guests sit anywhere.

5. Diners must strive for "whitty repartee."

6. No speeches.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures settled a little lower after each late business flurry to-day and prices closed ⅛ to ½ cent down. May $1.26⅛, July $1.15, and October 90⅝ to ½ cents.

Earlier advances of more than a cent were posted when buyers found few sellers because of higher Liverpool quotations, and reports of dust storms in the United States southwest. However, losses were registered at noon.

Canadian export sales since last Thursday have been on an odd lot basis.

Liverpool closed ⅝d to 1d higher.

are the result of true discrimination."

The incidence of coughs, colds, and sore throats upon boys and girls with or without tonsils did not differ. In a group of 384 boys whose tonsils were removed during school life, the sickness experienced before such removal was worse. After removal, it was about the same as that of the population as a whole.

"This shows," the report states, "that in selected cases the operation is of value; but it is far from justifying a ritual now practised on more than 50 per cent. of the children admitted to the schools of this class." (The schools were boarding schools of the upper-middle class.)

No Place Like London For Hobo Says America's Hobo 'King'

Crashed House Of Lords And House Of Commons Took Tea With Society

LONDON, April 18. — Jefferson Davis, "king" of American hoboes, returned to the United States recently convinced that there's no place like London for a hobo.

With eyes nearly popping from his head, Davis told how in the space of a visit lasting a few weeks he crashed into the House of Lords and House of Commons, took tea with society, and rubbed elbows with baronesses, West African princes, and other "real nice people."

Over here to further his pet scheme—establishment of a federation of world hoboes—Davis found considerable support for his idea. But it was the manner in which he romped into society that intrigued him most.

Lifetime Thrill

"Boy, what a thrill I have had," he said. "Yes, sir, a thrill of a lifetime. I feel like Aladdin, and have to keep pinching myself to see whether I'll wake up and find it has all been a dream.

"In the short time I have been here I have been living the life of a celebrity. I have been to the House of Lords, the House of Commons, where I spent nine hours, lunching, taking tea and dining with the members.

"The whole trip for that matter has been one round of excitement and thrills. Seen off in New York by a horde of reporters and cameramen, I rushed over here on board the Queen Mary.

Mid-Atlantic Phone Call

"In mid-Atlantic I had a great thrill by being called upon the radio telephone by a London newspaper. I spoke for half an hour, and the costs didn't matter, the newspaper paid for the call.

"On arrival at Southampton, I found myself famous. There were more reporters and cameramen clamoring to interview me and take my picture.

"Whisked up to London before I could catch my breath, I was rushed off to a swanky apartment where I met crowds of important people, including two baronesses and an African prince."

Before returning to the United States, Davis will visit the House of Commons again with Arthur Hayday, Labor M.P. for Nottingham, who is a "Supreme Knight of the Hoboes of America."

"Then I hope to get down to brass tacks about this idea of forming the society of the Hoboes of the World," Davis said.

"For its slogan the society has five 't's'—typical, tropical, touring, troupers and tourists, and besides America, I have gotten support for the movement in Canada, Australia, Germany and other countries.

Plans Hoboes' Convention

"My idea is to hold a Hoboes' convention in Havana, Australia or Canada, say, about every three years, to enable the delegates to travel to the point where it will be held."

In his spare time Davis, who last visited England in 1912, has been renewing acquaintance with some of his old stamping grounds. Trafalgar Square and the Victoria Embankment, but he finds them greatly changed from the hobo point of view.

"London is one of the safest and best protected cities in the world. There is a cop on every street corner, and two in between."

"And you don't find hoboes sleeping in hallways as you do in New York. There are too many organizations here to take care of the destitute people. That is what we want to organize throughout the world, few beggars and no bumming in the streets."

Broadcast Over Radio

But the cup of Davis' joy was over-filled when he broadcast over the radio from the swanky headquarters of the British Broadcasting Corporation.

"I guess I must have spoken to practically the whole of England," Davis said in awed voice. "Well, anyway, to at least some millions of people.

"It surely gave me a kick for I was able to explain to the listeners just what the difference between a hobo and a tramp, the 'English idea' of a hobo was.

"And that is—A tramp believes that the world owes him a living, but a hobo believes that the world only owes him an opportunity."

Wins Appeal

The first Canadian ever to be released after having been condemned for murder, John A. Comba, of Renfrew, Ont., is shown standing in front of his home after his release from jail. An Ontario appeal court found him innocent of the death of a 12-year-old Renfrew girl. He was sentenced to hang last Feb. 12, but was granted a stay of execution until the appeal judges reviewed the case.

C.C.F. OPENS ARMS TO TRADE UNIONS

TORONTO, April 19 (CP).—Canada is building up an increasing investment in a future war, Grant MacNeil, M.P., for Vancouver North told the Ontario Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Saturday night, adding that "history has shown us we'll be called upon to protect that investment beyond our borders."

Mr. MacNeil told the C.C.F. convention "there is no justifcation for any defence measures beyond those needed for coastal defence." He contended the Federal government was proceeding with preparations for an overseas contingent on the basis of expectation that Canadian opinion would demand, as it had in the Boer War and in 1914, the sending of a contingent abroad if war occurred

He criticized the Mackenzie King government for its present foreign policy and for the lack of discussion of it at the last session of parliament. He condemned the defence estimates and asserted $250,000 had been appropriated for a "useless armory at Hull to house phantom armies."

The Ontario convention agreed Saturday to admit trade unions and other economic and cultural groups to membership. Previously affiliation was open to political groups only.

John Mitchell of Hamilton was elected president and Dr. Lorna Cotton of Peterborough, vice president.

Air Mail To Begin Minus Fanfare

OTTAWA, April 19—(CP). — No ceremonial inauguration has been planned for opening the trans-Canada passenger and mail service between Montreal and Vancouver, tentatively scheduled for July 1, it was learned today.

Mail has been carried on daylight flights between Winnipeg and Vancouver for some time and training flights are constantly in progress, night and day, over the prairies, it was learned. Express will be carried west from Winnipeg beginning May 1. Five big passenger planes are now ready for the service and more will be delivered shortly.

Fifty Stolen Shoes Fit But One Foot

New Toronto, April 19 (CP). THIEVES who entered a local shoe factory two nights ago, made their getaway with what they believed to be twenty-five pairs of shoes. Some time later, when they examined their loot, they rubbed their eyes on discovering that instead of being twenty-five pairs, they were fifty-odd left-foot shoes. Last night, the footwear was found abandoned, by Sergeant Robert Weatherup and Constable Nelson Yates.

Independents Out To Heal Split

MANCHESTER, April 19—(CP Cable)—By a vote of 55 to 49 the Independent Labor party—the extremist wing of the Labor movement—today authorized its national council to approach the Labor party executive with a view to healing the split which occurred over six years ago.

The executive was empowered to initiate overtures for discussion of the general question of relationship between the two parties and seek an understanding to prevent conflicting candidatures in future elections.

QUEEN MARY TOPS PASSENGER TRADE

LONDON, April 19—(CP-Havas)—Popularity of the liner Queen Mary is commented upon in the report of the Cunard-White Star Line issued to-day. It states the liner carried a larger number of passengers in both directions across the Atlantic than any other ship.

Conditions in the United States and Canada were favorable to an increase in Atlantic passenger travel during the past year, the report states, and this was further stimulated by visitors to ths country for the Coronation.

Freight business was reported to have improved both in volume and in rates, but economic conditions in the United States deteriorated towards the end of the year. This adversely affected freight earnings.

The results from cruising voyages in the early part of the year showed improvement over 1936, but cruises during the past winter have not been so satisfactory.

DEPARTURE IN COURSE

WOLFVILLE, N. S. — (CP). — Marking a departure in the character of Acadia University's fine arts course, outstanding artists and groups of artists would visit Acadia next year, give informal recitals, meet student groups for discussion and study of music and hold auditions with vocal and instrumental students, President F. PRIVATE NURSES EIGHT-HOUR DUTY

All private duty nurses in Peterborough will work on 8-hour shifts at both Nicholls and St. Joseph's hospitals for a trial period after May 1 it was decided at a meeting of the Private Duty Nurses' Association.

The shortened hours of duty were decided upon as a trial measure and accepted by the organization. The shifts will be from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m., from 4 p.m. to 12 midnight, and from 12 midnight to 8 a.m. The rate of pay will be $4 for the eight hour period.

Twelve hour duty in homes will still be served at $5, and when absolutely necessary nurses will work in homes for 18 hour stretches for $6.

54 SLAIN IN RIOTS

JERUSALEM, April 19 (CP-Havas)—Disorders in which at least 54 persons were killed and 10 injured marred Easter observances in the Holy Land.

A toll of 50 slain was counted following a clash between troops and outlaws in the Jenin Hill region, north of Jerusalem. Troops today were pressing "mopping up" operations against the Arab raiders. A bomb thrown into an Arab cafe in Haifa killed one Arab and injured eight others.

National health insurance is being considered by the New Zealand government.

Wreck Kills Five, Worker Held

ALGIERS, North Africa, April 19 (CP)—Eugene Clavest, a railway worker, today was arrested on charges of wrecking the Oran-Algiers express near Las Attafs Sunday. Five persons were killed and 12 injured in the wreck.

French colonial authorities arrested Clavest, member of a track repair unit, when they learned he had borrowed a large wrench shortly before the derailment. Police announced a sheet of newspaper found near the tracks had been used by Clavest as a wrapping for the wrench.

Pure gold is labelled "24 carats."

OMEMEE HOME IS GUTTED BY FIRE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

OMEMEE, April 19.—Fire of an unknown origin gutted the home of Charles Mills, Sturgeon street, Friday morning about 7.30 a.m. Mrs. Mills smelled smoke while the family were at breakfast, and on going upstairs found the floor covering burning, and that the fire had made a bad headway.

She immediately sent in the alarm and Fire Chief Cecil Mills was soon on the job with a large amount of willing helpers. Most of the downstairs furniture was saved, but the upstairs furniture and a large amount of clothing was destroyed.

First . . . come to our showrooms and enjoy a demonstration ride in a new 1938 General Motors Car. Second . . . on the contest entry blank we will give you, simply write your idea of a slogan on safe driving. For example, here are some slogans which have been used by safety organizations in recent years... "Try Courtesy"... "Always Be Careful—the ABC of Driving"... "Public Safety Starts With You"... "Speed Kills!"

Simple, isn't it? But remember, get your entry in as soon as you can. Come to our showrooms this very day. Take a ride . . . write a slogan . . . and WIN A CAR!

THERE IS NO OBLIGATION OF ANY KIND. IT COSTS YOU NOTHING TO ENTER

READ THESE RULES

1 This contest is open to any person of eighteen years of age or over, residing in the Province of Ontario; regardless of the make of car owned, or whether entrant owns a car or not.

2 The employees of General Motors and their families are not eligible to enter this contest, nor are the employees and families of General Motors affiliated companies, advertising agency and General Motors Dealerships.

3 All entrants are required to visit an authorized General Motors Dealer and take a bona fide road demonstration in a 1938 General Motors car or truck. These include Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, McLaughlin-Buick, Chevrolet and GMC trucks.

4 Each entrant receives an application form. His slogan of not more than fifteen words on safe driving is to be filled in and the form given to the Dealer or mailed direct to General Motors Products of Canada Limited, Oshawa.

5 In the event that the winner of first or second prize has purchased a new General Motors car or truck during the period of this contest, the full authorized retail delivered price of the car won, at point of contest entry, will be refunded in cash by General Motors Products of Canada, Limited.

6 Entrant may use pencil; pen or typewriter. Literary excellence or "fancy" entries will not count extra. In the event of two or more contestants submitting the same winning slogan, the prize will be awarded for the slogan received first at General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, Oshawa, Ontario. A different winning slogan will be selected for each prize.

7 The Dealer himself or his authorized representative MUST COUNTERSIGN THE APPLICATION FORM TO WITNESS THAT ENTRANT HAS TAKEN A TRIAL DRIVE IN A 1938 GENERAL MOTORS CAR and is eligible to compete in the contest.

8 All entrants' statements and ideas therein become the property of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, and may be used in any way for any purpose without obligation to contestant. No entries will be returned.

9 Completed slogan application forms will be passed on to General Motors and the final judging will be done by WARREN B. HASTINGS, Editor and Manager, Canadian Motorist; W. G. ROBERTSON, General Manager, Ontario Motor League; J. L. STEWART, General Manager, Canadian Automobile Chamber of Commerce; J. P. BICKELL, Registrar of Motor Vehicles, Ontario Department of Highways; H. G. FESTER, General Manager, Ontario Safety League. All judges' decisions are final.

10 Each winner will be notified by mail as soon as possible after contest closes.

11 Duration of the contest—March 15th to April 30th inclusive. No slogan will be accepted after May 6th. Each winner is entitled to only one prize.

The Farmer Keeps On Going

There was something in the paper a few days ago about a factory laying off some of its employees, and the reason given was that business conditions in that particular line were not favorable at the moment. It was considered much safer to proceed slowly for the time being rather than to accept the chances of full-time operation.

There was a farmer who was getting some repairs made to his machinery, and he had dug up about all the cash he could command because he wanted something good in the way of seed. He expects to get on his land in a few days. He has put in nearly everything he has in sight in the way of cash so that he can go ahead with his 1938 operations. He can't hold back because he fears the season is not going to be favorable.

So the farmer like nearly all other farmers is going ahead as usual. He may get a break of good weather to put in his spring seeding or he may be held up by rain. After the seeding is done he may have a couple of nice showers or he may face a spell of dry weather. Later on when his grain is up to a fair height and heading out there may be a summer storm of wind and rain that will send it flat. He may get good corn weather and he may not; he may get a fair crop of turnips, and it may be there will be patches where he will get none. He may get a fair cut of alfalfa the first time, and get no second crop; he may have good weather for taking in hay and again he may run into days of showers. When it comes time for the threshing his yield may be down or it may be fair enough. Right now he can't tell you. Neither can he say he is going to get a fair price for it on the market, or that he will be able to make some money by using most of his grain crop for bacon and beef cattle.

In that way the farmer is the biggest chance-taker we have. He can't shut up shop because he is not certain what the year will bring forth. If he did he would go out of business. He has to go ahead just as though he were certain of a good year. Perhaps you never thought of it that way, but the farmer is in business just the same as any other individual; he is his own manager and board of directors combined; he is his own purchasing agent and his own sales department, and he has to take a chance of making money or losing it. And yet he keeps right on going regardless of the prospects.

Why Not Correct Them?

Mike Kevert was riding a bicycle on the road near Delhi, Ont., and a motor car was passing close to him. The handle of the door became hooked in the belt on Mike's coat and he was pulled off and dragged. Now he's in the hospital and his condition is reported as serious.

That is not the first accident resulting from the straight door handles; there have been several and some of them fatal. And yet cars continue to operate with handles of that sort.

It has been reported several times that there had been trouble in securing the numbers from cars because the 1938 plates are difficult to read. When they get muddy reading is impossible, and yet we keep on using the markers.

When a thing is found to be wrong why should it not be corrected at once? We saw one car owner who had remedied his straight handles, and he had done it by placing a small rubber ball on the pointed ends. He did that because he had witnessed an accident where a boy had been gashed by coming in contact with a door handle. We have been informed it is not a serious operation to have door handles taken off and bent so the objectionable danger feature is eliminated, but our law as such has done nothing about it.

Nor can we think of any good reason why a province should continue using car markers when they have been found poor. It is no sign of weakness for a government or a department of that government to admit that a mistake has been made if that mistake is corrected as quickly as possible. But we go ahead just the same with dangerous door handles and poor car markers.

Changed Church Hours

Rev. Hugh R. Percy has a church at Herb Lake, 80 miles north and east from The Pas, Manitoba. It is a mining region and Mr. Percy found the young people were not attending the evening service. He made a number of inquiries and discovered many of them were staying away because they wanted to listen to Edgar Bergen's dummy man, Charlie McCarthy. So the decision of Rev. Mr. Percy was that the church service would be held over until the Charlie McCarthy program had been completed.

Possibly there is sufficient in such a situation to provide an argument in a good many quarters. One view is that the man in that remote region would have to govern himself according to conditions as he found them; he could not be a dictator; if he could get the people at eight and not at seven then he should take them when they were available rather than miss them entirely. It may be the clergyman reasoned it out that way before deciding to make his change of hours.

There is another side: Can this clergyman by changing the hours of service change the people as well? We doubt very much if he can. It is presenting the Gospel as a secondary attraction. It is the same as saying: "When you get your fill of Charlie McCarthy, then come to the House of the Lord." It is bumping hard into that unalterable commandment "Thou shalt have no other gods before Me." Opening the House of the Lord only at such an hour which will not conflict with other lesser affairs looks to much like a form of compromise which gives sturdy evidence of containing the element of defeat.

Too Much War News?

There appeared on this page recently a letter written to the Globe and Mail and signed "A.E." The writer does not like so much mention of war, armaments, dictatorships, etc., in the newspapers. His experience is that he finds in the Art Gallery, the Prom concert, the National Flower Show, etc., an opportunity to enter an atmosphere which helps one to be rid of the tension engendered from reading war news and war scares in the columns of the newspapers.

Possibly—and likely—there are others who feel much the same about it. Admittedly the war mongers and the dictators find little trouble making their way to the front pages of the world. There are times when one is inclined to believe that there is a deliberate build-up for another war being engineered and in it the newspapers are being made the media for carrying the tidings to the people.

Against that is the blunt and unlovely truth that things cannot be lovely for the folk in China today. If the people there had their choice they would prefer to attend a flower show or an Art Gallery or some such thing rather than be subjected to a deluge of bursting shells from Japanese aircraft. We are certain there are men, women and children in Spain who cannot have enjoyed the hell through which they have lived for many months. Nor can we believe that the Jewish folk who have fled from Austria because Hitler came found much pleasure or enjoyment in what they had to do.

A newspaper in publishing such news is reflecting the world as it exists. Newspapers we admit give too much space to Hitler and Mussolini and we grow weary of seeing their pictures in print. That is because there is a failure at times to distinguish between propaganda and news.

We have little quarrel with the letter writer A. E.; he has a rather wholesome idea of what he would like to read in his newspaper. We have often been moved to wonder whether newspapers at their best are actually reflecting life at its best in their own community or country. We do not think they are and the reason for that belief is that life at its best is not regarded as news.

To illustrate: Mr. Blank rises in the morning and prepares for the business of the day. Before leaving home he kisses his wife, waves a merry farewell and is off. He attends to business throughout the day honestly; he cheats no person; when the day is finished he goes home. In all that he has done there is nothing which we can select under the heading of news. You might call it just an average day in the life of a good man but Mr. Blank's name does not appear in the paper on that account.

If Mr. Blank after rising in the morning had occasion to hit his wife and injure her the police would be called and Mr. Blank would be arrested. If during the day he took $200 of the firm's money and put it in his own pocket he would be in trouble. If he got drunk and drove his car into another auto or a post he would be quickly noticed. In all such cases Mr. Blank would appear in the news. While he behaved himself and exemplified life at its best he was not news; when he departed from that path and exhibited himself at his worst then he became news. For that reason it is difficult for a newspaper to present its own community or the world in general at its best. News too frequently comes when the world is at its worst.

Easter Outfit Costs—?

People who write things to be printed in the newspapers are more daring and searching than they used to be. They employ an ease of computation which in other days might have been frowned upon and indeed frowned out of the colums of the paper.

There was the Easter Parade in Toronto at Sunnyside on Sunday afternoon. For a number of years it has been a popular spot with the newspaper photographers; more popular still for the generation which helps to swell the parade.

On Sunday afternoon it rained. Those who lean toward more abundant statement of that simple phrase might be inclined to say there was a copious precipitation. Thus we read in the Toronto papers there were 150,000 in the parade and as they ran for shelter they were wearing $5,000,000 worth of new Easter toggery, all of which ran the risk of being more or less bedraggled. The application of a little simple arithmetic and the elimination of a number of useless ciphers show that to be an average of $33.33 1-3 for each of the 150,000 paraders.

Of course an estimate of that sort is something which requires more knowledge than this column possesses. So it was turned over to the young lady who presides over the realm of women's affairs in this paper, and her opinion was just like this:

"As far as the cost of the ladies' outfits go that $33 is a fair enough average. There would be plenty above the mark and quite a number below it. If one cares to look at it from the cost angle it is possible to see the same thing on our own streets . . . . It is not possible to wear last year's hat and hats are not made over or altered much. There are girls who will make a good showing on less than others. It may be they are pretty and fresh and attractive and it does not require so much expenditure then. But for a rule to cover a large number of people that $33 is not far out."

We admit candidly there is no great principle involved in giving space to such discussion. Perhaps curiosity of an idle sort prompts one to question whether there were $5,000,000 worth of new clothes in the Easter parade, and we have become convinced such a figure is quite possible. And to return for the moment to something more mundane that amount would pay the entire tax levy in Peterborough for a five-year period.

Stories from Jerusalem indicate that the Easter peace in the land of Christ's resurrection was tragically shattered. Machine gun fire and dynamite blasts seemed strangely out of place in the Easter scene.

It is a seasonal development that before the ice is hardly out the lakes and rivers of Ontario enter into competition with the automobile to see which can snuff out the more lives during the summer months.

Our idea of a heroine is the girl who can juggle one of those stove-lid-shaped spring hats at an angle on her head and walk for miles in the Easter parade with a pair of new shoes a size-and-a-half too small on her feet.

WEE ANGUS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Wee Angus sold his spotted hound, for it was getting fat and round, he'd get another soon; the hound filled neighbors up with fright, and bayed an awful lot at night, each time he saw the moon.

¶ Two dollars was the price he got, that seemed to Angus quite a lot, he laid it safe away; he'd get a better dog he knew, he'd get the best one that they grew, no matter what he'd pay.

¶ We Angus priced them here and there, and didn't think the thing was fair, the prices that they'd take; he got one sent in yesterday, and not a thing he had to pay, it came from Cousin Jake.

¶ What make it is well I don't know, it has no papers one can show, its eyes are very bright; it's sort of brown and red and black, and has some brindle on its back, it has an appetite.

¶ It can't shake hands or do no tricks, I think it's used to dodging bricks, perhaps it is no use; its friendly ways will never fail, the way he wiggles at his tail you'd think it would come loose.

¶ Wee Angus is quite sure I thought, he don't know really what he's got, it don't look like it should; his dog has got no pedigree, but on one point we both agree—his appetite is good.

Lunge Season Is Ten Days Longer

(By An Occasional Contributer)

PROBABLY THE most vexing problem that has faced those sportsmen who have at heart the conservation of fish and game, has been the proposed change of the opening date for "muskie" fishing. Justification for the change gives rise to considerable debate because the main reason it meets with local favor is because it enables local interests to compete with Northern Ontario, which sponsored the idea. This leaves plenty of room for disagreement between two groups who might be labelled 'straight conservationists' and 'interested conservationists'.

When I say 'straight conservationists' I mean that group who are out to protect the fish and game even if it means restriction of their private rights and those of their neighbors and the tourists. They insist on a relatively short season. They really represent the conservation argument in its truest form. Their arguments are based on fact—on rapidly decreasing game fish supplies — and their contention that we are going downhill at an increasing rate is not without basis. To them an extension of a season under such conditions is highly undesirable.

On the other hand there are the 'interested conservationists' (though there are several persons I know who will insist that there is "no such animal"—that once you become 'interested', you are no conservationist) who have invested considerable sums in the resorts of our district, the hotel-keepers and the down-town merchants, the guides and the bait-sellers, the boat-liveries and the tackle merchants. Obviously, attempts to curtail a season or to open here at a date different to that in other parts of the province will affect their business. They cannot afford to support any move that will drive tourist trade northward.

When two such elements get together in a discussion of an extension of a season by an earlier opening, there is bound to be a difference of opinion. Those on the executive of the Fish and Game Protective Association, who are in a position to voice their ideas, are more or less put on the spot. They are asked to say 'yes' or 'no' to some sort of a resolution bearing upon the subject which may or may not move the Department to such an extent that will yield a little. They know that if the Asaociation supports an idea, unfavorable to future game conditions, the fact will be brought home to them later by some future Deputy Minister. They have a vague idea, too, that the decision is already "cut and dried" before they are notified by the Department.

Then there are those who realize from experience that it is poor strategy to buck the Department or to oppose those interests who desire the earlier season. So when the executive of the Association voted in favor of the earlier opening season, the resolution was worded in such a way as to imply that those present were merely falling in line, rather than giving whole-hearted consent.

It is an accepted fact, however, that it is only a question of time before our fish and game resources will be depleted, that curtailed seasons may extend that period but they will not stop the inevitable. The only other remedy that can be applied is scientific re-stocking. A definite scheme for a series of hatcheries throughout the Kawartha district could re-establish those lakes and streams that have been mercilessly pirated in the past; not one hatchery—a series of them at convenient points.

When we consider the revenue derived in the past by the Department from licenses in Peterborough County alone, it does not seem unfair to ask them to put some of it back where it originated. The Federal Government gives the western farmer seed to start afresh. What the conservationists want from the government is some seed for Ontario's drought areas—the lakes and the streams.

The Department of Game and Fisheries' agreement regarding the Ouse River expires on June 17th of this year. According to the original understanding a $1.00 fee was to be charged which would cover fishing these stretches of the stream covered by the agreement.

The Department also interprets Section 29 of the Game and Fisheries' Act as allowing fishing from shore for pickerel during the closed season for bass and maskinonge, but only natural bait, such as worms and minnows. According to inspector Lyons the pickerel season will open on May 14th.

With the opening of the seasons for trout and pickerel almost upon us, it wouldn't be a bad idea to check up on our memories as well as to oil our reels. For instance, do you know that the limit for pickerel is eight per day regardless of length, and that for trout the limit is 20 per day, not exceeding ten pounds for the entire catch, and none less than seven inches in length. There are numerous other regulations—why not get a copy or a summary of the game laws?

RAILROADS LOSING.

(Pennsylvania Farmer)

IN 1916 ONLY 1.61 per cent. of the animals received at seventeen principal markets in this country came by motor truck. In 1936, the highest year on record, 54.89 per cent. of all animals at the same markets got there in trucks. Last year the percentage was reduced to 2.505, but that is not highly significant, for in 1935 it fell below 1934 and then went on increasing. In some markets the percentage of animals marketed by truck is very high. Last year at Indianapolis 94.41 per cent. of the animals arrived in trucks, at Sioux Falls 97.23 per cent., these comparing with 31.74 per cent. at Chicago. As improvement in trucks and in highways continues there is little reason to expect anything but further expansion in their use in marketing.

We Pay Well For These Commissions

(From the Ottawa Journal)

EVEN THOSE who watch government closely must have been shocked to learn that four Royal Commissions in 1937 cost the taxpayers of the country about half a million dollars.

No lessening of the shock comes by inquiry of what it was the country got in return for the half million. Thus far not one scrap of legislation has come to Parliament because of these Royal Commissions. We doubt greatly whether a scrap of legislation will come to Parliament that couldn't have come just as readily if the Commissions had never been heard of.

There was that Royal Commission on how to market our grain. This country has ben having investigations on how to market grain ever since they opened up the West. Despite this, and for some reason unknown, there had to be another. It made the usual trip to Europe, and after traveling around it returned home to discover that we had no grain to market. That didn't prevent it putting in a bill for $114,000.

Next there was the Royal Commission on the textile industry. Two years ago somebody closed a textile mill somewhere in the Eastern Townships, and forthwith there was born a Royal Commisison. After spending two years taking evidence it wrote a report (largely an essay) of 180,000 words at a cost of about a dollar a word.

Then there was the Royal Commission on penitentiaries. This Commission went to Europe, too, and to the United States, and though its report is not yet available, ts bill is. The bill is $88,000.

We shall say nothing about the Royal Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations, because for that body there is perhaps some justification. Nor about the National Employment Commission. Generally, however, this propensity for Royal Commisions has become an infernal nuisance, constituting not merely a danger to responsible government but as well a wholly unjustimiable bill of expense.

Salaries For Police Commissioners

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

AT LEAST NINE Ontario cities pay salaries to judges or magistrates for their services as police commissioners. Some cities pay a salary to both judge and magistrate. This information has been received by The Beacon-Herald in answer to questionnaires sent by the newspaper to the clerk of every city in Ontario. Replies have come from 16 cities; of these nine pay a salary to judge or magistrate for police commission duty and seven do not.

None of the 16 cities pays a salary to its mayor for service as a member of the police commission. The questionnaire asked, however, for the amount of the salary attached to the office of mayor. Of the 16 cities that answered, two pay their mayors $1,000 the same mount that is paid to the Mayor of Stratford; seven pay less than $1,000 (one of them pays nothing); seven pay more than $1,000.

Salaries of Police Commissioners

The list of salaries paid by the 16 cities to judges and magistrates for police commission service follows:

Brockville, Chatham, Guelph, London, Sarnia, St. Thomas and Woodstock pay nothing.

Galt: $5 to the judge for each meeting of the commission: magistrate, nothing.

Kitchener: $60 per year to the judge; magistrate, nothing. (This information was given over the signature of the Kitchener City Clerk, although Mayor Henry of Stratford, stated at Thursday night's committee meeting that Kitchener does not pay a salary to any of its police commissioners).

Belleville: $100 to the judge; magistrate nothing.

Peterborough: $300 to the judge; magistrate nothing.

Niagara Falls: $250 to the judge; $50 to the magistrate.

Brantford: $200 to the judge; $200 to the magistrate.

Owen Sound: $200 to the judge; $200 to the magistrate.

Windsor: $500 to the judge, as chairman; magistrate, nothing.

City that marked its answer "Confidential": $500 to the judge; $500 to the magistrate.

Stratford pays $250 a year to the judge or magistrate, depending on which is chairman.

Salaries of Mayors

Owen Sound and Peterborough, like Stratford, pay their mayors $1,000 a year.

Cities that pay more than $1,000 are: Brantford, $2,500; Guelph, $1,200; Kitchener, $1,500; London, $2,725; Niagara Falls, $1,400; Windsor, $4,500; city that marked its reply "Confidential," $4,000.

Cities that pay their mayors less than $1,000 a year are: Belleville, $500 to $700; Brockville, nothing; Chatham, $500; Galt, $900; Sarnia, $800; St. Thomas, $650 and, in addition, $200 from the Public Utilities Commission, or a total of $850; Woodstock, $500.

Advises Studying the Book of Books.

(From the New York Sun)

WHEREVER ENGLISH is spoken the celebration this year of the four hundredth anniversary of the preparation of Coverdale's Great Bible is of interest.

It did not introduce the Book of Books in the vernacular of the English people; that had previously been accomplished through other editions, the history of which is an ever-stirring tale of scholarly devotion and fearless faith, faith that carried to martyrdom men confident of salvation but reluctant to die—reluctant only because the noble task to which they had dedicated themselves was uncompleted.

But the Great Bible, edited by Miles Coverdale, is that which, after an extraordinary series of discouragements in its composition and printing, was authorized to be "set up in some convenient place" within every church, the duty being imposed on all curates to "expressly provoke, stir and exhort every person to read the same."

The incalculable influence exerted by the Bible on the spiritual, intellectual, political and physical lives of the British stock may fairly be dated from this opening of the Book.

The Great Bible is by no means as remote from this era as might be thought; the translation of the Psalms in the Anglican and American Books of Common Prayer today is that used by Coverdale. The lessons are read from the King James Version. This came about by reason of the fact that when the prayer book was revised in 1662 the Coverdale rendition of the Psalms had become so familiar it was held inadvisable to change it, and was considered by choristers to be better suited for singing than the later form.

Some of the differences in the texts are striking; thus, the opening words of the Twenty-second Psalm in the Authorized Version, the words quoted by Christ dying on the cross, are "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Why art thou so far from helping me, and from the words of my roaring?" while in the Prayer Book the lines are: "My God, my God, look upon me; why hast thou forsaken me? and art so far from my health and from the words of my complaint?"

The stimulation that should be given to study of the Book of Books by celebration of the Great Bible's anniversary must be most wholesome in its effect, and if it is true that many now neglect that work, those of them who are attracted to it through discussion of any of its aspects and influences will be richly rewarded.

A Bit of Nonsense

UNUSUAL HAPPENING

Rain lashed the windows of the lonely old castle, and the wind howled mournfully as the timid guest was escorted to his room under the eaves.

"Has—anything unusual ever happened in this room?" he asked hesitatingly of the sinister-looking butler.

The butler grimaced. "Not for forty years," he answered.

The guest heaved a sigh of relief. "What happened then?" he queried, brightly.

The butler's green eyes glittered ominously. "A man who stayed here all night showed up in the morning!"

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

NOW WHEN JESUS was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magadlene, out of whom he had cast seven devils. And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept. And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not. After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country. And they went and told it unto the residue; neither believed they them. Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen. And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. . . . So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. And they went forth, and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.—Mark xvi, 9-15, 19, 20.

PICKING UP STRANGERS.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

WHEN WILL people learn to leave roadside "thumb-riders" safely and securely on the side of the road, where they belong?

Seldom a day passes that there is not a story in the newspapers about some motorist being attacked and robbed by one or more men to whom he has given a ride.

There are two classes of "thumbers"; the man who has no money, and the man who has money with which to pay his bus or railway fare but prefers to save it and "cadge" a ride from some passing autoist.

In the first group there are, undoubtedly, many honest young men who are deeply appreciative of a lift from a passing motorist. On the other hand, there are a lot of men seeking rides on our highways today for the sole purpose of robbery. Is it, then, wise to take a chance?

Picking up hitch-hikers indiscriminately is a risky business and often results disastrously, as W. H. Gray of Essex County recently discovered to his sorrow.

CANADA'S EXAMPLE.

(Letter to the New York Herald Tribune)

DO YOU KNOW that the February, 1938, monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada showed that for December, 1937, Canada showed an all-time high for employment in the history of Canada, when we of the U.S.A. are showing about an all-time low?

Unemployment — 1933: 11,000,000; 1938: 11,000,000.

Government debt — 1933: $21,000,000,000; 1938: $37,000,000,000 plus.

Canada did not swamp herself in debt or stir up costly strife or frighten capital into hiding or employ veterinaries in high places or buy up all the silver in the world from our repudiating debtors at high prices. Nor are Canada's utilities or people ruined, nor did the Canadian Government use for other purposes the social security fund contributed by employer and employe.

(Montreal Financial Times)

THE PICTURE of nine provincial sweepstakes each occurring several times a year is not one to contemplate with easy complacency. Once each province was well set up in the sweepstake business the element of competition would, no doubt, come into play and if Prince Edward Island gave more in prizes than any other, as it could well afford to do, it would probably get the largest share of the nation's sweepstake dollars.

Ignor Air Raid Precautions Advise Welsh Nationalists

Charge Preparedness Measures Just Seeds To Stir Warlike Feelings

LONDON, April 19 (CP) — The Welsh Nationalist party is in the thick of a new battle with the majority of Welsh people. This time this hard-hitting minority organization is venting its spleen against England by exhorting Wales to ignore Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare's appeal for air raid precaution work.

The party organ "Y Ddraig Goch" termed Great Britain's preparedness measures "a tremendous impetus to warlike feelings." The western mail answered vigorously that such a charge was the "spawn of Machiavellian sophistry" appearing in a mouthpiece "whose sole virtue is the craftsmanship of the printer and the paper-maker."

The Nationalist party's convention was that through all forms of propaganda—in the press, by films and word of mouth—England was trying to persuade Wales to assist in "This new form of deception" about the defence of democracy.

"A tremendous impetus to warlike feelings will be given by the success of this effort, the object of which is to lull this country into the belief that it will be safe from attack from the air. While engrossed in this work of defence ordinary people do not hear the noise of bombing aeroplanes passing overhead, and they do not remember Baldwin's words: 'The bomber will always get through.'

A Check on War.

The party organ declared that failure of this effort "would be a certain check to war; no Government dare attempt to lead to war a nation that knows it has no defence against attack from the air and that will not, therefore, hypocritically play-act."

It further charged that seeds of conscription were in the plan, and that it might lead from voluntary effort to conscription as in the case of the last war.

In another article in the same issue of "Y Ddraig Goch' Saunders Lewis, president of the party, wrote that all the English political parties were preparing for a war to safeguard the "English Empire."

He concluded that the Welsh policy was "to keep Wales from being deceived by falsities into joining in a war 'to make the world safe for democracy,' which in reality would be a 'war for England's Empire and England's plunder.'"

Looking Back On This Date

APRIL 19

The fact that today (April 19) is the anniversary of the death, in 1840, of Rt. Rev. J. J. Lartique, the first bishop of Montreal, reminds me that the March issue of le Bulletin des Recherches Historiques of Quebec contained a most interesting and most valuable article by Father Leon Pouliot, S. J., upon the part which that prelate played in the troublous times of 1837 in the Montreal district.

Fred Williams

It should not be forgotten that the armed rising of what is known as the Papineau rebellion — though Papineau himself never counselled any but constitutional agitation—was confined to a few parishes around Montreal and never extended to the Quebec district. The bishop, at the first indication that hotheads, such as Nelson and O'Callaghan, were preparing for armed resistance to the crown, issued his mandement, warning his flock not to be seduced from their lawful duty, and there is no doubt but that it had much effect in preventing the spread of the rebellion.

Long ago, in discussing the events of '37 with certain French-Canadian friends, I found, among some of them, a bitterness towards Bishop Lartique because he had refused the rites of the church and Christian burial to those who fell at St. Charles, St. Dennis and St. Eustache. It was difficult for a Protestant to exactly grasp the ecclesiastical point of view which placed these "political rebels" — patriots, we call them now—upon the same footing as men executed for murder, as was done in the case of the men hanged for political "crimes" at Montreal in 1838-39. But Father Pouliot makes it quite clear. These men had disobeyed the orders of the church; they had betrayed their allegiance to the sovereign, a cardinal tenet of the church, and they were considered as having died outside the pale. The shame and the disgrace to the families of those buried in unconsecrated ground without clerical benediction can be imagined, but it was written by Bishop Bourget, Monsignor Lartique's coadjutor and successor:

"I believe that this severity was necessary to open the eyes of those who had been blinded and that, in thus treating harshly the bodies of the dead, we were saving the souls of the living."

In that crisis, as in other periods of our history, the bishops of the French-Canadian Catholic Church have ever stood loyally to that British connection which gave them freedom and the opportunity to become the great factor in Canadian life which now, as in the past, is having an important influence on our destiny.

STORM IN TROPICS VIVIDLY DESCRIBED BY MRS. R. O. STOLL

An interested congregation in Bethany Tabernacle heard Mrs. R. O. Stull of Peru tell the thrilling story of deliverance from a terrific tropical storm. It was at the eastern foothills of the Andes on the shores of the Amazon headwaters. In May and October storms come with the changing of the seasons. These storms come with a ferocity that threatens to destroy the sturdy little buildings which the missionaries have built. Winds accompanied with heavy thunder make conversation impossible. Constant flashing lightning reveals the destruction being wrought and drenching rains sweep in as a flood. All go to make up this night turmoil.

Mrs. Stull stated that during one such storm she and her husband stood in their cedar bungalow with the floor fairly breathing under their feet with the feeling that the building could not withstand the awful forces much longer. There they stood throughout the entire storm, holding heavy blankets to the little screened beds where David and Baby Marilyn slept. It was to protect them from the drenching rains sweeping under their three-foot eaves and across the whole interior.

Children Slept Through Storm.

With mother and daddy holding blankets against the rain, the occupants of the little beds slept peacefully throughout the storm, for storms like this one were nothing new in the jungle. Unabated in fury for forty-five minutes, the storm continued. With the quieting of the storm the heavy tropical rain continued to fall until the morning sun rose above the horizon of tall trees that wall in the small jungle clearing, and these, who had dared to become conquestadors for Christ and the Gospel, stepped out into their little space which for them represented the world at least during their stay at this remote post. They came forth to appraise the damage wrought by the night's storm and to their amazement they found the direct path of the wind had cut into the unbroken jungle just beyond their clearing, had taken a curving course along a second side, leaving an avenue through the forest where huge primitive trees were mowed down as though they had been cornstalks.

God's Protecting Hand.

Again the missionaries knew that they and even the place of their abode were held in the hollow of God's hand. The purpose of the isolation of these people in this jungle place was to declare the good news of God's love to the bronzed dwellers of the forest and repeatedly their entire project seemed to be threatened by the storm of the adversary's wrath against them, but again as the message produced positive results in the lives of the jungle people, they knew that their work was protected in the hollow of God's hand.

Champion Aviatrix

Jean Batten, New Zealand aviatrix, was chosen as the champion woman flier of 1937 by the International League of Aviators after a world-wide poll of fliers. Among Miss Batten's achievements was the setting of a new record for the England to New Zealand flight which was recently broken by Flying Officer A. E. Clouston.

Ormonde Factory To Open On May 9

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 19.—Patrons of the Ormonde Cheese factory had their annual spring meeting in the council chambers here yesterday. The opening date for the factory was announced as May 9. The question of letting out contracts to the milk drawers has not as yet been decided. A very representative gathering were present. R. W. Montgomery will again be cheesemaker for the coming season.

Bonarlaw Cattle Pass T.B. Test

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19.—The reputation of the herd of forty-five Ayrshires owned by F. M. Rutherford at Bonarlaw has been sustained again this year when they passed the T.B. test to give them a continuous record for the past twenty-three years. Mr. Rutherford's cattle have passed the Federal blood test for the past two years and his stock has earned an enviable record at the fall fairs in this district.

OFFICIAL VISITS MARMORA LODGE

MARMORA, April 19. — Right Wor. Bro. R. D. Adams, D.D.G.M. of Prince Edward District, paid his official visit to Marmora A.F. & A.M. 222 on Monday evening. Visiting brethren from Eureka (Belleville), Stirling, Madoc, Havelock and other lodges swelled the attendance of brethren.

At the lodge session, the third degree was exemplified and in his speech the representative of Grand Lodge made favorable comment on the work and general appearance of the Lodge. The fourth degree was put on in St. Andrew's Hall with excellent catering by the Women's Association. Wor. Bro. Arthur Sweet, W.M., acted as toastmaster.

Following the toast to "King and Craft," that of "Grand Lodge" was proposed by Right Wor. Bro. T. E. Laycock. In response Right Wor. Bro. Adams likened Grand Lodge to the family homestead and touched upon the duties of good Masons. Wor. Bro. H. W. Sabine proposed "Our Country" and Wor. Bro. Lt.-Col. A. V. Yates replied. Wor. Bro. Dr. J. Semple, district chaplain, and Right Wor Bro. Ed Carleton responded to the toast, "Visiting Brethren," propose dby Wor. Bro. R. E. Bonter and that to "Marmora Lodge" was handled by Very Wor. Bro. Canon W. G. Swayne. The Junior Warden's toast was succeeded by the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, April 20.

According to the planetary configurations on this day, there are promises of good fortune to exhilarate and give tone to high ambitions and secret desires. All pertaining to employment, promotion, honors, favors and tokens of preferment are under excellent promise, particularly where there are literary, cultural and spiritual aspirations at the core of such objectives.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of fruition of very definite ambitions in employment. Persons in important positions may be approached with confidence for favors. Literary, artistic, and educational aspirations are involved, and, with application and industry, these may take one far to happiness and renown.

A child born on this day may be abundantly endowed with all the factors for a successful, happy and possibly conspicuous life. Its varied talents and the fine quality of its ambitions should take it far in popularity, security, and high station.

A FRISKY GOAT

TAVISTOCK, Ont., April 19 (C. P.). — A business man here on sudden impulse bought a three-week-old nanny goat for 50 cents while visiting in the country. Next day he realized the goat was a considerable problem, so he raffled it off with tickets at five cents each, netting $3.00. The winner, who never realized what problems a baby goat provided until he won, finally auctioned it off, a farmer paying 75 cents for it.

"AMBERS WILL BE MORE TROUBLE THAN BARNEY," SAYS MEAD

Ambitious 'Hennery' Armstrong Expects No Trouble From Pair

Little Brown Bumper After Welter And Lightweight Titles

By Bill Braucher
(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, April 19. — Over-stuffed Eddie Mead takes a pen in his pudgy hand to refute the idea being bruited about that his Hennery Armstrong is all washed up. Overstuffed Eddie and Hustling Hennery are at Hot Springs, Ark., for a series of baths they figure will help them both. Mead plans to be down to 250 pounds ringside when he crawls into Armstrong's corner the night of May 26 to second Hennery against Barney Ross. The fat man and the little Brown Bumper are determined to win that welter championship and then the lightweight, which with Hennery's feather title, make three nice things to have resting on the mantel.

HENRY ARMSTRONG

Here's the Lowdown

Says the super-dreadnaught manager:

"I don't think Barney Ross will be so hard for us. Henry may have more trouble beating Ambers than he will with Barney. Ross has got a nice left hand, but he can't keep Henry away from him with it. One left hand is not enough, once Henry starts to come in.

"Ross is a fighter who likes to trade punches once in a while, too. That's what we're counting on. If he'll stand up and punch with Henry, we'll like it fine. He'll have to, anyway. You know how Armstrong is.

"Some of the boys have been writing that Henry is worn out from too many fights. Well, he has been mighty busy, that's right, and his hands are a little sore and puffy from grinding up guys' chins. But his hands are as sound as a rock. He hasn't lost anything in the last six months that a couple of weeks rest and the baths won't give him back. He has been fighting a lot, but hasn't been doing any gymnasium work. He has kept in shape by fighting. He'll be in great shape when we pull out of here.

BARNEY ROSS

The Ambers Style

"I don't look for much trouble from Ambers, either, though he may bother Henry for a while with that bouncy style of his, jumping and jabbing and always on a bicycle going someplace for a ride. The job for us will be to catch Ambers before we can beat him. But Henry can do that, too.

"Armstrong looks fine. He was a little drawn, but he's filling out in great shape. Takes a bottle of ale with his dinner. He's crazy about the climate down here. Don't worry about Henry. He'll be better May 26 than he ever was in his life."

LOU AMBERS

Is Ross Ready to Quit?

We weren't worrying about Hennery, Mister Mead. It's our notion that the Brown Bumper will recover rapidly from his recent relapse. And speaking about a relapse, Hennery must be pretty fair when he can wallow around in that ring in the throes of a relapse and still manage to pole Lew Feldman over the garden wall in five snappy heats. If that's being stale, Hennery ough to be a right smart fighter when he sharpens up a little!

Another thought we are toying with is that Barney Ross has gone back a long way since the day when he stood off Tony Canzoneri with that piston-like left. We have played host to some wrong hunches, but the feeling is prevalent in this corner that Barney is all through fighting and wants only an excuse to bow out of the ring picture.

OXFORD WINS RACQUETS

OXFORD, England (CP).—Oxford University wiped the boards with Cambridge in the annual racquets match at Queen's Club recently, the dark blues winning the doubles and singles.

WASHINGTON AND RED SOX CAPTURE A.L. FIRST WINS

NEW YORK, April 19 (CP). — The sun-tanned countenances of seven American League managers were wreathed in new hope today as the major league baseball campaign began on all fronts. Only a general rain that swished up and down the Atlantic seaboard threatened to dampen the day's festivities.

The happy pilots of the junior circuit beamed in their morning mirrors as they thought of the 8-4 licking the champion New York Yankees absorbed in their opener against Boston Red Sox yesterday, and hoped the trouble with Manager Joe McCarthy's gang was nothing trivial.

They trilled a few notes over their breakfast bacon, too, as they noted that jolting Joe DiMaggio, the Yankees' missing slugger, still was mad at Owner Jacob Ruppert because he wouldn't pay him $40,000 for the season.

The Yanks got only five hits in six innings off Jim Bagby, Jr., a 21-year-old kid starting his first major league game, and their prized new second baseman, Joe Gordon, whiffed twice. The mighty Red Ruffing, who won 20 games last season, was slammed from the box.

Washington Senators, victorious over Philadelphia Athletics 12-8, had reason to be proud of the swap that got them First Baseman Zeke Bonura from Chicago in exchange for Joe Kuhel. The big fellow smashed three hits, including a home run into the left centre stands with two on base.

The Detroit Trade.

Today's remaining American League openers brought up a few more points of prime interest. The matter of the big trade between Chicago and Detroit, involving a couple of walkers, Gee and Dixie, Vernon Kennedy and others was due to be threshed out when the Tigers and White Sox clashed. And Mickey Cochrane had the comforting assurance that Schoolboy Rowe was ready to give his all for Detroit after being laid up most of last season with a sore arm. Rowe, voluntarily retired since last summer, applied for reinstatement yesterday.

Then, while rumors that DiMaggio had signed or would sign his Yankee contract were floating around, St. Louis Browns stirred up a bit more excitement last night by offering to buy him for $150,000. They didn't get any further with that one than Joe has with his holdout, but the offer may bring out a few more customers for today's opener at Cleveland.

There wasn't much doubt in anyone's mind that the National Leaguers were heading into another close struggle with New York giants and Chicago Cubs, perhaps battling it out right down to the tape.

There was every prospect that, with a break in the weather, upward of 200,000 would witness today's contests, which included a patriots' day doubleheader between the Yankees and Red Sox at Boston.

Nationals Stronger.

Increased interest has been aroused in the National League by Saturday's deal which sent Pitcher Dizzy Dean to Chicago for $185,000 and three players. Reckoning Dizzy's total price tag at $270,000, it was the second biggest deal in baseball annals. In turning over that kind of money to St. Louis Cardinals, Owner Phil Wrigley must have been completely satisfied that Dean's arm again is the wing that made him the scourge of the league two and three years ago.

Except for the Cardinals and the Philadelphia Club, the National looks stronger all along the line. Brooklyn, Boston and Cincinnati all look capable of giving the favorites a fight. A winning team at Brooklyn, the craziest baseball town in either league, would mean plenty of money in the coffers of every rival team.

Since the prospective pennant contenders are at opposite ends of the loop, there weren't any particularly important angles to be considered in today's opening program, sending the Giants off at home against Casey Stengel's Boston Bees and the Cubs against the Reds at Cincinnati, while the Dodgers hooked up with the Phillies and the Pirates with the Cards.

Veterans Of Grind In Boston Race

BOSTON, April 19.— (CP).— Liberally spiced with Canadians, one of the most capable fields in the 41-year-old history of the Boston Athletic Association Marathon starts from Hopkinton at noon to-day to plod 26 miles, 385 yards into Boston, where the winner will be crowned with a laurel wreath.

The entry list totals 204 and at least 25 of the starting field, which includes six former winners, have been given every chances for victory.

Most of them are veterans of the grind and nine were in last year's first 10.

Pirate Infielders Sold To Montreal

ST. LOUIS, April 19.—Manager Pie Traynor of the Pittsburg Pirates, announced here last night the release of Outfielder Morris Sands and Shortstop Bill Schuster to Montreal in the International League.

Sands is subject to recall by the Pirates on twenty-four hours' notice. Players are rookies. Sands played with the Tulsa, Okla., Oilers of the Texas League last season, while Schuster was with Albany of the Eastern League.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ANNUAL MEETING of the Girls' Softball League will be held tonight at 7.30 in Duffus', and those interested are invited. The usual re-organization business with plenty on tap. Invitations have been sent out by Secretary Gladys Mortimer to Keene, Westclox, C.G.E., Cobourg and Lindsay—and probably to Omemee, also. They expect to line up a good four-team district circuit again, playing local games at the Ashburnham bowl. Prexy Ev. Thomas has said he would not run for office again, but club delegates should not let a good man get away. Cobourg will not be represented at this meeting but Ernie Foote, scrappy manager of the Lakeshore lasses last year, will be up Saturday to see the loop president about past business, and something may come of it yet.

* * * * * *

WE HAD a 'phone call from Ernie last e'en. He said he would be attending a banquet tonight and could not come up for the meeting—and that, anyway, he would not be running the team from Cobourg this year. But he added that Cobourg might be interested in returning to the circuit if the umpiring system could be re-arranged somewhat. Let them use one Cobourg and one Peterborough umpire for all games in which the Cobourg gals were playing. He explained that they didn't want to leave the league with any bad feelings and would like to play in it, but felt that Peterborough umps should not be used exclusively in a district loop.

* * * * * *

"I REALIZE umpires make mistakes, and so do managers," Ernie stated, "but we had a good team in a tight series with Westclox last year and had to battle for everything. And if we entered the league this summer we would have our home fans, as well as the team, to consider—and it is only fair to have a Cobourg as well as a Peterborough representative." There may be some sense to that, in fact we think he is right on that point. Of course, we still criticize Manager Foote for taking his team off the field during a game. Trouble seems to be that the loop contracts two umpires for the season, and if all the clubs demanded certain umpires—and the pay is none too robust—no arbiter would want the job. However, this will likely come up, along with other matters, at tonight's session.

* * * * * *

ABOUT 15 guys took in the men's City Softball League meeting in the Chamber of Commerce last night. As is usual with this league, it takes a couple or three sessions to get started. President Dave Leether outlined some of the amendments passed at the O.A.S.A. convention and explained why that body did not break with the Amateur Union. Admitted that they were taking the middle course between the Union and the Sports Federation and would swing with whichever outfit proved most benefical to the Association. Sound sense, at that. Dave also said the loop would be playing at the Bowl this summer, and it was most agreeable to those present. Next meeting of the men's circuit will be held next Monday at eight p.m. in Duffus'.

* * * * * *

THIS LOOP will likely line up four strong squads. Only two definite entries in as yet, though. Shorty Barrett said the Motorists would be back again this summer, and that's good news as they field a strong and colorful outfit. A surprise entry, given in by Percy Harrison, is a London team. It will be sponsored by some biscuit firm from that town, made up of local players and managed by one Jack Savage—the company's local representative. Various other prospective teams were mentioned, and we think Westclox will return, after winning the title last year. Also Chuck Dorrington's junior crew. A committee of Dave Leether, Pat Hayden and Chuck Dorrington will check on possible entries before the next gabfest.

* * * * * *

THEO ELLIOTT, ex-Oshawa ballster, is in Kirkland Lake now and has been given the task of importing some senior baseballers for a team there this summer. Looking over his C.O.B.L. acquaintances, Elliott picked Harold Buck and Red Scrutton of Kingston, both of whom headed north; and he has also invited Cy Whatley of the Petes, but the local infielder has a good job here and will again turn out with the locals. The peppery Cy is a good ball player to have around on any club as he will step into almost any position on the squad at a moment's notice, without any squawking, and play his head off. Lots of fight to him, and plenty of ability. He will no doubt do his stuff in local livery again this summer—though in what spot in the lineup we dunno yet.

* * * * * *

THERE WAS an intermediate diamond meeting in Belleville last night but only two definite entries, Napanee and Picton. Two Belleville prospects and Trenton Fliers are undecided yet, so another session will be held next Monday, at which time they will make their decision. Meantime, the C.O.B.L. has invited the Fliers into this loop —but the Central League doesn't meet till a week from next Saturday. Bob Elliott addressed the Quinte gathering last e'en and urged the formation of a good intermediate group along the Bay of Quinte. Junior Kiwanis of Belleville may hop aboard to fill out the intermediate section yet, and 'tis said that Eddie Thomas of the ex-Redmen may desert hockey from down Bella Villa way for the spalding sport.

* * * * * *

ERNIE GIBBARD recently wrote the Kingston paper, saying the O.B.A. had overlooked one thing when permitting pro puckists to play ball, that is the residence date of March 15th. He felt pro pucksters were not eligible as they did not take up residence in their home towns till after the 15th. The Quinte columnist takes issue with the former O.B.A.A. officer and points to Dit Clapper as an example, saying his home is in Hastings and he could play ball for the Petes regardless of when he returned from the hockey wars. The scribe is quite right, and Max Swanston tells us that the O.B.A. didn't overlook this point—they simply regarded Hastings, for example, as the home of Dit Clapper (regardless of where he played his hockey) and he could return there before the ball season opened and play baseball for the nearest team.

* * * * * *

UP AND down Sports' Rialto: Cornwall kept in the Allen Cup hunt last night with a 2-1 nod over Trail at Calgary . . . . Oshawa Generals and St. Boniface Seals settle the Memorial Cup series in Toronto tonight . . . . Eddie Shore was named most valuable player and Gord Drillon the most gentlemanly in the N.H.L. the past winter. . . . . Local skiers start work on the Bethany hill next Sat'day, getting it in shape for slalom and downhill events next winter . . . . We still can't figure how amateur hockeyists can play softball since the puck body recognizes the Sports Federation and the softballers stick to the Amateur Union . . . . Eddie Murphy of the Petes had an invite recently to tackle pro ball once more in the Quebec Provincial League; he said ixnay . . . . A fair turnout of diamond prospects at the indoor drill last eve at the "Y" . . . . Possibly Belleville, Oshawa and Cobourg will have junior baseball teams this summer—but no word about one here yet . . . . P.O.I. cagers go into the Ontario senior school semi-finals tonight in Toronto . . . . Lindsay expects to be represented tonight at the gals' softball meeting here . . . . No lacrosse dope lately . . . . Ah, yes, that seems to have the desk cleared off for today.

LEAFS WALLOP ROCHESTER 11-5

PORTSMOUTH, Va., April 19. — Frankie Reiber put the starting and finishing touches to an eight-run third-inning rally that carried the Leafs to an 11-5 triumph over Rochester Red Wings here Monday afternoon.

The little backstop, late of Detroit and Toledo, sparked the Leafs' rally with an opening double inside the third-base line. He climaxed a wild assault on Rookie Red Wing Lee Sherrill with a home run over the left field fence, scoring a runner ahead of him.

The Leafs made the most of every opportunity afforded them in that wild outburst. There were only three other safeties, aside from Reiber's, during the inning, but three passes helped the cause considerably.

PUP HAS LEG TO SPARE

RADVILLE, Sask., April 19 (CP). —One pup in a litter born to a dog owned by Reeve Tremblay in this town 50 miles south of Regina, has five legs. The extra leg is on the upper part of the hip near the tail. Otherwise the puppy appears normal and is the liveliest of the litter.

Chicago Bowlers Win Alley Title

CHICAGO, April 19 (AP)—The Birk Brothers Brewing Company five-man squad became the official winner of the 1938 American Bowling Congress team championship today.

The five veterans on the Chicago team posted their winning score on April 5 but it wasn't recognized until the last of their 4,956 rivals for the major prize finished bowling.

Not only did the Birk team win the championship but it also established a new record of 3,234 for the A.B.C. the margin of victory—137 pins—was the biggest recorded in the bowling classic.

Charleston, W. Va. — Second base, long a weak spot of Cleveland Indians, is worrying the Tribe again. Unless Sammy Hale's throwing improves in a few days, Jimmy Webb may get a chance to show what he can do at the job.

Thomasville, N.C. — Chuck Klein, the Philadelphia Phillies' slugger, has apparently ended his batting slump. He drove in four runs yesterday with three hits, including a double and a home run.

WINDSOR DROPS CLOSE BATTLE

OTTAWA, April 19.—Scoring two points on free shots in the last five seconds of play, Ottawa Glebe Grads last night defeated Windsor Moose Lodge 32-30, to deadlock the Eastern Canada senior basketball final series at one game each. Windsor won the first game Saturday and the deciding contest in the two-out-of-three series will be played here today.

Erasing a four-point deficit in the last minutes of play, Grads took full advantage of a personal foul for Red Wiseman and a technical foul on Tom Pendlebury, called with five seconds to go. Mal Cunningham and Wib Nixon each scored on free throws to break a 30-30 tie and necessitate the third game.

Fighting a close battle for the right to meet the Western Canada champions in the Dominion final, the teams battled evenly in the first half, although Windsor led 17-13 at the rest period.

CAGE PLAYOFFS START TUESDAY

TORONTO, April 19 (CP)—Group winners representing four sections of the province will clash here tonight in the Ontario secondary schools basketball championships, Warren Stevens, University of Toronto athletic director, announced last night. All games will be played at Hart House, with the final on Wednesday.

Kennedy Collegiate of Windsor, Western Ontario titleholders, Glebe Collegiate, Ottawa, champions of Eastern Ontario, Peterborough Collegiate, representing Central Ontario and Niagara Collegiate, winners in their district, make up the squads.

Wednesday morning and afternoon the secondary schools provincial gymnastic championships will be held. Windsor, Ottawa and Toronto have entered teams, with others possibly coming from Hamilton and Sarnia.

Alfred Again

Alf Perry, 1935 British open golf champion registered a sweet win when he toured the Newcastle-on-Tyne course in 284 for the 72 hole route, to win the London Daily Mail $10,000 tourney. Henry Cotton, present champ, carded a 293 in the same event.

SPECIAL EASTER EFFORT

GUELPH, Ont., April 19 (C.P.).—Easter meant nothing to a Plymouth Rock hen owned by R. Bullock, Rockwood district. Instead of being inspired by glorification of the egg around Easter, the hen laid the smallest hen's egg seen in years here. It was about three-quarters of an inch long and little bigger than a sparrow's egg.

Direct air service between London and Glasgow, Scotland, will start shortly.

The Bride WORE BLUE

"A travel costume of French Poilu Blue," the society editor called it—the first of a long line of costumes which this charming bride will wear—and buy—in the years that lie ahead.

She will have the new home to buy for, too . . . and hubby . . . and the children. Oh, she will be a busy, money-spending young lady.

What will her buying preferences be? Can she be persuaded to favor your merchandise?

Yes—if you talk to her, and thousands like her, through newspaper advertising. For newspaper advertising reaches into the home . . . creates new customers . . . holds old ones.

CORNWALL REMAINS IN ALLAN CUP SERIES WITH 2-1 VICTORY

St. Lawrence Sextet Checks Columbians Off Their Feet To Remain In The Running

Easterners Score Twice During Smoke Eater Penalties In Second Frame

CALGARY, April 19 (CP)—Cornwall Flyers fought back into the Allan Cup picture by edging out Trail Smoke Eaters 2-1 here last night in the third game of the best-of-five final series.

Beaten 6-4 and 8-2 in the first two games, the game eastern Canada hockey champions scored twice in the second period while Smoke Eaters were in the penalty box and then held Trail to one goal in the third period.

The St. Lawrence River sextet, given little chance of winning by a capacity crowd of 5,000 jamming Victoria area, checked the speedy British Columbia champions off their feet to prolong the series which continues here Wednesday.

Conny Brown, little centre nicknamed "Snow White" by his teammates, emerged as hero of the Cornwall victory by making the plays for both Flyers' goals.

How They Scored

The 20-year-old pivot led an attack into Trail territory after seven minutes of the middle period while Joe Benoit was serving a five-minute penalty for cutting Mike McMahon with a high stick.

After getting over Smoke Eaters blue line, he stopped dead while Dick Proulx raced ahead. Then Brown passed ahead to the right winger who lifted the puck over Duke Scodellaro from five feet out.

Both Bunny Dame and Mel Snowdon of Trail were on the penalty bench nine minutes later when the tricky pivot pulled the same play, this time laying a perfect pass on the stick of McMahon who had gone around the right side of the defence. The burly rearguard scored easily from a few feet out.

Dave Duchak, play - making centre, banged in the only Trail tally after 12 minutes of the third period when he broke away from Farrand Gillie's checking and sent Dame's pass into the net from outside the crease.

Floyd Perras in the Cornwall goal had no chance on the shot which came just after he had kicked, batted and shoved out several almost sure goals while Wib Landymore was serving time.

BUT HUBBY PAYS

CAMBRIDGE, England—(CP). — Steve Donoghue, famous jockey, lost a $24 damage suit here brought by a car-hire firm for carrying his wife from Cambridge to Newmarket on three occasions in 1935. Steve and his wife were separated at the time.

Flyers Hard Hit By Rough Play

CALGARY, April 19 (CP) — "Nice going boys," shouted Don Pennistion, coach of the Cornwall Flyers as they trekked into the rest room after their 2-1 win over Trail Smoke Eaters last night.

"They're tough babies," he added as he expressed top hopes of making the Allan Cup hockey series two-all here tomorrow night. "We'll keep bucking along," said the sturdy mentor as he surveyed a bunch of battered players.

"The boys are getting in better condition each game, more used to the high altitude and can breathe better now."

The battered crew, nearly every member nursing cuts or bruises, were keen over the victory but none too pleased with the pounding they took from the western champions during the night.

RIVULETTES WIN CANADIAN TITLE

GALT, Ont., April 19 (C.P.). — Preston Rivulettes added another chapter to-day to the story of their long string of hockey successes. This time it was the winning of the Canadian women's hockey championship for the fourth time.

Rivulettes defeated Winnipeg Olympics 2-0 here last night in the second of their two-game, total-goals series for the title defended by the Preston team. The victory gave Rivulettes the round 3-1, for the teams tied 1-1 in the first game on Saturday night.

GLASGOW YIELDS EIGHT-YEAR HOLD ON SCOTTISH CUP

GLASGOW, April 19.—(CP)—An alien atmosphere, strange to Glasgow's sporting fraternity since 1929, hangs over spacious Hampden Park as eleventh-hour preparations are made for entry of Kilmarnock and East Fife into Scotland's soccer spotlight—the cup final to be played April 23.

Giant-Killers of the current competition, these "outsiders" are ready to show sceptical Clydeside fans form that burst open the competition in preliminary rounds with resounding victories over top teams of the soccer world. They will perform before a sell-out crowd.

Nine years ago Kilmarnock won the trophy and since then the final has taken a local-interest angle with Rangers of Celtic, the "Old Firm" of Scottish football, capturing the trophy. The Light Blues won honors in 1930, 1932, 1934-36, the Celtic in 1931, 1933 and last year.

In the wake of the finalists' invasion will come thousands of supporters flaunting colors of their favorites. Nearly all modes of transportation will be used by Scotsmen pouring into the city from all parts of the country to see the windup of a great form-smashing series.

This game will mark the second time since formation of the second division in 1922 that a team representing the junior league has reached final round status, honors in both instances falling to East Fife. The Methill district squad met Celtic in 1927 and lost 3-1. Kilmarnock has won the trophy twice, in 1920 and 1929.

The upset-a-round tradition in this sudden-death tournament was maintained in all but the second round this year. Dundee United, second-league aspirant, started the series with a bang-up 3-1 victory over Hearts, well - supported contenders for the cup.

Kilmarnock went to Celtic's lair in the third stanza and toppled the Glasgow club and winner of the trophy last year by a 2-1 score. Rangers were then unanimously called to clinch their sixth victory in eight years. But critics didn't figure on Kilmarnock who again upset pre-game "dope" with a 4-3 semi-final victory over the Light Blues.

St. Bernards, second-circuit entrant, tossed Motherwell for a 3-1 loss in the third round and East Fife duplicated its 1927 feat of ousting Aberdeen, cup runner-up last year, at the second attempt.

Praise for Manager

While observers acclaim Kilmarnock as the wonder team of the competition, they are not backward in praising the club's manager, Jimmy McGrory.

The great centre-forward, top scorer of all time left Celtic to pilot the Killies on Christmas Day, has moulded the team into a smooth-working aggregation. When he took over Kilmarnock was floundering near the bottom of the league.

He has steered the Killies out of the relegation zone and, into the cup final—all in four months. If his team wins the cup it will be a crowning tribute to one of the game's greatest players, idolized by Gasgow crowds for more than a decade.

On the short end of the betting odds, East Fife eyes on the double

Canadian Boxer Pounds Out Win

Doing pretty well in England's fistic arena is George Bird Burke, heavyweight from St. Catharies, Ont. The picture was taken during his scheduled 10-rounder with Robey Leibrandt of South Africa, a bout stopped in the third round to save the latter from further punishment. It was held at London's National Sport club and Burke is shown flooring his opponent with a hard right.

War Admiral's Jockey, Kurtsinger Indefinitely Suspended By Board

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP)—The match race between War Admiral and Seabiscuit is having jockey trouble in a big way. Red Pollard, the 'Biscuit's jock has been on the shelf with injuries for three months, and now Charley Kurtsinger, the Admiral's pilot, has been indefinitely suspended.

Kurtsinger, who is scheduled to ride Menow in the Kentucky Derby, May 7, and War Admiral in the $100,000 match race with Seabiscuit, was suspended for disobedience it was learned yesterday.

Kurtsinger asked permission last week to leave New York in order to ride Menow at Keeneland, Friday. It was refused because Mrs. Dodge Sloane, to whom he is under contract, had several horses running at Jamaica Saturday. Kurtsinger went to Kentucky and won the race aboard Menow despite the refusal.

Mrs. Sloane is disposed to be firm in the matter, it was learned unofficially, and may keep Kurtsinger out of the saddle until June 1 as an example to other riders.

"The Flying Dutchman's" partnership with War Admiral was a glorious one. He piloted the Riddle Derby winner in all his big races last year and his two winning starts this year.

NEW TEAM ENTERS MEN'S SOFTBALL

Annual re-organization meeting of the City Softball League was held last night in the Chamber of Commerce with a fair turnout. President Dave Leether conducted the session and outlined amendments passed at the recent O.A.S.A. convention in Sarnia. Two entries were noted, Motorists and a London-sponsored squad made up of local players. Westclox were undecided, but Chuck Dorrington reported his junior crew of last year, the Young Petes, would probably be back again. A Southend Loop squad, Quaker Oats, Kiwanis and Lions Club, were also mentioned as possibilities.

A committee of three was named to check on prospective entries before the next meeting, the committee consisting of Dave Leether, Pat Hayden and Charlie Dorrington. The transfer of the playing field from Central to the Ashburnham Bowl—in conjunction with girls' games—was approved by the gathering. The league intends to again sponsor minor softball, and reported it kept them from showing a bank balance last year. After some general discussion, it was decided to leave the election of officers and other business over till another meeting, which will be held in Duffus' next Monday night at eight o'clock.

Remember When—

Eighteen-year-old Johnny Miles of Sydney Mines, N.S., won the Boston Marathon 12 years ago today. He covered the distance in two hours, 35 minutes, 25 2-5 seconds, nearly four minutes better than the 1924 mark set over the same course by Clarence Demar. Miles won the event three years later.

—the cup and promotion to the major league. Chances in either are not particularly promising but the team has crossed critics before during the season.

NEW YORK, April 19 (AP) — Maybe the Cubs' brain trust is going to have a new worry on its hands if that old Dean-Carleton feud pops up again ... Couple of years ago, when the Cards traded Carleton to the Cubs, everybody said 'twas done because Diz didn't get along with Tex...

Today's the day the mortality rate on office boys' grandmothers jumps sky high...And they'll all have to take the day off to see the old ladies—hit homers at their favorite ball parks...Lefty Gomez, who didn't get the call to pitch the opener, has a chance to win the first one for the Yanks...And Connie Mack has a chance to back up his hitting with something in the way of pitching—which the A's didn't show yesterday...And 14 other clubs have a chance to catch up...

Two-ton Tony Galento is first in line to follow the circus into Madison Square Garden .... Likely against Nathan Mann...When last heard from, the Newark nightstick was suspended in New York for training on beer and spaghetti... So it's up to the Athletic Commissioners to oblige ... Schoolboy Rowe's arm is going lots better since the Tigers came north...

Minneapolis bid 10 grand for Fritz Ostermueller, the Red Sox southpaw...Freddie Haas, Jr., will get a civic award from New Orleans for winning a Walker Cup berth...

They're going to try a new yellow baseball in the Columbia-Fordham game next week...Frederic H. Rahr, color engineer, says that color can be seen easier and quicker than the white ones, and so will lessen the chances of injuries to batters ...Barney Ross says he'll be down to 142 for the Henry Armstrong scrap.

NEW YORK, April 19—(AP).—Onkel Frank Frisch will now sit down on the mourners' bench with Jimmy Dykes and Mickey Cochrane, and listen to the fans holler....Losing Dizzy Dean was like Pepper Martin losing his guitar player...But what if old Diz should bring a sore arm to Chicago, f'instance? . . . Whatever way you look at it, the gas house gang won't have enough gas to lift itself anywhere this year....

A wag wires: Understand Dean won't pitch for the Cubs unless they make the board of master minds a quartet....Jale May, the old Reds' southpaw, spends his time smoking hams down on the North Carolina farm...Cincinnati's 1938 pitchers.. Jimmy Wilson, who only manages the Phillies, caught for his "second team" against Trenton yesterday, while the Varsity was taking a 12-1 thumping from Newark.

Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers are both slated for fights in Los Angeles this summer—but not against each other...Helen Wills, they say, has all the shots she ever had, and just needs competition to start putting the gals in their places again....The bookies tell you Woolford Farms' Lawrin has been getting quite a play recently in advance betting on the Derby.

VANCOUVER HAS HIGH HOPES FOR BASKETBALL TITLE

VANCOUVER, April 19 (C.P.).— The good folk in British Columbia had high hopes to-day that two of Canada's major sports crowns — in hockey and baseball— would find their way into the province. For the signs point to Trail Smoke Eaters winning the ice title and Vancouver Westerns taking the cage championship.

Westerns, following the trail blazed last year by University of British Columbia Thunderbirds to the Canadian title, won the Western Canada crown last night with their second straight victory over Winnipeg St. Andrew's 39-37. They won the first game of the best-of-three series 40-33 on Saturday night.

Smoke Eaters have established themselves favorites to take the Allan Cup, emblematic of Dominion senior hockey supremacy, though they lost 2-1 last night to Cornwall Flyers in the third game of their best-of-five series. Smoke Eaters won the first two games 6-4 and 8-2.

In both cases it's a straight rivalry between British Columbia and Ontario, for the Eastern Canada cage champions will be either Windsor Moose Lodge or Ottawa Glebe Grads. The Glebe boys evened their best-of-three series with Moose Lodge by winning 32-30 last night. Moose Lodge won the first game 29-26 on Saturday night.

LINDSAY POLICE START ON DRIVE TO CURB DRUNKS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 19.—Chief of Police Lawler Monday described the conditions existing on Kent street on Saturday night as nothing short of disgraceful. Drunken men staggered along the main thoroughfare, and five of the inebriates were taken to the cells."I am going to step on these fellows who become intoxicated and stagger up and down the street," said the Chief. "I am not going to have any sympathy with them in future. They will pay their fines or go to jail.

The town council fathered an Easter market on Saturday and the experiment was a big success. Farmers gathered with their produce at the town hall in goodly numbers and the buying was so brisk that a sell out was the result. The aldermen were so pleased with the venture that a permanent market will likely be established in the near future.

Little Ines Gill, of Gooderham, was badly burned about the face a few days ago when a hot filled lemon pie fell from the table on the child. Owing to the impassible condition of the highways, a Red Cross nurse from the hospital at Haliburton was transferred on a hand car to the Gill home to attend to the little sufferer.

OBITUARY

ALLEN REID

(Examiner Correspondence.)

COE HILL, April 19.—The death occurred after a lingering illness, at Brantford, Ontario, on Wednesday, of the late Mr. Allen Reid, age 40 years, and a former resident of Coe Hill. He was one of Coe Hill's leading blacksmiths, and was an employee of W. N. Gilroy for the past 15 years.

He leaves to mourn the loss his sorrowing wife, formerly Elizabeth Ferguson of Coe Hill; also seven daughters and two sons, Mrs. Wes. Dafoe of Actinolite; Pearl, Hazel, June, Nada, Fern, Alvina, Alvin, Laverne; his mother, Mrs. N. Reid of Coe Hill, besides five brothers and two sisters: Harold, Ernest, Thomas of Coe Hill, Clarence of Buckhorn, Everson of Peterborough; Mrs. Sanfield Cartieu of Cornwall, Mrs. Roy Hannah of Coe Hill.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon, April 16, at the United Church, to the family plot in the United Church Cemetery; Rev. D. Gault in charge.

The pall-bearers were Glen Gunter, Archie Whitmore, Earl Whitmore, Reg. McCauley, Herbert Le High, Howard Doolittle.

GEORGE BROWN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 19.—On Saturday morning death removed one of Tweed's oldest and most highly respected citizens in the person of George Brown. Death came suddenly following a heart attack and was a decided shock to his relatives and friends. Although he had not been in the best of health for some months, Mr. Brown was able to be about as usual.

The figure of George Brown was one of the most familiar on the streets of Tweed. He was born on a farm a short distance west of the village on July 1, 1856, a son of the late James Brown and Ann Clark. Here he spent his youth and early manhood, helping his father to clear the homestead with an ox team. Some fifty or sixty years ago, he assisted in the erection of the brick house which replaced an earlier frame structure to which in years to come he was destined to return to carry on farming and bring up his family. A number of years of his early manhood was spent in the Rathbun lumber camps in the northern part of Hastings County. With the exception of this brief interlude, the late George Brown has spent his entire four score and more years a resident of this district. Eleven years ago he gave up active farming and lived retired in Tweed, while his only son, Clarke continued to operate the farm.

The late George Brown had been a staunch Conservative all his life, and is a past president of the Hungerford Conservative Association. He pointed with pride to the fact that the Dominion of Canada came into being on his birthday, July 1, 1867, when he was eleven years of age. The deceased was deeply interested in agriculture in all its aspects and for a great many years was an officer of Tweed Agricultural Society and filled the office of president capably for a term, playing no small part in the success of Tweed Fall Fairs from year to year. Fraternally he was a member of Tweed L.O.L. No. 747 of which he was a Past Master. He was also honored with an official position in the Royal Black Preceptor.

The late Mr. Brown is survived by an only son, Clarke of Tweed; (his wife predeceased him about four years ago); two step-sons, Harry Brown, Toronto, and Thomas A. Brown, Detroit; two step-daughters, Mrs. Rosa Bateman, Belleville, and Miss Violet Brown, at home. Two brothers, Benjamin of Winnipeg, and Samuel of Moosomin, Sask.; also survive. Three brothers, Harry, Henry, Willam and John and two sisters, Sarah and Elizabeth, predeceased him.

Th funeral service was conducted on Monday afternoon, April 18, from the United Church of which he was a member, under the auspices of the Orange Order, with Rev. R. R. Nicholson in charge. Interment was in Victoria Cemetery, Tweed.

SUNRISE SERVICE IS HELD ON HILL NEAR MILLBROOK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 19.—The observance of Easter Sunday in the community was appropriately begun by the 'Sun Rise Service' at 5.15 a.m., under the auspices of the Young People's Union, and held on the hill-top at the western village limits.

About forty were in attendance, Ken Kidd being in charge, and Phyllis Kidd presiding at the organ, which had been previously conveyed to the meeting-place. The dark morning and slight rainfall failed to lessen the deeply spiritual character of the service. Earl Edworthy read the Easter story from Matthew, Mrs. B. B. Dawson led in prayer, Marjorie McDowell sang "The Old Rugged Cross," and Leitha Edworthy gave the worship poem.

The talk was given by the leader, and the gathering closed with Marjorie singing "Where He leads me I will follow," a number of sentence prayers by several of those present, and the concluding prayer of consecration by the Presbyterian president, B. B. Dawson.

Memorial Lillies.

All three of the local churches had their altars banked with Easter lillies on Sunday, in some cases given in memory of loved ones by members of the congregation. Early Communion at 8 a.m., with a choral service at nine, made Easter Sunday outstanding in St. Thomas' Anglican Church, the service at seven in the evening being fully choral, and the rector, Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, preaching on the text, "They departed quickly from the sepulchre, with fear and great joy," the emphasis in the sermon being laid upon the latter clause, the contrast between the fear, and the joy, of the women when they realized the truth that the Lord had indeed risen from the dead, being vividly portrayed.

Grace Presbyterian Church was well attended for the Easter evening service, the minister, Rev. H. R. Williams, B.A., preaching from the words, "Hallelujah, He is risen." The fact that Easter is the "birthday of hope" was specially stressed, and the solo contributed by Mrs. J. R. Thompson added to the glad truth "because He lives, we shall live also."

A reception of new members, when fifteen were received into full connection, was an impressive feature of the Sunday morning service at St. Andrew's United Church, the pastor, Rev. A. L. Sisco, also conducting the Easter Communion at the conclusion of the sermon. The congregation was large, representative of the entire circuit. Special music by the choir included two anthems, "King of Kings" (Semper), with solo by F. L. Edworthy, and "Hallelujah, Now is Christ risen," with solo by Mrs. H. W. Johnston. The pastor brought an appropriate Easter message and in the evening the Young People's choir led in the worship of song, with three special selections.

"THE NEW IMPROVED PALMOLIVE IS MY SOAP FROM NOW ON," SAYS Dorothy Cunningham

lovely Montreal model

"Its extra mildness keeps my skin softer, smoother. And I love Palmolive's new fragrant perfume."

As smart as she's lovely, it hasn't taken Dot Cunningham long to learn about the new improved Palmolive. "I'll admit it," she says, "I've never been a regular Palmolive user, but I can't say that any more. From now on, it's my only toilet soap. I really don't know how a soap can be so mild and gentle, yet cleanse my skin so well. The new perfume is delightful, too . . . and now that Palmolive is harder it goes so much further."

Why not give your skin daily beauty treatments with this new improved Palmolive? See how its new delicate blending of soothing Olive and Palm Oils brings new freshness, new smoothness to your skin.

Enjoy its new mildness, its new, lovely perfume. See how its longer-lasting quality saves you money.

First only olive oil . . . Now, only Palmolive keeps the Quins' skins lovely

Palmolive is so good, so safe, so mild, it was selected exclusively by Dr. Dafoe, for the famous Dionne Quins. And you know, because they were premature babies, their skin has always been extremely tender and sensitive. Surely if Palmolive keeps the Quins' skins in smooth and perfectly healthy condition, it can keep all your skin lovely too. Get some today.

"Sure it's Big Business"

"A fellow asked me one time: 'How does it feel to work for a big corporation?'

"Well, Sir, for a minute I didn't know what to say. I never thought of our gang that way. Of course, we're big—you've got to be big to serve more than seven hundred thousand telephones in Ontario and Quebec. And I suppose a lawyer would call us a corporation. But pshaw! I'm not a corporation and my boss isn't either. None of the boys in our gang is a corporation — just ordinary fellows doing our jobs the best we know how. Trying to give you the best possible telephone service 365 days in the year!"

Hundreds of businesses — big and small — are growing bigger with the help of long distance service. In the past ten years long distance service has advanced wonderfully in speed and clarity. Again and again in the same period rates have been reduced. Today long distance costs less — is more efficient than ever before.

Reductions in telephone rates — local and long distance — in 1935, '36 and '37 have effected savings to telephone users in Ontario and Quebec of nearly one million dollars yearly.

C.C.F. PRINCIPLES CLOSELY LINKED WITH CHRISTIAN FAITH

President Of Provincial Body Addresses Annual Banquet Of The Peterborough Club

Christians Who Seek Kingdom Of God Find Themselves In C.C.F. Ranks

Christians who seek the Kingdom of God on earth will find themselves automatically in the ranks of the C.C.F. party, according to John Mitchell, provincial president of that party, who addressed the Peterborough C.C.F.'s annual banquet at the Moose Hall on Monday night.

The principles of the C.C.F. are the same as those laid down by Jesus Christ and by the prophet Isaih, who foretold His coming, the speaker contended. If the C.C.F. party principles were in force in the world to-day, there would be no poverty, no threats of world war, "and the prophecy of Isaih to the people of Israel so long ago would be fulfilled," he declared.

He lauded the Peterborough club for its choice of the Easter season as the most suitable time of year for its annual banquet. 'This time of year marks the rising from the dead of one who was crucified because he raised his voice in behalf of suffering humanity," he said.

A great many people who profess to-day to be Christians seem to forget how close were His teachings and His deals to those of the C.C.F. party to-day, the speaker maintained. And for the same reasons that the teachings of Christ have spread, so will the doctrines of the C.C.F. become known and followed, he believed.

The Bible teaches the right of man to collective bargaining, the right to organize as he sees fit, and the right of every man to the means of a decent living, Mr. Mitchell claimed. He referred to the Parable of the Vineyard for proof.

Humanity has not yet realized that human labor is the noblest thing in the entire scheme of creation, and in consequence the worker is still in a lower strata of life, he said. "We are a long way from that Christian state where the people shall enjoy the fruits of their labor."

He described the Peterborough club as being the largest in Ontario and paid tribute to its leadership. The club has been an inspiration to the rest of the province, he said.

Wm. Johnson, president of the Peterborough club, presided at the banquet and introduced the speaker. Guest artists on the musical program included Minerva Isaacs, who sang a solo; Shirley Garner, who played a guitar solo, and performed a song and tap dance with Kenneth Simmonds.

Is Pardoned

Dr. F. E. Townsend, originator of famous Townsend pension plan, was pardoned by President Roosevelt as he was about to enter the Washington jail to serve a 30-day sentence for contempt of a U. S. House of Representatives committee. Townsend was sentenced for walking out on the committee when it was investigating his plan to give $200 a month federal pension to every person over 60.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

BOAT IS RECOVERED.

Provincial Constable David Silvester was successful Monday in recovering the rowboat stolen from R. H. Knox of Otonabee. The officer found the stolen craft hidden along the bank of the Indian River.

Y.W.C.A. GYM. SCHEDULE.

In the gymnasium schedule of the Y.W.C.A., published last evening, there were several errors. It should be noted that the Business Girls' Club meets Tuesday and Thursdays at 8 o'clock and the Intermediate School Girls on Tuesday at 8 o'clock.

ANNUAL APPEAL.

The Grenfell Mission is making its annual appeal in Peterborough. The funds are used for the clothing, feeding and medical care of the poor on the Labrador coast. Kindly send donations to the treasurer, Mrs. F. C. Anderson, 494 Gilmour street, or leave at Examiner Office.

CHARGE DISMISSED.

The second of the Chamber street parking cases was dismissed by Magistrate Langley this morning when no evidence was given against the accused, Harry Tudhope. This case was similar to that brought against D. V. Ketcheson which was dismissed last week, a charge of parking in a prohibited area.

CASE ADJOURNED.

The Crown was not ready to proceed in police court this morning with a charge against Percy Little of having been drunk while in charge of a motor vehicle and an adjournment until next Tuesday was granted. Little was represented by W. B. Gordon.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

A memorial service for the late Rev. Dr. Robert Pogue, who for 17 years was minister of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, is being held in St. Paul's on Sunday night, May 1. Members of the family are being invited as well as all who were connected with the congregation during Dr. Pogue's ministry.

LIQUOR CHARGES.

A number of liquor charges were heard before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning. One young man who pleaded guilty to being drunk in the township of North Monaghan was fined $10 and $4.50 costs and another who admitted illegal consumption of liquor in the same township was assessed $10 and $5.15 costs. Two others charged with being drunk on Simcoe street were given a week's adjournment.

PROTECTS LUNGE SPAWN.

Since lunge began spawning recently in Rice Lake, the water has been almost at summer level, affording natural protection for the spawn, Robert S. Hancock of Bewdley told The Examiner yesterday. "For the last three years the control of the level of Rice Lake at this season has been all on the side of conserving lunge spawn," he said, "and that means the method and volume of restocking nature designed. I said last winter, and it is my firm belief that Rice Lake is well supplied with lunge and pickerel. The Canal Department has been controlling the water during the last three Aprils in a manner that deserves favorable mention."

UNDER QUARANTINE.

When the name of John Wood was called in police court this morning Magistrate Langley was informed that the man who is charged with the theft of a spray pump and automobile parts from Charles Petherick of Rush Point, is under quarantine in the county jail and could not appear. Wood was remanded yesterday and arrived in jail just in time to be quarantined when a case of scarlet fever was discovered among the inmates of the bastille.

TEST SOIL FORMATION.

A possible forerunner of the Bell Telephone's projected new building on Hunter street, two workmen were engaged this morning in digging a test hole 14 ft. deep on the property adjoining the American hotel. At the Bell Telephone office here, it was said no contract for building has been let as far as is known locally, and though the work now in progress is in the nature of an attempt to ascertain soil conditions that contractors will encounter when they commence operations.

FROST HITS CROPS IN BRITISH ISLES

LONDON, April 19 (CP Cable).—Severe frosts over the Easter week-end not only spoiled a good deal of flowers in the British Isles but so damaged fruit crops that growers fear it will be their worst season for many years.

On Sunday night in many places there were 14 degrees of frost. Fruit blossoms blackened in the plum orchards of Evesham, in the apple gardens of Kent and Essex, in the currant and gooseberry plantations of Cambridge, Lincoln and Hampshire. Strawberry beds also were affected.

The bad season also will cramp the newly-created home canning industry and thousands of casual workers who earn a living picking, grading and packing will find their employment curtailed.

Canada exports a negligible amount of pears and plums, and sends only frozen strawberries. The Daily Telegraph estimates the loss of home-grown pears and apples at half, and at a quarter the gooseberry, currant and early strawberry crops. Most plums also will be lost, the newspaper predicted.

LAKEFIELD FIRE VOLUNTEER GETS BRAVERY AWARD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 19. — The presentation of an award for bravery to George Graham, a member of the Lakefield Volunteer Fire Brigade was an event of especial interest which took place at the annual Easter card party and dance which was held on Monday evening, April 18 in the Memorial Hall. The dance was sponsored by the local Fire Brigade.

"I have a pleasant duty to perform," Allan H. Clarke, chief of the brigade said in his opening remarks. "You will remember that last fall there was a fatal accident at the government dock in Lakefield, on which occasion a car went over the dock and down into the water. There was a lady in the car, and to help effect a rescue, the local fire brigade was called. Among those firemen who responded to the call was George Graham. He found a man in a punt appealing for someone to go down and rescue his wife. Mr. Graham did not hesitate, but went down under water and brought up the body out of the sunken car.

Receives R.H.S. Certificate

Some citizens of Lakefield, namely Principal J. H. Harvey of the Lakefield High School, Reeve C. S. Tanner and S. J. Charlton saw the rescue, and were instrumental in drawing it to the attention of The Royal Humane Society who saw fit to award a certificate of bravery to Mr. Graham in recognition of this act.

"Mr. Graham has been a member of the local brigade for some time," Mr. Clarke continued. "He started with us and has trained with us, and has always shown himself a first class man and also a first class citizen. He is always resourceful in emergencies," Chief Clarke said in conclusion.

He called on Reeve Tanner who presented the certificate. "I am proud to present this certificate which is emblematic of a brave and heroic deed," he said. "I hope Mr. Graham will always have it hanging in his home so that his children and his children's children may read it and emulate his fine example."

Mr. Graham came forward to receive the scroll and was greeted with a tremendous burst of applause from the audience.

Prizes for the euchre were presented by Fire Chief Clarke. They went to Miss Margaret Sullivan (ladies' first); Miss Muriel Bullock (ladies' consolation); Mr. William Stabler (gentlemen's first); Mr. Donald Yale (gentlemen's consolation). The prize for the lucky chair was won by Mrs. Bruce Preston.

Arnold Graham (a brother of Mr. George Graham) won the prize offered for selling most tickets to the party. He sold a grand total of twenty-eight tickets. Kenneth Remnant received second prize for selling thirteen tickets.

The card-playing started sharp at 8.00 p.m. About 10.30 p.m. refreshments were served, after which the presentation was made to Mr. Graham and the prizes presented.

Music by Leahy's orchestra provided square and round dancing for the large crowd until about 2.00 a.m.

Ruffing's Single Wins For Yankees

BOSTON, April 19 (AP).—Charles (Red) Ruffing's pinch single in the ninth inning drove in the tying and winning runs to-day as the world champion New York Yankees whipped Boston Red Sox 5-3 in the morning game of a Patriots' Day doubleheader. Ruffing's hit broke up a tight ball game in which neither of the starting southpaw aces, Vernon Gomez of the Yankees and Bob Grove of the Red Sox, was around at the finish. Grove went out for a pinch hitter.

11 BOYS BEEN ARRESTED.

TORONTO — York Township Police continued their roundup of juvenile shopbreakers today and arrested three more boys on charges of breaking into stores. Eleven township boys between 11 and 15 years have been arrested in the past four days.

Nursing Division

Much of the work behind the scenes in the St. John Ambulance Brigade is done by the Nursing Division, members of which are seen in this picture. An efficient organization, the Nurses keep up to the minute in their work and meet regularly to study their duties. Re-examination each year, yearly inspection, and attendance at at least 12 drills each season, keep the Division in top form. Its members, shown here, are SEATED, Ambulance Officer Ivy Watkins, left, and Ambulance Sister Betty Warren. STANDING, left to right are Ambulance Sisters Madeline Redman, Jean Sopha, Marion Moore, and Agnes Sands.

BOYS' BAND WILL GIVE PROGRAM

The Lions Club boys' band will give its first program in the Regent Theatre next Sunday evening beginning at 8.30 o'clock. Naturally it will be quite an event for the boys in making their bow to the public, their debut. Every man remembering his own boyhood knows what tremendous enthusiasm and imagination possess junior teenage boys. William Stuart director of the band has been instructing the youngsters since last fall, and they have prepared quite a tuneful program.

They will open with a trumpet fanfare and prelude, followed by a march "Church in the Wildwood" arranged by Mr. Stuart; overture "Goodfellowship"; cornet solo, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart" with Don Dawsett soloist; request hymn, "Cast Thy Burden On The Lord"; bass quartet, "Evening Prayer," L. Outram, D. Dawsett, G. Parnell, H. Clapham; vespers "Abide With Me" and "Now the Day Is Over"; trombone solo "Londonderry Air", Jack Taylor soloist; Valse "Dream Castles"; military march from the overture Pantheon.

The Lions Club undertook the band project primarily in the interest of boys who are musically inclined, and they hope gradually to develop it by enlisting more boys from time to time as finances permit. The program will include two vocal solos by Victor Cremasco, winner of the recent radio competition in Toronto.

Theft Of 4 Hams Cases Adjourned

A week's adjournment was given the crown this morning in the case of two men, charged with stealing four hams, the property of Canada Packers.

When the first of the accused pair was arraigned on the theft charge he elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty.

Before proceeding with that charge a second charge against the accused of receiving stolen goods was read.

"Are you going to try and prove receiving before first proving theft?' asked the Magistrate.

Crown Attorney McElderry admitted that such was his intention. "It is very unusual, but perhaps you can do it," said Magistrate Langley. "Better look up the authorities on the matter," he added.

There was a long delay and finally the Crown Attorney asked for a week's adjournment which was granted despite a protest from Emmett Sheehy who represented both accused.

No charge of receiving was preferred against the second man.

TURTLES MIGRATE

GALT, Ont., April 19 (C.P.). — Hundreds of turtles are migrating in this district from the swamps to the ponds, report motorists who have driven between here and Paris. Some motorists believe the swamps must be drying up, and the turtles want to assure an adequate supply of water by going to the ponds.

Young Artist

Flaxen haired Shirley Garner, pretty little daughter of Mr. Mrs. Arthur T. Garner, 148 Hart street, was a major attraction at the C.C.F's annual banquet at the Moose Hall on Monday evening. With Kenneth Simmonds she did a song and tap act, then soloed on a guitar. (Examiner Photo.)

FARMERS ARE BUSY PUTTING IN CROP

Farm work is becoming general, W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, told the Examiner today. "I have seen quite a number of farmers plowing and cultivating during the last week, and some of the seeding is done. The clover and fall wheat is looking fine, and I think things are beginning to look rather promising. The work I saw in progress was on high land that is dry. None of the cheese factories of the district has got started yet, but I have been around to them, and it won't be long now until they get into action."

Frank Paterson, representative of the Department of Agriculture, said that the spring cultivating work was up to the normal schedule. "Farmers are not getting behind, although after that fine weather nearly a month ago the season may seem to be holding off. There is nothing to worry about yet, and I think if we could get some good drying weather everybody would feel that Spring was here to stay."

PICKET LINE KEEPS BODY PLANT SHUT

FLINT, Mich., April 19—(AP).—Fisher Body Plant No. 1 suspended operations to-day when the management announced it was unable to muster a large enough working force to man the assembly line.

The plant has been employing about 3,700 workers. It supplies bodies for Buick Motor Co. Both firms are units of General Motors Corporation.

A few workers were successful today in getting into the plant after fighting their way through a picket line composed of approximately 1,200 members of the United Automobile Workers' Union. The picketing was a continuation of a union dues collecting campaign which the Fisher management blamed for a one-day shutdown yesterday.

The Buick assembly line, which closed yesterday because of lack of automobile bodies, will be unable to operate to-day.

The Buick and Chevrolet divisions of the U.A.W. will take strike votes Wednesday. Grievances included alleged violations of seniority rights, charges of discrimination in rehiring and difficulty in arranging discussions of grievances.

Girls Take Dip In Otonabee River

Two hardy young girls beat most of the boys to it on Saturday and ushered in the 1938 outdoor swimming season. They were Grace Barnes, 128 St. James street, and Thelma Reynolds 610 Young street. Both took to the Otonabee river from Rye's Wharf. It was the third successive year these girls have opened the swimming season on the Saturday afternoon preceding Easter.

YOUTHS CHARGED WITH RINGING IN OF FALSE ALARM

When the name of John Heffernan, 18, was called in police court this morning and Magistrate Langley began to read the indictment against him, the big crowd of court room patrons pricked up their ears in amazement for the document started out something like this: "Not being the mayor of the city or the chairman of the fire, water and light committee, etc.", and that was an unusual opening for a police court charge. It turned out that the offence the youth was charged with committing was of turning in a false alarm of fire from the box at the corner of Hunter and Sheridan streets. Robert Collins, 17, was also charged with the same offence.

The charges were laid by Fire Chief George Gimblett and City Solicitor Wilfrid Huycke, K.C., who was present to prosecute the cases asked for an adjournment until Wednesday of next week.

SENSE OF SECURITY FOR PEOPLE TODAY HAS BEEN LOST

The Men's Association of St. Andrew's church held the final meeting of the session Monday night at 6.15 p.m. Supper was served by the C.G.I.T. Club with the Misses Eleanor Stacey, Isabel Weddell and Ruth Barns in charge. James Johnston conducted community singing with Miss Stacey at the piano. Jack Richardson, president, called upon George Gillespie to introduce the guest speaker, A. R. Kennedy, Editor of The Examiner.

Mr. Kennedy dealt with the simplicity and certainty of life on the farm and in the village of several decades ago compared to the existence of today, claiming people had sacrificed one of the most valued possessions, the sense of security, in the tendency to create great cities and great enterprises. The village and small community with its several places of occupation of other years offered a splendid type of existence where tastes were simple, wants were few, where little money was needed and where the prospects of having to seek relief were remote. Today most of the former cources of occupation have dried up and people live in cities on small lots where they are alienated from the soil, the source of all wealth. They are forced to depend on one thing only, their job, and experience has shown that in many cases there is no security in it. When that one thing fails then they are apt to find themselves facing want almost immediately. The speaker recalled that although there was little money in existence some years ago in villages people had a wonderfully good time; they knew the meaning of thrift; their thinking was sane and reasonable, and they went forth fairly well equipped for life and its work.

James Morrow heartily thanked the speaker for his interesting address. E. F. Reid, chairman of the Board of Managers, thanked the men for the splendid assistance given in the recent canvass.

WOMAN IS FINED $100 AND COSTS

Charged last week with the illegal possession of liquor and pleading not guilty on that occasion, Mrs. Nellie Zimmerman of North Monaghan changed her plea in police court this morning to "guilty." She was represented by W. J. A. Fair.

Magistrate Langley pointed out that under the section, the penalty provided was a fine not less than $100 and not exceeding $1,000.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry said that he would be satisfied with the minimum fine and accordingly the court imposed a fine of $100 and $4.50 costs upon Mrs. Zimmerman with the alternative of three months in jail. The fine was promptly paid.

Mrs. Ada Blackwood, also of North Monaghan, and facing a charge of illegal sale, asked through her counsel W. J. A. Fair for an adjournment, and the Crown raised no objections. The case goes over until Tuesday, May 3.

FICTION AND FEATURES

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend, Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry become interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's, had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening. Barbara is furious to find the party still going when Garry brings her back to her apartment and orders Julia and the others to leave. Jimmy Minton, a notorious playboy, gets fresh and Garry knocks him down.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 14

GARRY read Barbara's thoughts when Jimmy Minton and his companions had gone.

"You poor kid, you're homesick and tired to death and you hate this mad scene, don't you?"

Barbara nodded. She was close to tears. The mirror that lined the counter wall showed her a slim girl in a perky green turban with eyes that were big and frightened and red lips that trembled. She had wanted everything to be as merry as a wedding bell for Garry's homecoming. Garry had come straight to her. And now this—She forgot she had been lonely for Peter. She wanted Garry to put his arms around her and let her cry and cry.

When they were in a cab, he pulled her closer and kissed her gently. It was quiet now. She closed her eyes and was still.

Garry took her up to Ruth's penthouse. As he left her, he spoke slowly and his eyes smiled. "Don't forget that I love you."

These words were in the back of Barbara's mind when she went home the next evening. It was six o'clock and the subway trains were packed. Garry had called her at four to ask if he might drop by later in the evening. Remembering how she had planned to have the apartment look when he should come first, she had sighed as she started home. The room looked much as it had last night. Julia was not there. Her clothes were strewn carelessly over things as though she had just got up. She had squeezed some oranges and made coffee and the soiled dishes stood around.

Barbara slipped out of the new black dress and hung it up. She put on a huge bungalow apron that covered her slip and looked around. No, she couldn't bring order to it by nine o'clock. She needed help. She went down to the first floor and knocked at the door of the custodian's apartment. His wife was in.

"Is there anywhere that I could hire a maid to help me clean up for three hours?" she asked.

The woman nodded. "I'll help for 50 cents an hour."

"You're hired!"

When the work was nearly completed and the living room floors shone again, the cushions were plump and inviting, the draperies tied back to let in the starlight and the wind, Barbara ran down the street to buy flowers and fresh candies and food for the empty ice box. She had time for a bath before the doorbell rang. It was Garry.

He liked her home. His eyes said so at once. He sat down in the biggest chair, and she dropped on a hassock at its side, and the play began just as she had imagined it a hundred times in the last month.

He had some pages of his play with him which he read to her. She praised enthusiastically, criticized frankly. And when he left she felt that all the damage of the previous evening had been repaired. She had donned thin white silk pajamas and a green negligee and was in bed, reading, when Julia came home. I'm sorry about last night," she said. "I guess they pretty much mussed up things. But I'm not bothering you any longer. Jimmy is having a house party on his yacht and he's invited me. I'm leaving right away."

"I see." Barbara hesitated. Maybe she had been unkind to Julia. "You know you may stay—it's just the others that I can't stand. Are you sure the party is all right?"

"You're so silly, Babbs. Of course it is. I'll drop you a card from some port."

Barbara went to the window to watch the group who were waiting for Julia. She was still there when Julia summoned the chauffeur to get her bags, and followed him downstairs. Jimmy Minton greeted her and his voice carried on the still night air.

"Was she kind to you, Julia?"

"Why—why yes." Even from the third floor Barbara caught the feigned gasp in Julia's voice. She was pleading with the others to forgive her, Barbara, for her inhospitality. "Barbara is a darling, honestly she is, and she never, never meant to hurt me like this." Julia was a princess who had been wronged, an innocent maid who had been kicked down the back stairs. She was all things sweet and beautiful and desirable.

Barbara stayed at the window, laughing into the night for a long time after the car had disappeared.

It became natural, after that, for Garry to come at almost any time. His hours at his paper were irregular so he never knew just when he would be free and when he wouldn't be. Barbara's own position was less exicting. From nine until five she read copy, wrote captions, arranged layouts of cinnamon bears and new applicants for Mother Goose Row. Now and then she wrote a story.

Unless she stayed to do some extra work, or it was the time of the month when the magazine went to press, she was free for the day soon after five—free to join Garry at a favorite spot where the food was good and the prices low; free to cook a steak for him on her grill; free to settle down with a book before the fire, for a comfortable evening that was usually interrupted by a call sometime late in the evening.

The telephone might ring at one o'clock.

"Sweetheart, did I waken you?"

"You did, but I like it."

"Your disposition is too good to last, Barbara. I've been up all night on an assignment. How about getting dressed and letting me pick you up for some food? I forgot to eat dinner?"

She would be almost ready when he came. Then she would have a sweet roll and cocoa while he ordered his special favorite plate: two fried oysters, two fried eggs, two strips of bacon, a dill pickle, toast and coffee. The restaurant would almost be deserted, the waiters sleepy, the room would be cold. They would be happy.

Ruth had gone to Paris the week after Garry came home. Julia did not write when her trip ended. It ended—for Barbara saw a picture of the party alighting from the boat when they came home, Garry's paper carried it.

September and October were gone. November brought frost, and tinsel balls and crimson bells in the five and ten-cent stores.

It was after 11 one night that Barbara's bell rang. She picked up the telephone.

"Barbara?"

"Oh Peter! Where are you?"

"Back in Martinsville, honey, at the same old desk."

"I wish you were here."

"I may b before long. I've sold my book on the strength of the early chapters."

"Oh Peter, how grand!" She was glad for him with a warm rush of old friendship but the joy she felt for Garry's success was something far different.

Peter's voice grew more serious. "Babbs, remember Bruce Kemper, the boy who worked under me for a while?"

"Yes, I've met him. Julia had him here."

"Oh. I see. Finished his undoing. The kind's in a bad way— can't pay his rent, sick, hungry, half out of his mind. He called me half an hour ago and gave me an address. Got a pencil there?" He gave Barbara Bruce Kemper's address. "If you could get some food and money to him. I'll wire you the amount the first thing in the morning. That kid saved my life once at the risk of his own, when we were in swimming. He was all right until —never mind. He needs a doctor, maybe hospitalization. Could you send someone to him?"

"Of course, Peter."

"Tomorrow may be too late. He was delirious when he called me. If you could get a doctor there tonight—"

"I will. I'll go over, too. Someone will go with me. I'm so sorry, Peter."

"Call me bac kafterwards, will you, Babbs? Thanks."

She heard the click that disconnected the call.

Garry was out on an assignment that had taken him from the city for a day or two. Ray Lipton might do. He dropped in sometimes, merry and nonchalant about life, politics and love. As a newspaper man, he would be kind to Bruce. She found Ray's number and dialed it.

Ray must have been sitting by the telephone for he answered at once.

"Ray?"

"Hello! It's Barbara Kingston isn't it?"

"It is. Are you settled with a book for the evening?"

"I was—but I'm not. Where do you want to go?"

She gave him the address and he whistled long and low. "Some neighborhood. Whom do you know in that district?"

Briefly she told him a little of the story, carefully omitting Julia's name.

"I'll get out my car and be right down," he answered. "Poor guy. You say a dame did this to him? He ought to know better. I'll be seeing you."

Have Good Vocabulary to Make at Hit

Secrets of Good Talk

Cecily keeps Bob fascinated on their all-day outing. Her sprightly vocabulary's the secret of her charm.

She's never inane with "yes, it's pretty country." She speaks of things that please her, uses bright, vivid words: "See that rambling white farmhouse, the pink roses clambering over the porch?"

She doesn't irritate either by punctuating her talk with "get me?" or "see what I mean?"

About slipshod errors, Cecily's even more careful. If she says "awful hot" for "awfully hot," "plenty food" for "plenty of food," she knows in an hour or two her talk will seem all blunders.

Have a good vocabulary if you'd make and keep friends. Our 32-page booklet tells how to choose right words, check errors, put personality in your talk.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO IMPROVE YOUR VOCABULARY to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—I have a girl friend whose life is in a fair way to be ruined by her mother. She is an only child, bright, attractive, popular and would have much attention except that her mother is ever present, so it has got to the point where men are ceasing to date her, knowing that Mother will go with her if she steps out, or will sit close to her and monopolize the conversation when they call on her. If this girl is invited anywhere, Mother goes, whether she is asked or not, so often the girl is left out because nobody wants her as an extra guest, or because she doesn't fit into a party. The mother is an intelligent woman and no one can understand why she doesn't realize that her attitude will soon make an old maid of her daughter. What is there to do about it?—MARTHA.

Answer

No much, I am afraid, because the possessive mother has such a good alibi for monopolizing her daughter that she even fools herself with it. She says that the reason she won't let darling Mamie have dates, step out with the boys and do the things that the other girls do is because she is protecting her precious lamb and keeping her unspotted from the world.

So when the boy comes to see Mamie she makes it a threesome and tells him all about her rheumatism and about Mamie's cutting her first tooth, and she doesn't know what the world is coming to the way young people do nowadays, and the wild way they go on. And at 9 o'clock she says they keep early hours and shoos him out the front door and when the youth says "good night" it isn't maybe. It is for all time.

And if a chap stops by in his flivver to take Mamie riding, Mother clambers in and shows her class as a back-seat driver. If Mamie goes to a dance, Mama has to go along to chaperon. The result is that Mamie never has a date. Boys pass her up as if she had the plague. Hostesses dread to invite her because they know they will have to use strong-armed methods to make any boy dance with her. And even the girls drop her because they don't know what to do with the old woman of the sea who is always on Mamie's back. The world is full of cour and disgruntled old maids who were meant by Nature to be happy and contented wives and mothers, but who were kept from marrying by mothers who were too strict with them when they were girls. Mother wouldn't let them play around in their teens with the girls and boys of their own age, so they grew up without being in any circle. Mother wouldn't let them have beaux until they were in their twenties and by that time they were awkward and self-conscious with boys and too old to learn how to handle them. And Mother was always present and that cramped their style.

It wasn't that the girls and boys wanted to do anything wrong. They just wanted to be foolish and young without any critical eye upon them. Too much mother is about the greatest misfortune that a girl can have so far as her popularity is concerned, and it is strange that any woman who remembers her own youth hasn't enough sense to appreciate this and give her daughters a break.

* * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been going with a girl for nine years. The only reason she gives for our not getting married is that she does not want to leave home. What is your opinion on this matter?—M. L. W.

Answer:

You are wasting your time on her. Evidently she does not love you, or else she would be crazy to marry you and set up a home of her own instead of staying in her parent's home. One of the things that girls marry for is to get their own houses which they can furnish according to their own taste and run the way they want them run. So it is most unusual for one to want to stay with Papa and Mama.

The old adage that "a good daughter makes a good wife" should be taken with reservations. No girl make a more undesirable wife than the one who is so devoted to her parents that her husband always runs a bad second to her family. That type of girl simply sells her husband into slavery to her people when she marries him.

Many a man has his ambitions crushed and the door of opportunity slammed in his face by his wife who refuses to go with him where fortune calls because she can't bear to leave Mama and the girls. Many a man is never able to save any money because his wife spends everything he makes on her family. Mother is always having to have an operation or father needs a trip or brother has to be sent off to college or sister just have to have pretty clothes. My advice to you is to let the girl who can't bear to leave Father's home stay in it. Find some girl who will prefer you to her parents.

* * * * * * *

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am a boy of 17 and have one more year to complete my high school education. I have worked my way through three years of high school and it hasn't cost my parents a cent and I think I can do it for another year, but my father wants me to give up my education and go to work for $12 a week. I don't like to refuse my father, but I want my high school diploma. What shall I do? I am much troubled.—HUNTED.

Answer:

By all means go on an finish at high school. When you go out to look for a job the very first question you will be asked is whether you graduated from high school or not and that diploma will do a lot toward getting you a job. Your father is mistaken in thinking that it doesn't matter. It is vital and necessary for you to do this.

* * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—What should a girl marry for—love, money, security or to keep from being an old maid?—M.M.D.

It is silly to marry to keep from being an old maid, but a happy marriage should have the other three ingredients.

DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SHOOTING BIRDS

When Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy cried out loud, as she and Uncle Wiggily and the rabbit lady wife went into the barn, Mrs. Longears asked:

"Did you stub your tail, Nurse Jane, or did Uncle Wiggily step on it?"

"Oh, no," said the muskrat lady housekeeper wiping her eyes.

"If I stepped on her tail I apologize," said Uncle Wiggily.

"But you didn't," said Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Only my eyes—"

"Don't tell me Uncle Wiggily stepped on your eyes!" exclaimed Mrs. Longears. "Wiggy! What a queer thing to do!"

"I didn't—truly I didn't," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Of course he didn't," said Nurse Jane. "But something got in my eyes. It feels like mud!"

"Oh! Oh!" all of a sudden cried Mrs. Longears. "My eyes! Some mud just fell in my eyes."

Always A Gentleman

"It's the swallows!" said Uncle Wiggily. "I told you barn swallows made their nests of mud and some of the birds must have dropped little pills or pellets of mud on you and Nurse Jane, my dear." He wiped first the eyes of his wife and then the eyes of Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, like the true rabbit gentleman he was.

When their eyes were cleaned of mud, Mrs. Longears and Nurse Jane could see several swallows flitting in and out of holes in the old barn where Uncle Wiggily put his funny automobile to bed every night. Some of the swallows were perched on rafters high up under the eaves of the barn roof.

"Did some of our mud pills fall on you?" twittered one of the swallows. "If so we beg your pardons. But we are very busy and sometimes the mud pills fall out of our mouths."

"We don't mind," said Mrs. Longears. "It is all very interesting."

"But what is this about mud pills?" asked Nurse Jane. "First it is mud nests and now it is mud pills. I can't believe it."

"But it is true," said one of the swallows. "If you will step outside Uncle Wiggily's barn a moment, to the nearest mud puddle, I will show you how we swallows get the mud pills for our nests."

Uncle Wiggily, his wife and Nurse Jane followed the swallow to the puddle. The bird thrust its beak into the soft mud at the edge and gathered a little pellet or pill of mud in its mouth which, for a bird's, was very large.

Mud Bullets

"I will now carry this mud pill, and many more like it, to the barn and there, under the eaves, I will plaster or fasten them to the wood and make them into a nest for the little birds I soon expect," said the swallow.

"Oh, now I understand," said Nurse Jane.

"So do I," said Mrs. Longears. "Some of the swallows accidentally dropped their mud bills into our eyes. They are like shooting birds, Uncle Wiggily, only they shoot bullets of mud."

"Yes," laughed the rabbit gentleman. "Ha! That's the time I got shot!" he exclaimed as a swallow, flying over his head, dropped a mud pill on the rabbit's pink, twinkling nose.

Having seen how the birds gathered material for their mud nests, Uncle Wiggily, his wife and Nurse Jane went back into the barn. And while they were there something very strange happened.

You may read of it in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily's bird army. And I certainly hope the wash rag will let the cake of soap go roller skating in the bath tub.

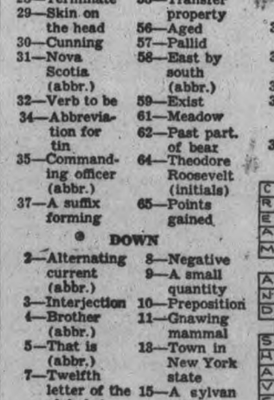
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT ON YOUR MATE

WHEN YOUR partner's lead against no trump is clearly his fourth best of your bid suit, you can usually depend on him to do some part of the defensive work. If the declarer tries to squeeze you by running his length, keep your guards in the remaining two suits and discard the one you had called. Leave that one to your partner to protect.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

One very daring pair reached a contract of 6-No Trumps on this deal in a recent duplicate, and because West failed to discard properly, gained success in the endeavor.

South started with 1-Club, West called 1-Diamond, North 2-No Trumps, South 3-Clubs, West 3-Spades, North 3-No Trumps, South 4-No Trumps and North 6-No Trumps.

Against this contract East led the diamond 3, although his partner contended his correct lead was the heart 2. Regardless of that fact, West was the one who from that point on enabled North to make his contract.

It was quite evident from East's lead that he held four diamonds. Therefore, instead of discarding any spades on the clubs, West should have tossed all of his diamonds and depended on East to guard that suit. His poor discarding enabled the declarer to cash five clubs, four spades, two diamonds and a heart. East, who counted on West for a sure spade trick, was desperately trying to cash a heart, and in so doing, let his diamonds go.

Steele—Henderson

A wedding of interest to friends in Peterborough took place in Hamilton on Friday, April 15, at the home of Mrs. W. P. Berry, when her sister, Miss Margaret Henderson of Hamilton, became the bride of William Steele, of Peterborough. The Rev. A. Bell performed the ceremony beneath an arch of white bells, streamers and flowers.

Given in marriage by her brother-in-law, W. P. Berry, the bride looked charming in a gown of navy triple sheer chiffon, with hat and accessories in matching shade, and wearing a corsage of Sweetheart roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Alice Henderson, who wore a frock of blue crepe Romaine, with matching accessories and a corsage of Ophelia roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Cecil Parrington, of Peterborough, acted as best man. During the signing of the register, Billy Spooner sang, 'I Love You Truly."

Mrs. Steele, mother of the groom, and Mrs. Berry, the bride's sister, received the guests, both wearing dresses of blue crepe, and corsages of Talisman roses. A buffet supper was served to the forty guests following the ceremony, the bride's table being beautifully arranged with daffodils, pink candles and the wedding cake in the centre. A miniature wedding group, beneath an arch, decorated the buffet.

The happy couple left later for a short honeymoon, after which they will reside in Peterborough.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Steele, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. H. Meeks, the Misses I. Steele, Ruby and Olive Parrington, and E. Shepherd. Messrs. G. Brittlbank and C. Parrington, all of Peterborough.

The MacGregor-Jay Wedding

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: I read a recipe for Angel Food or Angel Cake on your cookery page about three week's ago (in a dentist's office) and have been unable to find it since.

It struck me as being a little different, used bread flour and I believe the pan it was baked in was greased.

If you could print this recipe again I would appreciate it very much.

I certainly enjoy your page and the recipes are just right for me. (I'm American and used to fine foods—perhaps you are too). V.S.

ANSWER: It is our fond hope that Canadians are "used to fine foods" too. That recipe for Angel Food is good—I find it foolproof—and never have an angel cake fall when I use it.

ANGEL FOOD (sometimes called Silver Sponge Cake.)

Whites 5 eggs, ¾ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon cream of tartar, ½ cup bread flour, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Beat whites of eggs until stiff and dry and add gradually, while beating constantly, sugar, mixed and sifted with cream of tartar. Sift flour into the mixture, add vanilla, and cut and fold until blended. Fill buttered angel food tin or individual tins two-thirds full, sprinkle top with powdered sugar, and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for about 35 to 40 minutes.

Hoping this is the recipe you mean and that we can help you again.

QUESTION: Would you kindly send me a recipe for "Chocolate Dip," Thanking you. Miss L. B.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

I am not sure whether you want method for dipping candies in chocolate or Chocolate Sauce. I am herewith giving both.

To dip candies with fondant or fruit or caramel centres in chocolate you must procure dipping chocolate from a confectioner or confectioners' supply house.

It is an exact process: Break or shave 1 lb. of dipping chocolate (it is not practical to work with less) and put in top of double boiler. Place over cold water—so low that flame cannot touch the pan and heat slowly. The water should not become hotter than 125 deg. Fahr. (a candy thermometer is absolutely necessary). When the chocolate begins to melt it should be stirred almost constantly, so that an even temperature may be maintained throughout. One hundred and 10 Deg. Far. (110) is not very much hotter than blood heat, and is the highest temperature the chocolate should ever reach.

When completely melted substitute cold water for hot in bottom of double boiler, beat the chocolate gently until it is just warm 85 deg. Fahr.—be careful not to get even a drop of water in the chocolate.

Moisture will cause it to thicken and become dull. A little warm water may be added to the bottom of the double boiler to keep the heat of the chocolate constant at 85 deg. Fahr. When chocolate becomes too thick heat it slightly and beat again. Drop prepared centres in chocolate right side up, flip over with fork, lift out, scraping off excess chocolate on edge of pan, and stand on wax paper bottom down, twisting excess chocolate on fork over length of chocolate to give it professional touch. Cool them as quickly as possible—then place in tight boxes and keep in cool dry place.

CHOCOLATE SAUCE

Two cups milk, 1½ tablespoons cornstarch, 2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 4 tablespoons powdered sugar, 2 tablespoons hot water, 2 eggs, 2-3 cup powdered sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Scald 1¾ cups milk, add cornstarch diluted with remaining milk, and cook 8 minutes in double boiler; melt chocolate over hot water, add 4 tablespoons sugar, and hot water, stir until smooth, then add to cooked mixture; beat whites of eggs, until stiff, add gradually powdered sugar and continue beating, then add unbeaten yolks, and stir into cooked mixture; cook 1 minute, add vanilla, and cool before serving.

Hoping that one of the above recipes is the one you want and that we can help you again.

QUESTION: Could you give me a recipe for chicken salad for about 50 people stating if the chicken should be boiled or roasted, and approximately how many chickens would be needed?

Also about how much celery, olives and ice cream would be required for the same number. (We buy the ice cream in quarts or gallons).

I was thinking of serving small cakes and rolls with the above, but could you suggest a cheaper lunch (buffet) for a wedding reception?

I have tried many of the recipes given in your page in the paper, which also has been helpful in planning weekly menus. I hope you will be able to assist me with the above, as I have not before planned for such a large number of people. Mrs. M. T.

ANSWER: Thank you for your letter.

One six-lb. chicken that is not over fat will yield almost 2 lbs. of meat. When this is cubed into ½ nch cubes and added to 2 cups finely cubed celery, 1 cup small green peas (fresh cooked or canned) 1 tablespoon parsley and about 1½ cups mayonnaise, 1 tablespoon salt, it will serve 20 people. To be on the safe side boil until tender 3 6-lb. chickens to serve chicken salad to 50 people. Provide two or three quarts large olives, 20 medium sized celery hearts, two gallons ice cream.

WEDDING RECEPTION BUFFET MENU

Creamed Chicken or Lobster or Mushroom and Fresh Peas in puff paste patties.
Cheese Straws Ripe Olives
Celery Hearts
Coffee for Toasts (while plates are being removed and dessert course served).
Ice Cream with Salted Nuts
Fancy Assorted Cakes such as shortbreads, chocolate diamonds, Walnut Sticks.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Surely the actions of men seem to be the justest interpreters of their thoughts, and the truest standard by which we may judge them."
—H. Fielding.

Dear Friends:

All of us are judged, not so much by what we say, but by the things we do. If you say you love a person, yet continually hurt them by deeds, why be disappointed when they think there is no real love there.

If you talk religion, yet show by your deeds that money is the most important thing in your life, why be surprised when people call you a hyprocrite? "By their deeds ye shall know them," and by our deeds are we making ourselves known to others.

You can talk about work, but if you do not get busy and do some, you simply show you are a bluffer and lazy to boot. Get busy and you will have no time to talk about it. What exasperates me is to hear someone say "I'm going to do this or that," but they never seem to get around to the doing of it.

You hear others say, one day I will do such and such, or one of these days I am going to do big things. Why don't they make a start? When you talk of a thing too much, you begin to think you have actually done it, but it isn't done.

Why wait until tomorrow, for when it comes it will again be today. And the days slip on, the years overtake you, and all you have done is talk. We need speech, but it will not put you at the top of your profession, it will not pay the rent, nor put food on the table.

Saying you are someone's friend, then letting them down in some deed you promised to do for them, that is only lip friendship. Saying what a hard worker you are yet shirking every time the boss is not around shows you to be a cheat and a liar.

Telling people how just you are, yet squeezing every last penny from those who owe you when they have so very little, never gets you anywhere for you show by your deeds how truly unjust you are. Yet how many fool themselves by their talk.

It isn't necessary to tell people the kind of man or woman you are, the things you do will speak for you and believe me, they speak in a loud voice. If you are dignified, it shows, if you are a bully it shows too. If you are good, no words are needed, no defence required, for your actions will speak louder than words.

If you are not playing the game, all your covering will not cover you, your true self will be visible. "What is done in the dark will come out in the daylight." (I heard that in Ireland). If you are dishonest, your furtive look will give your bad deeds away to those you meet.

Its an impossible thing apparently for us to be good all the time, or to be good in all things and all ways. So, if you are ready to condemn another, take a look at yourself, see where your deeds don't match your talk, and you will be silent about others.

We are taught, "Judge not, lest ye be judged." Yet the only way we can know one another, is by the things we do, and the things we leave undone. Judging in this instance would mean I think, condemning, and we all fall so far short in some way, we have no room to condemn another.

We seem to talk so much and do so little. Talk is good when it is needed, but deeds are needed more. Too many promisers, and not enough who fulfill, too many looking for work to help the world, yet praying to God they won't find it.

Yet, a good way is to stop looking to see what the other fellow is doing, and get busy yourself, and if everyone did that, there would be no need for judging, the world would be a better place for what we do to help ourselves, helps so many many others. Think it over.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

New Italo-British Relations Hinge On Spanish War

Whole Deal Off If Duce Fails To Remove Troops At Least When Conflict Over

ROME, April 19—(CP)—The post-war course of European history began a new phase today, Great Britain and Italy bound in a pact of friendship, and France moving for a similar reconciliation with her latin neighbor.

Signed n the Chigi Palace Saturday by the Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Italy, the Count Galeazzo Ciano, the Italian foreign minister, the pact promised to end three years of tension between the two countries and heal the sores opened by Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, the anti-British broadcasts to the near east, and large-scale Italian intervention in the Spanish civil war.

France officially proposed to Italy today that a similar, Franco-Italian treaty be negotiated.

Most important of the Italian concessions was a promise that Italian troops would be withdrawn from Spain and a declaration that Italy has no territorial, political, or economic designs on Spain. Italian troops will be evacuated according to a plan to be devised by the London non-intervention committee or, failing that, at the end of the civil war, and it was stipulated the pact shall not become effective until this has been carried out.

Recognition of Italian domination in Ethiopia was one of the prizes Italy obtained in return. Great Britain undertakes to have the question of recognition disposed of at next month's meeting of the League of Nations council.

Tana Interests Safe.

Italy agrees to safeguard Britain's rights around Lake Tana, Ethiopia, the source of the Nile, promises not to raise a native army in Ethiopia, undertakes to stop anti-British broadcasting to Palestine and other Near East territories, adheres to the London naval treaty, and agrees to reduce her military strength in Libya, North Africa.

Italian fears that Britain might close the Suez canal and cut Italian communications with East Africa in the event of trouble were set at rest when freedom of passage via Suez was affirmed anew. British interests in Arabia were recognized.

English and Italian texts of the pact were signed. It consists of a protocol, eight annexes and an exchange of letters. The Egyptian Minister to Italy also signed an instrument dealing with relations between Egypt and Italian territories in Africa—Italian East Africa (including Ethiopia) to the south-east and Libya to the west.

The present positions of Great Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean are confirmed and provision is made for an exchange of military and naval information. One annex guarantees religious freedom to British nationals in Italian East Africa.

The Italian garrison in Libya will be reduced at the rate of 1,000 men weekly until it is down to a peace-time footing. The agreement in respect to Spain provides that if the non-intervention committee fails to devise an effective plan, Italian troops will leave Spain immediately the civil war is terminated, taking with them all their military equipment.

Accident Victim

Harry "Pat' Downing, old-time Toronto baseball star and well-known wherever baseball is played, was instantly killed when the car he was driving crashed into a parked truck near Tilbury, Ont. He was returning to Toronto from Florida where he was visiting the Maple Leafs' training camp. Downing's wife and a friend, Robert Greer, were also killed in the crash.

FASCIST OUTBREAK NIPPED IN RUMANIA

BUCHAREST, April 19 (CP-Havas)—Cornelius Codreanu, 38-year-old leader of the pro-Fascist "iron guard," and several hundred of his followers were under arrest today as the Rumanian government pressed an investigation of an alleged plot against the state and King Carol.

Documents seized indicated the anti-Semitic, pro-Nazi iron guard was preparing an armed Putsch. Rifles, hand grenades and machine guns cached by Codreanu's organization were seized. Those found in possession of arms were jailed and will be tried by military courts.

In Bucharest suspects were assembled under guard in a school. From there they were sent under escort to a monastery in the provinces, the location of which was not revealed. Special precautions were taken in connection with leaders of the plot. Codreanu was kept under guard at the village of Predeal.

Juliu Maniu, head of the outlawed Peasant Party, who was travelling to Bucharest from Cluj, got off the train at Brasov and returned to his home in Transylvania when he heard of the developments. Maniu, who joined forces with Codreanu in the general elections of December, is said to have maintained contact with the Fascist leader since. Both recently took part in a meeting of opposition leaders.

General Ion Antonescu, war minister of the first cabinet of Premier Miron Cristea, which was formed Feb. 11 and reshuffled March 30, was given a leave of 30 days. He will leave Rumania.

IDEALS SOUGHT BY CHILDREN'S AID ABLY DESCRIBED

An eloquent plea for the support and assistance of the Rotary club in carrying out the work of the Children's Aid Society was voiced by Miss Rachel Young, superintendent of the Peterborough City and County Children's Aid Society in an address before the Peterborough Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon Monday. Miss Young, who has been superintendent of the local society since February 14, gave a most interesting survey of the activities of the organization and of the ideal that is aimed at in its program.

President James Dutton presided to-day and there was a large attendance.

The nominating committee named the following field from which five directors will be elected for the coming year at next Monday's meeting of the club: T. J. Carley, K.C., T. A Mackay, E. L. Sackville, R. E. Cutting, Dr R. W. Frank, David T. Diplock, Mack Gordon, Dr. J A. Bannister and Lieut.-Col. W. Gordon Hall.

Miss Young, who was introduced by Rotarian D. T. Diplock, began her address by describing what she considered the proper home in which to bring up children. There were, she said, three factors that entered into the makeup of such a home, first suitable environment and care and training, second security and third, an opportunity for growth. Miss Young dealt with all these factors in an incisive manner, suggesting the need for children to be handled with affection and understanding and for the necessity of serenity and confidence being developed in the home.

Deals With Home.

The speaker said that since coming to Peterborough it had been remarked to her on a number of occasions that her chief job was to take children away from their parents and place them in the shelter. On the contrary she pointed out that the main desire of the society was to deal with children in their own homes and to keep them there wherever it was possible. Much of her work lay in that field and not a day passed that she did not receive reports from some citizen as to conditions in certain homes that required her attenton. All such information, she said, was kept entirely confidential, and she urged the Rotarians to regard the Children's Aid Society as their own and to make use of it.

When it was found impossible to keep children in their own homes the society was forced to step in and place those youngsters in the Shelter until they could be located in foster homes for the latter were regarded as the best substitute available for the children's natural homes. Miss Young stressed the fact that the efforts of the society were directed to giving the youngsters the best training, physically and mentally, while in the shelter and to securing for them the best foster homes.

The speaker pointed out that there was considerable work for her under the Unmarried Parents' Act and in other fields of endeavor. One of these fields was the investigation of the causes that made delinquents of boys and girls and that she maintained was the responsibility of the community in general and of service clubs in particular. She urged Rotarians to become members of the Children's Aid Society.

A vote of thanks to Miss Young was moved by Rotarian Alex Mowat.

HEAD LADY FAVORS BIRTH PICTURES

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she approved of the "Birth of a Baby" pictures in Life magazine and hoped to see the movie from which the pictures were taken.

The magazine published the pictures in its issue of April 8. In some boroughs of New York City and elsewhere copies of the issues were ordered seized on the grounds they violated statutes against sale of obscene literature and pictures. The issue was banned in Canada.

"I never think honest things are bad," Mrs. Roosevelt told her press conference. "I think that suggestive things which do not deal honestly with a subject are much more harmful."

Whether the pictures should be shown to children, she said, depended upon the individual child and how his parents felt about it. She related that the small son of a friend appeared bored when shown the photographs and commented: "The ostrich in school had a much harder time laying an egg."

West Still Spot For Young Man

MONTREAL, April 19 (CP).—The "West," according to Rt. Rev. A. H. Sovereign, Anglican bishop of Athabasca, "still is the place for the young man."

The bishop, arriving today on the liner Duchess of Bedford, expressed his pleasure on his return to Canada and said he would be glad to be back on his vast religious domain where airplanes carry him to most of his parishes—a far cry from the days when he "mushed" by dog team.

"Why," he told reporters, "in the past three years the population of the territory of which I am in jumped 25,000 to 80,000. There's gold, silver, pitchblende, coal and tar being taken from the ground. The country is growing fast."

Reds Riot As Blum Government Totters

Paris Reds, whose place in the sun clouded as the Popular Front (Socialist-Red) government of Premier Leon Blum, lost a vote of confidence as the senate refused him full financial powers, gathered around the senate building and tried to break through a cordon of police and mobile guards. Several sundry scuffles such as pictured ABOVE, occurred. The first act of the new Premier Edouard Daladier, who formed a cabinet on condition that he could assume dictatorial powers if the situation called for such tactics, was to end all strikes in aeroplane and munition factories. Twenty thousand workers accepted arbitration and returned to work with two-cents an hour wage increases.

BOARD APPROVES DOURO POSITION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, April 19.—The appointment of Dr. Munro of Warsaw as Medical Officer of Health for Douro township has the approval of Ontario Department of Health according to a communication received at the April meeting of the council. Other communications read:

From Department of Highways, showing a total expenditure on roads during 1937 approved for subsidy at 50% to be $5591.25.

From Medical Officer of Health of Peterborough city advising "that no person suffering from a communicable disease and residing in another municipality shall be admitted to the Queen Mary Isolation Hospital without a letter signed by the reeve or medical officer of health stating that municipality is responsible for payment of such expenses as necessary to provide medical attendance, medicine, nurses and other necessities.

From Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto, asking for donations.

From S. J. Charlton, liability policy covering employees on pay roll of municipality.

From E. Maloney, sheep valuer, report of examining and valuating eleven sheep belonging to Stephen Scott which were injured by dogs.

Bolton-Fitzgerald: Whereas information has been given to the council that the dogs which injured Mr. Scott's sheep belonged to J. Deremo. That the clerk be instructed to submit a bill of damages to Mr. Deremo for the injured sheep and to advise that failure on his part to pay this account within ten days, legal proceedings would be taken to collect same.

On motion the following accounts were ordered paid: Stephen Scott, 11 sheep injured by dogs $55; E. Moloney, valuing sheep, $3; J. J. Leahy, relief officer salary from Jan. 31 to March 31, $17.20; relief accounts: M. Smith, Lakefield, $10; P. G. Towns. $19; D. Rice, $16; H. Ayotte, $3.50; B. F. T. Fry Recommended For Dairy Position

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19—Four applications for the position of Milk tester for Northumberland were read before members of the Patrons' Association at their meeting held in the board room of the St. Lawrence Hotel on Saturday afternoon. George Van Volkenburg, president of the Woodland Cheese and Butter Company, presided at the meeting at which Thomas Fry was recommended for the position and this recommendation will be forwarded on to the Provincial government for approval.

Thieves Break Into Omemee Barber Shop

OMEMEE, April 19.—The barber shop and tobacco store of Fred Parker here was broken into during Sunday night and the thief or thieves got away with a new radio, $100 worth of tobacco and cigarettes and three dollars in coppers. Entrance was obtained by breaking in the front door of the place. The burglary was not discovered until Monday morning.

SUCCESSFUL SALE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 19. — The annual Easter Sale of cooking under auspices of the ladies of St. Mary's Parish attracted a large number on Saturday afternoon and the copious supply of baking was sold out early in the evening. Mrs. George O'Sullivan was the convenor and her assistants were Mrs. V. Farrell, Mrs. A. Brunelle and Mrs. P. J. Kelly. The draw on the gallon of maple syrup was won by F. Linton.

Horn Brothers Threaten To Leave Lindsay If Water Not Improved

LINDSAY, April 19.—Alex. Horn, president of the Horn Brothers Woollen Company, one of Lindsay's largest industries, in a letter to the Board of Health, threatens to remove his plant from here if the condition of the water in the Scugog is not remedied. Mr. Horn declared that raw sewage being dumped into the river is endangering the health of his employees. It was pointed out that the Scugog River is a slow-moving stream during the summer months, and it was decided to ask the Trent Valley Canal officials to remove one or two stop-logs a day at the Lindsay Street dam. The Board of Health has advocated a modern sewage disposal plant, but this project was turned down by the ratepayers.

TRENT RIVER

The Seymour West Women's Institute meet Thursday, April 21st at the home of Mrs. Howard Clark. Roll call, "A helpful idea for Saturday."

Mr. James Paul was in Port Hope last week attending the sessions of the annual conventions of both the Orange Grand Lodge and the Provincial Grand Black Chapter.

Mrs. G. Visee spent a few days this week with her daughter, Mrs. David Sharpe of Ida.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. O. Webster of Uxbridge were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Lowe on Wednesday.

Charged With Theft Of Spray Pump

Arrested near Trenton by Provincial Constable Smith and brought back from Belleville Sunday by Provincial Constable David Silvester, Jack Wood of Trenton was arraigned before Constable Gordon Puffer, sitting as justice of the peace in police court on Monday, on a charge of stealing a spray pump and automobile parts from Charles Petherick of Rush Point, and was remanded in custody until Tuesday. Wood was not asked to elect or plead.

BULB EXCHANGE AT MAY MEETING OF BETHANY W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, April 19.—The members of the Women's branch of Bethany Institute held their regular monthly meeting at the rectory on Monday evening. There were ten members present; two new members joined the branch on April 11.

Business discussion followed. Treasurer's report given. A thorough overhauling of the piano was warmly approved by the ladies. A committee was appointed to oversee the making of a new cover to be made at once as a fitting protection for the instrument.

The secretary was in possession of instructive letters from the heads regarding items that may be acquired at the District Annual, as a means to educate the branch in helps that can be procured and made use of in the future.

The decision to request "Health Education" be the subject chosen by Bethany Branch for speaker's address at District. A committee was appointed to get further and accurate information regarding purchase of a pump for the large cistern recently made by instruction of the society to be used in case of fire.

Election of officers for the coming year was felt unnecessary to make owing to small attendance present, and same executive to continue for another term in office.

The president invited the ladies to meet at her home for the next session in May, under the appointed group in charge of program and refreshments. The convenor was requested to give the reading of current events, which was readily responded. The contest prepared by the hostess was deferred owing to lateness of the meeting. An apron contest will be held at the next meeting, and a prize given for the prettiest one exhibited. Exhange of plants or bulbs also is requested to take place at the May meeting.

The hostess served delicious refreshments, assisted by her niece, Miss Gladys Wright, which were provided according to group in charge.

SUCKERS APPEAR HASTINGS WATERS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 19.—The suckers have put in their annual appearance below the Hastings dam. Sunday they could be seen in the water in large numbers.

This particular type of fish makes good eating this time of year, as its flesh is quite firm. Fishermen frown on catching a sucker in the summer, when the water is warm.

The annual sucker hunt at Westwood will take place later this month. Men come for many miles for this annual event. The water is dammed up, and the men in long rubber boots and armed with pitch forks, wade out to lay in a year's supply. Many bags and barrels are filled each year, to be salted down.

Fighting Muskies At Betrayal Time Need Protection

Betrayed by Nature at This Season of Year Greatest Fish Sought by "Enemies of State"

The relationship of the spawning season, now in progress, to the tourist business in the Kawartha district, valued at hundreds of thousands of dollars, has been clarified once more to the Examiner in getting stories for its third annual Mail-It-Away tourist edition.

It was related yesterday by one man that he had seen two hundred and fifty maskinonge in the shallow fringe of water along Chemong Lake shore. Another pair was seen almost in the centre of the city in the river off the end of Sherbrooke street, and these are only stray examples of what is going on in the Trent, Rice Lake, the Otonabee, Katchawanooka, Buckhorn Lake and elsewhere.

The natural propagation of game fish in these waters is going on with an increased number of wardens doing their best to prevent "enemies of the state" from netting, spearing and otherwise catching the fighting muskies.

"Enemies of the state" is a present well worn phrase in Russia used yesterday afternoon by an indignant man who said that the Russian method of "liquidation," standing a man before a squad of gunners would be too lenient, treatment. That statement is obviously overdrawn, but it expresses extreme impatience with the type of lawbreaker who hasn't imagination enough to realize that the lunge in their mating are creating a valuable resource for the whole community.

Watch for Deputies.

There is considerable curiosity about the new squad of game wardens in the district. Any stranger who happens along any water front is immediately suspect.

"There's a guy over around that Goose Creek Bay point, and I'll bet any money he's a deputy," a youth remarked down at Harwood yesterday. "He's been around here all day. His car is hid behind that piece of stone wall away over there."

Local curiosity stemming from the stupidity that approves the killing of spawning "muskies."

Come For Fishing.

Talk to the experienced guides and they tell you about their scores of friends across the border, fishing enthusiasts who come up here for a holiday, and spend their money here. These men will soon convince you that these tourists come from Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, and so on for the fishing.

If there was only some way of forcing that idea upon the public mind, men who would think lightly of buying fish killed at this season, would become the most convinced and ardent supporters of the law.

If you could see the lunge in their mating season, big fish led by instinct into the shallow water along the shore where any boob can spear or net them, you would flame with indignation at the shame of it and want to see every poacher, every purchaser of contraband fish thrust into jail.

Down at Bewdley they tell you that forty or fifty years ago in the pre-tourist area men used to net and spear spawning lunge by the boat load. That's how easy it is to gather up these splendid fighting fish during these April days when the ways of nature betray them into the shallow water; and into the reach of "rats" who haven't enough sense to realize the value of the tourist business and the dependence of that business on the resource of game fish in the Kawarthas, and who finally are as meanspirited that they wouldn't give the fighting "muskie" a chance in his own element, the deep waters of the lake in the open season when he isn't lured inshore by its mate.

Mystery veils the disappearance of Andrew Carnegie Whitefield, nephew of the late Andrew Carnegie, multi-millionaire steel magnate. Whitfield, bridegroom of less than a year, disappeared after taking off in his own aercplane.

FEARS SON DEAD LEVINE OFFERING $5,000 FOR BODY

NEW YORK, April 20 (A.P.). — Murray Levine took formal cognizance of a possibility that his kidnapped son may be dead to-day by offering $5,000 for "information which will lead to the recovery of his body."

At the same time, he clung to a hope that the missing boy still may be alive by offering $25,000 for information which would lead to his recovery.

In a statement issued from his law office, Levine said:

"I will pay a reward of $25,000 for information which will lead to the recovery of our son; or, if he be dead, I will pay the sum of $5,000 for information which will lead to the recovery of his body. Such information must be furnished to me within 20 days."

Police and Federal agents have arrested seven men whom they accuse of trying to "Chisel in" on the $30,000 ransom offer.

Two pleaded guilty to trying to "chisel in" on the ransom in General Sessions to-day when arraigned on attempted extortion charges.

MINER KILLED AS CAGE TAKES 800-FOOT DROP

6 Others Escape Alive But Badly Injured

BEARDMORE, Ont., April 20 (C. P.). — One man was killed and six injured when a cage at the Northern Empire Mine, near here, plunged from the 600-foot level to the 1,400-foot level. Beardmore is 125 miles north-east of Port Arthur.

Joe Barr, 25, employed as a miner, was killed. The injured, suffering fractured legs, arms, and internal injuries, are Joe Karjiuk, John Karjiuk, Tony Krill, Shenley White, Bill Dahil, and Ken Murphy.

Difficulty was experienced in bringing the men out of the mine. The cage was so badly smashed it was impossible to move it.

The top of the cage was taken off and the accident victims removed by ropes.

The accident was something Arthur Kendall, mine manager, said he had never heard of before, as it was believed impossible for a clutch to let go in such a manner.

Miraculous Escape.

Miners were unable to understand how any of the men escaped death. They expressed the belief the cage's plunge must have been checked in some manner before it struck the bottom.

Each cage for carrying men and ore is fitted with a set of "dogs" to which the cable operated by the hoist is attached. When the tension of the cable is released the "dogs" are supposed to spread out and catch in the timber siding of the shaft, stopping the fall of the cage.

A slipping clutch in the hoist, a large drum affair around which the cable winds to move the cage, was generally believed the cause of the tragedy. Miners explained if the hoist had failed completely, rather than partially, the tumbling cage would have been stopped by the "dogs."

Apparently the slipping clutch maintained just enough tension to prevent the "dogs" from spreading out and catching the timbers.

Northern Empire Mine was the first producer of the Beardmore-Little Long Lac area. Its mill started operations in March, 1934.

BRITONS TO STUDY U.S. WAR PLANES

LONDON, April 20 (AP)—A 10-man technical mission from the air ministry sails today in the Queen Mary for an extensive survey of North American airplane production facilities.

Neither the names of the members of the mission nor the exact purpose of their six-week trip were revealed, but it was assured they would study whether North American planes could be used to increase the Royal Air Force.

Simultaneously Sir Thomas Inskip, defence coordination minister, sent a document marked "secret and confidential" to workers and employers in the armament industry to speed their effort in devising increased production methods for munitions and planes.

It was understood Sir Thomas urged production of planes to the fullest extent of human and mechanical ability. Otherwise, it was said, Great Britain would be forced to buy planes abroad.

Prisoners Who Have Served Sentence Must Remain In Jail Or Go To Hospital

SOME OF the complications that have arisen as the result of the discovery of a case of scarlet fever in the county jail were explained to the Board of Health Tuesday by Dr. Murray Fraser, M.O.H.

The jail, he said, would be under quarantine until next Monday. In the meantime three prisoners would complete their sentences this week and they could not be kept in jail unless they were willing to stay there. Under the health regulations it was compulsory therefore for them to be removed to the Isolation Hospital and kept there until the quarantine period ended.

One of these prisoner, a transient, whose term ends Friday preferred to remain in jail until Monday rather than go to the hospital.

Another was an out-of-town man and the medical officer of health of his community was refusing to allow him to return home until he had been given a clean bill-of-health.

The prisoner who had contracted the disease was in the Hospital and the Board was under no obligation to guard him.

City and County Urge New Bridge

Determined Campaign Is Being Planned For Permanent Roadway Over Chemong Lake

(Special to The Examiner)

ENNISMORE, April 20.—Leading civic officials from the city of Peterborough, the county, Bobcaygeon village and Emily Township joined forces with Ennismore township Tuesday night as plans were formulated for a determined campaign aimed at securing sufficient aid to build a permanent roadway across Lake Chemong and eliminate the floating bridge now in existence.

Upwards of four hundred people jammed the hall to capacity and every township in the northern part of the county was represented in the gathering which unanimously voted to carry a signed petition to both the Provincial and Dominion Governments urging immediate action on a new roadway. Jim Jopling of Bridgenorth introduced the petition as a resolution which was seconded by William Thompson of Harvey township and when Reeve James Gifford of Ennismore called for a standing vote, not one person remained seated.

"A permanent roadway across the lake would open up a tourist district that is unsurpassed anywhere in the province," said Reeve Gifford in his opening remarks, and after he had extended a welcome to the great number of visitors from the district he outlined the history of the bridge now in existence since it was built in 1901 with the cost and maintenance expenses since that time.

Reeve Joseph Guiry of Emily, one of the first speakers, said: "A permanent bridge across Lake Chemong is a link in a future highway between Peterborough and Huntsville, and would open up a new outlet for the rich farming district of Emily and Ennismore, as well as Bobcaygeon." He added that the Government had spent millions in the northern parts of the province where nobody can live, whereas Ennismore and Emily Townships will grow anything. A wrong must be righted. This Chemong Bridge has been a political football, and its time the game was called off.

Reeve C. H. Pardy told the meeting that the people of Bobcaygeon were solidly behind the move to get a permanent roadway, as it would permit stock raisers in that area to take their cattle to Peterborough where better prices were obtainable and a wider market existed. He

Premier Hepburn Meets Duplessis

TORONTO, April 20 (CP).—Premier Maurice Duplessis of Quebec and Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario met in the Ontario Premier's hotel suite today for discussions described by Quebec's Union Nationale Premier as concerning "the mutual interests of both provinces."

Before starting their conference, however, they visited Senator Frank P. O'Connor, personal friend of Mr. Hepburn. Senator O'Connor is recuperating from a serious illness. Neither forecast exactly what would be discussed at the meetings.

Arriving from Montreal for the fourth in their series of conferences, Mr. Duplessis went immediately to his suite in a downtown hotel.

NEW JAP ATTACK REGAINS GROUND LOST IN SHANTUNG

SHANGHAI, April 20.—(AP).— A driving Japanese offensive to-day thrust back the Central China army in two major battles along the 50-mile front in Southern Shantung Province.

The offensive checked optimism Chinese had shown with their victory at Taierhchwang, and it appeared they were making a last stand in the province—more than three-fourths of its 56,000 square miles nominally under Japanese control.

Japanese said they captured Lini and Chinese admitted loss of Hanchwang. In the triangular area about Lini and Hachwang, fringing the Kiangsu province border, the battle ground was small fields of tobacco, peanuts, beans.

Japanese capture of Lini put them in position for a re-organized drive against the vital Lunghai railway, China's east-west trunk line.

The Japanese said this incessant pounding shattered one corner of the walls, enabling the troops to fight their way by hand to the top and pour a heavy fire upon the Chinese defenders below.

Chinese had reported a force of 60,000 marching for the attack on Lini, a short time before Japanese announcement of its capture. The Chinese admitted they retreated from Hanchwang before an overwhelming Japanese attack during the night. Chinese had claimed its capture only yesterday.

The Japanese offensive was designed to utilize Lini as the base for a quick drive to rescue a Japanese force, barricaded in nearby Yihsien and under repeated assaults by Chinese.

3 DEAD, 9 MISSING RESULT OF BINGE

TEWSBURY, Mass., April 20. — (AP).—Three patients of the Tewksbury State Infirmary were dead, a fourth was dying and eight or nine others were missing, Superintendent Dr. Lawrence J. Kelley announced to-day after they had drunk denatured alcohol.

State police began a search of the woods for the missing patients.

The infirmary was the scene last Feb. 4 of the fatal shooting of four patients by John Mack, a giant patient who told authorities he shot his companions because they made fun of him.

City's Probe Into Charges on Gas Merger Issue Brings Packed Hearing—Statement Withheld

HAMILTON, Ont., April 20 (CP).—Mark Lynch-Staunton, publisher of the Hamilton Review, weekly newspaper, was named today by Controller Nora-Frances Henderson as the man to whom she referred in charges before the special committee of city council on the gas question April 11.

Controller Henderson testified before the special inquiry before Judge E. F. Lazier. Miss Henderson said she had regarded Mr. Staunton's interview with her on the afternoon of April 11 as a proposition "virtually bribing me to change my position (on the gas question) in exchange for a job."

Long before the inquiry opened seating capacity of the chamber and corridors of city hall were crowded with spectators. After brief preliminaries Controller Henderson was called to give evidence.

The examination was conducted by John A. Polson, K.C., city solicitor, on behalf of the city council which had moved for the inquiry after a special meeting called to deal with the Controller's charges.

The sealed affidavit, containing Miss Henderson's account of the interview and the name of the "prominent citizen" to whom she had referred, was opened for the first time since she had filed it with city hall officials. It was not admitted in evidence.

Reid W. Bowlby, K.C., appeared as counsel for Mr. Staunton who sat with him at the counsel table.

Started As Alderman in '31.

When Mr. Polson began examination he reviewed Miss Henderson's career in municipal office, which started with her election as alderman in Ward One in 1931.I n 1934 she was elected as a controller and continues to serve in that office.

"What is your occupation?" he asked.

"I'm a journalist," the controller replied.

"How long have you been engaged in that work?"

"I was a newspaperwoman for 16 years."

"In the city of Hamilton?"

"Yes. I edited women's pages, interviewed, wrote feature articles and did reporting."

Mr. Polson then referred the controller to the introduction of the agreement last December by which the United Gas and Fuel would take over existing service lines of the Dominion Natural Gas in this city.

The controller understood that it was an agreement between two companies which had been submitted for "the consent of counsel."

At the request of counsel Miss Henderson reviewed the events which had followed the presentation of the agreement to the council.

10 Points Brought Up

There had been some objection to it some "certain members of council including myself" and it had been agreed to submit it to G. W. Mason, K.C., for legal opinion. When the brief of Mr. Mason had been received it cited 10 points in the agreements which he felt warranted the consideration of council as "probably prejudicing or injuring the position of the city and consumers in respect to these agreements," Miss Henderson said.

The gas committee had been asked if it would receive representations from the United Gas and Fuel

BLACKSMITH SHOP BLAST KILLS ONE INJURES 2 OTHERS

EDMONTON, April 20 (CP).—One man was killed and two injured, apparently seriously, in an explosion today in the surface blacksmith shop at the Marcus Mine, nine miles east of here.

The dead:

John Prisner, 50, married, resident in Beverly.

The injured:

Louis Bourassa, 56, Married Beverly.

John Dymtruck, 56, married, Beverly.

The injured were rushed to the hospital in ambulances. It was declared Dymtruck probably will lose one eye. Bourassa was burned badly. Both were expected to live, officials said.

Time element probably prevented a greater toll. It was the habit of miners to congregate in the blacksmith shop before going underground and 12 of them had just left the shop and were not in the mine when the blast occurred.

Suspect Acetylene Tanks

Cause of the explosion was not determined immediately, Alex Crawford, mine manager, said there were acetylene gas tanks in the blacksmith shop and these may have had some connection with the explosion.

At the time Crawford said, Prisner was sharpening an axe. The sparks from the axe may have ignited gases, he said.

Prisner was a miner, Bourassa a blacksmith and the second injured man an above ground laborer.

GUNMEN LOOT TORONTO BANK OF $2,000 CASH

Smooth, Speedy Job Fails to Raise Alarm

TORONTO, April 20.—(P).—Two armed men robbed an east-end branch of the Dominion Bank of Canada of $2,000 today, holding up the manager and teller a few minutes before noon.

Police said the robbers were both about 35 years old and apparently were experienced gunmen. While one threatened the bank staff with a gun, the other went to the teller's cage and took all the loose money at hand.

The hold-up was conducted so quickly and quietly that persons on the street outside and in neighboring stores were unaware of the robbery.

A few hours before the hold-up, W. J. Seabrook, member of the bank staff, had removed several thousands of dollars in bilsl to another branch.

I. J. Hiscock, teller, R. Hines, clerk, and a customer were in the bank when the bandits entered with drawn guns. The men worked swiftly and quietly and raced out of the bank with the money within two minutes after entering it.

Police were given a number of the car in which the bandits were believed to have escaped. It was stolen in Oshawa April 8.

HITLER 49 TODAY, NAZIS SHOW OFF

BERLIN, April 20 (A.P.).—Picked units of the German army paraded before Adolf Hitler to-day as all Germany celebrated the Fuehrer's 49th birthday.

Unparalleled scenes of nation-wide rejoicing took place as the German people, still mindful of Hitler's triumphs in accomplishing Austrian union, acclaimed their leader. For the first time Austrian soldiers marched in the birthday parade in Berlin.

The Fuehrer, wearing the simple brown uniform of a Nazi storm trooper, with nothing to indicate his rank as commander-in-chief except the gold oak leaf in his cap, reviewed the parade from a stand before Berlin University's main building.

Apparently the chief purpose of the demonstration was to show Germans and the foreign military attaches that Germany's weapons are formidable. The second half hour of the parade was devoted to displaying motorized weapons of the most deadly sort.

The crowds cheered themselves hoarse. Brief flurries of snow alternated with sunshine.

Fear Of Doing Brodie Act Did Not Stop Mayor, M.P.

Many Going To Ennismore Make Return Trip Via Land Route

After crossing Chemong Bridge last night when the waves were washing over it, blurring its unprotected timber edge for the length of a city block, some of Peterborough's prominent citizens are willing to agree with Ennismore. Some of them were so convinced that the bridge wasn't all it should be in the cause of safety and insurance that they made the home trip on land around by Fowler's Corners. They say George Hewitt of the Chamber of Commerce was averse to the bridge crossing adventure, either way, but he was finally persuaded to go. He was one of those who decided that the longest way round was the less nerve-wracking way home. J. J. Duffus, M.P., and Fred Overend of the Chamber of Commerce likewise leaned heavily on the side of discretion. But, it is reported that Alex. L. Elliott, M.L.A., and Mayor Hamilton were of the minority who were willing to do a Brodie, take a chance on the short cut across the lake.

Four Are Drowned In Idaho Floods

WALLACE, Idaho, April 20—(AP)—Receding Northern Idaho and Canadian streams left four dead today and more than $500,000 damage.

Jack Cochran and John Ojal, both about 24, drowned in the raging Coeur d'Alene River, 30 miles west of Wallace.

At Michel, B.C., 12-year-old William Korner drowned in a normally small creek, and Eric Trondson, 48, was crushed to death by a landslide as he slept in his mine shack.

Wallace civic leaders estimated it would be a month before conditions could be restored to normal. Washed out road beds and railroad lines, damaged bridges and wrecked homes marked the course of the most disastrous flood to sweep this region since 1933.

Gale Blows Hydro Wire Down on Street, 4,000 Volts Kill Man, Stun Second Appin, Ont., April 20 (CP).

THROWN TO the ground when 4,000 volts of electricity from a short circuited wire passed through his body, Robert E. C. McDonald, registrar of West Middlesex was killed to-day.

John Cossey, employee of McDonald's was stunned by the same discharge of electricity, but suffered no serious injury.

A high wind strom, accompanied by thunder and lightning, swept over Appin during the night loosening overhead wires.

Electricty escaping from hydro lines set fire to a fence post in front of Mr. McDonald's temporary house. He and Cossey went out to move a car which they feared might take fire, and it was while they were approaching the automobile the shock was received.

McDonald's arm and one side were badly burned.

Schools To Get $1,200,000 More Grants

More Aid to Come, Minister Tells O.E.A. Session; Councils Warned to Go By Taxpayers' Ability to Pay

TORONTO, April 20 (CP).—Ontario school boards and boards of education today had "reasonable assurance" from Hon. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, that this year they would get "approximately $1,200,000 more than they received in 1937."

"And the end is not yet, if I have anything to say in the matter," Mr. Simpson told the general session of the 77th Annual Convention of the Ontario Educational Association here last night. He said all additional funds made available to his department by an increased budget would go directly to elementary and secondary schools.

Discussing a new commercial course for grade X secondary school (second year) students, he said the province could not afford to neglect the different requirements of the various groups of pupils. Under the new course, 20 per cent of time will be devoted to English, 15 per cent to social studies and 7½ per cent to health education.

No Revolutionary Changes.

"We have no thought of revolutionizing a system of education that has won respect by hasty or ill-considered thought," said Mr. Simpson. "The traditionalist and the new educator are both right. In another respect they may both be wrong. Here, as elsewhere, the middle road is probably the best."

County council delegates to the convention were warned by A. J. B. Gray of the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs that educational programs must be based on ability of taxpayers to pay. He said much thought was given during O.E.A. deliberations to improvements in the educational system, but little was given the increased burdens placed upon taxpayers.

HELD AT TORTOSA INSURGENTS TURN TOWARD VALENCIA

HENDAYE, France, April 20 (AP).—Unable to crack at once a well-placed Government defence at Tortosa, Spanish insurgents today drove southward along the Mediterranean coast toward Castellon and Valencia.

Gen. Miguel Aranda's troops neared the outskirts of Alcala de Chivert where a secondary feeder road from Albocacer joins the coastal highway, after advancing 12 miles along an 18-mile front.

The new offensive threatened the chief coastal cities of Southern Government Spain.

At Alcala de Chivert, the insurgents had covered almost half the 40 miles from Vinaroz to Castellon and almost a quarter of the 83 miles from Vinaroz to Valencia.

Field officers said they expected little difficulty in taking Alcala de Chivert, a town of 6,000 population.

Insurgents said they had taken "enormous quantities" of field guns, machine guns and hundreds of thousands of cartridges and assorted munitions in the Tortosa area.

The death of Col. Cebollino, commander of the second insurgent cavalry division, wounded in action west of Tortosa, was announced by the insurgent command at Irun.

MERCURY "MAGIC" PICKS IMPURITIES FROM ANY LIQUID

By Howard W. Blakeslee
(Associated Press Science Editor.)

DALLAS, April 20 (A.P.).—Magic discovered in drops of mercury is used to make a new scientific instrument of detection for chemistry—and potentially for crime—which was described to the American Chemical Society here to-day.

This "magic" in mercury is the ability of drops, smaller than a pin head, to pick up electricity. The drops are allowed to fall, like a string of beads, into any liquid chemists wish to test.

Because mercury does not mix with liquids, the drops fall to the bottom and make a flat pool. A wire is connected to this pool. Over the wire flows any electricity the mercury droplets have picked up during their fall through the liquid.

Now comes the magical part—reported by Prof. I. M. Kolthoff of the University of Minnesota and Dr. Otto H. Muller of Stanford University. The amount of electricity which the droplets pick up reveals the impurities, taints, "clues" in the solution.

Tattles On All.

The volume of current tells whether there are iron, lead, calcium, magnesium, or other impurities in the city's drinking water. It tells not only whether one is there, but tattles on all of them.

The amount of electricity given up is different for each substance.

It even gives an idea of about how much of each kind of impurity there is. It does the same in any kind of liquid. That makes it a new testing instrument for chemists. It was described as quick, cheap, accurate and useful for scores of different critical tests.

For crime it presumably would supply a new instrument capable of tagging the contents of any bottle or liquid clue.

Listed among the practical uses were discovery of impurities in food, in plants, industrial gases and solutions; analysis of dyes; finding of the sulphur content of the biological substances important to health.

SUSPEND PERMIT FOR TWO MONTHS

The driving permit of W. H. Black of the firm of Black Brothers of Port Hope was suspended for two months by Magistrate O. A. Langley in police court this morning after Black had pleaded guilty to reckless driving on Highway 28 and Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure had given the court the particulars of the case.

Black was also fined $10 and $2.50 costs.

"This is not a case for the minimum penalty," Officer McClure stated. Black, he said, had been driving a truck along Highway 28 at a speed of 55 miles an hour, had four people in the cab with him and had been drinking.

"That is the most serious feature of all," commented Magistrate Langley, when drinking was mentioned. "Not enough to justify you in laying a drunken driving charge?" he asked.

"No, Your Worship."

Officer McClure said Black had been fined last year for speeding.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR BUMPER YEAR WITH THE FARMER

OTTAWA, April 20.—(CP).—Given a little more co-operation from the weather man Canadian farmers may look forward to a busy and successful year.

For the past few months the weather man has been smiling upon them and if he continues to do so, much of the grief and worry of the past few years will be forgotten by harvest time.

A hasty survey of the Canadian agricultural situation as the spring seeding period begins points to more favorable conditions all across the country than in most years.

It is several months too soon to start estimating the wheat or any other crop in terms of bushels, much less of dollars. Farming, Canada's basic and most important industry, is a risky business. No matter how good things look the farmer never knows whether he has a crop until it is threshed and never knows whether it is a paying crop until he has the money in his pocket.

The most encouraging factor in the agricultural outlook in mid-April is the moisture supply on the Prairies. During the autumn and winter the expansive wheat lands have received abundant rain and snow.

Almost Record Fall.

In the Saskatoon district more moisture fell from September 1 to March 31 last than in any similar period in the last 30 years except one. The precipitation was 7.52 inches and was exceeded only in 1920 when it was 8.21 inches.

That is typical of the state of affairs over the whole Prairie grain-growing area, including the drought-stricken sections of Saskatchewan and Alberta, parts of which have not produced a real crop in seven years.

Repeated dry years have ex-used to keep snakes in his bedroom as pets. When 17 he threw up an estate agent clerk's job, went to Canada and returned with the Canadian forces during the war and met once more Florence Holmes, a friend of the family, with whom he played when a boy. He married her in 1917 at Hollington, but the marriage was later dissolved.

"He returned to Canada, and wrote us every five or six years. In one of these letters he said he had adopted the Indian name of Grey Owl, but it was not until 18 years later, when he came to lecture in Hastings, that we saw him again. After the lecture he appealed from the platform to anyone of the name of Belaney to come round and meet him behind the platform."

The Agent's Story.

The Times, on the other hand, gives a preferred place on its editorial page to a letter from Lovat Dickson, the naturalist's agent and friends in London, denying the charges.

He said Grey Owl was born in Arizona, the second son of an Indian scout named MacNeill and an Apache woman, that he came to London in a wild west show and returned to Canada with an Ojibway woman and her two sons.

Later, Mr. Dickson added, he was adopted into the Ojibway tribe and named Grey Owl. He joined a Montreal battalion in 1915 after a little trouble with police which was "not to his discredit," taking the name of Belaney, which was the married name of his father's sister.

(Records show Grey Owl was naturalized at Prince Albert, Sask., in 1934. He gave his birthplace as "near Hermosillo, on an Indian encampment in the State of Sonora," and the approximate date, Sept. 18, 1888.)

After the war, the writer went on, he married Anahareo, a full-blooded Indian maiden. During the last years of his life Grey Owl earned more than £10,000 ($50,000) from books and lectures.

"I can testify that he never spent a penny on himself but devoted the whole proceeds to the furtherance of his cause to relieve the suffering of animals the world over," Mr. Dickson said.

in respect to the objections of Mr. Mason. The meeting was set for April 11.

"And did anything transpire in the meantime?" Mr. Polson asked.

"Yes, on Monday, April 11," Miss Henderson said.

"Will you tell us about it?"

"In the afternoon before the committee was to meet I had a visit from a certain gentleman. I have deposited a statement with council of the interview which I reduced in writing shortly after the interview had taken place," the controller said.

"Who was the gentleman?" asked Judge Lazier.

"Mr. Mark Staunton," the controller said.

"When and where did the interview occur?" Mr. Polson inquired.

"At my house about 3.20 p.m. on April 11."

The controller said that when she reached her home shortly after noon her mother informed her that Mr. Staunton had called on the telephone and had asked that Miss Henderson call him.

Makes Appointment

"About three o'clock he called and said, 'What about seeing me this afternoon?' I had been busy preparing an article and wanted to put it off, and said, 'I am awfully busy,' but before I had finished the sentence Mr. Staunton broke in and said, 'I could come down to you house right away,' and I said that would certainly be more convenient for me,' Miss Henderson said.

Mr. Staunton had arrived about 3.20, and as he entered her home "some pleasantries were passed."

"His first serious remark was, 'Miss Henderson, will you give me your word of honor that you will not disclose anything between us this afternoon or that I have come to see you?" the controller stated.

"And what was your reply to that?" Mr. Polson asked.

Miss Henderson stated that in her office she had found that she was often approached by people on "legitimate matters" in which confidence were asked. She had said "yes."

"Mr. Staunton's next question was 'Are we not all out to do as well as we can for ourselves in business.'"

"I said 'I suppose we are,'" Miss Henderson continued.

"Mr. Staunton then said, 'I'm interested in this gas issue. What are you going to do about it?' I had no idea what Mr. Staunton's attitude was on the question and I said, 'Well as far as I'm concerned at the meeting tonight I am going to move that any proposed amendments should be referred back to Mr. Mason as I regarded him as the only person qualified to make rebuttal,'" she continued.

"He then said, 'but don't you know that the agreements will go through anyway even if the council votes against them.'

CONANT URGES EVERY CITIZEN TO CO-OPERATE

Officials Study Ways To Tighten Road Laws

TORONTO, April 20—(CP).—A drive to curb the number of motor accidents in Ontario gained impetus today under the spur of rewards offered by provincial and civic authorities.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant announced last night after an informal cabinet meeting the government was offering rewards totalling $2,000 for the arrest and conviction of drivers responsible for recent accidents in Toronto and Paris, Ont.

Mr. Conant said he was confident "the citizens of Ontario will give us every possible co-operation." He added: "There are always citizens who see what happens or obtain information which would help in apprehending the offenders. We are appealing to these people to report it promptly."

Rewards of $1,000 in each case were offered by the Government for the arrest and conviction of the driver whose automobile struck and killed Leonard Hosty in Toronto's west end April 9, and the person responsible for an accident in Paris Saturday night, when 68-year-old George Hambleton was injured.

$1,250 Extra Posted

Additional rewards of $500 by the Toronto Police Commission and $250 by The Toronto Globe and Mail have been posted for the arrest of the motorist who struck Hosty and injured five others. The town of Paris and the newspaper each offered rewards of $250 for arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the Paris accident.

carried down the lake several weeks ago in the first ice attack had not been replaced. Some of it has been rebuilt, and the rest will be up in a day or two, and Reeve Gifford is suspected of calling last night's meeting in the township for the opportune advantage of giving the city people an idea of some of the Spring perils to which even the township people have not become accustomed. And to fill in the picture with another stroke or two, they say that with the water splashing over the bridge you couldn't tell for a certainty along the unrailed stretch whether you were still moving on the floating timber or edging over into the lake. It is related that Mayor Hamilton was intensely silent until his car grounded again on the solid ground of the Smith shore, and the verdict of the city's party was that Ennismore should get a substantial bridge—if anyone will provide the money for it.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures reflected a slow trade to-day, and closed ½ lower to ¼ cent higher, May $1.25⅝, July $1.15¼ and October 90½ to ⅝ cents.

Buffetted by a series of trade reports, futures moved nervously within a two-cent range, but volume of transactions were limited. A feature of the trade was unusual demand for Durums that resulted in cash Durum spreads improving two cents.

Opening advances of about a cent were substituted with fractional losses at mid-session when profit-taking developed following reactions at Buenos Aires and Liverpool.

Scarlet Fever Inoculations Ninety Percent Successful

236 Cases To Date Have Been Reported To The M.O.H.

Splendid results of the campaign carried on by Dr. A. W. McPherson and himself to immunize local school children against scarlet fever were described by Dr. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health at a meeting of the Board of Health held Tuesday.

Dr. Fraser said that altogether the Dick test had been given 2,419 children and it had been discovered that 71 per cent showed a positive reaction and 29 per cent negative.

Then 1,327 of these children were inoculated against scarlet fever and afterward 1,085 were again given the Dick test, when it was found that 90 per cent. registered, showing them to be protected against the disease.

In his monthly report Dr. Fraser predicted that the epidemic should be over in the present month and showed that there had been 236 cases, with one death up to the end of March.

Cases Are Fewer

A distinct reduction in the reported cases of Scarlet fever is noted during the month said the report, and it is safe to predict the epidemic will be definitely over during April. Since its onset during October, 1937, a total of 236 cases have been reported, with one death. The monthly incidence is shown as follows:—

October, 1937,	4
November, 1937,	20
December, 1937,	28
January, 1938,	97
February, 1938,	51
March, 1938,	36
Total	236

As previously reported, the disease has in the majority of cases been mild with few complications. It is a well recognized fact that when a disease occurs in a mild form in a community it is spread much more widely than a severe infection due to the number of cases in which the diagnosis is missed or in which no physician is called because it is not considered necessary. This situation is typical of the epidemic through which we have recently passed and it is reasonable to assume that the total of 236 cases reported does not represent the true picture. The manner in which local physicians have co-operated with this department by reporting cases is exemplary. Many citizens, however, still neglect to call a physician in case of illness and fail to report cases of communicable disease. One cannot lay a charge against a citizen for failing to report a known case unless evidence other than hearsay is available.

LINDSAY

POLICE DO EIGHTY TO CATCH SPEEDER

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 20.—Provincial Traffic Officer Kennedy and Provincial Constable Adair had an eighty-mile-an-hour chase near Omemee on Monday night before halting a resident of Fenerlon Falls named Watts who is charged with reckless driving. The officers were on their way to Omemee at the time, and noticed a car ahead of them travelling at an excessive rate of speed. They paced it at speeds ranging from 75 to 80 miles an hour from the outskirts of Lindsay to the other side of Omemee. The driver told the officers that he was on his way to Peterborough for medicine for a child.

The five drunks who held high carnival on Kent street Saturday night, and who were gathered in by the police, came before Magistrate Gee and were each fined $10 and costs or ten days in the county jail. The quintette comprised: H. Galley, S. Scott, L. Gainer, T. Teevin, town and J. Welsh of Kirkfield.

In police court Tuesday morning a local man named C. Walson was sentenced to six months in the Ontario Reformatory on the charge of resisting arrest. On the charge of intoxication in a public place, the accused was fined $50 and costs. The young man put up a battle with Chief of Police Lawler and Constable Symnett while being placed under arrest in a local hotel. When taken to the police cells he again resisted the officers. When sentence was passed Walton said to the Magistrate, "Thanks, Mr. Gee, I'll see you in six months."

Horn Bros. Woollen Mills has secured a contract from the Department of National Defence for five hundred yards of uniform cloth. Only Canadian wool is to be used in the manufacture of the cloth.

Hastings Poet

The picture that appears above
Will be recognized as me,
As good a muskrat trapper
That ever crossed the sea.

Some people like my picture
They say it's quite unique,
To-day I heard a girl remark
"That Al is quite a sheik."

If you would like my picture
For your living room or hall,
I'd gladly mail one to you
Whiskers, grin and all.

HASTINGS HAS VILLAGE POET

HASTINGS, April 20. — Albert Scriver, tannery employee of this village, has gained a district wide reputation for his humorous verses dealing with present day local interest and fishing yarns. His wit and humor is printed by a weekly paper and he has received favourable comment from as far away as Kitchener.

He has also composed some humorous jokes which he likes to tell with himself as the victim.

"Al" is a trapper and fisherman of no small ability. He has caught over 150 rats this season.

WARE STREET PAIR WED IN PORT HOPE FIFTY YEARS AGO

"Do what she want you to, when she wants you to, and you'll be happy," crecked William Tate, 75, when asked what makes a happy married life. Mr. and Mrs. Tate, 42 Ware street, are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary to-day. 'I've still quite an eye for the girls," Mr. Tate admitted. He said not even fifty years of married life has dimed his appreciation for the fair sex, nor his wife's jealousy. 'Bring your wife with you the next time you come and let me have a look at her,' he told an Examiner reporter, who made a mental note that he had better keep his wife away from Ware street.

Married in Port Hope in 1888, the happy old couple, both of them 75 years old and neither looking their age by any means came to Peterborough in 1916. Mr. Tate was born near Lindsay, but was raised in Port Hope and lived there for more than half a century. He has been a gardener and florist all his business life, and is now retired. Mrs. Tate was born in Port Hope and was Lucy Morrison before her marriage in the Methodist church by Rev. Mr. Clarkson.

The couple have three daughters and one son. They are, Mrs. William Doughty, Mrs. Thomas Hall, both of Peterborough; Mrs. Kenneth Lang, of Oshawa; and Edward Tate of Detroit. They have nine grandchildren.

LAKEFIELD PUPILS IN SCHOOL CHORUS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 20.— Eight girls from the Lakefield Public school and Charles Renaud, musical director, left for Toronto to-day, (Wednesday) to take part in a chorus of 200 school children from all over the province who are singing in Massey Hall to-night before the Ontario Educational Association convention. The program will be broadcasted over station CBL, Toronto, at an early hour. The junior chorus wil be augmented by a chorus of 200 high school students, assisted by an orchestra made up of 100 high school pupils.

The Lakefield group is composed of Muretta Hull, Betty Lake, Jean Miller, Dorothy Crawford, Sybil Lennox, Maxine Hunter, Audrey Patterson and Joan Kelly.

Six pupils from the Apsley district will also take part, Carol Thompson, Isabel Lane, Fred and Delbert Northew from S.S. No. 1, Burleigh, and Douglas Dunford, Everett Bolton from S.S. No. 3, Burleigh.

Approximately four million pounds of aspirin were consumed in the United States during 1937.

Toronto Couple To Wed In Lion's Cage For Love – And $100 Cash

Toronto, April 20 (CP).

FOR LOVE and $100, pretty, 21-year-old Anne Smith will marry Fred Cowan in the lions' den at the Thursday evening performance of the Toronto Fire Fighters' Circus—providing no one forbids the ceremony.

Miss Smith proposes to let the clergyman stand outside the cage and marry them through the bars. "I'm going to have the shortest ceremony possible," she explained. "I think I'll take a chunk of beef with me and throw it to the lions if they do any advancing."

Cowan, employed in the tennis racquet business, is to have his brother David stand by as his best man. It was David's idea in the first place.

JUDGMENT RESERVED

TORONTO, April 20.—(CP). — Judgment was reserved yesterday by the Ontario Court of Appeal in a dispute between the priest and trustees of the Greek Orthodox Church at Oshawa.

The parish priest, Maxim Chawrink, obtained a judgment in a lower court enforcing an agreement under which he was appointed and restraining trustees, Sam Sabulak and seven others, from interfering with church property and books.

We Don't Like It

Two young people in Toronto, Anne Smith and Fred Cowan, are ready to be married in a den of lions at the Toronto Fire Fighters' circus. They did not select this place on their own initiative, but they can earn $100 by having their marriage service performed in that strange place, and the young lady says that amount will come in handy toward getting a start.

The people operating the circus figure they will get their $100 back and more because people will pay admission. So in the end the idea behind this strange ceremony is not to help two young people get a start in life together, but rather to make some money out of them. To make an exhibition of their marriage service.

Probably they will get along just as well after having been married in a den of lions, and they will have $100 which they may need. But there is something about the thing which it is difficult to like or admire—principally the dangling of $100 as bait to hasten a marriage service. It may be an old-fashioned idea, but we have always regarded a marriage service as something apart and sacred; it means that two people have decided to join forces for the rest of their journey; it means the starting of another home; in a large measure the forsaking of previous habits of living.

If it is not a serious moment in the lives of a young man and a young woman then we are mistaken and the subject is not worth discussing. People who run circuses might well depend on their clowns for amusement without baiting young people with marital inclinations to enter the den of lions.

Robbing Little Fellows

Since the beginning of 1938 there have been 51 messenger boys robbed in Toronto. These robberies are staged after dark, usually when a delivery is being made on a Saturday night. One way to stop it would be to close shop earlier and make it unnecessary for boys to be on the go so late at night. But as business is wedded to late week-end hours that solution is not feasible.

Most of the delivery boys are just young fellows; few of them are large enough or sufficiently strong to successfully fight back when they are attacked. Often enough they are set upon by two individuals. We take it that they are all working as messengers because they need the money they can earn that way, and often enough they are working for some small store which cannot afford to be robbed.

Probably if the individual who robbed a messenger boy was caught he might be sent to jail or reformatory or some such place. We cannot but wonder how he would rank when he got there as compared with other offenders who had taken a big chance when they broke the law. We doubt whether other criminals, tough as they might be, would be moved by admiration of an exploit when informed that some new comer had arrived because he robbed a messenger boy. For downright cowardice the clubbing of a slip of a lad out delivering parcels at night is in the same class as stealing chickens when the owner is not home and when the watch dog is locked in the house. And 51 of these robberies in Toronto since the first of the year! That is one set of statistics which must make the provincial capital feel sick.

Purchasing Prosperity

A good deal of serious-minded discussion is going on in United States regarding President Roosevelt's latest New Deal proposal to spend $6,662,000,000 on various works project. Some time ago the phrase "pump priming" was started and it has moved in as a permanent part of speech. There may be those who have lived so long with taps close to them that "pump priming" may mean little or nothing. It has its origin in a simple old custom for getting water out of a well when water was low or the pump rather defective. One merely took a bucket of water and poured it in at the top and at the same time commenced a vigorous movement of the pump handle. That is what they call the President's vast expenditure "pump priming."

The priming business, according to first principles, never did put any more water in the well; it merely made it possible to take out what was already there and in that way decreased the available supply. That is, pump priming in a business sense creates nothing. And it is there that the presidential critics are concentrating their forces.

We learn too from well-informed sources that the tendency grows under excessive government expenditure to let the government attend to everything. Municipalities are not minded to become active in seeking to create employment, and private initiative fails to respond to the call to provide work. There is proof available that it is working out that in United States. A staff correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor at Washington relates that the United States Housing Authority had $500,000,000 placed at its disposal last year and one of the stipulations was that municipalities seeking to make use of this money had to provide for 10 per cent. of the cost from their own funds. Many of the cities themselves are insolvent, and as well they had local restrictive laws. The result was that while this $500,000,000 fund was lying idle and waiting to be touched into action "only five contracts have been actually signed to date and ground has not been broken for a single project." The explanation is that while the government is spending so much the municipalities see no need of doing anything about it. They are not inclined to increase their obligations and believe that as government spending has become so general their municipality is bound to share in it.

Beneath the surface and at times out in the open there is an unwise struggle going on in United States. The business interests of United States did not want Roosevelt returned for a second term, and they did all they could to defeat him. They failed. The President on his part now seeks to regulate business. If business does not provide enough employment to keep people engaged he proceeds to provide employment through public works, and a large share of the expenditure falls back on business in the way of higher taxation. Neither business nor the President is going to win in such a contest.

From what we can gather by following what is usually regarded as the most sensibly expressed opinion in United States President Roosevelt is mistaken in the idea that he can take billions of dollars and purchase prosperity.

Conquest Is Not New

Cables from London indicate a divided opinion regarding the treaty between Italy and Great Britain. Reading a number of the criticisms and looking for some thread of similarity running through them it is found in this: The agreement is based on a betrayal of Ethiopia. One can admit the element of truth in such indictment, but in these days of hard facts it must be admitted it is rather late in the day to revert to the fact that Ethiopia was sold up the river. Nothing was done at the time to prevent it, and we candidly admit we know nothing which could be done at the moment to undo it. The signed agreement with Italy may actually be recognizing something which has been done rather than condoning the doing of it.

If one reverts again to hard facts and history it will be found that a good deal of our own history is based on conquest. Canada became British because a very active and energetic gentleman named James Wolfe succeeded in placing his army on the Plains of Abraham early in the morning before a French leader by the name of Montcalm was aware of what was going on. Prior to the coming of the white man to this country it belonged to the Indians. There was no voting day to find out what the Indians desired to do about it. The white races took possession by defeating the Indians.

It makes an interesting study. The Dutch and French had made their way to India before the British for trading purposes. In 1601 the East India Trading Co. was organized to exploit that field and the Trading Co. had to supply its own soldiers. It was in that way that Britain first secured a start in India.

When the French revolution over-ran Holland, Holland could not protect her colonies, and it was then that England came into possession of Cape of Good Hope and Ceylon. There was some recession from this movement, but in 1815 by the Congress of Vienna, Russia, Prussia, England and Austria settled the map of Europe and also the future of the British possessions in South Africa. The Boer wars of 1881 and of 1889-1901 further solidified and extended British influence in South Africa.

Britain came into possession of sections of United States (as it is now named) by the operation of two trading companies, the Plymouth and London. The Dutch were in possession of New York state, but in the war of 1665 between Holland and Britain the latter country secured that state. We believe William Penn has the distinction of being the one individual who ever secured by treaty of payment a portion of what was at one time British territory. The King of England owed Penn £60,000 and gave him grants of land, comprising most of the state of Pennsylvania. Penn wanted to make sure of his holdings and so he made a treaty with the Indians and actually paid a price for the land.

The securing of Australia was not difficult and there was no war. Capt. Cook discovered it in 1769, but no person in England paid much attention to it until after the War of Independence by which United States was lost. Then it was necessary to find some place to put prisoners and others who desired to immigrate and Australia was the solution. In the case of New Zealand Britain took possession there because she feared encroachments of the French. The natives were found to be people of high intelligence, fit for equality with the whites. There was no fighting.

The manner in which Britain has exhibited a genius for building colonies into nations is one of the bright spots in world history, but back of much of the business of empire building there has been that one primary factor—conquest.

As It Was On The Tenth

There was a little item in the correspondence page of an exchange the other day saying that "John Emery has a sore knee from having run a tack in it when working around the house on Thursday evening. Better take a trip John until the cleaning season is over."

Now we have a pretty fair idea of what it was all about; it is possible to see the whole thing. John had been helping to put down the carpet in the parlor after it had been beaten and swept and he came upon a tack when crawling around on his hands and knees. It was even so on the Tenth Concession. There was such a carpet in the parlor there, although the people who are living there today may have gone modern and refer to it as the living room. That carpet had to come up every spring although before folk ever went in there they had to do considerable scraping of the feet.

Before that carpet came up the stove had to go out for the season. There was the figure of an Indian on top of it and as a rule when the thing got put in the corner of the shed for the summer there was an old mat or rug placed on top, so the fancy Indian never saw a thing until the cool days of fall. That parlor carpet was cut to fit, a sort of tailor-made thing it was. With a fair amount of tugging and stretching it went snug to the wall at both ends and along the sides. There were enough tacks in it to fill two saucers, and the tacks were always saved because they had to go in where they came from. One might scoff at the idea of beating that parlor carpet, but when it was trussed up on the line and attacked then there were small clouds of dust. It seemed like a rotating system. First we supposed the dirt from the outside was tracked in and put on the carpet; then in spring it was knocked out in little clouds and had opportunity to again drift and settle down where it belonged.

Grandfather took no part in taking the carpet up or puting it down again. Never at any time did he grow enthusiastic about house-cleaning, and for such attitude we were moved to respect and rather admire him. The method of putting down that carpet was to spike it first straight across one end, and often it was a chore that was done in the evening when one had a coal oil lamp, a saucer of tacks and a hammer to keep on shoving around just a little ahead of him. Tacks got bent, some of them lost part of their heads in getting pulled out, but they all had to do duty again and probably that was one of the reasons why families along the Tenth used to retire when the elders waxed old in years. They hadn't been flinging all their change away for a new set of carpet tacks each year.

And like as not that is the way John Emery some place up in the western part of the province came by the tack in his knee. He was down on all fours with a saucer of carpet tacks when one went overboard and he bore down heavy upon it. Only those who have gone through a spell of tacking down the carpet in the parlor or bedroom would understand thoroughly how such an accident could happen, and on that account we feel moved to extend condolences and a bit of sympathy to John, hoping that he'll be around sory again in time to follow the seed drill.

NOTE AND COMMENT

An unknown transient was killed by a train at Edmonton. "Tis but another dead; all you can say is said."

What is it that you borrow in spring and return late in the fall? Yes, we knew you would get it right the first time—the neighbor's lawn mower.

There are rumors of a Federal election this fall but if the thing develops it cannot be described truthfully as having been occasioned by popular demand.

Winnipeg folk contributed $3,358 in a tag day to finance a campaign against mosquitoes. They probably felt it better to get stung once in the spring than all summer.

TINKERING

(By A. R. K.)

¶ My Uncle Jed was in today, and he limped badly in his way, I met him on the street; 'tis stomach and his liver's good, but he don't feel like how he should, the trouble's in his feet.

¶ Jed's always working on himself, although he's never had poor health, he's sound in wind and bone; I think he'd be a happy man, if he would take some other plan, and leave himself alone.

¶ Jed takes an awful lot of pills, each time he thinks he feels the chills, big pills they are and red; at night he up and takes some more, I've seen him sink down three or four, before he goes to bed.

¶ The hired man mixed some ointment up, to cure the mange upon the pup, and it was powerful too; and he told Jed 'twas good for corns, or keeping cows from growing horns, beats all what it would do.

¶ Jed thought a corn was coming on, he'd fight it quick with something strong, he'd make the corn afraid; and so he plastered up his toes, he'd put an end to all his woes, with stuff the hired man made.

¶ Jed said his feet have blisters bad, was worse than any corns he had, the stuff sunk to the bone; Jed's constitution is quite good, he'd be all right if now he would—just leave himself alone.

Real Test Ahead For Jap Forces

(New York Herald-Tribune)

THE DEADLOCK in the Chino-Japanese conflict in southern Shantung has been broken. The Chinese and not the Japanese, who were promising two weeks ago to round up 100,000 of Chiang Kai-shek's warriors, have broken it. All war-time propagandists exaggerate, and there is no reason to suppose that the Chinese Army's spokesmen are exceptions. But if the Japanese Army's losses of ground, men and equipment are only a quarter of what the Chinese say they are, the loss of "face" involved both in China and at home will be staggering. No true account of what has happened will be published in Japan, but soldiers invalided home will spread the tale and enlarge on the prowess of the Chinese to justify their own army's failure. The peasant population's dwindling enthusiasm for this war will not be heightened by such news, for to them a fight to the bitter end, in the face of such resistance, will mean unbearable taxation.

In China the poor old political discards whom Japan has employed to set up puppet governments in Peiping and Nanking will be shaking in their shoes and will be whispering disloyal comments on their alien masters to one another, which their secretaries and servants will put in circulation throughout the occupied areas, thereby inspiring much insubordination and sabotage.

Of the effect of its defeats upon the morale of the Japanese Army, we know nothing, except that that morale has most of its roots in discipline and that every Japanese officer is schooled from infancy in the belief that death is preferable to either retreat or surrender. The Japanese units that retreated from the hot spots in which the collapse of their communications left them have therefore broken with both tradition and discipline. It is not likely that the divisions which have given ground to the Chinese can now be trusted to hold exposed positions. So the 50,000 men who are said to rushing southward from Manchuria and Jehol to sweep the guerillas out of the Tientsin-Pukow Railway zone and to recover the offensive against Suchow may be reckoned replacements rather than reinforcements. At the first onslaught at least they ought to be a very effective force. In the northeast they have never met competently led Chinese regulars or any but small isolated guerilla bodies; so experience has seasoned them in arrogance. It is their job, as they have undoubtedly been told, to re-establish their Emperor's and their army's prestige among the despised Chinese, and also to convince the military observers of a dozen Occidental nations that Japan is not really a third-class military power.

To achieve these ends they have to do their work quickly and brilliantly. The moral odds against them, as they push deep into densely populated country that will now be gleefully instead of gloomily hostile to them, are very heavy indeed. And if Chiang Kai-shek can halt them Japan's chances of flailing China into a meekly "co-operative" temper are remote. Japan has not much more weight to put behind this campaign. She has a lot more reservists, but events seem to have shown that reservist does not have his heart in the job. She has a lot more young and zealous troops in Manchuria; but that is her buffer against Red Mongolia and against the Soviet Union's Far Eastern army. The most desperate Japanese military proponent of this adventure in China would rather pull out of it altogether than strip Manchuria of its defenses. There is every reason, therefore, for the Chinese to expect that the next Japanese drive southward will come upon them with a terrific impact. They will have to deal with a Japanese army that is breathing hard, for it is no longer fighting so much for China's conquest as for its own survival as a Japanese political institution.

To The Editor

DOG CATCHER

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Now that a new dog catcher has been appointed I would like to know why it was that no announcement was made that the position was open or to be filled. Why is it that those who might have been anxious to apply for the position were not given a chance to do so? Is that the way all the business of the city is run? I am quite sure if all the facts were made known they would make interesting reading matter.

If the Humane Society is going to handle the business will they accept the burden of the cost and not expect the taxpayers to foot the bill? Will the society see to it that the by-law is made to apply just the same in the west end of the city as in the other sections? Is the Humane Society willing to regard the dog catcher appointed by council as a police officer or does it think such business should be supervised by the chief of police where such work logically belongs.

FRED DAINTON.

Peterborough April 19.

WITH TEASPOONS.

SEVERAL YEARS ago many of our national and state leaders who should have known better thought it would be possible to solve the unemployment problem by refusing to make use of labor-saving machinery. They put thousands of men back to work with hand tools, with which most of them were most inefficient.

One of the advocates of old time methods looked at a modern machine which was digging a great trench at a rapid rate.

"How many men with shovels does that machine replace?" he asked the contractor.

"One hundred," was the reply.

"Why don't you junk that machine and put one hundred men with shovels into that trench?" asked the bright, modern thinker.

"I can think of a better one than that," said the contractor. "What's the matter with ten thousand men with teaspoons?"

Canada Needs British Market

(Letter in The Farmer's Advocate

YOU ARE QUITE right in saying that the Canadian farmer must make up his mind whether he wants the British bacon market or not. With European farmers ready and anxious to supply the British with the kind of bacon they want when they want it, we cannot expect to send them 70 per cent. of our quota with the bulk of it in one part of the year and the quality very irregular.

Some may say we don't want the market as it is too much of a gamble. Tell me anything in the agricultural line that isn't a gamble. We must gamble somewhere since we cannot all go on relief, and we must have a market at some price for what we grow. The fact that European farmers want that bacon market so badly shows that it is a better gamble than some.

The best Canadian hogs make just as good bacon and as cheaply as the Danish hogs, and the best Canadian farmers can feed as efficiently as the Danes. We have only to raise our average to the standard of our present best. The Danes reached their present high standard by careful selection of breeding stock and careful study of feeding in a comparatively short time, and we can do the same.

Proper weight hogs are very important and very easy to supply, yet little attention is paid to this phase. The policy of the packers leads one to believe that they prefer light hogs as an alibi for low prices rather than to co-operate with the farmers in eliminating them. Higher prices for proper weight hogs and lower prices for off-weights would soon take effect though refusal of off-weights would be even more effective.

If the packers would stop the minor fluctuations in price which occur without real cause, it would encourage proper finishing of hogs. With price varying so much, the farmer who makes a practice of marketing his hogs at correct weight, regardless of market conditions, often gets stung as we learned to our sorrow. Frequently hogs sold at a cut as lights will bring a higher price than the same hogs fed longer and finished, because the packers are bearing down on hogs. At other times hogs could be held an sold as heavies at a better price because of a sudden rise. Steadier prices would encourage proper weights.

There are a few simple things which packers could do to improve the quality of our bacon. They could find out how to remove the shoulder bone from Wiltshire sides correctly and how to prevent such rapid discolouration of our bacon after cutting. They could grade sides more accurately and brand the grade on the sides to prevent substitution after the packages are broken. They could also ship more Wiltshire sides and less box-cuts.

It is impossible for the packers or the government to guarantee a fixed price for bacon. Neither can the packers avoid a fall drop in price unless we avoid a heavy run of hogs and make our supply regular throughout the year. Fall hogs are not much more expensive to raise than spring ones. In fact the Lennoxville Experimental Farm has made pork from both spring and fall litters at only a fraction of a cent difference in cost with the advantage going to the fall litters.

We do want the British market, and we must take the trouble to keep it as long as other countries want it.

Man Admires His Wheelbarrow

(B. H. in Victoria Times)

THE GREAT wheelbarrow controversy of 1938, well launched some weeks ago, still surges on.

From Milnes Landing, from Mr. B. P. Johnson, came the most moving eulogy of the old-fashioned wheelbarrow. Mr. Johnson is a true-blue Tory when it comes to wheelbarrows. He protests against the horrid cult of rubber-wheeled wheelbarrows started by a retired Victoria judge.

"A good practical trundler," says Mr. Johnson, "would not touch the contraption. Let ladies and retired office men backslide as they will." Mr. Johnson would not even allow paint on a wheelbarrow, which, he says, is like icing on a cake, designed to conceal the flaws. Instead, Mr. Johnson has a home-made wheelbarrow, beautifully hand carved, with handles cut out of our native fir and "you would rejoice to see how the weight comes over the wheel, and on hearing it in action, with your eyes shut, you would say, 'This is a wheelbarrow'."

There is something Shakespearean about this eulogy of the wheelbarrow. And lest the whole fraternity of gardeners be split in twain, in warring factions between red and blue wheelbarrows, Mr. Johnson denounces painted wheelbarrows altogether and calls for the home-made, unblemished, unpainted article, the Milnes Landing variety, in all its virginal glory.

NUMBERS BEST.

(Toronto Telegram)

ASIDE ALTOGETHER from the color combination, "of motor markers) which is indefensible, the present combination of letters and figures is bad. There are considerably less than a million automobiles in the Province of Ontario and it is quite unnecessary to use anything but figures on the license plates. The idea that five characters, one or two of which are letters, are easier to read and remember than two triads of figures is a delusion which any person can demonstrate to his own satisfaction after a test. The figures 117-826 are more easily read and remembered than such a combination as 4A762. It is surprising how many people are not sure of the license number of their own car. They probably remember part of it quite distinctly, which in the majority of cases is sufficient for identification. A combination of letters and figures is difficult to read quickly. Everybody is trained from earliest youth to read numbers.

YE ED IS SKEPTICAL.

(Windsor Star)

EVERY TIME we see a news item like yesterday's — "No drinking, no smoking, three meals a day and plenty of hard work form the recipe for long life, according to Napoleon Reed, one of the pioneers of the Fergus district, aged 93"—we don't believe it. It's automatic. Not that we're a skeptic, in Mr. Reed's particular case. Far from it. We never heard of him before. But we are a skeptic in all such cases.

Mainly because such recipes don't mean a thing. Thomas A. Edison chewed tobacco consistently. He smoked plenty of big black cigars—11 or 12 a day. He drank strong coffee. He slept only three or four hours out of the standard 24. He took absolutely no "exercise" whatever. And yet, we are sorry to say—for the other side of the argument—he lived to the more or less ripe old age of 84.

A Bit of Nonsense

LET HIM WORRY

An interest-bearing debt is different, and usury comes almost to justify itself on the item of worry alone. A Kansas City man visited his creditor the other day, and said: "Are you worried about whether I can meet my note next month?"

"Yes, I am," confessed the creditor.

"Good," said the client. "That's what I'm paying you six per cent. for."

A DIFFERENCE OF BACKGROUND

(Sault Daily Star)

It is hinted that Premier Chamberlain who comes from "trade," might not altogether regret Mr. Eden's retirement. The latter was born rich and with "influence" that boosted him along in politics. Experience in business he lacks and this is said to have been a factor in his recent bad luck.

A Bible Message For To-day . . .

THE FORMER treatise have I made, O Theophilus of all that Jesus began both to do and teach, until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghost had given commandments unto the apostles whom he had chosen: to whom also he shewed himself alive after his passion by many infallible proofs, being seen of them forty days, and speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God. . . . When they therefore were come together, they asked him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom of Israel? And he said unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power. But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you: and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judaea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.—Acts 1: 1-3, 6-8.

Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time.—I Pet. 1: 3-5.

HOW LONG MUST WE WAIT?

Public Health Nurse Reports On Typical Cases Handled

366 Visits Made During March In Regard To Communicable Diseases

Typical cases of the kind that come under her attention regularly are mentioned in the monthly report presented to the Board of Health by Zeta Kearney, the city's public health nurse.

Miss Kearney reports having made 366 visits during March in regard to communicable diseases, 35 other calls in regard to health supervision, twenty visits to tuberculosis families and 69 visits to tuberculosis cases and contacts. Two new cases were reported during the month. There were two chest clinic held in March.

Typical cases under supervision were mentioned by Miss Kearney as follows:

Case 1: Dr. Brink, Division of Tuberculosis, Provincial Department of Health, Toronto, notified the Local Board of Health that a young Bowmanville woman, after being discharged from Sanatorium last May, came to live with a woman friend in the city. Your nurse tried to contact this person but found the woman friend had been boarding and had moved. Later, the factory was contacted where the one woman worked. The report received stated the woman were living in a trailer at Nassau. I called on them. Each was given an appointment to attend the travelling diagnostic chest clinic. The clinic reported the ex-sanatorium patient was again showing a positive sputum. Another call was made to advise them of the clinic findings and that sanatorium care was advised. This advice met with strong disapproval. Early in December they abandoned the trailer to move into the city. It was felt that before the young woman had formed her three months' residency, she should be persuaded to return to the sanatorium. We arranged finally for the young woman to leave and notified Dr. Brink that she was not to be charged back to Peterborough.

Case 2: Dr. Brink notified the Local Board of Health a Peterborough patient X-rayed in Toronto in January showed a tuberculous spine. Your nurse upon calling found this case had been working in the north and after a diagnosis was made in February, 1937, of a tuberculous spine, came to Peterborough to receive bed rest at home. In the year's time a local doctor had not been called in attendance. We arranged for the contacts to be examined at the next travelling chest clinic.

Case 3: Dr. Brink notified the Local Board of Health a Peterborough case was in a Toronto hospital. The diagnosis made was pulmonary tuberculosis and tuberculosis of the bone. We are trying to arrange for this person to receive care in Weston Sanatorium.

Case 4: A North Monaghan township woman with active pulmonary tuberculosis moved into the City of Peterborough in January. She rented rooms from a party who has a number of small children. We are trying to get this woman to move before she endangers the health of the young children and also becomes a financial burden to the City.

Case 5: Your nurse has made several calls to try and clinch arrangements for a maximum benefit sanatorium tuberculous case to return to the city and continue receiving pneumothorax treatments here. The sanatorium wishes to discharge this patient after forty-four months' treatment. The family are hesitant about having the patient return.

The funeral of A. B. Northey, 84, who died on April 10 on his farm on the 16th Concession of Smith, took place on Tuesday, April 12 with a service from Wesley church.

Pall bearers at the funeral were all grandsons of the late Mr. Northey. They were Elwood Northey, Earl Northey, Alex Kennedy, all of Peterborough; Harry Northey of Toronto; Alan Northey of Smith; Ralph Garbutt of Hall's Bridge.

Mr. Northey is survived by his wife, formerly Annie Lane; three sons, John and Cecil of Smith, and Wilson of Peterborough; and one daughter, Mrs. Chris Kennedy, of Peterborough.

MISS MARGARET FITZPATRICK
(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOURO, April 20. — Miss Margaret Fitzpatrcik, an aged resident, passed away on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Edmund Allen, with whom she had made her home for the past few months. Deceased had reached the age of 86, but has been in failing health for the past two years. She was the daughter of the late Phillip Fitzpatrick and Elizabeth Christie. There were eleven children, of whom only one is now living, Phillip, who resides in Minnesota.

Miss Fitzpatrick had spent her entire life in Dummer, where she was born, and in Douro. Two of her sisters, Sister St. Robert and Sister St. Phillip, were members of the Congregation Order of Nuns and are buried at famed Ville Marie in Montreal. Her uncle, Charles Fitzpatrick, was a weaver in early days.

The funeral was held on Saturday morning from Mrs. Allen's home to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery. Rev. J. J. McCarthy conducted the funeral services and preached the sermon. The funeral Requiem Mass took place on Monday morning.

Pall-bearers were: William Quinlan, P. G. Towns, James Walsh, William J. McManus, Michael Torpey, and Patrick Crowley, Asphodel.

Among those from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Neil Quinlan and sons, Dummer, Mr. and Mrs. John Fitzpatrick and family, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Fitzpatrick and family, and Phillip Fitzpatrick, Asphodel, Mrs. E. White and Mrs. Grey, Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. John Torpey of Otonabee, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Crowley, Asphodel.

MRS. JANE O'NEILL
(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 20—The death occurred in St. Joseph's Hospital, Sudbury on Sunday of Mrs. Jane O'Neill, widow of the late Thomas J. O'Neill. The late Mrs. O'Neill who was in her seventy-second year, was only ill a few days before her end came. She was born in Keene and the greater part of her life was spent in Hastings. On the death of her husband in 1925, she came to Marmora. About a year ago she went to reside at Copper Cliff with her daughter, Mrs. Charles O'Connor.

The deceased lady was of a most kindly disposition and was highly respected. Her sudden demise has occasioned a deep sorrow to a host of friends and neighbors. She leaves to mourn her loss, one son, Joseph, Marmora and one daughter, Mrs. Charles O'Connor, Copper Cliff. She is also survived by two brothers and two sisters, Michael Keneally, Keene; Patrick Keneally, Toronto; Mrs. George Legrow, Stirling and Mrs. Barnes, Millbrook.

The funeral was held from the residence of her son Joseph on Wednesday, Requiem Mass being sung at nine o'clock by Rev. Father J. J. Kelly with interment in Hastings.

DOG BITES FOUR

PHILADELPHIA, April 20.—(AP).—A large dog last night bit four persons and terrorized the downtown section before it was cornered and killed by police.

DIVIDED LABORITE VIEWS MAY SPLIT BRITISH PARTY UP

LONDON, April 20.—(CP Cable.)—A far-reaching rift within the political ranks of the British labor movement and evolution of a new "progressive" alliance were seen by the Liberal press to-day as the inevitable sequel to the clashing views of the Cooperative Party and the Socialists on the question of a popular front.

The Sopoeratives, who have been the political allies of the Socialists for years, brought the issue boldly to the fore at their week-end conference by declaring in favor of an all-embracing mobilization of progressive forces in direct defiance of the recent edict of the National Labor Party denouncing the popular front idea.

The Manchester Guardian chides the National executive of the Socialists for discourging outside support and declares a movement is growing in the country against the government and its foreign policy far more powerful than anything the Labor party has been able to arouse.

"The Labor party is developing genius for political ineptitude," the Guardian declared. "If it will not give a lead, it might at least be ready to follow."

The Daily Express, usually progovernment, describes as "sheer bunk" Labor's boast it is quite competent to win the next election by its own unaided efforts.

Declaring feeble opposition at the present time in a democratic state to be a special danger, the Express says "it would be good for Britain and for the form of British government if the parties of the Left here were joined in a compact and well-defined alliance."

LAY AWAKE IN AGONY WITH NEURITIS

Kruschen Salts Brought Lasting Relief

Ordinary headaches are bad enough but they are as nothing compared to the awful pains of neuritis in the head, says this woman. Read how Kruschen completely banished the pain:—

"I had neuritis in the head and right arm. I suffered untold agony with my head, and I dare not think what might have happened had it continued. Everybody knows what a headache is like, but it is as nothing compared with the awful pain of neuritis in the head. I spent sleepless nights tossing with pain. I began taking Kruschen Salts, and after some months of the treatment I have effected lasting relief." — (Mrs.) L. M.

Neuritis, like rheumatism and sciatica, frequently has its roots in intestinal stasis (delay) — the unsuspected accumulation in the system of harmful waste matter, which leads to the formation of excess uric acid.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients of Kruschen assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels. Advt.

PICK FOR YOURSELF

WINDSOR, Ont., April 20 (C.P.).—A student should choose his own profession, and not rely on the judgment of his parents, Magistrate Arthur Hanrahan of Windsor told graduates of the Arts course at Assumption College at the annual banquet sponsored by the Students' Administrative Council last night.

"Many of you have obstacles, but those obsatcles can be overcome if you are determined to go ahead," he said. "You have started on a broad foundation through your college training—a foundation on which you can build as large an edifice as you desire."

SAYS DALE CARNEGIE

Author of the famous book: "HOW TO WIN FRIENDS AND INFLUENCE PEOPLE"

● "Shakespeare said: 'Assume a virtue if you have it not.' And I might add: Assume the other person has the virtues you would like him—or her—to possess.

"In other words, act as though you knew that particular trait were one of his outstanding characteristics."

● "A friend of mine who had hired a new servant girl learned afterwards from her former employer that she was honest and a good cook but had never kept the house clean.

P.C.I. BEATEN 25-17 IN ONTARIO BASKETBALL SEMI-FINALS

Poor Marksmanship Mars Win Chances For Local Quintet

Foster, Petes' Forward, Gets Seven Points To Lead His team's Scorers

TORONTO, April 20 (CP)—Two powerful basketball teams prepared today to battle for the Ontario secondary schools senior championship following easy semi-final victories here last night.

Windsor Kennedy Collegiate eliminated Niagara Falls C.I. 32-21 to enter the final with Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa. Glebe defeated Peterborough 25-17 in a rough, fast preliminary game.

Both winning teams displayed a smooth passing attack and effective marksmanship near the basket. Windsor was particularly good on long range offensives, while Glebe's triumph was sparked by brilliant play of centre Eddie Flowers who counted 13 points.

Doug Scaife, Windsor forward, starred with five field goals for 10 points, while Tony Golab, right guard, was close behind with nine on four baskets and a free shot. Leading Niagara scorer was centre Rod Turner with seven points.

Niagara Falls showed the effects of a long layoff in poor ball handling. Windsor held them scoreless during much of the first half, chalking up 13 points meanwile. But Niagara rallied and at half time was trailing 14-6.

The Niagara rally was short-lived, Windsor consolidating their lead to 22-8 at the three-quarter mark. During the final half Niagara lost opportunities to count on free shots, clicking on seven of a possible 17.

Poor Marksmanship Counts

Poor marksmanship also counted against Peterborough in the other game, when they scored only 3 of a possible 14 free shots. Foster, Peterborough forward, was highest scorer for his team, counting seven points on three baskets and a foul shot.

The rugged play of Peterborough told in the first quarter when they led 9-7, but Ottawa's better passing plays gave them an 11-9 edge at half time. They increased their lead to 15-10 at three-quarter time, finishing well in front.

Marathon Winner

Here is Leslie Pawson, Pawtucket, R.I. marathoner, and holder of the record for the classic Boston marathon, as he was decorated for his great win in 1933. This year he repeated his triumph after a thrilling duel over the 26 miles course against Boston's Johnny Kelley, a former winner. Kelley faded in the last two miles behind Pawson. Pawson's mark was minutes lower than his 1933 record.

BOBBY PORTER'S .368 BAT TOPS LEAFS' OFFENSE

JERSEY CITY, N.J., April 20. — Not even so much as a bruise marred the physical setup of the Maple Leafs, as Dan Howley's entry in the International League pennant derby arrived in the stronghold of Travis Jackson's Jersey City Giants to await Thursday's opening battle.

There wasn't a player on the squad who wasn't awaiting the starting gong impatiently and Howley decided that a day of rest would benefit them more than a workout. He'll send them through a light practice session to-day.

Strangely enough, the Leafs, who have been counting on airtight pitching backed up by a strong defense to shoulder their burden during the coming campaign, face the barrier with six potential .300 hitters in the lineup. During their 18-game exhibition schedule, Bobby Porter, Joe Gantenbein, Mayo Smith, Bill Urbanski, Flea Clifton and Frank Reiber all finished in the charmed circle, in that order.

Porter's .368 topped everybody, while Clifton squeezed in by three points. However, that doesn't mean a thing because with all those presumed slugers in the line-up, the Leafs won only seven of eighteen games, exhibition tests.

MORGAN BEATS SIXTO ESCOBAR

DETROIT, April 20.—Kayo Morgan, of Detroit, decisively outpointed world bantamweight champion Sixto Escobar of Puerto Rico last night in a ten-round non-title fight at Olympia Arena.

Morgan received the unanimous decision of both ringside judges and Referee Slim McClelland. The Michigan boy carried the fight to the Islander from start to finish and rocked him with a hard left to the jaw in the ninth.

Escobar's performance was puzzling. He appeared to be holding back, and not once did he drive into Morgan in the style that won him the bantam crown from Harry Jeffra in February.

TRUCK STRIKE ENDS

ROCHESTER, N.Y., April 20 (AP) —Rochester merchants were assured supplies of fresh fruit and vegetables to-day when produce dealers and union truck drivers ended a four-day strike.

With about 100 produce truck drivers returning to work as soon as possible, fresh fruits and vegetables which have been standing on railroad sidings since the strike was called Friday midnight will be freed.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

SOME NIGHTS it comes up nothing at this time of year, but last evening it came up two assignments—a bowling banquet and a girls' softball meeting. So it came about that we took in the girls' softball meeting. Which was held at 7.50 in Duffus', being only 20 minutes late in starting. And it ended within an hour on account of there was a junior hockey playoff on the radio and President Ev. Thomas is a hurry-up efficient guy, but especially because there was a radio hockey game—which the prexy wished most sincerely to hear. There was a sizeable number of beautiful blondes and brunettes aboard and it was pleasant sailing. And they get quite busy at this meeting and clean up considerable organization work. Give a listen.

* * * * * *

FOR A list of the new ossifers, just look up the files of last year or the year before. Ev. Thomas jogs back in a canter as president—and a popular one. Gladys Mortimer returns as the efficient secretary-treasurer. There is no vice-president on account of girls' softball presidents never die. The executive again is the managers of the various clubs. Applicants for groundkeepers, score-boys and guessers—er, that is umpires, are to drop a line to the secretary at 551 Weller Street. Games at the Bowl will be Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays—the men having it the other evenings.

* * * * * *

THERE WERE only about three motions made—aside from those of ye chairman, who kept twitching in his chair and mauling the old timepiece!—and they weren't headline hitters. One was to have Gladys Mortimer represent the circuit at the P.W.S.U. session in Toronto this weekend. Another voted in Lindsay, which was an automatic gesture by that time. And one ruled that umps in the sectional playoffs ought to get a buck each. Which is okay with us, they should get a buck or a brick apiece at these tussles, depending on how many they miss. A guy named Stevenson will manage the Scugog squad. He was on deck to enter the team, if they got a few matters arranged right, and he brought most of his team along as a bodyguard or maybe only as witnesses. And if they are as good as they look on the abbreviated diamond we can predict nothing better than a prolonged managerial headache for Ab Delahaye of Westclox, Ivan Fletcher of Keene and Frank Woods of C.G.E. Those are the four teams which'll make up the loop.

* * * * * *

ASIDE FROM the writer and the secretary, the gathering seemed in an awful hurry to close entries. We suggested leaving 'em open for a week in case Cobourg, Port Hope or Omemee wanted in. But nope, they closed the case up tight last night at four teams to the loop. We have seen the seasons when this league postponed the closing date for entries time and again in an effort to get all the teams available in. But now it is, as Java Joe would say, a case of "a surplice of perspective empties which cannot be considered." Since the schedule opens so soon—around May 24th. Though, in fairness to the meeting, Lindsay said they couldn't travel to Cobourg. In fact, Lindsay and Keene agreed to play their games at the Bowl. And tilts in which Lindsay figure will start at 6.15 in Scugogville, standard time, and 7.30, daylight saving, here.

* * * * * *

HOWEVER, LET us finish this up. Prospects sometimes in the loop of the fair-and-dark sex are blacker than a foot up a stove pipe, but this year they seem rosier than a youth's hide after a hard rubdown. They have a balance of over 70 bucks and should pick up quite a few nickels—and buttons—when the coffee jug goes the rounds over at the Bowl this summer. With so many layoffs around town lately, though—podden, it's a recession, not a depression—buttons may become legal tender. But the gals' games will still prove popular, for those who like softball and for those who admire the femmes. Many o fthe latter will again limp over the bridge on canes but stride briskly home with canes under arms! Other dope on this meeting is in elsewhere.

* * * * * *

UP AT Hart House in Toronto yesterday, two of the final four clubs in Ontario secondary schools senior boys' basketball reached the end of their trails. Windsor wiped out Niagara Falls by a 32-21 score whilst Ottawa ousted P.C.I. by a 25-17 count. These survivors clash today in the sudden-death Provincial final. Coach Bamforth's local Collegians rallied strongly in the second half of their struggle to extend the Ottawa outfit to the limit before bowing out. A guy named Flowers proved no pansy for the winner, as he notched 13 points on his shooting arm. Foster led the locals with seven and Turner got five. We are just a bit puzzled how Niagara Falls instead of Toronto was drawn against P.C.I., as the Peterborough players eliminated the Falls several weeks ago to take the C.O.S.S.A. crown

* * * * * *

SQUAD LEADER Tommy Lawrence of the Trenton fliers took in the intermediate ball meeting in Belleville the other eve, chiefly for the purpose of saying this writer and the Quinte columnist were nuts to state he was uninterested in baseball He said: "At the Airport we are interested in all lines of sports and we are willing to assist you even if we do not affiliate with your league this year. Any ball player at the Airport is available if we do not have a club." We are tickled to a quiver if Lawrence really gets the baseball bug—a most virulent germ which makes folk do such odd things as memorize the 1931 batting averages of a club away off in Knoxville, Tennessee, for instance!—but it seems the Fliers are leaning a bit toward intermediate instead of senior company. At that, we are glad to see intermediate ball around the Bay of Quinte sector on the uptrend.

* * * * * *

TOUGH LUCK to the Oshawa Generals but they were well beaten in Toronto last p.m., 7 to 1, in the deciding game of the Memorial Cup series. The Oshawa outfit did okay and deserve much credit, even if they don't get those cars as indivdual presents. They drew an all-time Canadian hockey record crowd—for pro and amachoor—when 15,617 jammed into the Gardens. Back in '26, London and the Petes in a senior playoff drew the record Canadian crowd, up to that time, but we dunno the figures. We are curious to know what split, if any, the clubs get in Memorial Cup finals—no one seems to be positive on that point. Maybe Scribe Campbell of Oshawa would inform us.

* * * * * *

GRAB-BAG: Westclox gal softballers will have a few new faces in the lineup this year . . . . Jean Hickson, former Omemee twirler, will be with Lindsay this semester . . . . And Frank Woods replaces Fred Martin as manager of the C.G.E. damsels . . . . Folks shouldn't laugh too much at garbled talk by Java Joe—we all do it sometimes; even Ted Reeve, smart Tely columnist, recently called Roy Covert of Oshawa, ex-local puckist, Ray Colvert!...The Kingston Ponies started outdoor workouts last night, Bob Elliott being in charge . . . . Local ballsters have an indoor drill tomorrow eve at 8.15 in the "Y" . . . . Merchants' Bowling League held a good banquet last p.m. at the Mayfair . . . . Brinton bowlers have a spread tomorrow night at the Elite . . . . But three of Chuck Dorrington's team, the Young Petes, of last year are over the junior age limit now . . . . Lot of local fans motored to Toronto yestiddy to be in at the finish of hockey in Ontario for this season . . . POME: They pack the stands a-roarin; they scale the fence in rags—O, all the nuts at ball games don't come in paper bags!

Iron-Man Medwick Misses First Game

ST. LOUIS, April 20 — The "iron-man" career of Joseph (Ducky) Medwick, slugging star of the St. Louis Cardinals and major league batting champion of last year, was halted by a sprained back that kept him on the bench throughout Tuesday's opening game with the Pittsburg Pirates.

Medwick already had set a new National League record for consecutive games played at 485 games. Today's contest was the first he has missed since September 10, 1934.

FOUR TEAMS ENTER GIRLS' SOFTBALL

Ev. Thomas was returned as president of the Girls' Softball League at the annual re-organization meeting held in Duffus'. There was a good attendance, over half the gathering being girls. Gladys Mortimer was unanimously re-elected secretary-treasurer and delegated to attend the Provincial Women's Softball Union in Toronto on Sunday. The loop will again affiliate with this Union. Managers of clubs make up the executive. There were four entries, Keene, Lindsay, C.G.E. and Westclox. Lindsay came in on the understanding games in Lindsay would start at 6.15, standard time, and in Peterborough at 7.30 daylight saving time. Keene-Lindsay games will be played at the local Bowl Entries were closed at this meeting, and the schedule will be drawn up shortly. It will be a double schedule in the first half, starting around May 24th. First two teams at the end have a two-in-three playoff series, and sectional winners play three out of five.

It was decided to again advertise for umpires, a groundskeeper and a score-boy. Games at the Bowl will be Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. League rulings on umpires and gate receipts were explained to the Lindsay delegate. The latter and the Keene manager favored two Peterborough umpires.

A bank balance of $72.90 was reported. It was moved that umpires be paid a dollar apiece for sectional playoffs, final playoffs being covered by the P.W.S.U. rules. During scheduled games the home club gets two-thirds of the gate receipts, after expenses, with the league getting the other third. The home club supplies the balls. After the various managers had expressed their wishes regarding days for games, the president was instructed to draw up the schedule for the first half and submit it to the clubs. It was felt that, unless something unexpected came up in the meantime, another meeting before play started would be unnecessary. The session then adjourned.

BOSTON, April 20—(AP)—The Methuselah of marathon 85-year-old Peter W. Foley of Winchester, Mass., whose wife didn't know he was running, "although she was suspicious," yesterday completed the 26-mile 385-yard Boston Marathon distance, "just to show 'em there's life in the old dogs yet."

The thousands that lined "Bunion Trail" paid tribute to the ancient marathoner as he loped along smoothly.

"I'm not surprised I finished the entire court in shortly more than 4½ hours," he told admirers while dressing. "I waited and trained all winter for this event."

Foley started running marathons at the age of 50. He ran about 25 o them—"and finished." Last year he went 18 miles.

Foley, who was barred from competitive running a few years ago because of his age, customarily starts two hours before the pack with his son, Leonard, accompanying him in an automobile.

"But this year I ran free from all family interference," he said. "Last year my son didn't want me to continue after 18 miles."

Merchants' League Ends Good Season

Harold Freeman was elected president of the Merchants Bowling League for the 1938-39 season last night at the annual banquet of the circuit held in the Mayfair Restaurant. Joe Anthony was named vice-president, and Tony DeNoble the secretary-treasurer. The committee will consist of Ken Lee, Jerry Whaley and Curly Donoghue.

The third yearly banquet of this league saw about a hundred ladies and men sit down to an enjoyable repast, which was followed by dancing and singing. There were 16 teams in the league this year, bowling each week at Duffus' through out the winter. A successful season was enjoyed by the downtown trundlers over a period of several months, and it was suitably terminated at last evening's big gathering.

The Merchants League shield was won by Dick Murray's team, consisting of Miss Hunt, Dick Murray, B. Lloyd, Tom O'Brien and Al Hunt. A team presentation was made to Miss Hunt. Ches. Grant made a presentation to Sid Towbridge of the F. & G. team. Mr. Towbridge being transferred from this city to Perth. He eventually found the present after wading through more boxes than the postal clerks see at Christmas. Harry Ranger, without aid of roller skates, gave great service to the assembly.

Chairman of the banquet was Harold Freeman, who briefly outlined the activity of the Merchants' League and had the guests introduce themselves. A press representative was decorated with an enormous badge so that guests might be duly warned to whom they were talking and govern themselves accordingly. To the swing of lively music and the shuffle of dancing feet, the occasion concluded on a happy note.

TRAIL'S COACH SEEKS CHANGE

CALGARY, April 20 (CP)—Dissatisfied with officiating in the Allan Cup hockey finals, Coach Elmer Piper of Train Smoke Eaters last night demanded a change of referees for remaining games of the best-of-five series.

Coach Piper, whose British Columbia champions were edged out, 2 to 1, by Cornwall Flyers in the third game last night after winning the first two, 6 to 4 and 8 to 2, sent a telegram to D. P. McDonald, President of the Alberta Hockey Association.

Mr. McDonald attended the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association annual meeting at Ottawa, and is expected to arrive in Calgary tomorrow morning from Winnipeg.

"I don't think the refereeing is up to Allan Cup standard," said Piper. "I do not want to make any specific complaints, but I do want a change."

ST. BONIFACE SEALS CAPTURE MEMORIAL CUP HOCKEY HONORS

Prairie Champions Defeat Oshawa Generals 7 To 1 Before Record Attendance

Stanowski And Reay Lead Westerners To Brilliant Title Victory

TORONTO, April 20 (CP).—St. Boniface Seals called it quits for the season today after reaching the goal aspired by all Canadian junior hockey teams—the Memorial Cup—before the largest crowd ever to witness a hockey game in the Dominion.

Seals reached the peak of their form here last night before 15,617 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens to trounce Oshawa Generals 7-1 in the fifth game of their best-of-five series for the Dominion title. Victory meant that the trophy, won last year by Winnipeg Monarchs, will rest in Manitoba for another year.

Seldom had the stage been set for such a dramatic final contest. For during the day, prior to the game, it was revealed an offer had been made by anonymous letter to Wally Stanowski and Billy Reay, St. Boniface stars, to "throw" the game. They answered the offer by playing standout games.

Fierce First Period Attack.

Victors 3-2 in the first game and 4-2 in the third contest, Generals were overwhelmed in the first period by a St. Boniface onslaught that brought three goals. From then on it was almost a matter of coasting home for the Seals, who won the second game 4-0 and the fourth tilt 6-4.

Sparkplug throughout the first four games for Generals, blond Billy Taylor was held in check almost completely during the final contest. As much as anything that accounted for the decisive way in which Seals outplayed their opponents. The best Taylor could do was supply a pass to Bill Daniels for the single Oshawa goal in the second period.

In the meantime, Seals rolled up two more goals in the second session to the trio scored in the opening period, and then came through with another two in the final period. Reay, Herb Burron and Hermie Gruhn accounted for two apiece while Bert Janke was responsible for the other.

Victory meant the 11th victory for Western Canada teams since the trophy was offered for competition, to nine for the East. The shift this year in the resting place of the trophy will only entail taking the trophy across the Red River from Winnipeg to St. Boniface.

Jockey Kurtsinger Optimistic Over His Suspension For May 30 Race

NEW YORK, April 20.—(AP). — Suspension of Jockey Charley Kurtsinger threatens to throw a mansized monkey wrench into two of racing's biggest events this spring but Kentucky Charley, the cause of it all, remained optimistic today.

The Brookmeade Stable, "Big Heat" Charley's contract employer, suspended him Monday and Hugh Fontaine, Brookmeade trainer, said he thought it would last for 30 days. This would bar the flying Dutchman from the Kentucky Derby in which he is scheduled to ride Hal Price Headley's Menow.

This does not agitate the gentlemen who work for the improvement of the breed half as much as the thought that Kurtsinger may not be able to ride War Admiral in the match race with Seabiscuit.

The race is for $100,000 at Belmont Park May 30. Charles S. Howard, Seabiscuit's owner, has stipulated that Jack (Red) Pollard, the Biscuit's pilot, must be on hand and there is nothing to prevent Sam Riddle from picking up his Admiral and going home if Kurtsinger doesn't get a leg up.

Kurtsinger, however, said he felt he would not be "grounded" for long. "I think the whole affair will be straightened out in a couple of days," he sad last night.

Kurtsinger hinted at grudges and kindred skullduggery. He said he did not believe his offense, running off to Keeneland to ride Menow Saturday when Brookmeade wanted him at Jamaica, worthy of such fuss.

OTTAWA CAGERS OUST WINDSOR

OTTAWA, April 20 (C.P.). — Ottawa Glebe Grads will meet Vancouver Westerns at Ottawa on Saturday in the first game of a best-of-five series for the Canadian senior basketball championship.

Grads won the right to meet Westerns last night by nosing out Windsor Moose Lodge 26-24 in the deciding game of a best-of-three series for the Eastern Canadian title, and Doug. Robertson, vice-president of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, announced in Montreal the dates of the final games.

As in previous series with Quebec and Maritime champions, the Ottawa team eliminated Windsor by the narrowest of margins. One point behind at the half-way mark, Grads went ahead and won the game after Windsor players missed a chance to tie the game by muffing two foul shots in a row in the last minute of play.

Grads lost the first game of the series to Windsor by three points, but came from behind to win the second 32-30.

Vancouver entered the Dominion finals by eliminating Winnipeg St. Andrew's in the Western semi-finals.

Second and third games of the Dominion finals will be played in Ottawa on April 25 and 26. If fourth and fifth games are necessary, they will be played in Ottawa on April 28 and 29.

200,000 FANS SEE OPENINGS IN MAJOR BALL

NEW YORK, April 20 (CP) — Ball-throwing presidents, governors and mayors were back at their appointed tasks today as 16 big league baseball clubs, through with opening day frills and folderols, settled down to rassle it out over the long 153 game stretch.

More than 200,000 fans witnessed yesterday's nine games, marking the general opening of the season after Monday previews at Boston and Washington. This included a banner turnout of 40,000 at the Polo Grounds in New York; 34,000 at Cincinnati and 33,000 for the afternoon half of the Patriot's Day doubleheader between New York Yankees and the Red Sox at Boston.

Two outstanding events pointed the gala occasion—the rip-roaring batting attack unveiled by New York Giants as they flattened Boston Bees 13-1, and the continued weak-hitting of the world champion Yankees, who collected a total of only seven hits in splitting with the Red Sox.

Get 16 Hits

The Giants, picked to fight it out in the National League with Chicago because of their pitching and tight defence, spilled 16 hits off three Boston pitchers, including three home runs, while Cliff Melton easily held the Bees.

On the other hand, the Yankees, famed for their power, won the morning game from Boston 5-3 on a pinch-hit by Red Ruffing in the last inning, but made only five hits. In the afternoon Jackie Wilson and Fritz Ostermueller blanked them 6-0 allowing the two-time champions only two scattered hits. Lou Gehrig and Bill Dickey went hitless for the day, and the anger of Owner Jacob Ruppert appeared to mount.

It blazed when he was informed that DiMaggio was willing to compromise on salary if the club would make the first move. "I should say not," he snapped.

About the only available consolation for Yankee followers was the fact the two clubs supposed to give them their competition, Detroit and Cleveland, also had headaches. Detroit dropped a tight one to Chicago White Sox 4-3 and St. Louis Browns spoiled Oscar Vitt's managerial debut at Cleveland by shellacking the great Johnny Allen 6-2.

Roxy Lawson was the losing Detroit pitcher, the Sox jumping on him for three runs in the fourth inning. One of the vital hits was by Joe Kuhel, Sox first sacker recently obtained from Washington.

In the other American League game, Washington Senators made it two straight over Philadelphia's Athletics 9-2 as Monte Weaver hurled six-hit ball.

Cubs Get 8-7 Win

Chicago Cubs, with their new $250,000 beauty, Dizzy Dean, lending encouragement, came through with a hard-earned 8-7 win over Cincinnati to keep pace with the Giants. Rip Collins, Cub first baseman, belted four of his team's 15 hits off three Red pitchers. Stanley Hack, Chicago third baseman, was spiked and retired in favor of Tony Lazzeri.

Owner Phil Wrigley of the Cubs was scheduled to learn how much pitcher he got for all that money today. Dean was Manager Charley Grimm's choice to go against Cincinnati's Lee Grissom in the second game of the series. Meantime, Dizzy's farmer mates, the Cardinals, started off by dropping their opener to Pittsburgh 4-3. Arky Vaughan's home run with one on in the ninth did the dirty work.

The revived Brooklyns made Larry MacPhail look good temporarily, at least, by walloping Philadelphia 12-5. Dolf Camilli hit one of the Dodgers' three home runs against his former comrades.

ABLE MANAGERS TO LEAD CLUBS IN MINOR RACE

NEW YORK, April 20 (AP).—The International Baseball League opens its 35th season tomorrow with bright prospects.

Three new, able and popular managers—Jim Bottomley at Syracuse, Johnny Neun at Newark and Steve O'Neill at Buffalo—join with Rabbit Maranville, Travis Jackson, Ray Blades, Dan Howley and Buck Crouse in making our leadership set-up one of the best in baseball. Each of these men has brought his squad to the wire in good condition, ready to give the fans the hustling type of game they like.

Quite a few new stars will be introduced. Newark has several young pitchers who should make good, and in shortstop Lou Blair and Catcher Clyde McCullough possesses a pair of youngsters destined to become stand-out major leaguers. Outfielder Charley Keller, greatest first-year man in minor league history, is even better than he was last year, when he helped the Bears to the pennant.

In George Kadis, Rabbit Maranville has a young left-hander who looks like a "natural." The Montreal infield will be one of the best in the league; their pitching is competent, and so is their catching. Maranville has just one real worry—his club is top-heavy in left-handed hitters.

Howley has added several established stars to his Toronto team—Jack Burns at first base, Flea Clifton at second and Bill Urbanski at short. Howley will start his kid outfield of Bob Porter, Mayo Smith and Fred Petoskey, and these youngsters will compare favorably with any other trio in the league in defensive ability. Dan is banking heavily on Walter Lanfranconi and Joe Mulligan, two young pitchers who performed sensationally in Florida.

Baltimore will start the season in better condition than last year. Nolen Richardson at shortstop and Frank McGowan in centre field have strengthened the Birds tremendously and they should be contenders from the start.

Rochester, when it receives several players promised by St. Louis Cardinals, should be a far better club than in 1937.

Bottomley, best-liked player ever to wear a Syracuse uniform, will play first base for the Chiefs. He has a young team, with particularly fine pitching.

O'Neill has mostly a hold-over team at Buffalo. The success of the Bisons will depend largely on whether the veterans have recaptured the form with which they won the pennant in 1936.

Jersey City will be a different team this year. Fred Lindstrom and Babe Herman will supply power that last year's team lacked.

TEST VETERAN GONE

HUNSTANTON, England—(CP). —E. F. S. Tylecote, who gained fame as a batsman and wicketkeeper 60 years ago and believed oldest test cricket player, died here aged 88. He played six times against Australia.

Children under 16 are not permitted in motion picture houses in Quebec.

ROLLS TO VICTORY

LONDON—(CP).— Jimmy Reed, one-mile professional roller skating champion, defeated Billy Lee, former titleholder, in two of a series of three half-mile races at Alexandra Palace rink.

The Examiner BULLETIN BOARD

Sergeant Geoffrey H. Keats-Hughes was killed yesterday when the Royal Air Force plane he was piloting plunged into the English Channel off Portsmouth.

According to Sir James Leigh-Wood, chairman of the British Empire Games Federation, continuation of the Sino-Japanese war might mean the cancellation of the 1940 Olympic Games scheduled for Tokyo in 1940.

Noel Sirois, former Quebec provincial traffic officer, went on trial at Montreal yesterday, on charges of automobile theft and receiving stolen goods.

Henri Marin, Montreal restaurant proprietor, was fined $25 and costs yesterday for keeping an electric pin game. It was claimed by the defence that the machine was a game of skill.

Saved By Dog

The barking of her pet dog saved the life of Cathleen Hipp, New York music teacher. Neighbors investigated and found the woman unconscious with three gas jets open.

W. E. Lawton, a Saint John, N.B., real estate broker, was awarded $1 damages in a slander action against Philip Goldstein, a tailor.

Leaving behind an unpaid hotel bill and a deed to a cemetery lot, Thais Giroux, blonde bubble-and-fan dancer, plunged nude to her death from a fifth-floor New York hotel room.

Toronto police have refused to allow either a wedding or a shaving performance to take place in the lion's den at the Fire Fighters' circus in that city.

Boy Is Injured

Donald Steepe, 10-year-old son of a London post office employee, was badly hurt when he darted across the Windsor highway six miles from London and was knocked down by a Michigan car.

Donald McKellar, 11 years old, has survived a 250-foot plunge from the summit of Mount McKay near Fort William. He is declared not to be in a serious condition unless complications set in.

Two men were killed and nine women injured at Glasgow, Scotland, by a boiler explosion in a steam laundry.

Persons advocating the overthrow of the American system of government by force or violence would be barred from voting under a proposal to come before the New York State constitutional convention.

Badly Burned

Thomas Wiginton, Birch Cliff, was badly burned on the hands and face yesterday when gasoline in a blow-torch he was using splashed on his clothing and ignited.

Chorley Park will not be disposed of, Premier Hepburn says, until all persons interested have had an opportunity to bid for the property.

G. Val Marshall of Vancouver, 27-years-old threw himself in front of a 14-ton steam roller and was badly crushed; he died in hospital five hours later.

King Carol of Rumania, according to a story from London, is suffering from influenza, and is confined to bed.

There's a Good Reason You're Constipated!

When there's something wrong with you, the first rule is: get at the cause. If you are constipated, don't fiddle around with make-shift remedies. Find out what's giving you the trouble!

Chances are it's simple if you eat only what most people do: meat, bread, potatoes. It's likely you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If that fits you, your ticket is a crisp crunchy breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran. It contains the "bulk" you need plus the great intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and just watch the old world grow brighter! Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

PROSPECTS GOOD

hausted the sub-soil moisture on thousands of acres of Prairie farm lands and it is not yet known how far that condition has been remedied. Some at least of the precipitation has penetrated to the sub-soil but experts to the Department of Agriculture are careful about basing high hopes on the winter precipitation.

Best Outlook In Years

However favorable moisture conditions may be now, and it is agreed they are more favorable than at this time for years past, prairie farmers must have rain in June and July if they are to harvest a wheat crop.

Last year, owing to the severe drought in Saskatchewan, Capada's wheat production was only 182,410,000 bushels. It was the worst of a long succession of lean years so far as wheat production was concerned. Not since 1932 as there been a 300,000,000-bushel crop and even then the production was far short of the big year, 1928, when 566,000,000 bushels of wheat were threshed.

Wheat acreage in the prairie provinces is likely to be slightly less this year than in 1937 when it was 24,000,000. This will be due to a reduction in Saskatchewan as both Alberta and Manitoba plantings are expected to be about the same as a year ago.

The reduction in Saskatchewan will be due to a shortage of seed in areas which produced no crop last year and to the retirement of submarginal lands from production under the prairie farm rehabilitation plan.

Soil moisture conditions in eastern Canada are also good as the farmers begin their spring operations and the winter has been kind to fall wheat, clover, pastures, fruit trees, bushes and shrubs.

East In Fine Position

Here, too, the outlook for crops is much brighter than a year ago and the risk of crop-destroying weather in summer is much less in the east than in the west. The winter of 1936-37 was hard on winter wheat and clover in the east. There was little snow and much rain. Fields were covered with ice.

Most of the red clover and alsike crops were winter killed and fall wheat suffered heavily. Great quantities of clover seed had to be imported as a result of the winter-killing.

During the past winter there has been ample snow to protect the plants which must survive the winter. In addition, spring has opened up well with lots of rain.

Given a reasonable break in the next few months eastern farmers, gardeners and fruit-growers look forward to a brighter and more productive year in 1938.

One Canadian crop has just been harvested and it was a good one. The maple syrup and sugar crop is an important one on many Ontario and Quebec farms. Last year it was as bad as any on record but this year the sap ran in good volume and as a result farmers with maple bushes will receive some $5,000,000.

DROPS NAME OF MOLLISON

Miss Amy Johnson, the English aviatrix, whose marriage was recently dissolved, has dropped the surname of Mollison, and will be known by her maiden name.

Most Alluring

Proclaimed the "most alluring she" and the "most fascinating he" in a contest held at the University of Kansas, Betty Butcher, 18, and Fred Palle, 22, are shown arriving in New York for a week of gaiety. The week in New York, with all expenses paid, was the grand prize of the contest.

HAVELOCK LODGE SPONSORS DANCE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, April 20. — The Havelock Oddfellows' Lodge held their 20th annual Easter Ball on Monday evening in the town hall auditorium, both modern and old time dancing being enjoyed from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Music was provided for the occasion by Ray Peters' "Ambassadors." Harry Ferguson acted as floor manager.

Cafeteria lunch was served shortly after ten o'clock by the members of the Rebekah Lodge.

The regular meeting of Knox Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Tuesday evening in the church with a very good attendance and Miss Chase presiding.

The members were shown a series of lantern slides on "Formosa," which were conducted by Mr. A. Wilson. An interesting description of the pictures was given by Mrs. A. S. Thompson. The singing of a missionary hymn by the pupils of Mrs. Colquhoun's Sunday school class was much enjoyed.

The meeting closed with the singing of a hymn and prayer by Mrs. Kinnaird.

MORE ABOUT—

CITY AND COUNTY

expressed the hope that some action would also be taken with a view to getting the bridge across Pigeon River.

Warden Ernie McDonald stated that those interested should have patience with the local members, who were working to secure this project. He added that the county could not build the bridge without outside help as the expenditure was too great. He referred to the great amounts which had been expended for paved roads in Western Ontario and in making a comparison with the amounts spent in this district one feels they are living in the backwoods.

A strong west wind sent white-capped rollers across the bridge as cars bearing the Peterborough delegates travelled to Ennismore for the meeting and there is still a section of the bridge that has just one railing.

First and Last Trip.

Mayor James Hamilton expressed sympathy towards the plan and stated he believed he was voicing the wishes of the city people when he said they were very much in favor of a permanent roadway across the lake.

W. A. Hewitt, president of the Chamber of Commerce, in a brief talk said he had lived in Peterborough for a long time, but had crossed the bridge for the first time on the way to the meeting. "I wouldn't cross that structure again to-night if you gave me the entire Township of Ennismore. A large log was washed across the bridge in front of our car as we drove across," he said. He reiterated the sympathy for the plan, and said service clubs in the city were also favorably inclined.

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, told that the Chamber of Commerce was interested in the county as well as the city, and because of this were in favor of a permanent bridge. He told the gathering that many tourists looked at the Chemong floating bridge, but very few of them crossed it, particularly when the lake was rough.

Dr. E. M. Crough of Peterborough, who described himself as a native son of Ennismore, said the new bridge is a community project, and he was definitely behind the campaign. He said in part that successive Governments had been all too sure of the support from the north side of the lake in the past.

Not Tourist Attracion.

William McClelland, who formerly lived in Buffalo, and who is now a permanent resident of the Township, ridiculed the idea that the bridge was a tourist attraction. He opined that the bridge did more harm than good in this respect, as the American visitors were not looking for thrills on a "wind-tossed wooden raft." He urged the outside delegates to a deeper appreciation of the actual difficulties faced by residents of Ennismore in using this bridge. The ice, slush, and snow of winter made the bridge often impassable, and always hazardous, he said, and on windy nights waves rushing across the structure were enough to send a nervous woman into hysterics.

Alex Elliott, M.L.A., spoke at length and commented on the fact that the large audience showed clearly the seriousness of the people in their demand for action. He agreed that the existing bridge did not meet present day needs and briefly sketched the history of the bridge from a standpoint of cost since it was built. He lauded Reeve Gifford for his aggressiveness in tackling this question and added that never at any time had a direct appeal been made to the Ontario Government for aid in building a permanent fill across the lake. The county, the province and the Dominion Government each had some responsibility in the question of a new bridge, said Mr. Elliott. The county paid approximately $2,000 a year to maintain the bridge, and in the event of a new one being built the county would be well advised to get rid of the responsibility for all time by contributing $40,000 to assure the project. The Dominion Government's responsibility remained in the fact that the water had been raised, about seven feet and the lake widened while they were responsible for the swing bridge.

Several Obstacles

A permanent bridge would offer certain advantages to the province, he said but such a project brought up obstacles, one of which was the fact that those making the appeal would have to first convince the minister that the road is a provincial route and second that the need for the bridge is greater than the needs of other sections which have been making strong appeals for assistance. He made reference to a recent announcement by the Hon. Norman Rogers, Minister of Labor that a works program may be started and if this goes through the local people should seek a definite committment for the bridge. "I am willing to face this matter squarely and co-operate to the fullest in attempting to get a permanent roadway," he said in conclusion.

J. J. Duffus, M.P., paid tribute to the energetic way Reeve Gifford had approached the problem. "This is a time for action and not for talking, and I can assure you I am as interested in the project as I was two years ago, when some preliminary work was done." He said the bridge was not only inadequate but unsafe and he added the condition of the bridge tonight was sufficient to convince anyone of the seriousness of the problem. "I don't believe it is fair to ask people to use this bridge, and in my opinion going around the head of the lake, a round trip distance of 18 miles is out of the question." He urged a united effort and said the Dominion Government would admit responsibility for the swing span on the bridge and he felt sure would take a reasonable view of a request for assistance on the new project. He promised to bend every effort along the lines which the committee was working.

Rev. Father V. J. Gillogly, in a brief speech, referred to Warden Macdonald's plea for patience and stated "We have not only been patient but long suffering" and the people are not unjust in their demand for a safe and permanent bridge.

Michael J. Cavanagh, secretary of the Young People's Club of Ennismore which has been taking an active part in the drive pointed out to his audience that the young people of the township realize the future of Ennismore depends upon the success of the drive. He spoke of the winter hazards of using the floating bridge and added that poor communication was depopulating the township. "This bridge served the pioneers but modern traffic demands a permanent bridge, the floating structure is far from adequate as scarcely any heavy duty truck can cross it."

WE'RE CLEANING OUT HUNGRY MOTH WORMS, TOO! Say Thrifty Housewives

MRS. J. DUFF, 219 Belmont Avenue, Hamilton, Ontario:
"When spring-cleaning I never fail to spray FLY-TOX in closets, drawers and dark corners. It takes very little extra time and is the most effective 'insurance' against moth damage I have ever used."

MRS. CAMPION-SMITH, 196 Woburn Avenue, Toronto, Ontario:
"I stopped worrying about moth damage when I started spraying FLY-TOX. I have found FLY-TOX harmless and stainless and even spray it directly into my furs with perfect safety."

MRS. R. G. BLAKELEY, 423 Mackenzie Avenue, London, Ontario:
"My handy FLY-TOX sprayer is a most important part of my spring-cleaning equipment. I simply spray FLY-TOX around the house and close doors and windows for a few hours. That's all there is to it. I haven't had any worry about moth damage since I 'discovered' FLY-TOX."

"THIS MUCH FLY-TOX (Left) HAS KILLING POWER EQUAL TO THIS MUCH ORDINARY INSECTICIDE (Right)" Laboratory tests prove that FLY-TOX contains 98% greater killing power than the average of four (well-known) insecticides, 24% greater than its nearest competitor.

Moth larvae have lain dormant in your home all winter long. The first warm days of spring will hatch them out. That's when moth damage begins. It costs the average Canadian family $10 every year.

Thrifty housewives, clean out hungry moth worms, too, with FLY-TOX when they do their spring-cleaning. FLY-TOX costs less—goes farther—does a thorough job of killing all insect life.

Children Advised To Disobey

MOSCOW—Soviet children were advised today to disobey parents who attempt to send them to church next Saturday with the traditional Easter cake for blessing. The Orthodox Russian Easter falls April 24. Believers customarily send a cake called "kalich" and a cream cheese with raisins called "paskha" to church to be sprinkled with holy water.

Battles Alleged Burglar

TORONTO—E. G. Channing and F. Dye staged a battle with an alleged burglar, Lawrence Forsythe, in Dye's home early today. Dye lost a toenail and wrenched his shoulder badly in holding Forsythe until police arrived. Dye said he caught Forsythe with his arms full of coats in the house.

Inspector Reports Conditions In Restaurant Kitchens Have Been Greatly Improved

Most Complete Report Is Tendered To Board By Inspector MacPherson

Definite improvement in health conditions in the kitchens of local restaurants is noted in the monthly report of Sanitary Inspector R. MacPherson, who has been making regular inspections of such places.

The report after listing the large number of inspections made during March in all departments coming under the inspector's jurisdiction deals with a number of interesting matters.

Pasteurizing Plants

Regular inspections were made of pasteurizing plants during the month, says the report. In one plant, as reported in February, it was the custom to pump pasteurized milk through a raw milk line. This highly dangerous procedure has been abolished and a more satisfactory method adopted. The bacterial counts, which are more or less the barometer by which a sanitarian judges the degree of sanitation in a pasteurizing plant, have shown a decided improvement in the samples taken from the plant in question.

In another plant a new tile floor has replaced a very objectionable composite floor in the pasteurizing room. This plant has also sheeted the ceiling which was formerly open rafters from which the water of condensation was continually dripping. These two improvements, together with painting of the entire room, since they do away with the possibility of contamination of the milk through water of condensation and an improperly drained floor, are viewed with the greatest approval.

During inspections of the plants, sediment test were made upon all raw milk intended for city consumption. Of these, 72% were "clean," 21% "slightly dirty" and the remaining 7% were "very dirty". This is an improvement over a similar report made in January when 11% of milk was found to be "very dirty." Approximately 480 pounds of such milk were rejected and shipped back to the producer.

Bacterial counts based upon the reduction of Methylene Blue were made upon the same raw milk and I am pleased to report that these were, on the whole, very satisfactory; only two of the total number of samples taken indicated an excessive count. Such a favourable report is to be expected during the colder season since the temperature at which milk is maintained has a direct bearing upon its bacterial content.

Raw Milk Dairies

A number of raw milk dairies were visited and observations were made as to the methods employed in straining, bottling, capping and storage of milk. In one dairy equipped with approved machinery for capping there was evidence that the manager was capping by hand. Upon investigation and enquiry, this was found to be true. Capping by hand is prohibited by the Milk Control Act and it was pointed out to the manager that such could not be tolerated at all, especially since he had in this plant the necessary equipment for mechanical capping.

"Dairy farms were inspected," says the report, as to the sanitary condition from mastitis, contagious abortion and tuberculosis. In most cases, the milk houses were clean, the stables sanitary and cattle well cared for. Whenever there was any indication of diseased udders, tests were made and reacting animals removed from the herds. For a high quality of milk it is necessary that the producer maintain a mastitis-free herd. That such a condition can be maintained is demonstrated by the fact that such herds may be found in the community. A high quality milk is not only desirable but necessary and consequently, to ensure such, the campaign against mastitis is essential.

From the results of sediment tests and Methylene Blue counts made on samples of milk from the same producer shipping to a local dairy, there was evidence that all the milk shipped under his name was not coming from his own herd. Investigation proved that he was shipping milk from another farm not under inspection at all. To our knowledge, the other herd was not tested for tuberculosis, Bang's disease, mastitis, etc. We had no idea of the sanitary condition of stable, yard or milk house, if one existed, which is highly improbable. Consequently the producer was warned to stop immediately shipping milk from his farm and that if he were found doing so again the milk from his own herd would be excluded from city supply.

A sample of milk from another herd was submitted to the provincial laboratory and a very unsatisfactory report was received. This producer was notified that permission was withheld to ship milk until his herd was examined by a qualified veterinary surgeon. The report of the veternary showed two of this herd were affected with contagious abortion, a disease which is pathogenic to man. Until such time as the veterinary forwards a satisfactory report, this milk must be excluded from city supply.

Bakeries

Two out-of-town bakeries were inspected during the month and the following conditions were observed. In one shop the trough was the old wooden type with large seams and cracks in which sour dough was accumulated. Little or no attention was given this trough and it was in a very unsanitary condition. Consequently, the manager was notified to install a steel trough within a month after notification. The other shop was found with no washing facilities and consequently was notified to install such. An inspection of the delivery rig of this particular shop revealed that it had not been cleaned in months. Musty bread crumbs, straw, dust and dirt were allowed to accumulate. The manager was advised that hereafter it would be necessary to clean the rig daily and to keep it at all times in a more sanitary manner.

Restaurants

Regular inspection of restaurants found improvements being initiated and completed. In one kitchen where no sink had previously existed, a double stationary metal sink has been installed. In this kitchen, foods are prepared for a lunch counter and it had been the custom of the cook to dispose of waste through a lavatory provided for the employees. This, of course, is entirely eliminated now and one more kitchen where food is prepared for the public is rendered safer and more sanitary.

In another kitchen the soggy wooden drain boards and copper lined wooden sink have been replaced by double stationary metal sinks and drain boards. This is definitely an improvement.

In three restaurants where it was the custom to prepare pastry in the cellar under very doubtful conditions which were far from clean and sanitary, separate rooms have been constructed for the purpose of making pastry. The interior of these have been painted white and all pertinent utensils and provisions are stored therein. I think I am justified in saying that this is an improvement over the other haphazard arrangement.

Pastor Accepts Call To Foxboro

Rev. E. M. Cook, pastor of the United church at Fraserville for the past six years, has accepted a call to Foxboro in the Belleville presbytery of the church and, subject to the approval of the presbyteries concerned, will take over his new charge following the meeting of the Bay of Quinte conference in June.

The official board of the Fraserville church has decided to issue a call to Rev. Fred Horton of Foxboro.

Mr. Cook, who is completing his sixth year in the Fraserville charge, which includes Bailieboro and Bensfort, has previously held three charges in the Belleville presbytery.

When You Feel T-I-R-E-D

and worn out and your body does not feel refreshed after a reasonable amount of rest, you can be sure there is nerve constriction along the spine which is interfering with the proper activity of one or more vital organs.

When the supply of nervous energy to any organ is diminished, that organ becomes sluggish and functions abnormally.

If the liver or kidneys are involved poisonous waste materials accumulate in the system and you are predisposed to various ailments.

SLIPPERY HIGHWAY CAUSED ACCIDENT HEWETT JURY TOLD

BELLEVILLE, April 20 (Special to The Examiner) — Mrs. Gwen Hewett, Peterborough, came to her death on March 11 in Belleville hospital from injuries received when a passenger in an automobile driven by Basil Hall of, Peterborough which collided with a transport near Marysville on March 5th last, the collision being entirely accidental due to the extreme slipperiness of the highway at the time, a coroner's jury decided here on Tuesday night, when the adjourned inquest was convened before Dr. R. W. Tennent, coroner for this district.

The jury was composed of Harry Abbott, Bruce McCrea, Thos. Gill, Kenneth Colling, Frank Barrett, F. A. Tucker, Floyd Morden and George Ketcheson, foreman, all of this city.

Still In Hospital

Neither James Hall nor his sister Louise Hall gave evidence at the inquest, James Hall being too ill to appear due to injuries received in the accident and Miss Hall because she was not required. Basil Hall, barrister of Peterborough, and driver of the car, the chief witness examined by B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney for Hastings County said that he manipulated his car in the best manner possible and he did not believe there could have been anything more done than was done to avoid the collision. He stated the highway was exceptionally bad on the night in question and at the time of the accident or just previous he was travelling not more than 15 miles per hour. The highway was covered with a coating of ice and even though the "sanders" were out the rain, which continually fell froze on the sand as it came to earth. "I tried to get the car on a piece of the road to gain traction but it went out of control and then I tried to hit the transport a glancing blow and slide into the ditch but was prevented from doing so because of the bad condition of the highway. By throwing the car out of control I though probably the truck driver would see my predicament and probably go into the ditch. Realizing my position I threw the car into a skid and struck the transport." His wife, Mrs. Daisy Hall corroborated the evidence given.

Could Not Have Been Avoided

Constable Sam Everin, traffic officer for the district told the court "It was just an unfortunate accident" and could not be avoided due to the terrible condition of the highway at the time. Eric Rickett, transport driver told of seeing the car hitting the transport, which was proceeding him and stated the speed of the transport was at the time not more than twelve miles per hour and that the transport was almost stopped when the collision actually happened. "The car was turning sideways and was out of control when I saw it and it made a complete turn in the middle of the highway before striking the transport," said the witness. He told the court Mrs. Hewett was left in the back seat of the car until the arrival of the ambulance.

George I. Bailey, the driver of the transport, which was in collision with the car gave practically the same evidence as the former witness and he told the jury "There was nothing I could have done to avoid the collision." The Metropolitan Transport Company was represented at the inquest by Charles A. Payne, K.C.

OBITUARY

JAMES McCLIGGOTT.

James McCliggott, life-long resident of this district, died at his home on the River Road near Nassau on Tuesday after a short illness.

Born in Douro township, he resided at McCliggott's Corners until 1913, when he moved to his River Road home. He had been a resident of Douro township all his life. Son of the late James McCliggott and Johannah Sullivan, he was widely known here. He was a member of the Church of the Immaculate Conception.

Surviving are his wife and two sons, James at home, and Cecil of Toronto; two brothers, William and John McCliggott, both of Peterborough; and three sitsers, Mrs. James Barry of Vancouver, Mrs. McManus of Lakefield, and Mrs. Ellen McMurray of Peterborough.

The funeral will be held on Thursday morning at 8.30 o'clock from his residence on River Road to the Church of the Immaculate Conception where Requiem Mass will be offered at 9 a.m. Interment will be made a St. Joseph's Cemetery, Douro.

GEORGE ALLEN AGNEW

Death claimed George Allen Agnew, lifelong resident of this city, on Tuesday after a long illness. He was in his 58th year.

He was born in Peterborough, the son of the late John Agnew and Annie McClennan, and received his education and training in his trade in this city, where he was a carpenter for many years. He was an active member of Mark Street United Church, of which he had been a member from his boyhood.

He is survived by his wife, formerly Ina May Milage; one daughter, Mrs. E. Forbes of Peterborough; and two sons, Ralph and Neil, both of Peterborough. Two sisters, Mrs. A. Jordan and Mrs. T. Calvert, both of Toronto, also remain.

The funeral will be held on Thursday, April 21, at 2 p.m. from the late residence at 105 Sophia street; Rev. E. W. Rowland of Mark Street United Church officiating. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

50 Years Wed

"Do what she wants you to, when she wants you to, and you'll be happy," cracked William Tate, 75, when asked what makes a happy married life. Mr. and Mrs. Tate, 42 Ware street, shown here, are celebrating their golden wedding annivers ary today. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

GRANT IS VOTED.

The Board of Health decided Tuesday on motion of Mayor Hamilton and Ald. H. J. McCannan to vote a compassionate grant of $15 to Mrs. M. Cantwell, maid at the Queen Mary Hospital to help pay the expenses of hospital and medical care occasioned her by an accident when she fell on the hill near the hospital.

DEATHS IN MARCH.

Dr. Fraser's report for March on the causes of local deaths shows the following: Scarlet fever 1, infectious and parasitic disease 1, cancer 1, cerebral hemorrhage, cerebral embolism and thrombosis, 4, diseases of the heart 7, pneumonia 1, diseases of the liver and biliary passages 1, other diseases of the digestive system 2, nephritis 3, peurperal septicaemia 1, congenial debility, etc., sensility 3, violent or accidental death 2.

TO ATTEND COURSE.

Zeta Kearney, R.N., the local public health nurse, will be sent to attend the refrsher course for graduate nurses at the University of Toronto May 16 to 21, the Board of Health decided at its Tuesday meeting. She will also be given leave of absence to attend the convention of the Graduate Nurses' Association at Kingston this week. The Board authorized the attendance of Dr. Fraser, M.O.H., at the annual meeting of the Ontario Medical Association, with his expenses to be paid.

TOOK FIVE DAYS.

Clifford Henry, who has been before the traffic court on several occasions in the last six weeks and had been given several adjournment sto allow him to get money to pay his fine for driving without a license was back this morning to report progress. The report was not a success. "I haven't got any money just now," he said, as he asked for another two weeks' adjournment. "Wouldn't you rather take five days in jail now and get it over with?" asked the Magistrate and Henry, grinning broadly, thought he would.

LIQUOR CHARGES.

Pleading guilty in police court to being drunk, Harry R. Redmond, 187 McGill street, was later this morning charged with being drunk in charge of a motor vehicle on Aylmer street Tuesday night, and on this second charge was remanded for a week on bail of $250, an adjournment for the same period being allowed in the drunk charge. Basil Reid, charged with reckless driving, was also remanded for a week. The two were arrested late Tuesday night by Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure.

ATTEND LUNCHEON.

Chris G. Graham was in Toronto Tuesday attending the luncheon of the Ontario Hotelmen's Association which had as guest speaker Thomas M. Green of the American Hotel Association.

A BRISK SALE.

The appointment of a dog catcher and the rapid approach of the end of April when the present licenses expire is causing a brisk demand for dog tags and the officers on duty at the police station report excellent business these days.

COMPETITION THURSDAY NIGHT.

The music competition of the Hobby Show conducted this week by the boys' division of the Y.M. C.A. has had to be deferred until Thursday night. All the young musicians who are taking part in the competition are requested to note the change in the schedule.

WON THE QUILT.

Dr. Lorna Cotton-Thomas, Ontario vice-president of the C.C.F., won first honors in the club's draw at the annual banquet on Monday night. Her name was drawn as winner of the quilt, first prize. Second prize went to Mrs. J. Ridyard, 103 Gladstone avenue, and third prize to Mrs. H. Lawther, 69 McDonnel street. Misses Mae and Marguerite Lambert were a piano team at the banquet and Oswald Nickson was pianist for the evening.

TRAFFIC COURT.

Magistrate Langley disposed of a number of traffic cases, both city and provincial, in court this morning. Frank Clark paid $2 and $3 for attempting to pass another car when the road was not clear. Reg. Edmunds was assessed $5 and $3 costs for speeding on Highway 28, H. Frank was fined $2 and $3 costs for not coming to a full stop before entering a highway and A. F. Elmhirst $5 and $2.50 for having no license plate on a trailer.

A GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

Two local men lost a fish dinner Tuesday because of a guilty conscience. They were walking along the C.N.R. tracks with a parcel when a police car containing Officers Piercey and Clark happened to drive along George street. The officers were not greatly concerned with the two men until a little later when they noticed the parcel was no longer in sight. Then they decided to investigate and found the men had tossed away three large suckers.

COULDN'T GET IT.

Sometimes you cannot get a month in jail even when you want it. An elderly transient came into the police station Tuesday and asked to be sent up for thirty days. He said he had got out of the Toronto jail farm a week ago, had walked all the way from the Queen City to Peterborough and wanted a rest. He was told the local calaboose was under quarantine and he had better keep going until he struck a jail with a clean bill-of-health.

SUSPENDED SENTENCE.

Two young lads who pleaded guilty in juvenile court this morning to a charge of stealing a purse containing $2.08 were allowed to go on suspended sentence. They had spent all but 20 cents of the money when arrested and restitution of the balance was ordered.

CHOIR ON THE AIR.

Pithy Statements Made By Speakers In Support Of New Bridge At Chemong

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, April 20.—Following are some of the quotes from brief talks by at least ten leading persons in the county and city who attended the meeting to lay plans for getting a new bridge across Lake Chemong, held at Ennismore Town Hall, Tuesday night:

W. A. Hewitt, president of the Chamber of Commerce—"I wouldn't cross that bridge again to-night if you gave me the whole township of Ennismore. We'll drive back the long way."

William McClelland—"It's an elongated pile of cedar poles; the tourists are afraid to cross it."

Dr. E. M. Crough—"Half a century ago they said Robinson Crusoe had been stranded on Ennismore and built the bridge to get off the peninsula."

Reeve James Guiry, Downeyville—"A wrong must be righted. The bridge has been a political football for a long time, and the game is now ended."

Reeve C. H. Pardy, Bobcaygeon—"A permanent bridge would afford our district an opportunity of taking advantage of facilities offered to buyers in Peterborough city."

Mayor James Hamilton—"Everyone in Peterborough would be glad to see a permanent structure across the lake."

J. J. Dorris, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce—"The tourists look at the bridge but very few of them cross it."

Warden Ernie MacDonald, Dummer— "There has been so much spent on good roads in Western Ontario that we feel we are living in the back woods."

Michael J. Cavanagh, Secretary Young People's Society, Ennismore—"The future of this section depends on the success of this campaign for a permanent roadway."

Rev. Father V. J. Gillogly, Ennismore—"We have not only been patient but long suffering."

3 PLEAD GUILTY TO ILLEGAL FISHING

"I had to get fish for food," said Hiram Taylor, Jr., 42, Curve Lake Indian, after pleading guilty in police court this morning to fishing in Buckhorn Lake during the closed season for bass and maskinonge. "I asked for relief and couldn't get it. I even wrote to Toronto about getting assistance as a returned soldier, but got no result."

The alleged offence took place on February 17, and Taylor was fishing through the ice. He told the court this morning that he was only trying to get some perch.

Fish and Game Overseer I. J. Lyons, who laid the charge, stated that Taylor had been convicted of a similar offence a year ago.

"You had better get the members of Parliament to change the law to let Indians fish," remarked Magistrate Langley as he adjourned the case against Taylor until Wednesday, May 4, to allow the accused a chance to get the money to pay his fine which it was intimated would be $10 and $1.25 costs.

Sidney Irons, 30, another Curve Lake Indian, also pleaded guilty to a similar offence on the same day, and place, and his case was also adjourned until May 4.

Local Case Heard

Fishing with unbaited hooks at the Peterborough Lock on April 14, a charge to which he pleaded guilty, cost Alfred Lafave, 300 Braidwood Avenue, a fine of $10 and $3.30 costs in police court this morning.

Overseas Lyons, who laid the charges, said that something should be done to stop that kind of fishing. Ten dollar fines inflicted in previous years had apparently had no effect.

"This is the first case of the present season," remarked Magistrate Langley, "so I am going to impose a $10 fine. However, anybody else who is contemplating breaking the fishery laws should understand that the fines are going up. There will be no more $10 fines after to-day."

The alternative in Lafave's case was 15 days in jail, and the magistrate declared that the fine must be paid immediately.

"People who want to fish out of season must have their money ready to pay their fines," he declared.

Babies' Boarding House Permit Is Refused By Board Of Health

Woman Found To Have Been Operating For Years Without License

An application from Mrs. E. Jewell of 121 Stewart street for a license to operate a babies' boarding house was rejected unanimously at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Health held on Tuesday.

Dr. Murray Fraser, explaining that the provincial law required such places to have a license from the Board of Health, said that he had unfavorable reports concerning the establishment and he accordingly recommended that Mrs. Jewell should not be given a license.

"She has been operating for years without one" Dr. Fraser said.

"If this is a provincial law the attention of the provincial police should be called to the place remarked Mayor Hamilton.

Dr. Fraser said that reports in regard to the establishment had been received from the superintendent of the Children's Aid Society and from the public health nurse.

Miss Kearney's monthly report to the Board said in reference to the establishment on Stewart street — "There are two unmarried mothers, five infants and two 'teen age girls at this boarding home.

Your nurse notified the landlady she was running a boarding home contrary to the Babies Boarding House Act. The act reads: "No person shall retain or receive for hire or reward one or more infants under the age of three years, for the purpose of nursing or maintaining such infant or infants, for a longer period than 24 hours except in a house which has been registered as herein provided."

Present at the meeting were Ald. Walter Stocker, chairman, Mayor James Hamilton, Ald. H. J. McCannan and Dr. Fraser, M.O.H. R. M. MacPherson, sanitary inspector was also in attendance.

On motion of Dr. Fraser, seconded by Ald. McCannan the Board decided that patients in the Queen Mary Hospital employing special nurses be required to pay $1 a day for the board of such nurses in addition to the regular charges, that when more than one member of a family are patients in the hospital at the one time the charge shall be $1.50 a day for the first member of the family admitted and $1 for each of the others, and that no charge for hospital care shall be charged members of the hospital staff who are victims of communicable diseases while on duty.

In this connection the Board decided that charges of $40 against Dr. Murray Fraser for hospital care while suffering from scarlet fever should not be collected as Dr. Fraser contracted the disease while in the course of his duties.

Hot Dog Stand.

A communication from the city council in regard to sanitary conveniences for eating houses and restaurants precipitated an interesting discussion as to hot dog stands.

Ald. Walter Stocker, chairman of the Board said he had received complaints in regard to one of these places, "Dinty's Inn", and he thought that such booths should be required to instal sanitary conveniences.

Dr. Fraser doubted the feasibility of the suggestion, pointing out these booths were small affairs whose patrons were served outside the stand.

It was finally decided that the M.O.H. should secure information from a number of Ontario cities around the size of Peterborough as to what they do in connection with this problem.

The plumbing inspector, Arthur Metheral will be asked to submit a report as to the sanitary conveniences at 474 Sherbrooke street.

At the suggestion of Chairman Stocker the salary of Mr. and Mrs. J. Price, caretakers at the Queen Mary Hospital will be increased from $55 to $60 a month. They also receive free shelter, fuel and food. The motion was moved by Ald. McCannan and seconded by Mayor Hamilton.

Will Be Warned.

Sanitary Inspector R. M. MacPherson called the Board's attention to the number of men with handcarts who go round and pick up cardboard boxes. These men, he said have been making a practice of going round the garbage routes ahead of the collectors and of rummaging through the garbage left out on the street. Generally they scatter the garbage around in so doing.

It was pointed out that it was against the bylaw for unauthorized persons to interfere with garbage and on the suggestion of Mayor Hamilton the sanitary inspector was authorized to publish a warning to the men who have been guilty of this practice.

Bert Graham Speaks George Street Y.P.

Bert Graham was guest speaker to the members of George Street Young People's Union at their meeting on Tuesday evening. A very interesting talk on the life in the mining camps of Northern Quebec, where he spent a year and a half, was given by Mr. Graham.

The meeting was in charge of the Christian Missionary Group, with Miss Margaret Stanton in the chair. Those assisting in the worship service were Ruth Parnall, Norma Rennie and Cecil Wasson. Jack Skitch conducted a short recreation period, after which refreshments were served.

SINGERS ENTER MUSIC FESTIVAL

STRATFORD, April 20. — Peterborough will be well represented in the junior vocal classes of the great Stratford Musical Festival, which opens here on Thursday morning, April 21, and continues through until the end of the month.

The festival this year promises to be the greatest event of its kind in Western Ontario and will draw thousands of musicians from all over the province.

The official program listing the names of contestants was published today, and shows that nine youthful vocalists from Peterborough will be here for the special occasion.

The first event in which Peterborough will be interested is on Saturday night, April 23. Donald E. P. Perks of Peterborough has entered his "Lord of Heaven" in the class for original compositions, a hymn tune for 4 voices, the class being for contestants under 21. On that same evening, Gerald Perks, Peterborough, will sing in the baritone or bass solo class (under 21).

On Monday, April 25, Catherine Turner will sing in the girls' solo class under 15, Part 1 (open), and Irwin Luther will sing in the lyric tenor solo class, Part 1.

Three young Peterborough lads, Joey McMahon, Ernest J. Lee and Leonard Cooper, will sing in the boys' solo class under 11, Part 1. There are eighteen contestants in this class.

Victor D. Coleman and Donald E. P. Perks are Peterborough entries in the class for tenor soloists under 21, Part 1, while Joey McMahon and Ernest L. Lee are entered in the duet for boys under 17.

Little Gwenyth M. Cooper of Peterborough is entered in the girls' solo class under 9.

GOSLINGS FOR EAGLE

EDMONTON, April 20 (C.P.). — "Old Goldy," a mountain eagle, is going to be a mother to two goslings—if two goose eggs hatch. Thomas Chadderton, keeper of the Zoo here, put the two goose eggs under "Old Goldy" two weeks ago, and Chadderton is confident the eggs will hatch and "Old Goldy' will prove a good mother.

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's, had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia, Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening. Barbar is furious to find the party still going when Garry brings her back to her apartment and orders Julia and the others to leave. Jimmy Minton, a notorious playboy, gets fresh and Garry knocks him down. In answer to a long distance plea from her former managing editor, Barbara has an acquaintance, Bruce Kemper, who is sick from dissipation, moved to a hospital.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 15

Bruce Kemper was undoubtedly very sick. He tossed and called out and he mentioned Julia's name. He did not recognize Barbara. She went downstairs to summon a doctor while Ray stayed with the man. They waited until the doctor came.

"I'll have him moved to a hospital immediately," the physician said. "Worry, malnutrition, dissipation—everything wrong that could be wrong. Who should be notified in case of—if anything sets in?"

BARBARA gave her own name and telephone number when the physician asked who should be notified in case Bruce Kemper grew worse.

Out on the street, she shuddered.

"Do you know the guy well?" Ray asked.

"Hardly at all. It's something a friend wanted me to do."

The reporter helped her into his car and closed the door. "How about a sandwich? We'll go across the Washington bridge to a place I know."

"Oh wonderful!"

She loved the road that ran along the Hudson, crossing over at last where the strong, slim bridge connected the Jersey line with New York. She liked to glide across the bridge, eyes finding stars high beyond its steel girders. Ray was a darling. Merry, young, friendly. She took off the brown felt hat she had worn and felt the wind in her hair.

When Ray ordered a hot chicken sandwich, she felt a silly moment of homesickness. It should be a special plate—two fried oysters, two friend eggs—Goodness, she had grown so accustomed to Garry that even having a sandwich with another man made her miss him. She would get a cheese sandwich and a glass of milk. The cocoa and sweet roll were part of another ritual.

They were coming back over the bridge when Ray spoke.

"How's Garry? I haven't seen him in some time."

"He's fine. Out of town on a story at the moment."

"He's a good egg."

Barbara laughed. "That's what he says about you. The highest compliment one of the writing fraternity can call another member is a good egg or a swell guy, isn't it?"

"We of the fourth estate have our names for it."

The car swung away from the bridge and started down Riverside drive. Ray was slowing down. Barbara glanced at him curiously and he grinned back. "I have words to say. Barbara, are you engaged? It's none of my business but have you given anybody a promise and can tell me?"

She hadn't. Garry lover her, and she loved Garry. They saw only each other. But engaged in the old sense of the word? No, they were free.

"No, Ray," she said quietly.

"Then there is a chance for me! Barbara, I fell in love with you that day you stood in the door of Garry's stateroom and looked like a scared kid. I want to do something about it. Barbara, dearest, could you marry me?"

His brown eyes were pleading and his lean face turned towards her. He wasn't laughing now. He was going to be hurt and she didn't want to hurt him. So she said very gently:

"Ray darling, I couldn't. I'm not marrying anyone, you see, for ever so long."

He was silent for a while. Then he said. "It is Garry, isn't it?"

She nodded. "Yes."

He had stopped the engine but he started it now. "That's all right then. If it has to be somebody else, I'd rather have it Garry. He's fine to the core, Barbara."

But when she saw the tail-light of his car growing fainter in the distance as she stood at the wide windows of her living room, her throat constricted a little. He was a sweet boy. It hurt to think that she had the power to make him unhappy. Then she forgot him as she remembered only the words that he had said about Garry.

Garry came back the next day and she did not mention the encounter with Bruce Kemper to him. Somehow it was something that she and Ray had known. Something trivial but Ray would prefer to leave it as an adventure they had shared, she knew. She put it away, quite simply, with Ray's own words. She had dinner with Garry and they went to a theater afterwards. But all the while she was wishing that he would turn to her and say five words: "Barbara, will you marry him?" He would ask her some day, she was sure. But so many things could happen between now and some day! Why couldn't he be as frank as Ray had been?

"Is something the matter, honey?" he asked. "You look worried. Anything I can do about it?"

"Everything," her heart said. "Nothing." her tongue answered.

The next night he called to say that he was having a conference with his producer. It was to be in her neighborhood at half past nine. He would drop it for a minute on his way, if he might.

When the door bell rang at a few minutes after nine she pushed the button that released the latch, without asking who it was through the speaking tube. She went to the door and waited for him.

"Garry?"

There was no answer. The steps that came were lagging and tired. Her eyes opened wider. Maybe he was sick.

"Garry?" she called again. A man appeared at the top of the landing and a feverish hand grasped her arm and pushed her ahead of him into the room.

"Bruce Kemper!" she gasped. "You were in the hospital."

The man laughed shrilly. "I pretended I was asleep, dressed and walked out. Simple as that. I feel better." He was trembling and his pallor was frightening.

"What do you want?" Barbara asked. "If there is anyway that I can help you—"

"There is!" He had been drinking and now he reached into his pocket and pulled out a bottle of whiskey. "Mind if I have another swag? Stopped along the way to buy it. Had to see you, you know—just had to see you."

"About what?"

"About a girl. A pretty girl—gold hair, clings to the fingers—" he curved his long fingers into grotesque shapes. "Marble eyes, blue marbles. You've got her blood." His eyes were piercing in their brightness as he turned swiftly to face Barbara.

Then, as quickly, his nervousness vanished. "I'm not going back to the hospital. Tonight or ever. I'm going to Martinsville to see that girl. If anyone gets in my way I'll stop him with this." He pulled a small gun from his pocket.

"Where did you get it?" Barbara asked.

For a second something sane, young, pathetic was in the man's features. "I've had it a long time. I've thought of rounding out my earthly span with it but I held that view about the corner which we were goin gto turn tomorrow. I left it with my things in that room when they took me away. The rent had been paid—by you— for another week, so I had to get back before the stuff was junked."

The door bell gave three quick peals. Garry's sign! Eagerly Barbara started to push the button that released the door. Garry would know what to do about Bruce Kemper. But Bruce put his fingers over her wrists as she reached for the button.

"I'm sorry, Miss Kingsley, but that's no good. Do you know who it is?"

She didn't answer. She heard the outer door opening. Either someone, in going out, was letting Garry in or her first jab at the bell had released the latch. Steps started to ascend the steps. The crazed man heard them, too.

He spoke quickly. "I'm hiding in there. The bedroom. isn't it? And I'm leaving the door partly open so I can watch you. I'll have this gun ready and if you make one sign I'm in there, I'll shoot you down. Get it?"

Then he slipped into the room, and Barbara, straining her eyes, saw him crouched, his hand on the gun.

She turned from the door. Across the room hung a long mirror. If te man drew too near the door, his reflection would show. There was only one chance in a thousand that this might happen. If it did, she must warn Garry quickly before he expressed surprise.

Garry was knocking at the door now, and she opened it.

"Barbara, are you ill?" She saw the quick concern in his eyes.

"No, I'm fine. And you, Garry? How are you?"

"The same." He was holding her hands, studying her face. "Now that we've dispensed with our health, tell me what's wrong, Babbs. Please, dearest."

Over Garry's shoulder, she saw Bruce step nearer to the opening. The lamplight shone on the gun. His finger rested on the trigger.

She heard her voice asking questions, answering Garry's guestions. But her eyes strayed often to that door. Once Garry moved too near it and she drew him away rapidly making up some excuse about a book she wanted him to see. He was watching her strangely now. She looked away. Oh, if only he would go! Bruce wasn't responsible. Any moment has hand might press the trigger. Yet she dared make no sign. If she did, his mind, overly alert in its madness, would know it.

She glanced again at Garry's face. His eyes weren't watching her. They were focused on the mirror. And in the mirror she could see a man's dim outline.

Many Couple Who Are Mismated Stay Together Until the Children Are Grown Up Then Seek Separation as the Answer to Their Loss of Love

Why do so many middle-aged men and women get divorces nowadays? Why do so many husbands and wives who have worked together to make their fortune; who have reared a family of children and who have apparently lived in peace and amity, suddenly break the tie that has bound them together for a quarter of a century or more?

We were discussing this new phase of the divorce question the other day, and a woman said: "It is incomprehensible. I cannot understand how the young, who lack patience and discipline and who think that life should be handed them on a silver salver wreathed with roses, can rush off to the divorce court just because their mates have ceased to fire their fancies, or failed to measure up to their ideals, but I can't understand why a man and woman who have lived together for twenty-five or thirty years can't go on and finish the journey together.

"You would think that in that length of time they would have become so much inured to each other's faults and peculiarities that they would have got so that they hardly noticed them, and that they would have developed some sort of working technique of getting along together. You would think that after having been yokemates for so long each would be lost without the other and that nothing would make them separate."

"Perhaps the reason that they DO part is because they HAVE endured each other for twenty-five years and have come to the point where they can't stand it another minute," said another woman. "Their resistance has worn out. Their fortitude is exhausted. Their nerves are frizzled out, and they feel it is Reno or death with them.

"Cant you imagine a man who is married to a dull, stupid woman who has bored him to tears for twenty-five years feeling that if he has to stand one more deadly, long, tiresome evening with her that he will be taken away screaming to a psychopathic ward? Can't you realize how a man married to a nagger who has threshed over the same grievance and told him three times a day how bad everything he like to eat was for his stomach feels that it has got to be divorce or murder?

"Can't you understand how a woman who is married to an arguer, or a grouch, or a chronic objector gets so fed up with yes-yesing him and trying to get along with him that she just throws up her hands and quits? And can't you imagine why the wife of the philanderer or drunkard wants to call it a day and take a rest after she has forgiven him for years and years? Human nature, even woman's brand of human nature, can stand about so much and then it cracks. And twenty-five year is a pretty long spell for anybody to endure."

"One of the reasons why so many middle-aged people get divorces," said a third woman, "is because thousands of uncongenial husbands and wives stay together in order to make a home for their children until they are grown and on their feet. They are among the heroes and the martyrs of the world."

'Still another reason," said the fourth woman, "why there is so much divorce among the middle-aged is because it is a last frantic grab at love and romance and happiness by the mismated. So many good, fine men and women are so bitterly unhappy in their marriages. Maybe they married too young and one outgrew the other. Maybe a warm-hearted, affectionate man or woman has a human icicle for a wife or husband. Maybe they are just temperamentally uncongenial and incompatible.

"They endure these marriages, hoping while they are young that some miracle will happen that will change their mates nearer to their hearts' desire. Then they fall into a kind of apathy of misery that makes them carry on because they are too sunk to even rebel against their fates. Then, suddenly, they wake up. They realize that youth is nearly gone and that if they are ever to have any joy of life, any love or companionship, even any peace, they must secure it for themselves now.

"Those who have stood years and years of an unhappy marriage can't face the prospect of more years of unhappiness. And that is why so many middle-aged couples get divorces."—DOROTHY DIX.

Bedtime Story

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BIRD ARMY

"This is a lovely adventure," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, as she and Uncle Wiggily and the rabbit lady wife stood in the old barn watching the swallows build their nests of mud pills.

"It really is," said Mrs. Longears. "Ha, Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "If you call this an adventure, what would you say to being chased by some of the Bad Chaps."

"I would say I wouldn't like it, tank you," replied Mrs. Longears.

'So would I," echoed Nurse Jane. "You don't see any of the Bad Chaps, do you, Uncle Wiggily?" asked the muskrat lady nervous like and looking at her tail to make sure it wasn't being stepped on.

"No Bad Chaps will come here," said Uncle Wiggily.

But that is just where he was wrong as you shall soon learn.

However for a time, everything was peaceful, quiet and happy in the old barn. The swallows flew swiftly out to the roadside puddle, carrying in pellets of mud which they plastered under the barn rafters to make their nests.

Marching Army

"They are a regular army of birds," said Uncle Wiggily as he and his wife and Nurse Jane watched the busy swallows. Truly, when a flock of them were wheeling in the air, they looked like an army on the march.

"And they can shoot, too, with those mud pills they carry in their beaks," squeaked Nurse Jane, rubbing her eyes where, a little while before, she had been accidentally shot. So had Mrs. Longears and Uncle Wiggily. Only the rabbit gentleman was hit on his pink, twinkling nose.

As the swallows built their nests one of them talked to the visitors.

The swallow said there were many birds like him living around Woodland, near the Orange Ice Mountain where Uncle Wiggily had built his hollow stump bungalow.

"There are the Purple Martins, which is a beautiful sort of swallow. Martins make their nests in little wooden houses some kind persons put on poles in their yards," explained one of Uncle Wiggily's army of birds.

"Then there are barn swallows, like ourselves, mud-nest builders, and cliff swallows who build their mud nests, shaped like gourds, against rocks that stick out from a cliff. The bank swallows make holes in the side of a sand bank and nest there and the tree swallows do what many other birds do, make nests in trees, often in hollow ones."

Visitors

Uncle Wiggily's swallow told his visitors how he and his friends flew through the air with widely-opened mouth, catching in it mosquitoes and other bugs which the birds eat.

"Thank you for telling us all this," said Mr. Longears politely.

"Yes, it was a delightful adventure," said Nurse Jane.

"I have learned something," said Mrs. Longears.

"Ha!" suddenly exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "And you are going to learn something else not so happy. I must tell you," said the rabbit, looking out of the barn door. "that the Bad Chaps are coming this way!"

Surely enough along came the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat.

"Ho! One for each of us!" mewed the Bob Cat seeing Uncle Wiggily, Nurse Jane and Mrs. Longears.

"Oh, dear me!" cried the animal ladies. Uncle Wiggily didn't know what to do, but, all of a sudden, an army of swallows came flying from the puddle. Each one dropped a mud pill—thousands of mud bullets on the Bad Chaps.

"Wow! It's raining mud! Let's run away!" mewed the Bob Cat.

So the army of swallows drove the Bad Chaps away with mud pills.

And if the roller skates will play ring around the rosie with the skipping rope, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's bag.

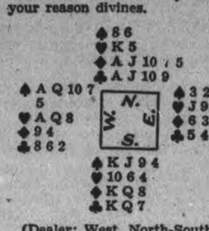
"The Authority on Authorities"

TRUST YOUR REASON

POWER TO reason out things is an essential to both bidding and play. When common sense says your partner had to have a certain card or cards in order to do what he did, have faith in your own mind. Act as if you have actually seen in his hand the very elements your reason divines.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

West opened the bidding on this deal with 1-Spade, North overcalled with 2-Diamonds, South bid 2-No Trumps and North rebid his clubs at three.

The deal arose in a duplicate and the South player who scored the top figured the hand was not worth 6-Clubs, because of the fact that a made would surely be led against the contract. He stopped to reason that if North was strong enough to make a vulnerable overcall and then bid a second suit, the contract was probably safe at no trump. North held in the minors just bare aces and West had bid spades. Therefore, the chances were that North held some protection in hearts.

A spade was led against the 3-No Trump contract, and South succeeded in making four.

Where five clubs was bid, the contract was off one trick.

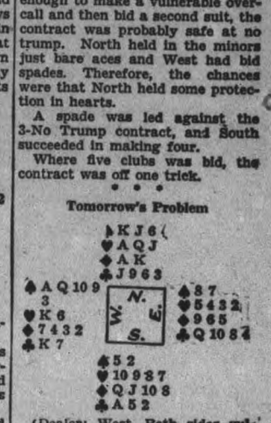
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West bid 1-Spade, North 1-No Trump, South 2 and North 3, what should East lead?

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, April 21.

THIS SHOUD be a very lively and exciting day, with much commotion and unexpected developments in connection with important interests, judging by interesting planetary aspects. Unusual progress may be made, despite some very tenacious obstacles or necessary breaking up of stubborn congestions. Travel, upheaval and new contacts may attend hard work, in which the support of friends may be counted upon.

If This is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a very productive year in stabilizing the future fortunes and establishing a happy life, although hard work, excitement, commotion and sudden change may be needed. Old congested conditions, obstacles and difficulties must be disposed of before definite progress may be made. There may be much merriment and happiness in connection with romance, social or youthful activities.

A child born on this day may be extremely versatile and ingenious, with much originality and creative ability in unusual expressions. It also may have social charms and cultural tendencies, with a romantic and lovable nature.

CRACKSMEN WARNED

TORONTO, April 20 — (CP). — Cracksmen who chopped a hole in the brick wall of the vault at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church were frightened away early today before they could enter the vault. A lookout evidently saw Constable Porter, who heard the chopping inside the church and went for additional police.

FROM GIRL TO WOMAN

GROWING girls are often sufferers from female irregularities, headache, backache or nervousness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the vegetable tonic to give your daughter at such times. Mrs. Gladys Steves, 16 Alexandra St., St. Catharines, Ont., said: "I felt terribly weak and nervous. I hardly ate anything and was underweight—I was miserable. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was the medicine that put me back in shape. After using it I gained several pounds, due I suppose to the fine appetite it gave me, I became much stronger and my nerves caused me very little trouble." Buy now of your druggist. Hostess Tea
Guides' Auxiliary

An attractive event Tuesday afternoon was the Hostess tea held in the basement of St. George's Church under the auspices of 3rd Company Girl Guides and the Mother's Auxiliary to the Guides.

Easter decorations in mauve and yellow were beautifully carried out in the tea room, and the whole scene was enhanced by the Easter lilies and other plants from the church.

Mrs. W. Carter, president of the auxiliary, received the guests. Tea was poured by Mrs. T. F. Groombridge and tea room assistants were Mrs. A. Sims, Mrs. R. Lawson, Mrs. D. Wood and Mrs. J. Douglas. The large table was covered with a lace cloth over a pretty foundation in shades of mauve and yellow, a silver basket held flowers and silver holders, candles in the same color scheme. Bouquets of flowers and pretty cloths decorated the individual tables.

During the afternoon the draw for a candlewick bedspread was made by the rector, the Rev. T. S. Gault, the lucky ticket being Number 157, owned by Miss Peggy Bassett.

An enjoyable program of music accompanied the tea hour and included vocal solos by Mrs. L. R. Groombridge, Vivian Carter, Leslie (Buddy) Groombridge, a duet by Mrs. Groombridge and W. Farr, and a piano solo by Ethel Sims. Piano accompanists were Mrs. J. Douglas, Mrs. R. King and Doreen Groombridge.

Many Attend
Easter W.M.S. Meeting

There was a splendid turnout of members at the Easter thankoffering meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society held in the church parlors Tuesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. A. Pilling, opened the meeting with the call to worship and prayer. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. A. Porteous and Mrs. Harris led in prayer.

Miss M. Moir read an interesting report of some of the sessions held each year at the Whitby Summer School for Leaders in Missionary Work. An interesting item from the missionary monthly was read by Mrs. W. Zeihr in which the appreciation felt in western drought areas for supplies from the east was expressed.

A splendid paper on missionary work was given by Mrs. J. Johnson, who took as her topic, material from the study book, "A New Church Faces a New World."

A slight deviation was made from usual practice when the dedicatory prayer following the offertory, was sung as a hymn by the meeting. During the afternoon a duet, "The Broken Heart" was beautifully sung by Mrs. S. Mitchell and Mrs. C. Telford, with piano accompaniment by Mrs. J. Johnson. Tea was served at the close.

Mrs. Wolstenholm
Entertains Mission Circle

The Easter meeting of the Living Link Mission Circle of Trinity Church, was held at the home of Mrs. J. A. Wolstenholm, 532 Bolivar street, with a good attendance of members.

Following the regular routine of business the program consisted of a portion of the study book for the year, given in an interesting manner, with Scripture and temperance items by members of the Circle. A beautiful solo, "I Love a Little Cottage" was sung by Mrs. A. Mitchell.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served by Miss Margaret Skitch and her group, from a table prettily arranged with spring flowers and Easter decorations.

Willoughby—Millyard

The marriage was solemnized in Hyatt Avenue United Church, London, Ont., on Friday afternoon, April 15, of Ruth Louise, daughter of the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of London, to Allan Clarence Willoughby, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Willoughby, also of London. The ceremony was performed by the bride's father, formerly pastor of George Street United Church, Peterborough. The wedding music was played by E. Harley.

The church was lovely for the occasion with Easter lilies, spring flowers, palms and ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

Given in marriage by her brother, Carman D. Millyard of Grimsby, the bride made a charming picture in her wedding gown of white suede lace over satin, with veil of embroidered net falling from a braided coronet of satin and net held in place by pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of Talisman roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

The bride's only attendant was her niece, Marilyn Millyard of Grimsby, who wore a quaint floor length gown of forget-me-not blue taffeta, with velvet trim and a Juliet cap of flowers and velvet. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Briarcliffe roses and sweetpeas.

The ushers were Harry Hartleib and Carman Finlay. The bride's sister, Mrs. L. A. Davies of Singpore and Harry Hartleib witnessed the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception and dinner was held at Glen Allen Villa, London, where the bride's mother, receiving, was gowned in orchid triple sheer with grey accessories, and the groom's mother also receiving wore blue triple sheer with navy accessories. The happy couple left later to spend their honeymoon in Detroit and other points, the bride travelling in a printed crepe dress with navy coat, hat, and accessories. They will reside in London South.

Port Hope Girl Winner Of Oratorical Contest

The Young People's Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church heard well delivered and excellent speeches, Tuesday evening from two contestants competing in the public speaking contest for the honors in the Peterborough Presbytery.

The winner was Vivian Jennings of Port Hope, who now becomes eligible to enter the districts competition at Toronto in May. From a given list of six subjects, Miss Jennings choose the religious topic, "Teach Me Thy Way," and gave her well-prepared address with quiet poise and sincerity. The other contestant was Hector McMillan of Campbellford, whose choice was "Agencies for Peace," for which he had prepared some splendid material which he gave clearly, but disposed of his subject a little too rapidly, and was finished long before the scheduled twelve minutes. Judges of the contest were the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, Mrs. George Coleman and W. Gordon. Timekeepers were Eric Shiner and Howard Macdonald.

Miss Marion Armstrong, president of St. Paul's Y.P.S., presided at the meeting, welcoming the visitors from Port Hope and Campbellford. During the opening exercises the Scripture lesson was read by Miss Elizabeth Walker, and Dr. Barr led in prayer.

Quoting the verses from which the title of her subject was taken, Miss Jennings asked, "What is the Lord's way?", and proceeded to show the shining and straight way along which Jesus is ready to guide. Nicodemus thought this was something could be learned in a moment, but we know differently, that our whole lives must be lived in love and fellowship with others, she said.

Break Down Barriers

The young speaker urged her listeners to break down the barriers that exist and do away with some of the present day sophistication, and be always true friends, following the example set by Christ who stands by all in their misfortunes.

The greed and desire for power that are causing the dark shadows and threatening horizons in Europe to-day are opposite to the way of Christ, the Prince of Peace. The different nations should be able to work in harmony like the black and white keys of the piano, she declared. An appeal to young people to remember they cannot be altogether happy without Christ, to have courage, and in spite of being called hypocrites by some, mix their good times with their religion, and be not afraid to give their hearts to Christ, closed the speaker's address.

Defends The League

"Agencies For Peace" in the troubled world of to-day, were discussed by Hector McMillan, who commenced with an eloquent defence of the League of Nations, as still an agency for peace with its representatives from many countries striving for amity between the nations.

The fundamental principles of Christian countries should be the establishment of peace and the preservation of open, honorable relations between nations, whose object should be to preserve the things considered essential without recourse to war, for in war as we know, there are no winners, he said.

Mr. McMillan cited the unfortified thousands of miles of border line between Canada and the United States as a wonderful example of existing peaceful conditions. The Boy Scouts with brother scouts found in 41 countries, and the Girl Guides, active in 30 countries; the Red Cross Society, and the great fraternal societies are all great peace promoting movements. "There are many agencies for peace," said the speaker, "but most important still is Christianity. And we need prayerful Christians to-day to forward the spirit of goodwill and understanding and help to bring everlasting peace." The speaker ended by quoting St. Paul's assurance to the Corinthians, ". . . Live in Peace, and the God of Love and Peace shall be with you."

Following the prepared addresses the youthful orators retired for ten minutes to compose three-minute impromptu speeches for which they were given a choice of six subjects. Miss Jennings chose, "The Benefits of a Young People's Society to the Local Church," as her topic and Hector McMillan spoke on "Why I Believe in Missions," both speakers collecting some good points in the short time given.

LOWERS RADIUM PRICE

The discovery of rich Arctic radium deposits several years ago has reduced the price of the substance from $70,000 to $25,000 per gram.

IN MEMORIAM

DOOGAN. — In fond and loving memory of a dear Wife and Grandmother, Mrs. J. R. Doogan, who passed away two years ago today.

We loved her, yes we loved her;
But Jesus loved her more;
And He has sweetly called her
To yonder shining shore.
The golden gates were opened,
His gentle voice said, "Come,"
And with farewells unspoken
She calmly entered Home.

—Sadly missed by Husband, John R. Doogan and Grandchildren, Lloyd, Bob, Jean and Elsie Doogan.

MILLION CHINESE READY FOR MAJOR SHANTUNG SCRAP

SHANGHAI, April 20—(AP). — In preparation for a new offensive in South Shantung Province where they have met with severe reverses, 6,000 Japanese reinforcements have arrived on the Yi River, four miles from Lini.

They fought their way overland, despite constant Chinese harrassment, from Tsingtao, Shantung port 130 miles away, airline distance.

Lini, 80 miles northeast of Suchow, rapidly was becoming the centre of a battle which military experts said might develop into a major engagement of the nine-months-old war. Another Japanese column was reported sweeping to the southeast of Lini.

Chinese sources said five fresh Japanese divisions had arrived in Shantung from Japan and Formosa, while 26 transports were unloading munitions.

Japanese aircraft carriers were reported stationed off the Shantung coast, presumably for a concerted air attack.

Million Chinese Ready.

On their part, Chinese commanders declared they were ready to send 1,000,000 soldiers into the battle. Already thousands of reinforcements have thrown up strong entrenchments along the Yi River line.

Better led and equipped than at any time since the conflict started, they were preparing to follow up recent successes in the hope of administering a major check, with Shantung Province and a great slice of Central China as the stake.

Meanwhile slashing guerrilla attacks continued upon Japanese garrisons on a dozen fronts, especially in the western province of Shansi, where withdrawal of Japanese garrisons to reinforce the Lini drive was costing them many towns and villages previously won by bloody sacrifice.

General Chiang Kai-Shek's commanders reported the recapture of a 20-mile stretch of the Grand Canal between Hanchwang and Taierhchwang, scene of the first major defeat administered to a modern Japanese army. Hanchwang, point of the southernmost advance of the Japanese, was retaken. 0

LINDSAY WOMAN HEADS L.O.B.A.

PORT HOPE, April 20.—Mrs. Jean Moore of Lindsay was elected grand mistress of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, Province of Ontario East, at the concluding session of the 19th annual convention here Thursday. Mrs. Algena Sword of Merrickville was elected deputy grand mistress.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Annie Tysick, Perth, junior deputy grand mistress; Miss Mabel Chapman, Ottawa, grand chaplain; Mrs. C. Young, Pembroke, grand lecturer; Mrs. Elizabeth Covert, Picton, grand deputy lecturer; Mrs. G. Campbell, Peterborough, grand deputy secretary; Miss Ethel Hirst, Cornwall, grand deputy treasurer; Mrs. R. G. Gillespie, Perth and Mrs. J. Anderson, Peterborough auditors; Mrs. Helen Navin, Cobourg, grand juvenile director; Mrs. V. Kirkham, Smiths Falls, immediate past grand mistress.

Blood Will Tell

If she can prove she has as much as a drop of Indian blood in her veins, Mrs. Margaret Mashunkashey, 25-year-old widow of a wealthy Osage Indian who died four years ago, will receive his $175,000 fortune. The Indian's will was rejected by the United States government under a law that prevents whites from inheriting from Indians except with approval of the department of the interior.

So Bad With Nerves Would Lie Down and Cry

It is generally admitted that nerve troubles are more frequent than formerly and growing more so every day.

Wherever there are people whose health is poor, and their nerves shattered, they will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills a tonic that will help to restore the deranged centres, and bring the nervous system back to its old time condition.

Mrs. K. M. Harvey, Bramber, N.S., writes:—"I got so bad with my nerves I would lie down on the bed and cry. Most of the time it just seemed I could not help it and would not know what I was crying for. I used to feel as if I would go crazy I was so bad.

I tried several different medicines, but received no relief. I then took Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills, four boxes of them, and started to feel better after the first few doses. Now I feel better in every way."

$20,000 In Cash Paid Indians

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 20, — (CP). — With Royal Canadian Mounted Police on guard, Indian Superintendent E. P. Randle to-day started payment of interest money to the Six Nation's Indians.

The amount, about $20,000, means a payment of $5 to every eligible Indian. It is paid out of fund entrusted to the Dominion Government by the Six Nations Indians from the proceeds of lands sold in earlier days to the Indians, who were orginally given six miles each side of the Ouse (now Grand) River from its mouth in Lake Erie to its source.

Only the Tuscarora Township lands are now left.

COUNTRY SCHOOL TREND SWINGING TO LARGER UNITS

TORONTO, April 20 — (CP). — Hon. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, told the trustee section of the Ontario Educational Association Tuesday that young people are drifting from the farms to such an extent that in some rural schools only a dozen or less pupils are attending.

"Be assured there will be no attempt to force on you a township unit of school administration, but I feel the trend in coming years will be toward larger units," he said.

"The small school of 8, 10 or 12 pupils is really the most expensive one. You cannot expect to get enriched courses in such a small school or to get a teacher able to teach music and special subjects."

Dr. Simpson said total cost of education in Ontario last year was $48,000,000, "up to the doors of the universities." Of that amount the Department of Education gave $11,273,000 of which $5,000,000 went to Public and Separate schools in grants.

He said the system of grants was being changed and it was hoped help could be given where it was most needed.

Not Getting Money's Worth

"With the present overcrowded conditions the paying public does not a run for its money," W. A. Porter of Scarboro Collegiate Institute, president of the natural science section, said in an address on "The New Science Course From the Standpoint of Agriculture."

"We have eight classes in seven classrooms. These conditions are not satisfactory to the pupils either. They tend to become discouraged and leave school. Our teachers are overworked, some teaching every period of the day, and the Department seems to close its eyes to the conditions."

Porter said he believes some of the new projects "are worked to death. Too much time is spent in aimless pottering."

BARCELONA CITY TROOPS MUTINY

PERPIGNAN, France, April 20 —(AP).—Travellers reaching France from across the Spanish border said to-day mutiny had broken out among Government troops in the Barcelona bararcks.

The reports were brought across the border at Le Perthus and could not be confirmed at once. They said part of the newly-organized troops quartered in the Carcelona seminary and Barceloneta and Vergara baracks had refused to go to the front.

Nearly 800 officers and soldiers were occupying several buildings under machine-gun fire from loyal troops, it was said.

The insurgent army invading North Catalonia marched through the valley of Aran toward the French border, occupying village after village. French officials expected the insurgents to reach the border to-night or to-morrow. They drove back 1,000 government militiamen who had counter-attacked at Bonaigua mountain at the valley's entrance.

Women Train For New York Police Force

Eleven hundred women have answered New York's call for more policewomen and are now in active training to fit themselves for the rigors of entrance examinations to the female police force of the metropolis. Mary Ellis, one of the applicants, is shown turning the tables on Instructor Joe Gunther. She is giving Gunther the "back throw," so popular in subduing unruly prisoners.

Double Family Stork Visits Stir Up Lively Relationshp Tangle

Waltham, Mass., April 20 (AP). NURSES AT Waltham hospital kept their toes today to keep the Defina family straightened out on the matter of grandmother, daughters, granddaughters and daughters-in-law.

Domestic complications stated Sunday when Mrs. John Defina, 43, of Waltham, gave birth to a baby girl—her eighth child.

Six hours later, she became a grandmother when her daughter-in law, Mrs. Joseph Defina, 22, of Boston, became the mother of a daughter in a room just a short distance away.

All of which makes the first baby the sister-in-law of the second mother and the aunt (in-law) of the second baby—and so on.

APRIL 20

Fifty years ago today, on April 20, 1888, the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada was founded at Ottawa. Representatives of Anglican, Baptist, Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian churches gathered in the city hall of the capital and decided the time had come for the churches to make a stern fight against the inroads upon the sanctity of the Canadian Sabbath. Thus the alliance was formed and ever since it has worked hard through the churches and in and out of parliament to attain its object.

Fred Williams

It had laws placed upon the statute books of the Dominion and the provinces, which worked well for a time; but I am afraid that if the founders of the alliance could look upon the Canada of today they would wonder what had come over their country. The motor car with its disruption of Sunday was then unknown. Golf on Sunday, if played at all, was under cover. There were no Sunday theatres, even in Montreal or Quebec, where a few sacred concerts and political meetings were the only distractions.

Some may consider the 50 years' work of the alliance has gone for little. But, different as the situation is in Canada now to what it was in 1888, we must all admit that, careless though some of us have become about Sunday, especially in summer, we have escaped the "wide open Sunday" of our cousins to the south. A visit to any border city affords the living proof that, despite many difficulties, the Lord's Day Alliance has been of great value to this country. During this year the alliance will celebrate its jubilee and will endeavor to bring back to Canadians the necessity of conserving our Sabbath, both for religious and national reasons.

On this date 30 years ago a French-Canadian member of Sir John Macdonald's cabinet died, Sir A. P. Caron, minister of militia. It might be said of him that he became a knight by pure accident, for it was only the circumstances that he her ded the militia department during the second Riel rebellion that made him "Sir Adolphe." It was a doubtful compliment so far as Caron was concerned, especially in Quebec which styled him one of the "hangmen of Regina" and pilloried him because he had attended a banquet at Winnipeg on the eve of the day originally set for Riel's execution. He managed to retain his seat for Quebec county in 1887 but did not again face his electors and lived in retirement to his death.

TAILOR SHOP RAID NETS GANG $3,150

TORONTO, April 20 — (CP). — Cracksmen escaped with $3,150 in money and cheques early today after breaking into the Yonge street store of Tip Top Tailors and rifling the safe. The combination of the old-type safe was ripped out. A policeman discovered the robbery after finding a rear door broken open.

The store was not closed until 11 p.m. when William Bracken and C. Malin, the last two employes to leave, locked the doors. Forty minutes later, Constable William Wilson found the rear door open. During the interval the thieves had forced the rear door, knocked the combination off, punched the combination works out of the safe door and made their escape with the money.

The sum stolen represented takings for Saturday to Monday. All but $300 was in cash. The rest was in marked cheques.

MURDERED TWIN BABY

Following the primitive native ritual of killing one baby when twins are born, a native in Nabomspruit, South Africa, has been arrested, charged with murder.

U.S. INACTIVE GOLD ACCOUNT CLOSES

WASHINGTON, April 20—(CP). —The United States Treasury's "inactive gold account," emptied by last Thursday's decision to use the $1,182,000,000 fund to boost bank credit and to help finance the new recovery program, was formally abolished to-day.

Prior to last week the metal had been "sterilized" — segregated in such a manner that it could not be utilized for credit expansion.

Treasury Secretary Morgenthau announced last night, however, that the Treasury might return to partial sterilization should there be any sudden rush of gold to the United States from abroad.

Because of market holidays, there has not yet been a clear-cut reaction in foreign capitals to the United States new gold policy.

If foreigners should suddenly withdraw their funds from the United States, a deflationary effect would be forthcoming. It was intimated the Treasury would like to have a fund of gold on hand to offset such a contingency.

The Treasury apparently would sterilize only a part of any incoming gold. Morgenthau said this could be placed in the general fund or in the $2,000,000,000 stabilization fund.

The stabilization fund is the initial purchaser of foreign metal and can hoard it without reducing the cash held on hand to meet day-to-day Government expenses.

Morgenthau made plain that he was not committing himself to any one policy, that developments would govern the Treasury as specific needs arose.

U.S. SENATE FIGHTS OVER ADDING 950 NEW NAVY PLANES

WASHINGTON, April 20—(AP). Senate opponents of the $1,156,000,000 United States Naval Expansion Bill attempted to-day to kill an authorization for 950 additional navy airplanes.

Chairman Walsh (Dem., Massachusetts) of the Senate Naval Committee, starting debate on the floor, expressed confidence, however, of overwhelming approval.

Senator Nye (Rep., North Dakota), one of the principal foes, contended that the navy's 2,050 planes are sufficient and that land-based aircraft are more effective for defence purposes.

"If new airplanes are built, they should be constructed for the army which has an air force to guard our coast and naval bases," Nye declared.

A proposed minority report from the Naval Committee cited testimony by Major General O. Westover, Chief of the Army Air Corps, that an increase in naval aircraft would "seriously disturb the existing distribution of the nation's aerial resources."

$35,000,000 Over Estimates

Senator Bone (Dem., Washington), a member of the committee, said he was preparing some "observations" on the financial outlay. The Senate committee increased the authorization $35,000,000 over the $1,121,000,000 approved by the House of Representatives.

Bone asserted that sufficient construction would be possible under the present Vinson-Trammell Act to bring the navy up to defence requirements.

As approved by the Senate Committee, the bill authorizes construction of 46 warships, including three 45,000-ton battleships, two 20,000-ton aircraft carriers, nine cruisers, 23 destroyers, and nine submarines.

It also would provide for 26 auxiliary vessels and 950 airplanes, as well as authorizing expenditure of $8,000,000 on navy yard equipment and $15,000,000 for experiments on small, fast harbor defence boats.

Using an old penknife which he found on a rubbish pile, F. Ratcliffe of Runcorn, England, has made a three-foot model of the Queen Mary complete in detail.

Two Dionne Girls Enter Convent

QUEBEC, April 20 (CP). — Two sisters of the Dionne quintuplets are on their way to Quebec to enter the old convent of the Ursuline Sisters as pupils, the Roman Catholic institution's sister superior said today.

The two Dionne girls, whose names were not yet known to the convent authorities, were expected to arrive today in charge of nurses bringing them from the Dionne home at Callander, Ont.

The superior said she thought the two children would remain in the convent as boarding pupils until the end of the school term in June.

LYNCHING DECLINING IN U.S.

Although approximately 5,000 lynchings have been reported in U.S. history, the total for 1937 was merely eight.

HERE IT IS THE 25TH OF MAY! HAVE YOU SAVED ANY MONEY THIS MONTH?

Some time ago you made a resolution to save a certain sum each month. But did you keep your resolution?

If you did, congratulations! But if you did not, you have only demonstrated a natural human characteristic. There are hundreds of forces influencing you to spend, but only yourself urging you to save. And one day of spending, one single big purchase, may nullify months or years of careful saving.

One great advantage of the Imperial Life way of saving is that it actually does work. In the vast majority of cases Imperial policyholders do just what they resolved to do. They deposit the stipulated amounts and then they, or their dependents, receive all savings plus interest at the time they need it most.

Besides, this method protects your loved ones right from the first deposit for the full amount you plan to save.

"Financial Security through Life Insurance", by Paul Speicher, an international authority, is an interesting book which should be read by everyone who plans to provide financial security for himself and family. Your local Imperial Life representative will make a copy available to you without cost.

HAILE SELASSIE TO APPEAL ANEW BEFORE LEAGUE

Will Send Representatives To Embarrassing Session

GENEVA, April 21.—(CP-Havas).—Emperor Haile Selassie, ousted as ruler of Ethiopia by the Italian conquest, will send a representative to the League of Nations Council opening May 9, he notified the League secretariat to-day. Great Britain has asked the League to take steps to settle the Ethiopian question at this session.

Troublesome, delicate questions have piled up for council. Switzerland, seeking further guarantees of her neutrality and freedom from League obligations, drafted a request that the council place the question of her "integral neutrality" on the agenda.

Already embarrassment was promised the council by the demand of the Barcelona government of Spain the session take up the question of foreign intervention in the Spanish civil war.

In keeping with her promise to Italy in the Anglo-Saxon pact signed at Rome last Saturday, Great Britain is seeking to open the way for recognition of the Ethiopian conquest by League members. France is expected to follow Britain's lead.

LOOT IN BANK RAID REVEALED $4,000

TORONTO, April 21 (CP). — Officials of the Dominion Bank of Canada announced to-day a check-up had disclosed $4,000 was taken from the bank's branch at Danforth and Leyton Avenues yesterday by two armed men who held up the branch staff. First check showed $2,000 was stolen.

Police were without a clue to assist their search for the gunmen who escaped in a stolen car. Two officers in a cruiser car, chasing a stolen car when they were called to the holdup scene, said the machine they were chasing was not the one in which the bandits fled.

A stolen car believed to have been used in the holdup was recovered last night in Scarborough Township, on the eastern outskirts of Toronto.

TRUSTEES SHELVE TOPIC OF FRENCH

TORONTO, April 21 (C.P.). — By a vote of 71-62, trustees and ratepayers' section of Ontario Educational Association tabled for a year to-day a resolution that instruction in French be given English-speaking children in certain areas.

Before the question was shelved delegates argued long and loud that a previous vote taken on the question, favoring tabling the question 51-50, was not counted properly. The final vote was taken as the meeting threatened to break up in disorder.

The motion came from Prescott and Russell Trustees' Association, and urged that in certain sections of Ontario where the population is mostly French-speaking "it is absolutely essential that English-speaking children become bilingual."

Delegates urged that the motion be placed at the head of the list for discussion next year.

SAFE DRIVERS' SCHOOL

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 21—(AP)—City Judge George W. Woltz to-day considered a proposal to sentence traffic law violators to a safe drivers school conducted by the police department. Police Commissioner Glenn H. McClellan suggested violators be sentenced to attend the school which is held at night for one month.

THIRD SET OF TEETH

SUTTON, Ont., April 21—(CP)—John M. Riddell celebrated his 90th birthday today by displaying part of his third set of teeth, now cutting 40 years after he lost his second set. The back teeth started coming in December and he is confident the front teeth will follow.

Set Study Course For Schools Thing Of Past

Ideal Situation is Teachers of Such Character No Study Program Needed, Says Chief Inspector

TORONTO, April 21 (CP).—V. K. Greer, chief inspector of Public Schools, told that section of the Ontario Educational Association today that the new course of studies in Ontario schools has been offered as a tentative one, not the final word in study courses.

"There probably never will be a final program," he said, "as it will no doubt change from time to time. What the Department (of Education) wants is for you to try it out for a year and then give us your comments, favorable if possible."

The ideal situation would be to have teachers of such a character that no program of studies would be needed, the inspector said. The course is secondary to the teachers.

SIX MINE INJURED ARE GIVEN CHANCE AFTER LONG DROP

PORT ARTHUR, April 21 (CP).—As doctors fought today to save the lives of six men injured yesterday in the 800-foot plunge of a cage in a Northern Empire Gold Mine shaft they praised courage and skill of the woman who assisted them in the baggage car-hospital of the special train that brought the injured here from Beardmore.

Joe Barr, 25, was killed when the cage hurtled with its load of seven men from the 600-foot to 1,400-foot level as the mine shifts were changing. By some miracle the other six survived. Prompt medical care aided them.

Dr. J. S. Hogg, mine physician, descended to the 1,400-foot level to administer emergency treatment. Dr. Norman Sutton, physician of Beardmore, 128 miles northeast of here, received the injured as they were brought to the surface, and prepared them for the train trip to Port Arthur and hospital care.

Woman Is Lauded.

Both doctors praised the work of Mrs. Joe Harrison, registered nurse and wife of a Northern Empire miner, who assisted them at the mine and accompanied them on the four-hour trip here by special Canadian National Railways train.

HIT-RUN SUSPECT GIVEN REMAND

BRANTFORD, Ont., April 21. — (CP).— Robert Atfield, 23, Paris, charged with criminal negligence and leaving the scene of an accident in which George Hambleton, 88, Paris, was seriously injured last Saturday night, appeared in court to-day and was remanded a week.

The case, it was believed, will be proceeded with next Thursday in Paris police court before Magistrate S. A. Jones, Brantford.

Considerable interest in the disposition of the rewards offered for the first information and conviction of the hit-and-run driver who knocked down Mr. Hambleton has been showed by citizens of both Paris and Brantford. It was pointed out that the rewards offered were for the arrest and conviction of the driver and as yet no conviction in the case has been made. If there is any disposition of the rewards, it will be announced when a conviction has been registered in court.

ARABS AMBUSH TWO BRITISHERS

JERUSALEM, April 21 (CP-Havas)—Two British soldiers were ambushed and killed by terrorists today near Jenin, 50 miles north of here. They had just left their barracks at the village of Umn el Fahm.

The killings occurred as Jewish and Arab hunger strikes were staged at Jerusalem and Acre. Thirty Jews in a Jewish community centre here entered the fourth day of their strike in an effort to obtain immigration permits for members of their families living abroad.

Arabs in the concentration camp at Acre also went on a hunger strike in an effort to regain their liberty. The wives of the prisoners demonstrated in front of Government buildings at Haifa.

Ten Arab terrorists were killed yesterday in clashes with Royal Air Force units and police in the Telemal and Beisan regions.

DURHAM COUNTY BOY TOP ORATOR

TORONTO, April 21 (C.P.). — Raymond Gilmour, Durham County farm boy from Clarke, won the public speaking contest for school children at to-day's session of the Trustees' section at the Ontario Educational Association Convention.

The only boy speaker to win a prize, young Gilmour won the trophy and a set of books with "I Want to Be a Good Canadian Citizen" as his address theme.

Seond prize was won by Nancy Duncan of Vineland. Dorothy Durant of Vanleek Hill was third, Margaret Threasher of Bolsover fourth, and Irene Leslie of Acton fifth.

NO NEGLECTED RIDINGS

REGINA, April 21 (CP)—Saskatchewan Social Crediters will contest every riding in the province on a "straight Social Credit ticket," the provincial executive of the Saskatchewan Social Credit League decided yesterday. Forty-four directors attended the meeting at which plans for a provincial election campaign were laid.

Ford Has No Tips For Roosevelt

Also Has No Axe to Grind at Parley With Roosevelt Set for Wednesday—'Back-to-Farm' Cure for U.S. Ills

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP).—The White House announced today President Roosevelt had invited Henry Ford to an informal luncheon conference with him next Wednesday. Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, said the invitation was sent to the automobile manufacturer by telegraph last night to Boston where Ford is visiting.

The telegram also said if the elder Ford desired he might bring along his son, Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company and W. J. Cameron, public relations advisor.

It was expected the three would talk over business conditions with the President, although no subject was mentioned in the invitation.

Ford Has No Axe to Grind.

SUDBURY, Mass., April 21 (A.P.)—Henry Ford, Detroit industrialist, to-day revealed plans for a discussion of "business conditions" with President Roosevelt, but asserted he would enter the conference with no axe to grind.

The multi-millionaire automobile maker said at his wayside inn estate he did not intend to give any "advice." At the same time, however, he left no doubt of his own views. His solution of present-day problems would be an expansion of the "back-to-the-farm" movement.

"If people do not raise their own food," he asserted, "they will have to have a dictator to tell them to do it."

In his opinion, the "farm is the thing that will save the country." "In no other way can we raise the money. The farms to-day must provide for industry. "As an example I am going to cultivate every foot of the whole acreage here, right away."

Ford added his "panacea" for anything was "work."

"This entire land is just yearning for young men to go to work in it. That's all a young fellow needs today, the habit of work. Once he gets the habit, he'll find his own work."

Ford said, smiling as he chatted, that he wanted to shake hands with the President 'as an old friend" and have a chat with him. He said: "I want to give the President a chance to look at somebody who doesn't want anything."

ELIZABETH NOW 12 GETS "GROWN UP"

LONDON, April 21 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth on her 12th birthday put aside childish things today and became a royal personage. For the first time she received congratulations and greetings in official form from the Dominions and the Colonies.

For the first time the little girl, who one day may be Queen, assumed a public office—president of the Children's League of Princess Elizabeth of York Hospital for Children at Shadwell.

Her party at Buckingham Palace was pronounced a success, although a trifle more formal than in previous years The Princess made out the guest list.

She got her cue for "grown up manners" by having breakfast with father and mother and their guests, instead of in the nursery with her younger sister, Princess Margaret, as is customary.

ROME 2,691 YEARS OLD

ROME, April 21 (AP)—Italy today celebrated the 2691st birthday of Rome—founded in 754 B.C., according to legend—with nationwide inauguration services for public works and awarding of labor prizes.

Reorganization Coming But Gradual

Inspector's "Job" Looking for a Man, Conant Reveals, Two Men Mentioned Will Not Get the Position

TORONTO, April 21 (CP).—Chief Inspector John Miller of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario Provincial Police closes 43 years of police activity tomorrow night. And in the words of Attorney General Gordon Conant, "His job is looking for a man."

With appointment of a successor to Inspector Miller who has served the Ontario force for 31 years, there will be gradual re-organization of the force, the Attorney General said, "so as to effect a maximum of efficency."

No drastic "shake-up" has been planned but Mr. Conant said such changes will be made as are indicated by a close study of the whole situation. Major General V. A. S. Williams will remain Commissioner of Provincial Police "for the present at least," the Attorney General said, and a successor to Inspector Miller will be chosen "as soon as the right man appears."

"This is a case where a job is looking for a man." he explained as he indicated that two police officers who have been mentioned for the post would not obtain the appointment. Willam Stringer, Deputy Fire Marshall who preceded Inspector Miller as head of the C.I.B., would not be reappointed, Mr. Conant said.

Neither was Alex Murray, one time Chief of Toronto detectives, being considered, he said.

Boyd to Act—Temporarily.

Pending appointment of a new Chief Inspector, the Attorney-General said Inspector Al Boyd, senior inspector in the Criminal Investigation Branch, would be in charge "nominally." There is no intention of making the appointment permanent, he said.

While he explained that he was giving "serious consideration to ways and means of improving the efficiency of our police force in every department," the Attorney-General said no details had yet been worked out. He would depend to a large extent, he said, on the recommendations of the new Chief Inspector. Although Mr. Conant emphasized the claims officers at present serving on the force would be given consideration, it was possible that the new head of the C.I.B. would be an "outsider."

"We are still looking for the right man. We have made no choice," he said.

"DERELICT" BEST PLAY

SASKATOON, April 21 (CP) — With a performance of Phillip Johnson's "Derelict," the Regina Masquers Club won the award for the best play presented in the first high school drama festival held in Saskatchewan. Twelve plays were entered in the three-day festival. Walter T. Read, Regina adjudicator, said the standard achieved by the junior players was comparable to the best he had seen in the province.

TRANSVAAL GOLD UP

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, April 21 — (CP-Reuters). — The monthly output in the Transvaal gold mines exceeded 1,000,000 ounces during March for the first time in history. The total was 1,012,516 ounces, valued at £7,062,299 ($35,311,495).

NEEDS TO GOVERN INCREASES GIVEN IN SCHOOL GRANTS

TORONTO, April 21 — (CP). — Any increases in grants by the Ontario Department of Education to school boards in the province would be based on needs of various communities, Dr. Duncan McArthur, Deputy Minister of Education in Ontario, said last night in an address to the High School Principals' section of the Ontario Educational Association.

In his address, the Deputy Minister spoke of a "reasonable assurance" given a general meeting of the association the night before by Hon. Dr. L. J .Simpson, that school grants would be $1,200,000 higher this year than last.

Principal object of the increase was reduction of school tax rates, he said. It was essential strict attention should be paid to ability of taxpayers to maintain education.

A new method of caring for secondary education costs of county pupils not residing in a secondary school area was announced by Dr. McArthur during his address. In future the county would bear one-half of the cost and the municipality in which the pupil resided the remainder.

One of Three Courses

A new program of studies for pupils entering Grade X, second year in high school, was placed before the College and Secondary School Department of the Association. The program would allow pupils to choose one of three classes: Industrial, Household Arts or Commercial. Latitude would be allowed in choice of text books.

In his address, Dr. McArthur said a scarcity of teachers was increasing in the province and school boards would have to give adequate remuneration to obtain good instructors. But earlier in the day the Rural Trustees Section of the association refused to adopt a motion increasing minimum salaries from $500 to $700.

Two young girl teachers pleaded for adoption of the motion, defeated 2-1, despite the plea of one of them: "Some of you men can't see past a 25-cent piece. All some men can say is, 'Our taxes are going up.' They do not see what the teacher is up against."

SOPWITH THROUGH?

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 21 (AP)—T. O. H. Sopwith, twice unsuccessful challenger for the America's Cup, sees no prospect of Britain challenging again for the famous international yachting trophy for many years.

"Under no circumstances will I make another attempt with Endeavour II," said Sopwith on his return from New York yesterday.

FEAR 800 DEAD AS EARTHQUAKE SHAKES TURKEY

50,000 Homeless Spend Night of Terror in Open

ANKARA, Turkey, April 21 (AP).—The Anatolia earthquake toll of dead and missing rose to at least 800 today after a night of continuing shocks which 50,000 homeless spent in terror. The 'quakes were felt first Tuesday.

Underground rumblings were accompanied by intermittent earthshocks over a wide area of Western Asia bordering the Aegean Sea, and especially about Kirshehr, Yozgad and Tchorum.

Panic-stricken refugees fled from crevices full of boiling water.

Eighteen villages were destroyed and 22 others damaged. Families were buried under mountainous debris. Most of the victims were women and children, as nearly all the men in the villages were working in the fields at the time of the most serious shocks.

Some of the country's most productive agricultural districts were affected. The Red Crescent, a relief organization similar to the Red Cross, mobilized relief workers and doctors to give aid.

GUELPH TRIP COST McINTOSH $19,808

TORONTO, April 21.—(CP). —A financial report on Homewood sanitarium was requested to-day by C. L. Snyder at resumption of the government-ordered inquiry into affairs of the institution.

J. W. Pickup, counsel for Homewood, promised the statement would be produced later in the day.

R. J. Dawson, Montreal chartered accountant, explained details of Angus McIntosh's financial affairs, McIntosh, wealthy Montreal importer and former patient at Homewood, was a witness when the inquiry sat here for two days several weeks ago. He has charged he was held in Homewood illegally.

A statement was filed showing expenditures paid by curators of McIntosh's estate during the 27-month period he was in the institution averaged $349.55 a month, a total of $9,554. Total amount paid out of his estate during that period was $19,808, it was shown.

Mr. Pickup objected to presentation of McIntosh's accounts as irrelevant to the inquiry. Mr. Barlow accepted the document in evidence after Mr. Snyder declared an account showing $19,800 paid out of the estate of a man who claimed he was wrongfully detained in a mental hospital certainly was relevant.

One of the items in the account was for $6,281 to a Montreal legal firm, Dawson testified. He said besides these other sums, Mrs. McIntosh obtained $34,000 from her husband's capital account during the time he was in the sanitarium from July 1934 to November 1937.

PREPARING AHEAD BLOCKS ACCIDENTS

WINDSOR, Ont., April 21.—(CP). —Accidents are not prevented at meetings nor at safety conventions, R. B. Morley, general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, told the organization's annual convention here to-day.

"It is what we learn and plan at safety meetings that will help us prevent accidents afterward," he said. "The industrial plant that is prepared for accidents can, in many cases, forestall that accident. Preparation by having proper first aid equipment is also called for, not only by the Workmen's Compensation Board but by ordinary common sense."

COUNCIL BARS CATS

CHATHAM, Ont., April 21.—(CP). —Cats may look at kings, but not at Chatham's city council. One cat in the city council chamber the other night slept so soundly his snores disturbed bed council members, so he was chased out. Now cats are banned from the council chamber.

Picket Strategy Evens Score In Old Gambling Feud

Road Hogs Get Tip From Magistrate

Rimouski, Que., April 21 (CP).

MAGISTRATE Antonio Couillard of this St. Lawrence south shore town is going one better than Montreal and Toronto authorities in their drive to make highways safer for cane motorists.

When the Judge sentenced a near-by St. Moise resident today to eight days' imprisonment for drunken driving not only did he promise severe punishment for similar offenders, but he warned also "road-hogs" could expect no leniency from him.

"Small Men" Use Sandwich Sign To Advertise "Big Shot" Hangout

MONTREAL, April 21 (CP). — Feuding between a couple of Montreal gambling elements was in the open today, suddenly publicized by one of those sandwich-board pickets.

Last night the picket walked up and down the city's busiest intersection, St Catherine and Peel Streets, his sign proclaiming: "Grand opening! Dice game. Roulette. Wide open and fully protected." It gave a nearby address.

Pedestrians gasped and wondered —and some, maybe, were a little flustered. The opposition was gaining the upper hand. But no one touched the picket and soon he just disappeared.

Some time ago, it seems, Montreal's gambling rooms were cleaned up by police and those automatically thrown out of work had to organize a "floating game" to keep going. As the game moved from place to place to avoid surveillance, some of the other operators who had managed to stay secretly in business began to harass the new organization.

So when the "big shots" opened up again, the proprietors of the floating game sought reprisal. They found it last night through the medium of the sandwich board.

J.P. Uses Whitney's 5 Years As Pattern, Gives 24 Minutes For $2 Theft

St. Louis, April 21 (AP).

GEORGE JAMERSON, 27, pleaded guilty before Louis L. Hicks, Justice of the Peace, of stealing $2 from a gasoline filling station.

Cautioning Jamerson he could expect leniency only because it was his first offense, Mr. Hicks said yesterday:

"Some people think there's one law for the rich and another for the poor, but we'll correct that right now."

Taking paper and pencil, the justice figured for a minute and then said:

"Richard Whitney got five years for stealing about $225,000. That would be about $45.000 a year, $120 a day and $5 an hour. You stole $2. That would be 24 minutes and that is your sentence."

Jamerson spent the 24 minutes in custody of the sheriff.

Diphtheria, Smallpox Toxoid Drive Due For North

McGhie Wants Every Child Checked Before End Of School Term

TORONTO, April 21—(CP)— An intensive drive for toxoiding against diphtheria and vaccination against smallpox in Northern Ontario areas was announced today by Dr. B. T. McGhie, deputy minister of health.

Dr. R. P. Hardman and Dr. William Morsley, both of the Department of Health, will be in charge with headquarters at Sudbury and Fort William, respectively. The plan, according to Dr. McGhie, is to check every child in the north country between now and the end of the school term, through co-operation with educational authorities.

"In unorganized areas the department will take charge itself," Dr. McGhie said. "Our representatives will be in full charge of the administration and the actual work will be done through local physicians, wherever possible."

JAPS NAB BOMBER

SHANGHAI, April 21—(CP-Havas).—Japanese consular police today arrested a Chinese on the International Settlement Bund. They said he was carrying a bomb and took him to the Japanese-controlled section of the city.

Forger Deducts Tax To Show Honesty

Jamestown, N.Y., April 21 (AP).

POLICE WERE on the trail today of a "conscientious" cheque forger. Six local businessmen said they cashed forged pay cheques for $23.76 each, from which the forger had carefully deducted the 1 per cent social security tax. The cheques were made payable by a Jamestown industrial concern.

Police Storm Hobo Sandpit Fortress And Arrest 4 In Dawn Battle

London, Ont., April 21 (CP).

STORMING a hobo stronghold—a barricaded railway boarding car—Canadian National Railway police today arrested a transient quartet, which in county police court was ordered jailed until police probed their records.

Beyond saying they were being held for investigation, police were reticent concerning the four taken into custody after an early-morning battle on a siding at the sandpits in London township.

Formally charged with trespassing on railway property, the four were remanded by Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw until April 28.

The four arrested were Stephen Thomas, 62, Brantford, laborer, Earl Ferguson, 49, of Thornbury, a laborer, Patrick Donovan, 25, Sault Ste. Marie, and Allen Crossley, aged 49, Galt, also a laborer.

Publisher Denies Bribe Charge

Claims Hamilton Woman Brought Accusation As Surprise on Asking Her Opinion in Gas Case

HAMILTON, Ont., April 21 (CP).—Complete personal disinterest in the gas company was professed yesterday by Mark Lynch-Staunton, weekly newspaper publisher, as he denied charges by Controller Nora F. Henderson he offered her a lifetime job if she would withdraw her opposition to a gas franchise measure now before city council. His remarks were misconstrued and he had no intention of offering a bribe, he testified at a judicial inquiry.

Judge E. F. Lazier will continue the inquiry tomorrow morning when C. W. Reid Bowlby, K.C., counsel for Lynch-Staunton will be heard. City solicitor A. J Polson, K.C., who conducted the probe, will have all evidence transcribed meanwhile and will review it at the adjoured hearing.

Miss Henderson told the inquiry Lynch-Staunton made an offer virtually bribing me to change my position (on the gas question) in exchange for a job." The first witness, the controller said the publisher threatened to "break" her when she refused the offer she said was made.

Just Wanted Her View.

Lynch-Staunton said he interviewed Miss Henderson 'as a newspaper publisher" to get "her viewpoint" on the gas question. "Much to my surprise she jumped up during the discussion and said, 'You're trying to bribe me. I've been waiting for this a long time' and I told her not to dare say that for she was putting words into my mouth," continued Lynch-Staunton. "It was a pleasant conversation until she said I was trying to bribe her. I was mad after that and it is hard to recall what I did say."

T. Pates Pinckard, vice-president and general manager of the United Gas and Fuel Company, testified his company was not involved in any way and that Lynch-Staunton had not been authorized directly or indirectly to make any interview. "There's been considerable drama here to-day," Pinckard remarked. "We are the only ones to suffer from what has occurred. I am satisfied there was no ulterior motive."

The gas company's request for council's consent to acquire the distribution system here of Dominion Natural Gas Company has been shelved until the inquiry is concluded.

Crosby Divorced

Everett N. Crosby, brother and manager of Bing Crosby, was divorced from his wife, Naomi, after testifying that he was afraid that his "throat was going to be cut." He declared that he objected to Mrs. Crosby's alleged drinking—and told of his wife hitting him in the face with a shoe. Under terms of a property settlement, Crosby was awarded custody of their 8-year-old daughter, Mary Sue, while she is in school. During vacations, custody will be divded.

ON LIGHT DIET

ROME—(CP).—Eating plums and reading his newspaper, a man in Naples picked up a small electric light bulb and swallowed it. X-rays showed the bulb intact in his stomach. It was removed.

WESTERN ONTARIO ASKS 40,000 FISH

LONDON, Ont., April 21 (C.P.).—As part of a campaign to stock Western Ontario waters, application has been made by the Western Ontario Fish and Game Protective Association to the Provincial Game and Fisheries Branch for 40,000 to 50,000 fish to be delivered within the next few months, officials of the association announced last night.

North and south branches of the Thames River will be stocked with from 30,000 to 40,000 small-mouth black bass fingerlings and parent fish, and the association has applied for 1,000 brown trout to be supplied to streams north of London. It is expected about 500 pike, ranging from two to five pounds will be transferred from Mitchell's Bay to the Western Ontario Fish Preserve in Westminster Township before the summer season.

An address, accompanied by color films was presented by William Lang, noted Canadian sportsman and angler, at a meeting of the association here last night. Pictures were also shown of Algonquin Park, and of how eight and ten-pound lake trout are caught on spoons, plugs and spinners with light tackle and the snaring of speckled trout on flies.

MARMORAN HURT BY TIRE BLOWOUT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 21.—Mr. Earl McGregor of Marmora suffered severe facial and scalp injuries which necessitated his removal to Belleville General Hospital when a blowout of a front tire forced his car out of control into a stone fence. The accident occurred some four miles south of Tweed.

The injured man was accompanied by Miss Leona Christie of Ivanhoe and Miss Margaret Fluke of Thomasburg, who were slightly injured, and Mr. Ronald Fluke, who was uninjured. First aid was given at the office of Dr. Harold Welsh, M.P.P., Roslin, and the young ladies were able to return to their homes.

FRANCO RENEWS MADRID ASSAULT

HENDAYE, France, April 21. — (AP).—Spanish insurgents are striking with sudden force at the weakened defences of Madrid and have driven back the government lines in the western outskirts of the long-besieged city.

Insurgent reports reaching the border disclosed that the dormant central front again was active, with "a large part" of the government their way forward in Madrid's suburban west park.

An insurgent communique said "a large part' 'of the government advance line had been cut.

The' new theatre of operataions was linked directly with the insurgent drive along the Mediterranean toward Castellon De La Plana and Valencia. The rapid insurgent drive in that sector caused General Joe Miaja to draw many of his veteran government units from the Madrid front and hurry them into the fight 190 miles to the east.

The withdrawal was covered by government attacks to make the insurgents believe the defences which have protected Madrid for a year and a half were as strong as ever.

The ease with which the attacks were repulsed, however, gave Miaja's tactics away, and the insurgents pressed their advantage.

The new offensive had two objectives:

1. To capture at last Madrid, now that its defenders have been reduced.

2. To force Miaja to recall troops from the Castellon front, permitting the coastal drive to continue with a minimum of resistance.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

Five-cent drop in No. 1 Northern cash wheat spread encouraged scattered wheat futures' liquidation today. Opening gains of almost a cent were wiped out with Winnipeg futures closing 1¼ to ⅛ cent lower, May $1 24⅜, July $1.14, and October 90¼ to ½ cents.

Lack of demand for top grades of Red Springs revealed the most unusual phase of wheat dealings here this year. Instead exporters sought Durums, the macaroni-making product, of which Canada has an abundant surplus.

Canadian export sales of 150,000 bushels were chiefly Durums.

CADDY HOUSE BURNS

TORONTO, April 21—(CP)—Fire, believed caused by an overheated stove, destroyed the caddy house of the Toronto Hunt Club early today with damage estimated at between $2,000 and $2,500.

Sets of golf clubs stored in caddy house by members were burned. The fire was noticed by a passerby but when firemen arrived the flames had gained such headway it was impossible to save the building.

The ratio of male to female deaths from acute alcoholism is more than nine to one.

Occasion Features Easter Thankoffering Service Of United Church W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 21.—On Sunday evening in the United Church, the story of the Resurrection was told, in song, and story, in dialogue, in pantomime and tableau, and concluded with a song of glorious victory by the cast of 22 characters. The occasion was the Easter thankoffering service of the M.S. From the moment when the curtain went up, and an unseen singer sang, "Bearing His Cross," as a figure bearing a rugged wooden cross moved slowly across the stage, and followed by the reading by an unseen reader of a poem "In the dewey Garden," until the final tableau, the congregation sat in hushed reverence.

The women going to the tomb bearing the grave clothes and spices, their grief turned to joy as the Angels on guard beside the tomb tell of the glorious resurrection, the wonder of the disciples, their song of the resurrection, the song of joy, "He Arose," sung by Salome and Mary Magdalene, were well portrayed. The Angels of dawn in rosy garments, with Faith, Joy and Easter, wearing garments in colors of yellow, green and pink, and the Angels in white draperies were figures in a tableau and pantomime, presenting lovely pictures as a soft rosy spot-light played on them.

Much credit is due the director, Mrs. L. W. Scott, who spared neither time nor labor, in coaching the members of the cast.

The characters were cast as follows: Mary, Mrs. Andrew Brown; Mary Magdalene, Mrs A. Nill; Salome, Miss Ruby Blodgett; Angels at tomb, Misses Irene Brown and Hildred Taylor; Angels of Dawn, Misses Marie and Audrey Mouncey; Faith, Shirley Brisbin; Joy, Lavigne McMillan; Easter, Alma Thackeray; Lillies, Frances Crego and Joan McMillan; Crocuses, Audrey Scott and Mary Hugh; Tulips, Eleanor Brown and Betty McMillan; Daffodil, Pauline Brown; Disciples: Peter, Andrew Brown; Cleopas, Renslow Joice; John, Fred Lewis; Thomas, Ray Bradshaw; other disciples, S. Bradshaw and Ewart Tucker; Miss Scott was the unseen singer; Miss Hilfred Taylor read the poem "In the Dewy Garden," and Mrs. Scott read "The dawn of Hope." Mrs. L. Turner was the accompanist of the evening.

One of the effective stage settings, the empty tomb, with discarded linens, was constructed and arranged by Rev. L. W. Scott. The figure bearing the rugged cross was Fred Lewis.

During the devotional service conducted by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott, the offering was gathered by Mrs. K. Harvie and Mrs. C. W. Varcoe. The lantern used was loaned and operated by James Waldie. Oral George and Perry Brisbin operated the curtain.

The director and cast will give of their service gratuitously to present this pageant in Fenella United church on Sunday night, April 24, at the W.M.S. thank-offering service there.

These are the beans your husband means

4 KINDS

1. In rich, savoury tomato sauce with juicy, young pork.
2. In tomato sauce without pork—vegetarian style.
3. In molasses sauce with tender pork—Boston style.
4. Red Kidney Beans with pork, in their own sweet sauce.

• Genuine number one navy beans, with the appetizing bean-pot flavour of his boyhood—that's what your man is after. That kind of bean-feast used to take a lot of work, but nowadays your part is only to say to your dealer, "Heinz Oven-Baked Beans, please."

They're choice, selected, hand picked beans—baked through and through in hot, dry ovens. Every bean is whole, golden-brown, tender and digestible. Then comes drenching through and through with the delicious sauces that only Heinz chefs know how to make.

Heat and serve one of the 4 kinds of Heinz Oven-Baked Beans tonight—watch 'him' smile! But remember, you can't have a feast like this with beans that are merely steamed or boiled. Heinz beans are all baked—it's right on the labels.

Not An Answer

Rev. George Webber, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, submitted a letter to a meeting of the Toronto Centre Presbytery of the United Church in which it was stated that many sextons of Toronto churches are overworked, being on duty seven days a week, and in many instances fourteen hours a day, which would make 98 hours for a week's work.

It is reported that Dr. J. A. C. Evans, lay member of the Presbytery, said was a matter which ought to be dealt with by official boards of the various churches. By way of comment he added:

"Any caretaker who is not satisfied with working conditions has only to quit his job and you will be deluged with applications for the position."

But that is not the answer, and we hope the view entertained by Dr. Evans is not generally held. If one man quit his position because of the long hours and others came forward to apply for the post under similar conditions the grievance which one man left by resigning would be there waiting for the next man to encounter. The fact that the church would be deluged by applications for the position would merely show that people needed work so badly that they would accept the long hours without complaint because they had to. Not because they wanted to and not because they should. It would actually be a case of imposing on the man because there was a surplus of men looking for the position, and tactics of that sort should be a long way removed from a church.

It's Not Natural

Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein appeared in court at Hollywood to defend her right to a fortune which had been earned in the movies by her son Jackie before he became of age. He used to play "kid" parts with Charlie Chaplin. Coogan's father was killed in an accident a few years ago, and his mother then married Bernstein.

Reports indicate Mrs. Bernstein wept in court. Many times. Each time there was a question she did not care to answer she wept some more. But she did say she was certain that all the money her son had earned before he became of age belonged to her. "That's the law" was her way of bringing finality to the discussion.

At no time had she intended to create a trust fund so that the son, now married and hard up, should benefit by any of the money he was making as a child. Although the money is reported to run into the million dollar class Mrs. Coogan Bernstein had always intended to keep it all, and she has no intention of altering her decision.

Possibly it is no affair of ours what becomes of the case, but there is something missing in it when judged by human relationship. We have known homes—plenty of them—where the parents with little income have placed small insurance policies on their children. They have paid only a few cents a week because they could afford no more. And why? If you asked that question you would be told that when the child grew up and became of age there would be a little something laid away. It wouldn't be much but it would be something. And that is a perfectly normal outlook. Most parents would find the outlook of Mrs. Coogan Bernstein hard to understand and impossible to appreciate. We are certain as can be that some of them would refer to the Hollywood lady as "grasping."

A Strange System

Word from Winnipeg says 1,000,000 bushels of No. 4 special northern wheat in Toronto and Sarnia will be shipped to Fort William for delivery in Winnipeg. There is something said about the wheat being needed for May contracts.

But whatever the need and whatever the cause it seems that our highly developed system of selling and buying and shipping and manipulating wheat does some strange enough things. This wheat was produced in the Canadian West, and in due season it made its way down the Great Lakes to ports in Ontario. Under ordinary procedure we take it that this wheat would eventually have been given a ride across the ocean.

Instead of that it is going to be turned around and headed for the West from whence it came. We know very little of the mechanics of the situation or why the movement is under way, but we do know that shipping wheat from West to East and then from East to West is giving it a long ride, and a long ride costs money and adds nothing to its value.

When Spring Comes

In a general way we accept the coming of Spring as a matter of fact. The grass looks quite green today while only a few weeks ago it was drab raiment. As though to herald the coming of a new season some good friend left pussy willows in the office the other day. Of course we've seen them in other seasons; they always come this time of year when everything is undergoing a change. We heard one man talking about this same thing. His view was this:

"I was down in the cellar yesterday, to be exact right under the cellar stairs looking around in a couple of boxes and baskets for some bulbs. I had left them there when I took them up last fall. I shoved back a little of the old growth on them and found there were little shoots coming on all ready for the season of 1938. I have done this every year for a long time but it has never ceased to interest me. I have never got what you might call entirely used to it. There is no light under the cellar stairs; there is no calendar there to tell the day or the month; really there is nothing at all in the pile of baskets and boxes to suggest to a bulb that it ought to be about its business for the year. There have been a good many strange things happening in the world during the few months since I put those bulbs away, but they have not made any difference. For my own part I have had nothing to do with them. If one were to say I had neglected and forgotten them that would be quite true, which only goes to show that I am dealing with something which is away beyond my powers to even adequately understand."

Probably something quite similar was running through the mind of Tennyson when he wrote:

Flower in the crannied wall
I pluck you out of the crannies,
I hold you here, root and all, in my hand,
Little flower—but if I could understand
What you are, root and all, and all in all,
I should know what God and Man is.

What One Man Found

That old idea of a family living in the same home is passing. Such was the statement made to the Examiner by a resident who had been in what he called the old-home town. He was there for ten days and had time to do what he called "look around." He explained there was the Ferguson home. The Ferguson people owned a mill of some kind in town; when the owner died the business went to the son and the son continued to live in the old home. So it was called locally the Ferguson home. But the mill closed and in time the second generation Ferguson died. The children in that home had no cause to remain there, so they scattered. Today the place is called "the old Ferguson home," but it is a wreck, and it has ceased to be a home.

Our informant found that was so with several of the older and better homes in the town he knew so well. The home was there but there was nothing in the community to support it; it was no longer associated with or tied to any particular local business. The visitor contended that people were living in far more places during their lives than they used to; not that they desired to keep on moving but because they had to in order to keep up with their chances for occupation and existence. Putting all these things together the Peterborough man was certain that the meaning of "home" was becoming less real and definite than it used to be. He said it was no longer possible to refer to the "Ferguson home," because it was that no more. In a good many instances this observant Peterborough resident is undoubtedly correct. His regret was that he could not suggest a cure for it, and probably there is none.

A Man And His House

Windsor has another of those cases where the owner of a house wants his tenants to get out. The house belongs to James Reynolds, and he claims that James Grant and his family have refused to leave. The Grant family in turn say they will not get out until welfare authorities find them another place in which to live.

In order to hasten things a little Owner Reynolds appeared on the premises and removed the windows. The Grants boarded up some of them and prepared to hold the fort. One of the children in the family has the measles at the moment and the Grants say taking out the windows has endangered the health of the child. And that is probably correct.

There have been a number of cases somewhat similar, and sympathy generally swings toward the family which is trying to remain in the house. The landlord is apt to find himself increasingly unpopular by reason of efforts he makes to secure possession of his own property. Possibly Landlord Reynolds in Windsor has already been called heartless. He says the house is wanted so it can be used as a home for his own son.

We seem to make a distinction between a house and a car. If Mr. Grant in Windsor were in possession of Mr. Reynolds' car without permission he would probably be arrested; he might be charged with theft and be sent to jail and Mr. Reynolds would come into possession of his car. Which would be right enough.

But we look upon a house differently because it is something which people must have; they cannot very well live without one. But that does not explain why a man who has a house should have to supply it to a family when he wants to use it himself, nor does it explain why he should have to allow the welfare department to have the use of if for less money than it would bring in the ordinary way. We do not believe Mr. Reynolds has helped matters at all by taking the windows out of his house as such a move would probably increase the determination of the Grant family to remain. All that has been done so far does not answer the question involved—why should a man who owns a house not be able to take possession of it?

Should Be A Probe

Tavistock, a village which almost divides geographical allegiance between Perth and Oxford counties, has a business man who has been taking great risks. He may possibly find himself arrested.

When he was out in the country one day he bought a three-weeks-old nanny goat for 50 cents, and when he got home he found it was going to be quite a job taking care of the thing. So he went out with a numer of tickets in his pocket and sold them for 5 cents each. Yes—the report says he raffled the nanny goat. He sold sufficient tickets so that he received $3 for the animal for which he had paid 50 cents.

This Tavistock man did not even take the precaution to make it certain that he was holding a draw, and not a raffle. And so we fear for him.

He is also in danger of being pulled up before the Price Spreads Commission. If that commission is dead then it ought to be possible to pump some new life into it to deal with so glaring an offence. Buying a nanny goat for 50 cents and getting rid of it for $3 is far too great a mark-up to be recognized or condoned.

The case does not end there for the man who won the goat on a 5 cent ticket sold it to a farmer for 75 cents, and in doing that he increased his cost price 15 times before completing a sale, and such a thing we submit was never brought out in the investigations at Ottawa.

Just what should be done about it at the moment is not quite clear. Neither the Ontario Legislature nor the Federal House at Ottawa is in session at the moment, otherwise we have no doubt a committee of inquiry would be quickly named. The law seems to be getting busted all to pieces in Tavistock.

NOTE AND COMMENT

When scarlet fever breaks out in the county bastille that may perhaps be listed as a jail break.

A hit-and-run driver has been deprived by the London magistrate of the right to drive for a year. Even his friends will offer no sympathy.

It was bad weather in England for Easter Monday but there were holiday-makers everywhere. An Englishman's home may be his castle but he is always ready to leave it on a holiday.

Motorists with dirty markers are being fined $3 in Toronto. The courts probably believe that the license gadgets are hard enough to read even when they are clean.

An eighty-five year old man finished in the Boston Marathon. By the time the youngsters of today are that old they will have forgotten even how to walk.

An iron safe has been dug up on the site of the old Niagara Falls rink—a surprising find in view of the fact that gate receipts from early hockey were not ample enough to require a safe place to store them.

The city's relief expenditures are climbing well above the quota upon which government assistance is given. It is a development that does not contribute toward ease of mind among the civic authorities.

Only three men were prosecuted in the municipality of East York last year for drunken driving. Surely no one seriously claims that in that populous Toronto suburb there were only three intoxicated motorists in twelve months.

Nelson Board of Trade implores Ottawa to refuse the vote privilege to the Doukhobors, saying that as a class they are undesirable citizens. It must be admitted that the members of the Russian religious sect have given the melting-pot a severe test.

PLAN

(By A. R. K.)

¶ I ought to get to work quite soon, a bit in morning and at noon, I ought to dig and hoe; I ought to take my number nine, and shove a spade like in a mine, and plant things so they'd grow.

¶ I know just where my spade should be, at least that should be clear to me, I put the thing away; at least I think that's what I did, unless the thing has gone and hid, I looked for it today.

¶ Last year we traded things a lot, and I'm not sure whose stuff I got, I've found an extra hoe; and if I'm making no mistake, I think I have an extra rake, and it belongs to Joe.

¶ And I've got garden hose to spare, far more than what's my rightful share, there must be some mistake; the thing weighs heavy on my mind, I'll take a little look and find, if some belongs to Jake.

¶ Of spades I've had I don't keep track, perhaps I never took them back, there's three or four around; perhaps the owners search for them, perhaps they wonder now and then, just why they can't be found.

¶ I think I'll get my spring work done, before the taking back's begun, I'll toil 'neath sunny skies; and then I'll take these tools once more and gladly walk from door to door—and I'll apologize.

We Might Learn From Chinese

(By Carl Glick in the Reader's Digest)

EDDIE WU, aged 12, had been absent from school week. At last the New York police found him seated quietly on a bench in Battery Park, watching ships go out to sea. In Children's Court, the judge said, "You are the first Chinese boy I have had here for 23 years." (This was in 1926—there hasn't been a case of a truant Chinese child since.) "Why did you run away from school?"

Eddie Wu confessed: "Teacher say we all naughty boys in class. She say, 'You cause me great pain. You very bad.' So not to make her sad and suffer, I do not go to school."

Here the father, who had been summoned to court, spoke to the judge. "Honorable sir," he said, "upon my own ill-mannered self is the blame for my son's misdeeds. I have not properly instructed him in the virtues of scholarship. Therefore sentence me to prison. I have lost much face."

The judge was astonished. Usually parents blame the teacher, the truant officer, the child's associates—anybody but themselves.

The judge suspended sentence on Eddie Wu, but the father did not. He did not speak to Eddie Wu for two months and took away all his playthings. He was not allowed to leave the house after school hours.

JUVENILE delinquency in New York's Chinatown is the lowest of any area in the city — indeed, is practically nonexistent. It is likewise negligible among the Chinese in Boston, New Orleans, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles.

Why? Because, when a child is naughty in Chinatown, it is always the father who is blamed. It is the father's first duty to his country, his neighbor's and himself to train his children properly, and to set them the best possible example. If a Chinese child displays bad manners, the father loses face among all his family, all his friends, all his business associates. And since filial piety is taught as the first of all the virtues, the child is careful not to bring such disgrace upon his parents.

Always in Chinatown, when a group of Chinese children are playing in the streets, not far away in the background is an older person. He is watching quietly to see that the boys do not get into mischief. For the Chinese community would lose face if its children were offensive in public.

There is no father in the world as proud of his family as a Chinese. One sees more fathers with their babies on the streets in Chinatown than in any other part of the city. Strict as is their discipline, I have been unable to find a single policecourt record of Chinese parents charged with cruelty to children.

PERHAPS one reason for their low delinquency rate is that Chinese children have little time in which to get into trouble. They spend practically all day in school, not only until three o'clock in the afternoon at the American school, but also from four to seven in their own Chinese school where they are taught, besides Chinese history and language, the moral precepts of Confucius and other philosophers. The good manners and respect for the parents and the law, that originate in the home are reinforced in the Chinese school.

Despite all this, one Chinese child was arrested in New York in 1936. Mr. Wu told me about it.

"Most unfortunate," he said. "The boy was only six. His father had not properly instructed him. Playing on a roof, the boy threw a brick. It broke a barbershop window."

The proprietor, to make certain the window would be repaired, had the boy arrested. The father, of course, paid all the damages. And the case was closed, as far as the police were concerned.

Yet not quite closed. For the father had to do something to save his face.

It was a surprised barber the next week, when 50-odd Chinese from all parts of the city came to his shop seeking haircuts, whether they were in need of them or not. They were the father's cousins. He paid the bill himself. But he saved his face. So did Chinatown.

How can you expect juvenile delinquency from people who do things like that?

THAT NEW TREATY.

(Ottawa Journal)

THERE WILL BE those, of course, to argue that Mr. Chamberlain has yielded too much. They will point to his recognition of the conquest of Ethiopia. Point to the agreement regarding Italian troops in Spain. Yet, considering the realities of practical statesmanship, what else could be done about Ethiopia? Italian conquest of that country is a fact. Italian troops are there; and Italian administrators. That being the truth, what position could be bettered, or principle advanced, by refusal to recognize a reality? Mussolini could never afford to withdraw from Ethiopia. Nor does power exist, either in the League or outside of it, short of a world war, to compel him to withdraw. That, for sensible men, should be enough.

So with Spain. It will be said that Mussolini should have been compelled to recall his troops from Spain now, not when the war is over. That was the Eden argument. But if Mussolini refused that (which he probably did), what then? Should Britain be prepared to go to war about it? To make that a reason, for scrapping a chance to advance peace in Europe?

As it is—and this, if it comes to pass, will be a great gain—Mussolini undertakes to get out of Spain immediately the war is over. He will seek no economic nor territorial advantages there. Will make no effort to hold the Balearic Islands or Spanish Morocco. What that means—it is perhaps its chief meaning—is that it makes any hope that Hitler may have of achieving advantages in Spain a much more difficult proposition. Actually, the thing done in Rome improves the Spanish situation enormously. The spectre of German-Italian control of the peninsula is removed.

A Little Country Paper

Clara McCreery in "The Wasp."

I get a little paper from a little country town—
A far cry from the dailies, that on Sundays weigh us down;
It's printed every Friday, and it has no supplement,
Nor colored rotogravure, but I'm always glad it's sent.

It gives no clever verses by the syndicated bards,
But states that Mrs. Williams entertained some friends at cards;
"Ye scribe" saw Judge McArthur shaking hands with friends today—
It says the Curtis family sold out and moved away.

On Boulder Dam it's silent, and there's nothing on finance—
It tells that the Rebekahs gave an installation dance,
That Miss Day is returning soon to open up her school,
That Alexander Hargrave lost a valuable mule.

It's glad that Jimmy Gallagher can be around again.
It claims that the alfalfa crop is much in need of rain;
The supervisors voted for the road work to commence;
Will Anderson hauled lumber for his new garage and fence. . . .

The worldly ones may smile at it, but theirs are tender smiles—
These home town items form a bond through many years and miles.
Oh, little country paper, with your little weekly talks!
I like to wander with you down remembered roads and walks.

SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: I do not believe there should be an early season for pickerel, but rather that the season for all fishing shoud be opened about June 20.

Also it would be better if the Department would make its announcement about dates not later than the first of April. This would give the resort owners in the district a chance to keep in touch with their customers of former years and give them definite information. As a rule the time for vacations is set early and plans are made then. If the fishing dates are not made early then the hands of the resort owners are tied and he cannot give his American friends the information they want. For that reason they are apt to go and seek accommodation elsewhere.

A USEFUL SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The citizens of the North Ward who live on the east side of George St. between Argyle St. and Hilliard St. admire and envy the beautiful perennial flower-beds which have been planted at both sides of George St. South in the vicinity of the Children's Shelter and King Edward School. They long for the day when a perennial flower-bed is planted on the west side of George St., opposite their residences.

Nearly twenty years ago the beauty of this section of the city was marred when gravel pits were opened between the C. N. R. track and George St. For several years these George St. residents had to gaze upon these gaping pits. When the gravel supply was exhausted, the huge pit became a public dumping-ground and for another lengthy period these George St. residents had to witness a most unsightly spectacle. Recently the ugly hole has been filled with "city" ashes and the surface has been levelled.

Citizens who live opposite this property feel that something should be done to beautify the site which, for so long, was an eye-sore. They suggest a perennial bed similar to the one at King Edward Park or along Water St. at the "Goose Pond."

A perennial flower-bed extending from Argyle St. to Hilliard St. on the west side of George St. would not only enhance the appearance of George St. North but would give a proper setting to Nicholls Hospital in the background.

Some of these George St. residents are willing to donate perennial roots from their own flower-beds and are ready to assume the responsibility of watering the plants with their own garden hose.

This time of year provides the opportunity to commence such a project. The citizens of this section are ready to co-operate with the Parks Commission or Nicholls Hospital.

MINIMUM WAGE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Would you allow me a portion of your valuable space to make a few comments on this minimum wage. Our present government promised about 6 months ago when they got in to establish a minimum wage for men. As usual nothing has been done that will help the working class, outside of a minimum wage for textiles, (and they only got that after a series of strikes in the textile industry). Does it mean we will only get a minimum wage in other industries only after there is a series of strikes and walk-outs? It's a wonder there has not been more strikes.

The people have been very patient, but they can't live on empty promises. Even in this city men over 21 are paid as low as 25c an hour, with frequent lay-offs. They are never able to save enough to tide them over in slack periods, thus always going into debt. Then the government wonders why on all sides communism, fascism and other bad influences are springing up. To combat these evils and to get a decent standard of living the only thing is for the working classes to join together regardless of race or creed and organize a strong labor party that will be government by the people and for the people and not by politicians for their own personal benefit.

JEWS PERSECUTED.

(New York Herald Tribune)

OPPRESSION of Jews in central European countries, which, in cold cruelty, outdoes the barbarism of the Dark Ages, goes on, unchecked by protests from other governments.

Millions have been driven from their homes or professions; have been denied other means of livelihood; stripped of their property; their children excluded from public schools. They are forbidden to keep enough money to escape tyranny by emigrating, so that funds for that purpose must come from outside.

Unable to seek another land, they must starve, or subsist on the meagre charity of those only a little less destitute than themselves.

These appalling conditions, which seem so unreal to those who live in a land of plenty, are grim actualities to the hapless victims. Of 3,400,000 Jews in Poland, for instance, a million are said to be starving; in Germany, the 360,000 who have not been able to cross the border seem doomed to destruction; in Rumania, 760,000 are threatened with boycott; and there are many thousand others in Austria, Lithuania, Latvia and elsewhere, whose plight is also desperate.

CAUSE FOR REGRETS.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

WHAT APPEARS to be the windup of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Corporation cannot be observed without the regret that accompanies the breaking down of a tradition of excellence. For many years the company maintained a reputation for making high grade automobiles. Despite several heroic efforts to restore its health, it never recovered completely from the severe beating it took in the early years of the depression, when high priced cars were hard to sell.

These regrets are somewhat sentimental. Those of the stockholders and note holders probably are more painful and more practical.

HANDSOMEST MALE.

(Kingston Whig-Standard)

GLORIA BRISTOL, who operates a chain of beauty salons for men and women in New York, has announced that in a poll she took among 1,000 men and 1,000 women on the five most handsome males of 1938 both men and women gave first place to Anthony Eden. The next four choices of the women were in this order: Gary Cooper, Fred Astaire, the Duke of Windsor and Leopold Stokowski. The second to fifth choices of the men were: Gary Cooper, Clark Gable, Lou Gehrig and Adolphe Menjou.

In both lists there is seen the influence of the movies with half the places going to screen stars. Possibly it should be said six, for it is due probably to his appearance in pictures that Leopold Stokowski is included. Against such competition the surprising thing, perhaps, is the first place given to Anthony Eden by these men and women patrons of beauty shops. Here again publicity of another sort is responsible.

APRIL

O lovely April, month of Spring,
All the birds are on the wing,
Have you not a song to sing,
That through the World will clearly ring.

A song that will awake the plants,
That will help the busy ants,
A song that will give the birds a chance,
And make everything on earth to dance.

I will sing you then a song,
Said the month, that won't be long,
My song will be the noisy rain,
With it a harvest you will gain.

So every year in this month so fair,
A beautiful song rings through the air,
It brings a message so glad and free,
That calls the birds, the plants, and the bee.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

I SHALL NOT die, but live, and declare the works of the Lord. The Lord hath chastened me sore: but he hath not given me over unto death.—Ps. cxviii: 17, 18.

If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead, and become the firstfruits of them that slept. For since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead. For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in nhis own order: Christ the firstfruits; afterward they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power. For he must reign, till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death.—I Cor. xv: 19-26.

LOOK AT THE FUTURE.

(Detroit Free Press)

A QUARTER of a century from now, according to a scientific writer, Americans may be living in a bacteria-less world on the products of soil-less farms, wearing fireproof clothes made from cellulose or spun glass, and dwelling in houses lighted, cooled, heated, humidified and air-cleaned automatically the year round by electricity.

This qualified prophecy may strike the younger generation, which came into the world after the automobile, telegraph, telephone and radio had become commonplace of everyday life, as stretching the imagination a bit far, but to old-timers, who can look back to the days of horse and buggy and kerosene lamps, there is nothing impossible about it.

Those who come after us on this earth are likely to see "wonders" of which those now on the earth have not even dreamed.

And it will be the scientists and inventors, and not the politicians, who will pull them out of the hat and translate them into reality.

Anyone who thinks that the end to human ingenuity has been reached need only reflect upon the advancement which the human race has made since the days when men lived in caves on uncooked meat and roots and fruits to get a new slant on human destiny.

WHAT CANADA THINKS.

(Canada's Weekly (London)

WE READ a great deal in these days on both sides of the Atlantic of "what Germany thinks." As a matter of fact, the outside public does not know what Germany thinks, because the German is not allowed to think—at all events to think in public. There is in Germany no free Parliament and no free press, and public opinion in any true sense does not really exist. How different it is in a British country like Canada! There every phase of opinion finds expression, and glancing through the leading Canadian journals of the past week one realizes how staunchly in the main the Canadian public approves of the general line of policy laid down by the British Prime Minister.

Children's Aid Responsibility Is Tightened Up By Minister

Will Keep Onus For Wards Whether Placed in Own County Or Elsewhere

TORONTO, April 21. — Instructions have been issued by Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, that, effective from April 1, all Children's Aid Societies will be responsible for giving supervision to their own wards regardless of whether they are placed in their own county or in some other.

In all new placements, a visit will be required within two months after placement.

Reports on all such visits and the detailed arrangements or any matters regarding the placement of a child are to be conducted on behalf of each society by the local Superintendent, who is the responsible employee of the society.

Each society will have the right in future to investigate a home in which a child is placed and notify the placing society to remove the child if it is found that it is not in satisfactory surroundings.

Societies Informed.

In announcing these changes in the Children's Aid Societies system —changes which are not by way of regulation, but by way of recommendation from the Provincial Superintendent — Mr. Cross pointed out that last year the various societies were informed of them.

"Under previous instructions of some years' standing," he said, "there was in existence a sort of 'gentlemen's agreement' between the societies to the effect that the society in whose county a child was placed would supervise the child whether it was its own ward or another society's ward. This is being changed so that the responsibility for supervision now rests where it properly should—on the shoulders of the society to whom the child was committed as a ward."

Mr. Cross stressed the responsibility of each local socie y.

Same As Parents.

"These societies," he said, "are local organizations, incorporated and given charters for the purpose of protecting the child life of their respective communities. They employ their own staffs. Children are committed to them as their wards. They are responsible for the acts of their employees and have the same responsibility as parents for the children who are entrusted to their care as wards."

By way of emphasizing this responsibility, the new instructions say that a child should not be placed in another county without the knowledge and consent of the society in that county, if that society is to be requested to give any supervision service for the placing society.

PREMIERS' PARLEY A SECRET AFFAIR

TORONTO, April 21 (C.P.).—Ontario and Queebc provinces are ready for submission of their briefs to the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations. Consideration of the submissions was believed the main topic of a conference here yesterday between Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Hon Maurice Duplessis, Quebec Premier.

The two Government heads made no formal statement of their deliberations when the conference broke up late yesterday. Observers, however, considered the Rowel Commission brief came up for discussion because D. W. Lang, K.C., of Toronto, retained by the Ontario administration to prepare its brief, attended.

Only comment on the meeting came from Mr. Duplessis who said they discussed problems "of mutual interest to both provinces." Mr. Hepburn declined comment.

Cabinet ministers in attendance included Forestry Minister Heenan, Highways Minister McQuesten, Welfare Minister Cross, and Attorney-General Conant. The Attorney-General will be associated with Mr Hepburn in presenting the Ontario brief to the Commission next week.

The conference was the fourth between the two Premiers in the last year. The meeting yesterday also occurred on the 48th birthday of Quebec's Union Nationale Premier. In previous meetings, the two Premiers have discussed forestry labor, and newsprint problems. They also took steps to assert provincial autonomy.

SUSPECT JAMES J. WALKER WILLBE THE DODGERS' NEXT BOSS

JAMES MULVEY IS NOT LIKELY TO CARRY CLUB

BROOKLYN, N.Y., April 21. — Close observers of the Brooklyn club suspect that the death of Stephen W. McKeever will hasten the sale of the Dodgers to the group headed by James J. Walker, former mayor of New York...The Charles Ebbets' heirs need money, and in the past, James Mulvey, son-in-law of McKeever, who now assumes active charge, hasn't had the time... Mulvey is in the motion picture business.

The clubg is heavily in hock to a Brooklyn bank, which swooped down on the opening day receipts a year ago...The Brooklyn franchise long was one of the best in baseball, but it hasn't paid dividends in three campaigns...All hands appeared willing to sell last winter, but spring brought fresh money, Larry MacPhail and Dolph Camilli.

The Flatbush flock didn't pay any $60,000 for Camilli, by the way ...The first baseman comes from the Phillies for Eddie Morgan and $20,000...Lon Warneke, Bob Weiland, Bill McGee, Stanley Bordagaray ,and the Pepper Pot himself compose Pepper Martin's Mudcats who nightly entertain the St. Louis Cardinals and guests of the St. Petersburgh hotel where they were staying.

McCarthy's Smartest Deal

Baseball men gathered in the citrus belt still wonder why Connie Mack, whose Philadelphia Athletics need a hard-hitting shortstop badly, permitted Bill Knickerbocker to hop from the lowly St. Louis Browns to the New York Yankees.

When Knickerbocker returned his unsigned contract to the Browns, Bill DeWitt gave him permission to make a deal for himself and asked what minor league club he preferred ...Knickerbocker telegraphed Joe McCarthy, who promptly telephoned him in Los Angeles...The Yankee director told Knick that he intended to string along with young Joe Gordon at second base and Frank Crosetti at shortstop, but that he would like to have him as a backstop for the pair as well as Red Rolfe at third.

Knick replied he would gladly carry bats for the Yankees ... So McCarthy got him for $20,000 and Don Heffner...He considers it one of the smartest deals he ever made ...and he's right.

Joe Medwick of the Cardinals, the hardest and most consistent hitter in baseball today, swings a 36 by 36 bat.

Coach Hornsby

It will be Double A baseball that will keep Rogers Hornsby busy this year. The former monopolizer of National League batting honors and last year manager of the St. Louis Browns (until June) has signed to coach and pinch-hit for the Baltimore Orioles in the International League.

Lawn Bowling

By HERB MARTIN

We crashed a meeting of the membership committee the other evening, and while you could hardly compare our reception to that of the Prodigal Son, yet on the other hand no one undertook the job of throwing us out. We found out that the boys are working hard and faithful in their efforts to fill the 42 rinks by next week, and we believe it will be accomplished providing the skips will get each member of his rink to sign the membership card, pay part or all of the fee and hand the same to Chairman Howard Clegg. Now that's the answer in a nutshell and if the boys will just put a little more 'umph' to it, this advice will end up most successful.

In the ladies' section, the membership committee under Mrs. L. Campbell have handed in a list of 19 completed rinks, a big increase over last season. At this time, all we can say is, that it is a mighty fine job, well done and we want to offer our congratulations.

The news has just been handed to us that President E. Hircock of Cobourg, is calling the annual meeting of the Central Ontario Lawn Bowling Association for Thursday, April 28. The meeting is to be held in the local club rooms on McDonnel street. The Peterborough representatives are J. D. Fitzpatrick and R. Hendry.

Set Racing Dates On Toronto Tracks

TORONTO, April 21.—Following a conference on Wednesday between F. S. Orpen, representing Long Branch and Dufferin Park, and F. S. Livingstone, representing Thorncliffe Park, an arrangement was reached whereby the spring racing schedule of these associations would be the same as in former years. That is, Thorncliffe would again follow Woodbine, and then would come Long Branch and Dufferin.

The date of the Toronto spring racing season for this year will now be as follows:

Woodbine—Saturday, May 21, to Saturday, May 28.

Thorncliffe—Monday, May 30, to Monday, June 6.

Long Branch—Wednesday, June 8, to Wednesday, June 15.

Dufferin—Saturday, June 18, to Saturday, June 25.

Due to the rearrangement in dates, the Long Branch Jockey Club Limited and the Metropolitan Racing Association of Canada Limited announce that the running of the stakes at Long Branch and Dufferin Park have been changed, due to the revised dates.

The Orpen Memorial handicap will be run at Long Branch Saturday, June 11, instead of Saturday, June 4, while the Hare Memorial handicap will be run at Dufferin Park, Saturday, June 25 (closing day), instead of Saturday, June 18. Nominations close May 20 for the Orpen Memorial, and June 11 for the Hare Memorial.

Peterborough Wins Basketball Opener

TORONTO, April 21 (CP) — H. Cutting, Peterborough Collegiate sub, gave his team a 20-19 victory over Niagara Falls Collegiate here last night when he scored the winning basket with 10 seconds to go. The game, played as a curtain-raiser to the Ontario Secondary Schools Association final, was between the losers in the semi-finals.

C. Davern, Peterborough forward, was high scorer, counting three field goals for six points, while F. Boylan starred for Niagara Falls with two baskets and one foul goal for five.

Several banks in Japan closed in the last year.

P.C.I. Champions

C.O.S.S.A. senior boys' basketball champions this year, the P.C.I. squad lost out in Provincial semi-finals to Ottawa on Tuesday, the game being played in Toronto Hart House. Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

IT SEEMS safe to say that we would bet our last dollar, if we had a buck—but on Payday Eve we are reduced to 23 cents and a bus ticket—that this little plug will rattle around sports' rialto for a few minutes and then be swept into the garbage can. On account of this annual springtime plug concerns minor ball. Now, don't go away for a minute—at least you can read it. Every year for the past four or five we have advocated the sponsoring of minor baseball teams, reviving the City League, putting baseball back in the schools, and so on. And every year fewer and fewer diamond—that is, the large diamond—squads appear on the local horizon. Last summer, we were down to one club, Herb Ralph's junior Rotarians. The senior Petes, of course, but they do not rate as minors.

* * * * *

AND THIS coming semester sees a minor baseball setup here as bare as Maw Hubbard's icebox. Our crystal ball gives back nothing more startling than our own reflection—which isn't so awfully startling! We hope Ralph returns with some sort of club, but haven't heard from him this spring. The public schools here will field softball squads again, and this seems as sure as the rumor that Haile Selassie is a definite has-been. Alas. We should have four bantam ball teams to start the rebuilding process, we should have an entry in the Junior Lakeshore Loop to take care of a lot of good junior ballsters here, and we should have an intermediate team to take care of junior grads and ex-seniors. We should also have artificial ice—But that's another tale.

* * * * * *

THE BOYS are available and plenty would turn out if a bantam, juvenile or junior practice were called. But the question of equipment and coaching puts a damper on a City Baseball League reorganization. About the only solution we can see—and it has been repeated often—is for ball enthusiasts, service clubs, senior Petes (and maybe the schools) to get together and organize a four-team circuit to start things this summer. It is a shame to let the minor diamond game peter out in a once-nifty baseball centre. Softball is a good game but there is plenty of room for both baseball and the smaller-diamond sport in Peterborough. After all, where will our future senior stars come from, if the minors are neglected? We may not always be able to import 'em. Boys like Burton, Calladine, Clarke, Kingdon, Starr ,Whatley, etc., learned their stuff in the minors here.

* * * * * *

DON'T THINK baseball is dying out, just because it has slumped in this district the past few years. It is coming back strong in Toronto now and has always been the big game in Western Ontario and the Niagara peninsula. The Falls' Association had a big year in '37 and this year will have 35 bantam and midget teams alone: School baseball in that city has 500 players registered at present. The school loop runs four nights weekly in May and June, and the midgets and bantams then continue under other colors during July and August. This system has been operating for five years and dozens of fine players are turned out each year to play in other towns. Of course, the falls, like Windsor, is on the U. S. border—and the States will always be baseball-conscious, just as Canada is a hockey country. Northern Ontario has plenty of ball, but it's mostly from junior up.

* * * * * *

AND SO we end this annual plug for the minor ballsters with the plea that someone do something about it locally this year. We'll do anything we can, if only for the memories we cherish of City Loop games in which we played over a decade ago—when every tilt seemed to us more important than working, going to school, or even being on time for supper! Every game was a World's Series struggle to us and our buddies. We would like to see kids of today get a similar break here and play ball.

QUINTE WRITER breaks forth with some info about the O.B.A. going after the former pro section in the St. Lawrence Valley to bring 'em into the amachoor fold, and adds: "We are sorry to have to break this news so far in advance of our Oshawa and Peterborough contemporaries, bless 'em." Evidently our pal missed reading this column over a week ago when we stated Max Swanston had invited Perth and Smiths Falls to send delegates to the next C.O.B.L. meeting in Cobourg on April 30th. Jack Scott and some of the other O.B.A. officers in Western Ontario asked the Messrs. Swanston and Elliott to do what they could toward reviving amateur baseball down in the Ottawa district Of course, the St. Lawrence district has had plenty of organized amateur ball in the past, generally tied up with the E.O.A.B.A. So we fear the Belleville scoop (?) fizzled out by a full week. Oh, well. . . .

WITH THE men's City Softball League vacating Central School grounds for the Bowl this year, the Church Loop will go right after Central. It would be a real break for teams from churches in the central part of the town, squads from St. John's, St. Paul's and George St., for instance. The C.S.L. has been confined to the outskirts of the city in school grounds, at the Oval or King Edward Park. At the annual meeting next Monday night in the "Y", President Len Agnew and Secretary Don Charlton will have info about the possible use of Central. Possibly all teams will be able to select their own home diamond from a good choice this semester. Delegates should be set for business at this session.

MUST HAVE been quite a puck celebration in Oshawa night before last when the Generals returned after dropping the final Memorial Cup fray to St. Boniface in Toronto. Oshawa scribbler, after rapping the Toronto fans for cheering for the west and booing the east in this series, tells of the Generals' home-coming. Says he: "There must have been 10,000 people on hand and they made themselves heard. Somebody once write something about 'they'll give you a cheeah and buy you a beeah, when you've wrested the victor's wreath, but the man worth while will give you a smile, after you're kicked in the teeth.' Well done, Oshawa sports fans! And all hail, the Oshawa Generals!" And let us put in our nickel's worth of "amen" to that.

HITHER AND yawn: Trail beat Cornwall in Calgary last night to win the Allen Cup and end hockey till next winter . . . . Local ballsters have an indoor drill at the "Y" tonight at 8.15 . . . . Joe DiMaggio signed with the Yanks for 25 G's, his lengthy holdout being a flop; he is fourth highest paid player, Gehrig, Gehringer and Greenberg topping him . . . . Windsor nosed out a 24-23 win over Ottawa, who beat P.C.I., in Toronto yesterday to win the Ontario senior boys' school cage title . . . . Westclox gals will play an exhibition softball game in Lindsay within a couple of weeks . . . . Got some lacrosse chatter, but will hold it till tomorow . . . . Annual Church Puck Loop banquet will likely be held now on April 29th, ladies of All Saints doing the catering . . . . St. Paul's cagers are practising hard for their return O.C.B.A. final fray in Brampton, where they'll try to hold that 8-point margin . . . . After that dizzy N.H.L. playoff whirl, it's a relief to follow the Nat'l and Am. ball loops; only two out of 16 teams playoff . . . . With the Tigers starting where Red Wings quit, the old home town is letting us down like a busted spring-board.

Two Infielders And Friends Re-united In Same League

Eric McNair And Jimmy Webb Suffer Similar Tragedies In Private Life

By Central Press Canadian

NEW YORK, April 21.—The paths of Jimmy Webb and Eric McNair cross again in the American League, and two young men who have shared the shadow of tragedy find comfort in renewed comradeship.

Jimmy Webb is the infielder who was declared a free agent recently by Judge Landis because of alleged St. Louis Cardinals chain store chicanery. Webb was given a nice contract by the Indians and a bonus for signing — a break that fate seemed to have ordained against. Now when Cleveland and the Boston Red Sox meet, he can hold reunion with his boyhood friend McNair.

Webb and McNair played high school baseball together in their home town of Meridian, Miss., McNair, who is 28 years old, came to the major leagues nine years ago from Knoxville. Webb, now 26, signed six years ago to play with Cardinal farm teams, and his arrival in the majors was delayed by the fact that Leo Durocher was playing short for the Cards, and Leo is one of the best hands in the business.

Friends On And Off Diamond

But Webb and McNair were close friends during the off-season. They and their families went to shows and had parties together. Then, more than a year ago, McNair's wife died. The little shortstop became an inconsolable recluse. Grief affected his game. He refused to become interested in anything. He lost weight and was on the verge of a nervous breakdown several times during the last year.

Jimmy, whose nickname is "Skeeter," tried to cheer up his old friend, but McNair was stricken too deeply. He simply withdrew from the world of his associates and suffered alone.

Webb went on last year playing grand ball for Columbus, one of the Cardinal farm clubs, and starred in the Little World Series with Newark. Oscar Vitt, Cleveland's new manager, who was manager of Newark last year, liked Webb's work in the fall series. Meanwhile Leo Durocher was traded to Brooklyn, and Webb was promised his big chance for the job with the Cardinals.

Then, two months after the series of last fall, Webb's wife died, leaving him with a year-old baby boy. Her death struck Jimmy hard, coming just as the skies were beginning to brighten after many disapointments.

United By Tragedy

McNair forgot his own sorrow when he saw Jimmy suffer the same tragedy that had shattered his own world, and in his efforts to cheer up his friend, he regained the feeling of comradeship. Consoling Webb, he consoled himself. When Webb signed with Cleveland, McNair became almost himself again, looking forward to the prospect of his old friend's companionship whenever the Red Sox and Indians meet on the diamond.

Webb is determined to make good with the Indians and to shake off the effects of the blow that he still feels keenly. A snappy fielder, with a good arm and better than average hitting ability, he has a fine chance to stick to the majors now that he finally has won the chance for which he fought.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, April 21 (AP) — There's a rumor drifting around pro football circles that Whizzer White has signed that 15 grand offer of Pittsburgh Pirates...What's this report about the Cardinals trading Dizzy Dean to the Cubs on the understanding they could buy Van Mungo from the Dodgers?... And that Larry MacPhail backed out because he isn't palsy-walsy with Branch Rickey?...Larry says the whole thing is a lot of stuff you slice thin and put in sandwiches.

Baseball's biggest business man (Al Schacht) figgers on making clowning pay $30,000 this year... He's got himself a manager now and is booked solid through May and June...Now it can be told: All the time Joe DiMaggio was holding out, Col. Jake Ruppert went around telling everybody what a "great boy" Joe is...There wasn't a harsh word from either side in all the wrangling. That Bobby Feller just about did everything but sell tickets in Cleveland-Browns game yesterday...Gave one hit, fanned six, walked six, collected two hits and batted in two runs.

Bill Brandt is prouder than a new papa over the National Leaguers 69 wins against 52 defeats in the grapefruit grappling with the Americaners...Just after the Dodgers hit for 30 bases against the Phillies Tuesday, Larry MacPhail, asked for comment, told the boys, "Well, that's as good as can be expected"...Diz Dean's arm is as classy as it ever was.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press.)

Herschel Martin, Phillies — His singe started ninth inning four-run offensive that beat Freddy Fitzsimmons and Dodgers 6-5.

Gene Moore, Bees — Hit homer with bases loaded to lick Giants in the eighth, 6-4.

Dizzy Dean and Tony Lazzeri, Cubs — Dean allowed eight hits in seven innings against Cincinnati in debut as Cub, Lazzeri collected four hits, one a double, and drove in three runs in 10-4 triumph for Chicago.

Arky Vaughan and Al Todd, Pirates — Made three hits each as Bucs pounded out 9-4 victory over Cardinals.

Bob Feller, Indians — Pitched one-hit shutout over St. Louis Browns, 9-0, in season debut as Brownies get six walks and strike out six times.

Dutch Leonard, Senators — Blanked Athletics with seven hits in first start in American League, 3-0.

Mike Kreevich, White Sox— Hit triple and single and scores two runs as Sox downed Detroit Tigers 5-4.

DiMag Delighted On Getting Back

SAN FRANCISCO, April 21.—(AP).—Obviously relieved by termination of his holdout campaign, Joe DiMaggio said, before leaving here Wednesday, he was "all excited about getting back there and rapping the ball again."

Confirming he had signed at the New York Yankees' terms, Joe declared he was going to try to get in such a good season that 'there won't be any chance of an argument over salary next year. Naturally I thought I was worth more this year. But I'd rather play ball than hold out. I can't get back quick enough, and I'm rarin' to go."

HAWKS PROMOTE PAUL THOMPSON

CHICAGO, April 21.—(CP).—Major Frederic McLaughlin, owner of Chicago Black Hawks, world professional hockey champions, last night announced that Paul Thompson, ace left-winger, had been appointed assistant manager for the 1938-39 season. He wil lalso act as coach, assisting Bill Stewart.

Thompson, who led the scorers in the National Hockey League's United States' section and sparked the Hawks to victory in the Stanley Cup playoffs, gained the left wing position of the 1937-38 Canadian Press all-star team.

The 30-year-old Calgary-born star, who came to the Hawks from New York Rangers, will continue as a player, and will receive the league's maximum salary, $7,500. He was Captain of the club during last season. Major McLaughlin also announced that Johnny Gottselig, Mush Marsh, Bill McKenzie, Alex. Levinsky and Roger Jenkins have signed contracts for next winter.

Peru has voted $15,000,000 for road reconstruction.

Joe DiMaggio Accepts Yanks' Offer Of $25,000 For Year; Fourth Highest Paid Player

Dizzy Dean Regains Old Form In Inaugural—Feller Shuts Out Browns

NEW YORK, April 21 (C.P.). — The big league baseball races, only just begun, already have supplied more quick color and commotion than a four-ring circus during a thunder storm. The customers today were slightly bewildered from trying to look in a dozen directions at once.

Joe DiMaggio, the last of the holdouts, was rolling eastward to join the beleaguered New York Yankees, watching the telephone poles tick off the dollars he had lost by trying to buck the most powerful club in the business.

Owner Phil Wrigley, the chewing gum king who owns Chicago Cubs, was breathing a little easier and gaining confidence that he hadn't been stuck in planking down $250,000 for Pitcher Dizzy Dean. The Diz did all right in his inaugural.

Shuts Out Browns 9-0.

Bob Feller, 19-year-old fireballer of Cleveland Indians, had come within a single scratch hit of achieving the noblest of all diamond deeds, a no-hitter, as he shut out St. Louis Browns 9-0. Also, he struck out six and made two hits.

Among the lesser incidents of a lusty day was the home run hit by little Gene Moore of Boston Bees with three on base to beat the Giants 6-4; a nine-run rally by the Cubs at Cincinnati's expense, and a four-run, last-inning comeback by Philadelphia Phils to out-game Brooklyn 6-5.

Dean went in to prove that Branch Rickey of the Cards hadn't made a sucker out of Wrigley. It wasn't a complete test for the great one's arm, not after the Cubs gave him nine runs in the second inning. During the six innings Diz worked he allowed eight hits and two runs, but he looked tough enough when it came time to bear down.

He struck out three men, each time with men on the sacks. But didn't appear to be exerting himself otherwise. Manager Charlie Grimm relieved him after the sixth and let Jack Russell finish out the 10-4 victory. Tony Lazzeri hit a double and three singles for the Cubs, who raked three Reds for 16 safeties.

Jim Turner, last season's aged rookie sensation, held the Giants to six hits until Moore came through with his decisive homer for the Bees.

Cards Take Beating.

St. Louis Cards looked like they were missing Dean poignantly as five of their remaining pitchers, whose names scarcely matter, took another 9-4 hiding from Pittsburgh Pirates.

Fat Freddie Fitzsimmons was the victim of the Phils' spectacular win over Brooklyn. Leading 5-2 going into the ninth after having hurled hitless ball for four innings, he suddenly was rapped for three singles before Max Butcher was rushed to the rescue. Pinky Whitney promptly drove in two runs with a single to tie the score, and then Butcher cut loose a wild pitch to let the winning run across.

The only hit off Feller came in the sixth, when Billy Sullivan, who was traded by Cleveland to the Browns during the winter, slapped a grounder to the pitcher's box, and the Indians' wonder boy was just a split second slow in fielding it.

Senators Get Third Straight.

Washington won its third straight from the Athletics, 3-0, as Dutch Leonard, making his first start in the American League, kept seven Philadelphia hits scattered.

Mickey Cochrane must be dreading the prospect of taking his Detroit Tigers home for their opening tomorrow after dropping the second in a row to Chicago 5-4.

King George and Queen Elizabeth will be patrons of London's Motorcycle Show in November.

15 Thoroughbreds Perish In Fire

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich., April 21.—Fire started by lighting swept the old Mount Clemens racetrack stables and grandstand yesterday, killing fifteen race horses valued at $20,000.

Among the horses known to have perished were Indefinite, Dusprite, Homer L., James Buchanan, Lyle Dowling, G. W. Bell, Buck Harper, Paradox Girl, Piper's Tune, and other racetrack favorites.

Twenty-nine horses were quartered in the stables. Several were led to safety by handlers.

Damage to the racing plant, which had been used for training purposes for fifteen years, was estimated at $30,000.

FLYERS BEATEN IN FINAL GAME BY 3-1 COUNT

CALGARY, April 21 (CP).—Trail's End meant the Allan Cup and the senior amateur hockey championship of Canada today for the gallant band of Smoke Eaters from the little British Columbia smelter town of Trail and a spot as runners-up for Cornwall Flyers.

Smoke Eaters succeeded Sudbury Tigers as cup champions last night by defeating Flyers 3-1 in the fourth game of their best-of-five series for the Dominion title. Only victory scored by the Eastern Canada champions came in the third game, which they took 2-1. The British Columbians won the first two 6-4 and 3-2.

Smoke Eaters bounced back from the defeat in the third contest to outplay the Eastern hopes in a game that ended with one fight and numerous near-battles and which sent a flock of players to the penalty bench in the last half of the third period.

14th Cup Victory.

It was the 14th cup victory for the West since Ottawa Cliffsides became first titleholders in 1908, and was the second time a British Columbia team turned the trick. Kimberley Dynamiters gave the Province its first Allan Cup championship two years ago. Eastern Canada teams have held the trophy 17 times.

Smoke Eaters ran roughshod over Flyers, weakened by loss of forward Dick Proulx because of injuries, after Mel Snowden counted late in the first period. Only the master netminding of Floyd Perras prevented Trail from running the score into double figures.

Joe Benoit, tricky right wing, and his centre, Ab Cronie, counted the other Trail tallies. Flyers' only marker was scored by big Ab MacDonald with 45 seconds to go. The big left winger played his best hockey of the series, and with a little luck might have had two more.

Perras Is Star.

Backed by the outstanding work of Perras, individual star of the four games, the fighting Cornwall crew opened up in the second after a cautious first period.

Perras was given little protection as Flyers forced the play until eight and a half minutes of the third period when three Smoke Eaters raced down the ice. They had no opposition. Bunny Dame shot a wide pass to Benoit, who gave Perras no chance.

A lucky goal three minutes later left Flyers with a three-goal lead to cut down in less than nine minutes. Cronie's pass-out from the corner hit Gillie's skate and caromed into the Cornwall net.

The Eastern Canada champions never stopped trying, but a string of penalties made their attack futile against the fast-skating Smoke Eaters until MacDonald counted.

After the game D. P. McDonald of Calgary, in charge of the series for the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, presented the Allan Cup to Captain Dave Duchak of Trail. Duchak had led North Battleford's unsuccessful bid against Sudbury in Calgary last year.

Three concert halls were used in Moscow, Russia, for the opening of a Russian classical musical festival.

EDDIE POWERS DECLINES POST

TORONTO, April 21. — With Marlboros definite non-starters in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior race a changing scene confronts the followers of the gutted stick sport as they probe to find where the Toronto team players will drift for this summer's campaigning.

Eddie Powers, long recognized as an outstanding coach, whether you talk in terms of hockey, lacrosse or mah jong, will take a well-earned rest. Brampton offered Powers the job of coach, but he turned down the bid, and will see lacrosse as a spectator this summer before returning to his hockey post next fall.

His players with last year's Marlboros will be with different teams in the association. Bill Isaacs, outstanding centre player is said to be in Brantford and ready to line up with the Brants in the coming campaign. Smiley Young, Luman Jackson and Max Martin will likely truck on down with Isaacs and join the Brants who are moulding what looks like a formidable all-Indian array.

Captain Tommy Scott of the Dukes may be seen with Mimico Mountaineers this summer. It is unlikely Scott will return to Orillia, where he once played. A job in Toronto makes it imperative he do his playing close to home. Chances are if Scott, former Murphy Memorial Trophy winners, doesn't play with Mimico he'll become a Brampton Excelsior.

WINDSOR WINS SCHOOL TITLE

TORONTO, April 21 (CP). — Windsor Kennedy Collegiate displayed a last-minute scoring punch to defeat Glebe Collegiate of Ottawa 24-23 and take the Senior Ontario Secondary Schools Association basketball championship here last night.

Paced by centre Joe Krol, who counted five field goals and four foul shots for 14 points, the Kennedy hoopsters put on a winning rally in the closing minutes of the game after trailing Ottawa through the first three quarters.

Great Diz Sets At Rest All Rumors That His Pitching Arm Going Bad

CINCINNATI, April 21—(AP).—Andy (Doc) Lotshaw, who rubbed and kneaded the kinks out of Chicago Cub muscles for 17 years, set at rest today all fears that an ailing arm might have been among the reasons St. Louis Cards shipped "Dizzy" Dean to the Windy City club in exchange for three players and a bundle of cash.

Dean wrecked some of the rumors yesterday as he "breezed" through six innings against the Cincinnati Reds in his debut as a Chicagoan. He allowed eight hits, two runs, walked none and fanned three as the Cubs won their second straight by 10-4, with a nine-run explosion in the second.

"Doc" worked on Dean's muscles and listened to his one-sided "conversation" for a half hour after the "one and only" had been taken out for a rest. As Dean stepped into his shower, Lotshaw said:

"There's nothing in the world wrong with that arm, except that it's a bit weak from lack of use. The muscles are 'loose as a goose,' and he'll win a lot of games for us this season. He may mean the pennant."

Charley Grimm, Cub skipper, said Dean would start the game Sunday at Chicago against his old team mates, the Cardinals.

PRAIRIE DREAM IS LITHE TYPE ATHLETIC GIRL

WINNIPEG, April 21—(CP).—An "ineffable western air," a dashing, rather gallant quality distinguished the prairies dream girl from her sisters on either side.

"A sportswoman and a lady," is the phrase Harry Steel, veteran cameraman, used to epitomize the type of beauty most representative of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

For 20 years Steel has been clicking his shutters at debutantes, brides and girl athletes of all sizes, shapes and hues, studying their lineaments under varied conditions of lighting.

Steel declares that his camera, and possibly any other camera, is incapable of capturing the distinctive quality in which western girls differ from others. Nevertheless, it is there.

Has Athletic Figure

Bob Reck, a Winnipeg artist, picks up where Steel leaves off when he rhapsodizes "You can see her riding in the foothills outside Calgary, snowshoeing near Winnipeg, or even going about her work on a Saskatchewan farm."

Reck squints one eye and gives dimensions and other details. "She is," he said, "a brunette, about five feet four inches tall. She is still girlish in appearance, with the soft curves of approaching womanhood appearing in a lithe, athletic figure."

Reck points to Deanna Durbin, the young film star from Winnipeg, as a representative of western beauty at its best. Deanna, he says, is younger than the ideal.

Another girl who carried the standard of prairie pulchritude into the international field is Ethel Catherwood, the Saskatoon Lily, most beautiful athlete at the Amsterdam Olympics 10 years ago. Her lithe grace and loveliness stirred the hearts of thousands who saw her.

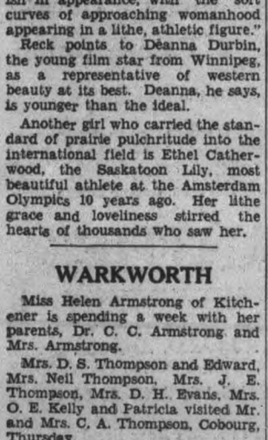
Hell's Mayor



Mayor Lorenz Stenvig, of Hell, Norway, is shown as he arrived in New York for a short visit. In Norwegian the word hell means slope, and the town got its name from the fact that it is built on a slope. Mayor Stenvig entered into the spirit of the free translation.

Simple Home Treatment For Varicose Veins

Swollen veins may become dangerous and sometimes break. Sufferers should get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at McDermid & Jury or any pharmacist and start to reduce the veins and bunches at once. A small bottle will last a long time, because it is very concentrated and a little goes a long way. Apply night and morning with a soft brush or the finger tips as directed until the swelling is reduced.

So effective is Emerald Oil that it is highly useful in reducing troublesome simple swellings due to strain and hastens their disappearance.

Lion Master Of "The Greatest Show On Earth" Thrills Audience

One of the goose-pimple-raising thrills of the current Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey's circus in Madison Square Garden, New York, is this act by Lion-master Merrell Jacobs, who tries (and succeeds) to make lions behave like soldiers on parade. Here you see Jacobs holding a group of his savage playmates under control and in the formation he calls the "military laydown."

MARTIN DEPLORES DIVIDED CANADA

PORT STANLEY, Ont., April 21—(CP).—Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of present disputes between the provinces and the Federal government, Paul Martin, Liberal Member of Parliament for Essex East, told an inter-community banquet last night in this Lake Erie village 12 miles south of St. Thomas. He urged greater national unity so as to make Canada a greater nation.

"The lawmakers of the Dominion find themselves in a constitutional strait jacket on national issues because of the dual jurisdiction of Provincial and Federal Governments,' Mr. Martin said. "I believe that above the interests of the individual provinces come the interests of all the provinces together, the nation as a whole. If we do not believe this, let us break up the attempt of the Fathers of Confederation to set up a nation of Canada."

Mr. Martin said that since the constitution of the United States was drawn up, that country's Supreme Court has interpreted it so as to give more and more power to the Federal Government. But in the case of Canada the Privy Council gradually has withdrawn power from the Federal Government and placed it in the hands of the provinces. By a decision last year, in spite of the statute of Westminster, Canada was held to be incapable of signing any treaty affecting an individual province.

'Canada has been reduced by the Privy Council to the point where it has not the power of simple nationhood," Mr. Martin said, who declared the intention of the Fathers of Confederation was not a mere union of provinces but "a strong government, a central authority which would tend to create one great nation."

Successful Sale Held At Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 21. — The annual Easter bazaar held under the auspices of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Ladies' Aid in Lynch's Hall on Saturday afternoon and evening was well attended. The president, Mrs. W. S. Fife, was general convenor of arrangements and was assisted by the ladies who each year help to make their Easter bazaar a success.

The sale of home-made cooking was especially attractive, and included an abundance of cakes, pies, bread and buns. These were sold by Mrs. Howard Fife and Mrs. W. E. Wilson. A table of home-made candy of many varieties was in charge of Miss Jessie Whitred, assisted by Miss Kathleen Skinkle. The display of pretty articles of fancy work and novelties made by the members was in charge of Mrs. V. Findly. Misses Betty Campbell and Edna Graham had samples of many useful household necessities, which found a ready sale.

A dainty tea room was arranged at the rear of the spacious hall, where supper was served. There was a large attendance and an atmosphere of sociability which appealed to everyone and made the visitors very reluctant to leave.

The following ladies assisted in the serving: Mrs. A. E. Spooner, Mrs. C. Dodd, Mrs. Reta Johnston, Mrs. H. Dodd, Mrs. W. N. Campbell, Mrs. R. Thompson, Miss Hermiston, Mrs. J. Richardson, and Miss Alice Whitred.

DIVORCE ACTION IS DISMISSED

In the action of Mrs. Allan Lewis against her husband for divorce, the Hon. Mr. Justice Roach dismissed the action with costs as asked on the ground that Mrs. Lewis was not able to produce witnesses at trial. She claimed before the Honorable Mr. Justice McFarland on the 12th of April, 1938, that she was entitled to interim disbursements which he declined to allow her and transferred the case for trial to Lindsay. Mr. Gordon is appealing the judgment on the grounds that the wife in a divorce proceedings is entitled to her interim disbursements for witnesses to be called if she is not able to pay the witness fees herself. Mr. Gordon stated that he would serve the notice of appeal within the next de or so to the Court of Appeal of Ontario for judgment.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, April 22.

A day of much constructive work, with definite progress toward attaining high ambitions, is read from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects. While the energies may be under high stimuli and the spirit of initiative quickened to put over important projects, yet there are vexations, difficulties, and confusing circumstances to be coped with.

Those whose birthday it is may be given the incentive to do some very productive work, especially in connection with new projects of importance. Nevertheless, there are confusions, peculiar situations and want of co-operation from superiors or employers to reckon with.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, aggressive, and enthusiastic, more willing to be "on its own" than in employment or in co-operation with others, where it may be vexatious, headstrong and intolerant of others' ideas.

TWO MEN KILLED BLASTING ICE JAM

BUCKINGHAM, Que., April 21—(CP).—Premature explosion of a dynamite charge at an ice jam on Pearson's creek near the Lievre river, 60 miles north of here, cost two men their lives Monday, it was learied here last night.

Th men, Albert Hurtubise, 46, and Leon Clement, 42, both residents of Notre Dame de Pontmain, Que., were employed by the James MacLaren Lumber Company of Buckingham.

It was believed the ice jam occurred close to where Pearson's creek joins the Lievre river and was holding up logging operations. The two men had gone to clear the jam away and were making for shore when the blast went off.

Hurtubise is survived by his widow and 12 children, Clement by his widow.

MONTREAL, April 21 (CP).—Rev. Rev. Ernest William Young minister of St. Andrew's United Church, Peterborough, Ont., will be awarded the degree of Doctor of Divinity at the convocation here Thursday, it was decided last night by the senate of United Theological College of Montreal.

Rev. Thomas Hart of Provost, Alta., who submitted a thesis for an examination, has been awarded the Doctor of Theology degree.

Mr. Young studied for six years under the control of the college in the course of "History and Philosophy of Religion", and had passed all the examinations required for the D.Th. degree. This course however was not completed, by a thesis acceptable to the senate of the college.

Mr. Young originally graduated in the Royal University of Ireland, in the honour "Mental and Moral Science" course. When changes were made in educational matters in Ireland and he was transferred to the Queens University, Belfast as a graduate. He later took his Master of Arts degree by writing a thesis on "Christian Ethics" which was accepted by the university and published in book form by the Epworth Press, London, England. Later on he took the B.D. degree by examination and thesis and has carried on his studies steadily in consultation with the authorities of the United Theological College, Montreal. The subjects have included a detailed study on non-Christian religions, and the philosophy and psychology of religion.

Mr. Young came to Canada in 1928 and spent nine years in Dundas Street Centre Church, London, Ont. He was transferred to St. Andrew's Church, Peterborough, in July 1937.

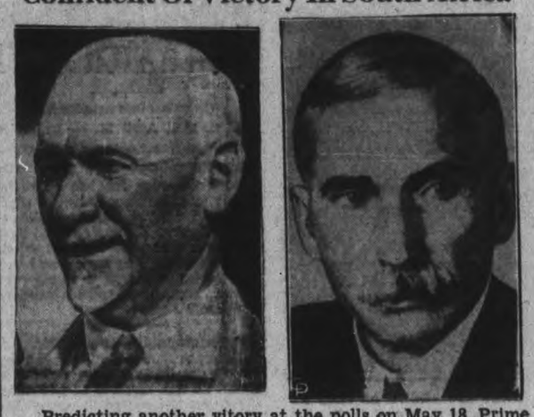
Confident Of Victory In South Africa



Predicting another vitory at the polls on May 18, Prime Minister General J. B. M. Hertzog, RIGHT, declared that the Fusion government of South Africa, will retain its formidable majority by holding the 115 seats it now has in the House. General Jan Smuts, minister of Justice, and former prime Minister, LEFT, is actively campaigning for the return to power of the Fusion ministry which was formed five years ago.

A BEAVER SANCTUARY

KINGSTON, Ont., April 21 (CP).—A beaver sanctuary will be provided as part of the Abbey Dawn Sanctuary near here as a result of a request by Grey Owl, naturalist and writer who died this month. Wallace Havelock Robb of Abbey Dawn said Grey Owl suggested a beaver sanctuary several years ago, and as a start, poplars were grown for the future beavers.

Noted War Writer A. B. Young Dies

LONDON, April 21—(AP)—A. B. Filson Young, 62, author and newspaper correspondent in the South African and Great Wars, died here yesterday.

He was adviser on programs to the British Broadcasting Company since 1923. Before that he served many of the leading British newspapers and periodicals as correspondent and in editorial posts.

After a year's service in the navy, Young was a correspondent with the British expeditionary force in France in 1916-17. He represented the Manchester Guardian in South Africa in 1899 and 1900. He was the author of many books, some based on his war experiences.

Fugitives Arriving In France

Tattered Spanish Loyalist soldiers are shown as they arrive in France after crosing the Franco-Spanish border. The fugitives have paid two francs a pound for their safe guidance through the small republic of Andorra.

Two Francs A Pound Paid For Guidance To France

Charge Impoverished Inhabitants Of Andorra Made For Years

(By Central Press Canadian)

Paris, April 20.—Two francs a pound.

This is not the price of meat in a butcher's store or vegetables in the market but the toll levied on human beings escaping from war-ridden Spain.

It is the price that impoverished inhabitants of the little frontier republic of Andorra charge to escort fleeing Spaniards to France; French volunteers to Spain, or smuggled goods of any kind, animate or inanimate, in any direction.

And this price has been fixed in Andorra since time immemorial.

Alternative Is Death

Failure to live up to this unwritten tariff often means death.

These are the facts brought back by a Franch newspaperman who recently made a quick investigation of Andorran conditions.

French military outposts in Andorra are powerless to prevent the smuggling of persons through the country in either direction, the correspondent related.

"We are here merely to protect the Andorrans at their request," the local commander of the French forces told him.

"There is nothing we can do about the smuggled 'goods' human or otherwise. Often we get refugees. We note their papers, feed them and give them first aid— many of them are wounded—and tell them they have 48 hours to leave the republic. That's all we can do."

Some Pay Double

In the night time the greater number of these refugees, fleeing from Government Spain for the most part, follow their Andorran guides across the snowy mountains into France. But first they are weighed and the toll exacted. A few don't get through so cheap. Prominent refugees are charged double, stated this correspondent.

Two, who were treated by a local Andorran doctor, told of death which awaits many of those who fail to pay the rate and procure their guides.

"We were 10," they related. "We thought we had crossed into Andorra and lit flares. Suddenly a band of soldiers closed in on us and opened fire. Two of our party dropped dead, we two jumped over the precipice and luckily escaped alive but feigned death.

"The other six surrendered and were shot the next morning."

Andorrans have been smuggling between France and Spain for centuries. The republic is permitted to import duty free from both neighboring powers and often a baker orders 20,000 razor blades, a carpented two tons of pepper, a barber 1,000 pounds of cigarette-lighter flints.

"Obviously this is smuggled somewhere. But what can we do about it?" the local officer said.

New Nabi Union To Fight Nazis

MONTREAL, April 21—(CP). — A movement to unite Christians and Jews with the primary purpose of figthing Naziism and similar forces throughout the world was launched here last night by an Ontario United Church clergyman and a Jewish business man of Ottawa and Montreal. The union would be known under the name of "Nabi."

A call for spiritual re-armament to unite all honest thinkers of all races and creeds under the banner "Nabi versus Nazi" was made by Rev. Rinaldo William Armstrong of Merrickville, Ont., and Hyman Edelstein of Montreal and Ottawa.

Plans for a parade here were revealed by Mr. Edelstein, who claimed the "Nabi" movement was launching a world-wide spiritual counter-offensive against Naziism.

Mr. Armstrong said the hour had struck for all lovers of justice and truth to give themselves to the propagation of a philosophy to combat the rising elements of mischief.

LINDSAY

WOMAN LET OFF ON WATCH THEFT

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 21. — In Police Court on Wednesday a well-known Mariposa woman was given suspended sentence for two years by Magistrate Gee on a charge of theft preferred against her by Chief of Police Lawler. It was charged that the accused had taken a gold watch from a hairdressing parlor, and had also stolen goods in a number of stores. Restitution will be made by her family.

Fifteen minutes after a Fenelon Falls youth named Dynan had been introduced to Provincial Constable Adair, he was arrested by the same ofifcer on the charge of consuming in a public place. After the introduction the youth remarked to the officer that he hoped he would never have occasion to arrest him. He was fined $10.00, and costs, by Magistrate Gee on Wednesday morning.

A car owned and driven by J. H. Metcalfe, town, crashed into the ditch between Hillhead and Reaboro on Monday. The driver took to the ditch to avoid striking a pony and buggy driven by R. Soles of Omemee. The pony reared and jumped in the path of the car, which was badly wrecked after taking to the ditch.

Provincial Constable Adair yesterday received word that the new car stolen at Sunderland a few days ago had been recovered in Ottawa. The Provincial Police in that city had arrested two men with long criminal records, and charged them with the theft. The car still bore the licence plates stolen from a car in Lindsay.

Death on Tuesday night claimed a popular and well-known resident of Lindsay in the person of Mrs. Thomas Sadler, her demise following that of her husband, who passed away three weeks ago. She is survived by one daughter, four brothers and four sisters.

Captain R. G. Cavell of Toronto addressed St. Paul's Laymen's Association on Tuesday night. Speaking on world events, he summed up his address with the somewhat startling statement that the trend of the world is inevitably towards dictatorships, and that another world war would break out within five years.

"We Can Afford To Pay For Security"

Proposing to spend billions to "prime the pump" for recovery, President Roosevelt is shown during the broadcast from the Oval room of the White House in which he outlined his proposal. He has asked congress to sanction the spending of $4,500,000,000 for relief, public works, flood control and other objects to give employment to the unemployed. During his broadcast Roosevelt declared: "We are a rich nation; we can afford to pay for security and prosperity without having to sacrifice our liberties into the bargain."

Apricots Bloom, Fool Niagara

GRIMSBY, Ont., April 21—(CP). —For the second time within a few days it has been found necessary to change the dates of Niagara Peninsula blossom time programs owing to the rapid development of fruit buds. Originally set for May 15, the opening date for blossom time, has been advanced to May 6.

Date for Grimsby's program of events has been moved ahead from May 18 to May 11. Ninth annual blossom time music festival program by the schools (Public and High) of the district and under the baton of Gordon L. Eaton, will be held May 5 and 6 in Trinity Hall.

Apricots, first of the fruit blossoms to appear, broke into full bloom yesterday throughout the district—almost two full weeks in advance of last year. Cherries are beginning to show white tips on their buds and glimpses of pink may be seen in some orchards of early peaches.

HASTINGS

TO ENFORCE LAWS ON GAFFING FISH

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 21.—More rigid enforcement of existing laws regarding spearing and gaffing of fish in the Trent and other waters in this district, is becoming necessary, A. K. Minaker, game and fisheries overseer for Northumberland county, told and Examiner reporter last night.

He said that a stricter enforcement would assist in preventing depletion of bass, lunge and pickerel.

"The gaffing of suckers is unlawful in these waters at any time," he stated.

Tuesday afternoon some local boys alleged to have been gaffing for suckers from the Hastings dam, received final warnings from a deputy game warden.

Mr. Minaker was in the village investigating complaints.

Looking Back
On This Date

APRIL 21

Fifty years ago to-day (April 21, 1888) Canada mourned the death of one of her most eminent journalists and a leader of the Conservative party, Hon. Thomas White, minister of interior. Born at Montreal in 1830, he decided after graduation from high school to become a newspaper man, and a good newspaper man at that. His cub days were on the old Quebec Gazette, but when he was 23 he and his brother, Richard, moved to Peterboro, where in 1853 they founded the Review. Thomas was editor and reporter, and Richard handled the business. In 1860 Thomas went to Cobourg to study law, but the news desk called and in 1864 he and Richard founded the Hamilton Spectator.

Fred Williams

From the start it wielded great influence all over western Ontario, and when Sir John A. Macdonald in 1869 sought to establish a Conservative paper in Toronto he wanted the Whites to move the Spectator to Toronto. In a letter at that time Sir John wrote to D. L. MacPherson, an influential member of the party at Toronto:

"I think White is your best man. . . . I have the greatest confidence in White's judgment, as well as in his political principles. He is a Conservative in the best sense of the word and yet truly liberal. The paper should be of as liberal a tone as is compatible with the support and principles of the Conservative party. White's connection with it will be a guarantee."

But the Whites did not go to Toronto. Instead they moved back to Montreal and secured the Gazette, which they made one of the greatest journals in Canada. Tory it was, of course, but it was always fair, and never resorted to the depths of some of the journals of that time, which was one of intense bitterness in political journalism.

In 1878, Thomas White was elected to the House of Commons for Cardwell, Ont. (now part of Dufferin-Simcoe) and we had the peculiar situation of a Montreal man, who was as popular with the French-Canadians as one of their own, sitting for probably the most Orange county in Ontario.

From the first Thomas White proved himself a great asset to his party. A fluent speaker, he was an apt debater, always at home with figures, sure of his facts, and as much respected by his political foes in private life as he was feared by them in debate. In May, 1885, in the midst of the Riel troubles in the Northwest, Thomas White entered the cabinet as minister of interior, and from that day to his death worked night and day building up and improving his department.

He was one of the first to travel over the C.P.R. to Winnipeg, spent months in the West during the parliamentary recess personally investigating conditions, and had just about procured a condition of good government when he collapsed and died, as sure a victim to duty as any public man in our annals. Had he lived he might well have succeeded Sir John in 1891, for he had the confidence of all the provinces. He was the father of Robert S. White, now M.P. for Westmount, at present the "father of the House of Commons," who has ever lived true to the tradition of the White family.

ALGONQUIN SAYS GREY OWL COUSIN

LONDON, Ont., April 21—(CP).—Controversy over whether Grey Owl, the famed naturalist who died in Saskatchewan recently, was of Indian birth struck a new note here to-day with the declaration by Howard Seymore, that Grey Owl actually was born of Indian parents near Hudson Bay.

Grey Owl enlisted in the war under the name of Archie Belaney, and it was generally accepted that he was the son of a Scotsman born in the United States and an Apache Indian mother, and was born in Mexico. Seymore, an Algonquin Indian guide, known also as Lone Eagle, declared here last night that Grey Owl was his first cousin and he had proof of his brith of Indian parents near Hudson Bay.

Seymore declared Grey Owl was the son of Howard Seymore, a full-blooded Algonquin and a woman largely of Indian blood who was raised by an English family at a Hudsons Bay Company post in the north. He said Grey Owl was born on a reserve in the Northwest Territories. The father died soon after Grey Owl's birth and, according to Seymore, the mother and her small son returned to the English family with whom she had lived and went with them to England, where they lived until Grey Owl returned to Canada with an English education.

Seymore, or Lone Eagle, added that he talked to Grey Owl following the last address that Grey Owl gave in Toronto. He said the English education and manners that Grey Owl acquired in his youth in England were probably the basis of the claims now made that Grey Owl was not of Indian blood. Seymore said he had family papers in the West that trace his family's history and that he himself was named after Grey Owl's father, John Joseph Howard Seymore.

JAPS SNATCH LINI IN 24-HOUR SCRAP

SHANGHAI, April 21 (A.P.). — After 24 hours of street fighting, Japan's reinforced Shantung army occupied Lini to-day.

The Chinese nigh command announced the withdrawal of their forces from the battered walled town, a key point in their Yi River entrenchments through which the Japanese in a new offensive are attempting to drive south-westward to the relief of a besieged garrison at Yihsien, 40 miles away.

The Chinese took up new defence positions two miles south. Ninety miles south-west of Lini is Suchow, Lunghai railway junction and ultimate objective of the Japanese offensive to cut the corridor now separating Japanese conquests in North China and in the Shanghai-Nanking area.

Forty-seven miles south-west of Lini is Taierhchwang, scene of the recent defeat of the Japanese.

A Japanese garrison surrounded and besieged at Tsaochwang in the vicinity of Yihsien made a desperate sortie in an effort to cut its way through, but was forced to withdraw within the walls.

Chinese claimed the recapture for the fourth time of Pinglu in Shansi Province on the north bank of the Yellow River.

Germany's shortage of labor has caused an increase in regimentation of those employed.

SIX MINE INJURED

arm, and Joe Karpik, 34, with a fractured skull and both ankles broken, were in a critical condition.

John Karpik, 42, with fractures of both thighs, right arm and right foot, and William Dobie, 25, and Kenneth Murphy, 30, both with fractured vertebra and other broken bones, were reported in fair condition. Stanley White, 37, was in "good" condition despite fractures of left leg, right elbow and right heel.

Investigation of the accident was planned by A. S. Bayne, Ontario Department of Mines inspector, pending which the mine was closed. It is owned by the Newmount Corporation of New York.

Mine officials were at a loss to explain the mishap and Manager Arthur Kendall said the hoist mechanism was approved only three weeks ago by a mine inspector. Miners believed a clutch on the hoist broke and the cable failed to operate the "dogs" which ordinarily spread when cable tension is released and catch in timbers of the shaft to halt the cage.

Trustees And Ratepayers Asked To Aid Teachers

Asked To Prepare School Plots For Planting Of Nursery Trees

Peterborough county trustees and ratepayers of Public and Separate schools are asked by the Peterborough County Reforestation committee to give the teacher and pupils of their respective schools the necessary assistance in laying out a nursery plot for forest trees in a suitable place, in the school grounds, if possible.

There will be provided for each school on or about April 26th, a small lot of conifers, pines and spruce, which can be expected to do very well on ground not having had previous preparation.

Where a plot about 12 ft. by 20 ft. is prepared before planting this spring and the unplanted part kept cultivated during 1938, a further lot of mixed hardwood seedling trees will be given the pupils in the spring of 1939. All grass, sod and roots should be removed and the surface covered with 3 or 4 inches of good garden soil, without the addition of farm manure.

The children are generally very much interested in this project and it is expected that the school boards will assist to the extent of providing a good place for the seedlings to grow for 2 or 3 years. A recent news item said these trees would be planted on Arbor days, but they are now ready for shipment from the nursery and should be planted early as possible next week.

Girl of 19

Accused of Bad Complexion

(Before Mr. Justice Kruschen)

JUDGE: Jane Smith, you have had a fair trial and you have been found guilty of the charge made against you.

PRISONER: Y-y-yes, my lord.

JUDGE: Very well, then. Your crime may not have been deliberate, but it was one of serious neglect. You admit that though you do not get enough time for adequate open-air exercise you have never troubled to take steps to prevent constipation. Your complexion inevitably suffered.

COUNSEL FOR THE DEFENCE: My lord, I protest that there are other causes.

JUDGE: I said that constipation inevitably causes bad complexions; your client admits to the cause and plainly suffers from the effect.

PRISONER: It isn't my fault, my lord. I couldn't help it.

JUDGE: You could help it and you shall help it. This is the first time a charge has been made against you; let it be a lesson to you that young women may not neglect and spoil the good looks that Nature gave them. Your duty to your parents, to your friends, to your future husband is to make the most you possibly can of yourself.

(Here the prisoner covered her face with her handkerchief and was handed a glass of water.)

JUDGE: (continuing): You will be placed on probation for 3 months and I order that you drink one cup of coffee or tea, or a glass of water at breakfast every morning—

PRISONER: But I always do!

JUDGE: (sternly): Don't interrupt! One cup of coffee or tea or a glass of water every morning into which you shall put as much Kruschen Salts as will lie on a 10c piece. You will get rid of constipation and when you do you will never find yourself in your present predicament again.

After consultation with counsel, the judge announced that costs to the extent of less than 1c a day should be borne by the defence. "I believe I am right in saying," said his lordship, "that a 75c bottle of Kruschen contains 96 doses. That is much less than 1c a day."

The prisoner left the court smiling.

relieve constipation and rheumatism

Kruschen is a combination of several mineral salts which your body must get, in some way, to keep the blood pure, the inside clean, and the system generally toned up, but which you can't get in Nature's own way without abundant exercise and fresh air. You should have those salts every day; hence the importance of the "little daily dose". Every drug counter sells Kruschen in 25c, 45c and 75c bottles. It's the little daily dose that does it.

PROHIBITIVE DUTY ASKED ON IMPORTS OF NEPHELINE SYENITE

Tariff of $6 Ton On Nepheline Sought In U.S. Bill

Measure Does Not Come Before Congress Until Next Fall, Ralph Kilbon States

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP).—Representative Bulwinkle (Dem.-North Carolina) introduced yesterday a bill to place a tariff of $6 a ton on imports of nepheline syenite, a substitute for feldspar used in the manufacture of glass.

Nepheline-syenite, mostly imported from Canada, competes with feldspar mined in North Carolina.

"A tariff of six dollars a ton would be prohibitive and is aimed at excluding our product from the United States market," Ralph Kilbon, superintendent of the Canadian Nepheline Company at Lakefield told the Examiner. "The bill does not come up until the next sessions of Congress in the fall, so there will be nothing done about it for the present."

ALDERMAN COTTON STUDYING SYSTEM STRAY DOG CARE

Accompanying Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Martin of the Peterborough Humane Society, Alderman R. S. Cotton motored to Oshawa this afternoon to obtain information about the system of caring for stray dogs that has been carried on by the Oshawa Humane Society for the last three years. They had an appointment with the city clerk and president of the Oshawa Humane Society and their veterinary dog inspector.

"I had a conference with our Humane Society a week ago," Alderman Cotton explained to The Examiner, "and told them about the arrangement they have worked out in Oshawa. It is not merely a wish on the part of the City Council to transfer to the Humane Society the responsibility for catching stray dogs, but we would like to know the details of Oshawa's system, have all the facts placed before our own Humane Society, and let them decide whether they would adopt the same plan here. My own attitude on this question of keeping dogs in check is to try to win the co-operation of dog owners, to have them with us instead of against us."

After today's enquiry in Oshawa, it is expected the Humane Society will meet next week and consider the Council's proposal for the Society's assumption of what may be called the dog problem.

Dog Catcher Named.

W. Blodgett has been appointed dog catcher for the time being at $20 a week. He was on duty last year with Charles W. Holland, who is reported as being disappointed by the action of the Council in not retaining his service this year. Friends of Mr. Holland declare that no one could have been more thorough in his enforcement of the dog bylaw, that he showed no discrimination or favoritism as was illustrated by rounding up dogs owned by members of the City Council, and the owners of dogs in the west-end got the same treatment under the bylaw as people in other parts of the city. One of his friends expressed the opinion that apparently Mr. Holland did the job too well for those who think they can defy the bylaw and get away with it.

The Rambling REPORTERS

BEMOANS FACT.

A cinder in your eye is no pleasant sensation at any time, but one youthful George Street clerk was bemoaning the accident more than seemed called for, this morning. "At any other time of the year I wouldn't mind half so much," he confessed. He has the connoisseur's appreciation of beauty, particularly in the spring. —P.

Rev. McConnachie Resigns Charge

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 21 — (CP).—Rev. A. H. McConnachie has resigned as minister of Frankville and Toledo United Churches owing to ill health, and a call has been extended to Rev. Arthur B. Keyes of Sharbot Lake, to succeed him. The call will go before the Kingston Presbytery and the Settlement Committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference for ratification. Mr. McConnachie for many years was minister at Centreville and also held a pastorate at Springville.

FARMHAND GETS 3 YEARS

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 21 (CP)—Harold Cecil Bryant, farmhand of Elizabethtown near here, was sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary yesterday after pleading guilty to serious charges involving young girls. In addition to the penitentiary term, he will receive five strokes of the lash on two different occasions.

Burnley Woman Passes Suddenly

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 21. — The sudden death of Mrs. Wilson White of Burnley, three miles south of here occurred this morning, the deceased dropping dead while at the breakfast table. She was in her 78th year and up until the time of her death was enjoying normal health.

The late Mrs. White is survived by her husband, one adopted daughter, Mrs. Clarke Sweet of Dartford and one sister, Mrs. E. A. Curvin of Cobourg.

Dan Douglas Recalls First Gas Used In Great War 23 Years Ago Today

VETERANS OF Ypres are recalling today that gas was first used in the Great War exactly 23 years ago.

It was on such a brilliant sunlit day as today that Canadians first saw waves of the greenish mist floating across from the German lines to them. Dan Douglas, superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada branch here, recalled he was sitting with an old Imperial Army man in a ruined barn when the gas first came across. They saw hundreds of Portuguese troops retreating and they knew something was badly the matter to cause such action. "You'll never see that again as long as you live," he said, the Imperial soldier had told him as they watched the troops retreating.

"Of course we didn't know then what the stuff was," Mr. Douglas related. "But we found out almost immediately when we were sent up to replace the Portugese troops.

In commemoration of the battle in which Canadians won possibly their greatest fame, the Red Patch Club is holding its annual "Ypres Banquet" on Friday night in the Legion Hall. The banquet will be under chairmanship of Mel Morrow and speakers will include Major Gordon Dingle, Major A. Morrow, A. L. Elliott, M.P.P., J. J. Duffus, M.P., Col. L. T. McLaughlin. Capt. F. Strickland, K.C. and Ald. Robert Cotton.

STOLEN PAPERS ARE RETURNED THROUGH MAILS

A few days ago the residence of T. J. Hetherington in Smith township was entered by a thief or thieves and a number of articles of clothing were stolen and the place was ransacked. A drawer containing a number of papers valuable to Mr. Hetherington as they concerned the pedigrees of his thoroughbred cattle, was forced and the contents carried off.

Wednesday Mr. Hetherington was surprised to receive through the mail a parcel containing the missing documents. It is not clear whether the thief was courteous enough to return the papers as of no use to him or whether he merely tossed them away and they had been mailed to Mr. Hetherington by some person who found them. The parcel had been posted in Peterborough.

800 EXHIBITS ARE ENTERED AT SHOW

When the annual Boys' Hobby Show opens to the public on Friday night, spectators will see more than 800 exhibits, a full hundred more than were shown last year. With entries still pouring in this afternoon, the total stood at close to the 800 mark, with a total of 75 exhibitors being registered.

In all fields numbers of exhibits had increased over last year, and quality was high. In the field numbers of exhibits had increased over last year, and quality was high. In the field of photography in particular, falling in line with the trend the continent over, there was a great increase in the number of exhibits offered, and in their quality as well. Art work had increased too, with Art Rogow's copy of "The Landlord's Tale," a picture of which was recently published in the Examiner, giving promise that it would head the list of prize winners. Oils were outstanding both in number and quality, and there were a great many pencil sketches.

The range of subjects being shown is beyond description. There are scrap books, keys, souvenir buttons, antiques, curios, trade marks, auto licenses for year back, stamps, coins, and a dozen others all listed among "miscellaneous." Frank Patterson has an outstanding show of leather craft, including belts, book marks, bill folds, and knife sheaths. A special exhibit of woodwork by Public school students is being shown. In the manual training competition are listed household articles, furniture, stools, tables, stands, fretwork. Don Whittaker has a fine model of the Queen Mary on show. Mechanical models of a train engine, a bridge, a crane, and a field gun, are some other exhibits. Home-built radios will be shown.

The show will open at 7.45 o'clock on Friday evening, after judging has been completed in the afternoon. The exhibits will be on display all day Saturday.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN GRILLS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21—The funeral of the late Sarah Dobson was conducted from her residence on Centre street Wednesday afternoon. She died at her home on Monday following a brief illness. Born in Perth 79 years ago she later became the wife of John Grills with whom she moved to Campbellford in 1917. Surviving besides her husband are four sons, Harry and Leonard of Toronto and John and Richard of the United States, and two daughters, Irene and Mertle of Toronto.

The funeral service was conducted by the Rev. T. H. Floyd of Christ Church and interment was at the English Line Cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs L. Stephens, M. Grills, Leonard Grills, Harry N. Grills, Hugh J. Petty and A. Parr.

MRS. MARY J. BARLOW

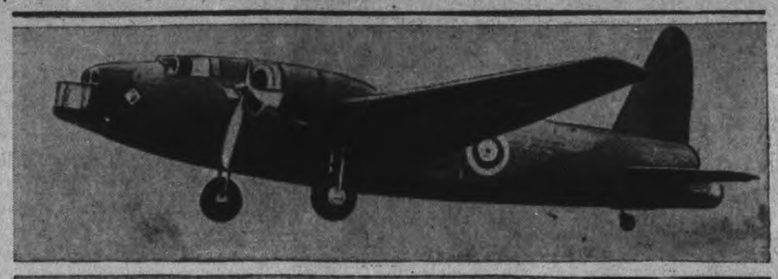
(Examiner Correspondence.)

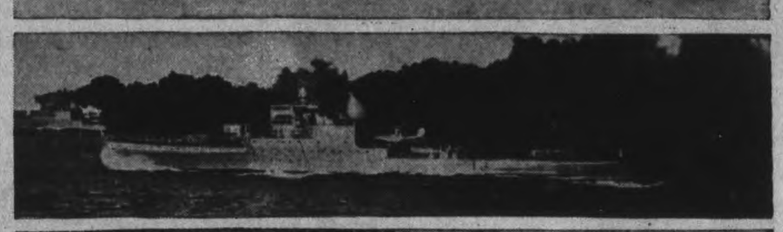
CAMPBELLFORD, April 21—Mrs. Mary J. Barlow, widow of the late Samuel Barlow passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. W. Ayrhart on Saturday evening last following a brief illness. In her nintieth year she had been in failing health for the past two years. She was predeceased by her husband who also died in Campbellford 27 years ago. Mrs. Barlow was born in Belleville in the year 1848 and later resided in Stirling. Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. H. Ayrhart of town and one son Herbert of Capreol. The funeral service was conducted from the residence of Mr. and Mrs. H. Ayrhart, Sebastopol street on Tuesday afternoon by Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick of the Seymour United Church and interment was in the family plot at Stirling cemetery.

The pall bearers were Messrs William Ayrhart, Harry Ayrhart, Russell Ayrhart, Herbert Barlow, Blake Ketcheson, and Arthur Ketcheson.

Navy And Air Force

Under Britain's new defence policy emphasis will be placed on the building of its navy and air force rather than its army. The latest addition to the R.A.F. is the Wellington bomber, TOP, which has extra bombing cockpits in nose and tail. The navy's latest addition are these "City" class cruisers, CENTRE, of 9,000 tons each. They carry an armament of 6-inch guns and torpedo tubes, as well as an amphibian "Walrus" aeroplane. Part of Britain's air might is seen in these 360 fighting aeroplanes, BOTTOM, drawn up for inspection at Mildenhall.





Market Now Being Sought For Deadly Foe Of Fish

Fish And Game Association Is Seeking To Control Snapping Turtles

Believing that the turtles which are found in large number throughout the Kawartha waters are one of the most deadly foes game fish have to face, so far as nature is concerned, the officers of the Peterborough Fish and Game Association are endeavoring to find a market for the turtles which are said to be in demand as a soup-making delicacy.

If they succeed in this effort they will not only have started a new industry in this district but will also have effectively put under control public enemy No. 1 in the game fish circles.

Wilfrid Jacobs, well known Burleigh Falls guide, told the Examiner the other day that the snapping turtles do great havoc among game fish. "They kill thousands of them," Jacobs said, adding that when the male bass were guarding the spawn the turtles would seize and eat the fish.

This opinion is shared by the Fish and Game Association officers and by guides and fishermen generally. There are turtles in practically all the lakes and streams of the district and if there were any incentive to catch them it is thought that hundreds could be taken. If the association can find a channel by which the turtles could be disposed of profitably it is the intention to turn the business over to the guides and anybody else in the district who cares to engage in it.

Woman Injured In Housecleaning

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21. — When she tripped and fell at her home on Sebastopol street, Tuesday morning Mrs. James Dorie suffered a broken nose and head injuries so serious that local physicians recommended her immediate removal to the Belleville hospital. Wife of Councillor James L. Dorie, Mrs. Dorie had been supervising the spring house cleaning at her home and had walked out of a clothes closet tripping on a piece of upturned carpet. Her condition was regarded quite grave.

The ice is entirely out of Stoney Lake now and the water is reported as unusually low for this season of the year. No reports have been received by The Examiner as to damage being done by the ice going out.

CHURCH PARADE

The annual church parade of the Canadian Legion, Branch 52, will be held on Sunday next, according to Fire Chief George Gimblett, president. The parade will be to St. Peter's Cathedral, veterans falling in at the Legion Hall at 9.45 a.m. Berets and medals will be worn.

BANK CLEARINGS.

A decrease of $100,000 in bank clearings was reported to-day for the past week as compared with the same period one year ago. Clearings for the week ending this Thursday totalled $560,636, and last year they were $660,689.

TO INSTALL OFFICERS

Newly elected officers of the Canadian Legion will be installed in office at the regular monthly meeting of the association next Monday night. Fire Chief George Gimblett, president, called for a full attendance at the meeting, at which important business will be transacted.

A LIQUOR CHARGE

A liquor charge against Thomas Hughes of North Monaghan, arising out of the case in which Mrs. Nellie Zimmerman was fined $100 for illegal possession of liquor on Tuesday, was adjourned by Magistrate Campbell until Monday. W. J. A. Fair represented Hughes.

ALLOWED TO GO

The city police picked up a young Toronto man early this morning and as he answered somewhat to the description of one of the men involved in the latest bank robbery in the Queen City he was held for some time. However he was able to show a clean sheet and was allowed to go later on in the morning. No charge was laid against him.

RECOGNIZED HIM

"I know you, boy" said Magistrate Campbell of Port Hope in police court this morning when James Cole, a transient, claiming Toronto as his home, pleaded guilty to a drunk charge. The accused said that he had been before Magistrate Campbell in the same court three years ago for sleeping in a box car. He added that he had been just passing through Peterborough Wednesday. The fine was $10 and $3.50 costs.

MILK TESTERS

Thomas Fry has been appointed milk tester by the Northumberland Cheese Patrons' Association. J. J. Brethour has already been named as tester in the Peterborough district. W. J. Moore, dairy instructor, reports that the local cheese factories are preparing to begin operations about May 1.

ADJOURNS CASE

A charge against Joseph Wheeler, former city police officer of creating a disturbance was adjourned this morning at the request of his counsel, Emmett Sheehy. Mr. Sheehy said that the indictment had been amended and accordingly asked for adjournment. It was pointed out that Magistrate Campbell was in town today especially to hear this particular case. However it was finally arranged that the hearing should be on Friday of next week.

Birthday Of Heiress To The Throne Goes Unmarked Officially

"Is the city flag flying today?" a reporter queried E. A. Outram, assistant city clerk, this morning.

"No, it is not, replied the clerk.

"Why not?" asked the reporter.

"And just why should it be?" was the clerk's retort.

So passed the 12th birthday of Princess Elizabeth, heiress to the throne of Great Britain, without mark or favor in all the city. Public schools, closed for Easter holidays, were without flags. The Collegeiate, also closed, was flagless. The County Court House was open for business but was apparently unaware of the birthday of Britain's next ruler. Only buildings to carry flags were the government buildings — armouries, post office, customs house—where the flag is flown daily from sun-up to sun-down.

CLEANING PLANT BEEN VERY BUSY

A heavy volume of seed grain is flowing through the cleaning plant at J. W Hanbidge's mill on King Edward Street in the south end of the city.

"We have been busy for months but there is always a rush at this time of the year," Mr. Hanbidge told The Examiner today, "and we are getting a full line of seed grain, oats, barley, spring wheat, alfalfa, timothy, red clover. Farmers from all parts of the county are bringing in grain to be cleaned, all the way from Buckhorn to Asphodel. And from outside the county we have had a lot of work for Cavan and South Monaghan farmers, and some of them are from Hope Township."

Mr. Hanbidge said farmers report seeding is becoming general throughout the district.

AFTER HER WINGS

Indian Freed To Raise Fine Is Later Arrested On Illegal Possession Count

Better Off If He Had Taken Jail Sentence For Illegal Fishing

It would have been much better for Hiram Taylor, Jr., Curve Lake Indian guide, who pleaded guilty in police court Wednesday to fishing in Buckhorn Lake during the closed season for bass and maskinonge, if he had elected to commence a jail term at once instead of accepting the adjournment that Magistrate Langley offered him for the purpose of getting money to pay his fine.

When he was set free Wednesday, according to evidence offered in police court to-day, Taylor did not start in getting his fine but instead got something else that landed him back in court, facing Magistrate Campbell of Port Hope and confronted with a charge of having been in illegal possession of liquor.

The story told by Corporal Jack Woods of Lindsay, member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, was that he arrested Taylor on Aylmer street just as Victor Mahoney was handing him a jar containing about 80 ounces of Niagara wine. Unluckily for Taylor and also for Mahoney, Corp. Woods happened to be in the neighborhood of the wine store and noticed Taylor in the same area. When the Curve Laker sauntered around the corner into Aylmer street and a little later Mahoney sauntered out of the wine store with a jar tucked beneath his arm and went in the same direction the Mountie was curious enough to do a little sauntering on his own account and he rounded the corner just in time to see the wine transferred. As a result he arrested both men.

Pleads Guilty.

Mahoney pleaded guilty to supplying Taylor with the liquid refreshment when charged and told Magistrate Campbell it was his first offence.

The magistrate imposed a fine of $50 and $3 costs with the alternative of a month in jail.

Taylor however, pleaded not guilty and Corp. Woods, taking the witness box, told the court the story as outlined above.

Testifying in his own behalf Taylor declared that he did not know Mahoney, had never seen him before and that the wine in question belonged to Mahoney and not to him. 'I don't drink,' he told the Magistrate. Mahoney had asked for a ride to Lakefield, he said, and had given him the jar of wine to put in the car.

"You are a guide? aren't you?" queried Magistrate Campbell.

"Yes, sir."

"And do you ever tell your customers stories?" went on the Magistrate.

"Fish stories," said Taylor with a broad grin.

"Do they believe you?" asked Magistrate Campbell as he intimated he thought Taylor's recital of what had happened was very much in the nature of a fish story.

Taylor was fined $25 and $3 costs. The alterataive is a month in jail.

"Be careful you do not catch scarlet fever up there," was the Magistrate's last bit of advise to the accused.

Scars Find Sister Her Lost Brother

OTTAWA, April 21.—(CP).— A sister who recognized Arthur Desbiens or Dube, 21, of Montreal through scars caused by a scalding he received when a baby to-day had met her brother whom she had not seen for 11 years.

Acting on a "hunch" Mrs. Ferdinand Boucher went to the police station yesterday. She had read in the paper where Desbiens was being held there on a charge of automobile theft.

Keys clanged in the cell-block door. A prisoner stepped out, uncertainly. A small scar showed at the right temple.

"Show me your right wrist," the woman asked. She smiled when she saw another scar there and then told him of their relationship.

Mrs. Boucher said she lost track of her family after her mother died and she was brought to Ottawa from her home at Timmins, Ont., by a woman who was to take care of her.

NIGHT SKATING IS LATEST FAD

A new sport has taken girls of this city by storm. It is called "Night Skating."

Every night and nearly all night long the harsh clatter of roller skates on cement is heard on city streets. Girls from six to twenty-six (the later the hour the older the girl) make almost complete nightly circuits of the city on their skates. The fad started with the coming of spring and now that warm weather is here almost constantly, the number of fans is increasing by leaps and bounds.

Some find it a means of keeping fit, others skate for the pure joy of it, still others, it is suspected, for the clatter the skates make on the cement sidewalks and roads. As yet there has been no concerted protest from householders against the noise, nor have motorists, startled by the sudden appearance on dark roads of pairs of skaters, caught by the glare of headlights, taken any action.

The fad seems to be replacing bicycling among the girls. Two of them skate regularly to Rye's Pavilion in North Monaghan, dance there for a few hours, then skate two or three miles home.

LAWYER-POET DIES

LONDON, April 21 —(AP)— Sir Henry Newbolt, 75, known as "the most English of all our poets," died at his London home Tuesday. Sir Henry, a barrister as well as author, formerly was official naval historian. He was the author of numerous volumes of prose and poetry, many of them dealing with the Great War and Britain's fighting services.

FRENCH CHILDREN LEARN OF CANADA BY WRITTEN WORD

PARIS, April 21—(CP). — In a few weeks Canada's Colonel John McCrae will be the best-known Canadian poet in France. The writer of "In Flanders Fields," perhaps the most moving bit of poetry inspired by the Great War, is being honored as probably no other Canadian poet.

One cannot help being touched by the announcement French schoolchildren are learning the poem this year, either in their English classes, or the translation in their French classes, in memory of Colonel McCrae on the 20th anniversary of his death.

One of the most profound sentiments of the French is their recognition and gratitude to those who gave their lives in France in the war. Canadians who came to the unveiling of the Vimy monument were deeply moved when they saw the soldier cemeteries which dot the north. Their beauty, the care and attention given to them, even though often the work of the simple peasants of the district, spoke eloquently.

Colonel McCrae was buried at Wimereux near Boulogne on the Channel coast and banks of poppies have been placed upon the grave which is marked only by a simple headstone bearing his name, rank and date of death. Besides the services held recently at the grave commemoration services have been held in French Flanders in which "In Flanders Fields" has been recited by soldiers and professors and a biographical lecture on the poet has been given. The board of education ruled that all school children are to be taught the poem.

Like Canadians

The honoring of Colonel McCrae reminds us of welcome Canadians receive in France. The most striking impression is one of intense and affectionate interest. This is not true for all foreigners who visit France. Though her open door to refugees has given the country a reputation for hospitality, individually the French are rather suspicious and aloof with strangers—except Canadians whom they appear to regard almost fraternally. And it's not, as you might imagine, because of the Quebec link alone. The English-speaking Canadian receives the same welcome. It's the word "Canadian" which works the magic.

To the average Frenchman Canada is a sort of dreamland of opportunity. The century or more of French occupation with its tales of exploration, its exciting battles, its fur traders and Indians, has been a part of every child's education and it seems to him that when the French lost Canada they lost a sort of paradise of freedom and adventure.

Liberal diet of Canadian adventure stories completes the impression. The children know "Marie Chapdelaine" almost by heart; Fenimore Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans" (which they erroneously consider Canadian) and a host of stories of frontier life by French-Canadian authors, have inflamed their imaginations.

Some Well Known

Something we forget is that since Marc Lescarbot published the first volume of Canadian poems in France in 1618, a steady stream of literature has been flowing out of Canada into France. Some authors are probably better known here than at home: Garneau's "History of Canada," the works of the Cremazie brothers, particularly the youngest Octove "The Thousand Islands" and "The Flag of Carillon;" Antoine Gerin-Lajoie's history, novels and poetry; Louis Frechette's two volumes of poems "Fleures Boreales" (Northern Flowers) and "Oiseaux de Niege" (Snow Birds) have been honored by the Academie Francaise and his "Story of a People" are all well-known in France.

Recently successfully - translated Canadian stories are "Jalna" by Mazo de la Roche and "Shadows on the Rock" by Willa Cather.

But the great success today is our Indian ambassador, Grey Owl. For an ambassador in the best sense of the word he is proving in the interest he and his books arouse in England and France, for our Canadian wildernesses. His translations are being fairly gobbled up and now are being recommended in all schools. One teacher told me recently that the children are fascinated by the stories and pester her to know where they can get beavers to keep.

Canadian literature has revealed to France the romantic pioneer life, the exploration and adventure, some of the mystery and beauty of the north. It is difficult to convince them that Canada has too a highly-organized society enjoying all the benefits of modern science and invention. So the illusion continues and one has not the heart to destroy their belief that there still exists a Promised Land outside of troubled Europe.

GREY OWL'S WIFE STILL MAINTAINS HUSBAND INDIAN

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., April 21 (CP).—Grey Owl, who spent most of his life in Canadian forests with his bear or trapping with Canadian Indians as one of their blood, yesterday was described by a white friend as an Englishman. His Indian wife, Silver Moon, was just as convinced Grey Owl was a red man.

During his days at Prince Albert National Park, caring for his large beaver colony, Grey Owl maintained he was the son of a Scottish father and an Apache mother. His birthplace, he claimed, was in the Sonora country of Arizona's south.

Mrs. Harry Ross of Prince Albert, however, today declared Grey Owl told her confidentially he was an Englishman. She said Grey Owl swore her to secrecy until his death.

"Pure Imagination."

To this Silver Moon, recovering in a Regina hospital from an operation, replied "Grey Owl's origin was Indian—all these other stories are pure imagination."

Grey Owl's missing toe appeared as an important angle for unravelling the mystery. A London despatch told of a woman who claimed to be the divorced wife of Grey Owl and who was certain the naturalist and Archibald Belaney, the man she married and divorced, were the same. Grey Owl admitted using the name Belaney before he died April 13.

She said Belaney had lost one of his toes because of a war wound. Officials of the Prince Albert undertaking parlor which buried Grey Owl in Prince Albert National Park, said he was minus a toe, the one next to the little one on the right foot.

In her story of her husband's life, Silver Moon, who was left with a six-year-old daughter when Grey Owl died, declared in her Regina hospital room that she would return to Prince Albert National Park to continue the large beaver colony Grey Owl originated.

Father Was a Scot.

Silver Moon said Grey Owl's father was George McNeil, a third generation Scot in the United States. His mother was an Apache Indian woman of Arizona. Shortly before Grey Owl was born the parents travelled to Mexico to see an aunt of Grey Owl, a Mrs. Belaney. He was born there.

Mrs. Ross, however, maintained she was the confidante of Grey Owl, who told her he was English. In a conversation with Grey Owl, she told him his blue eyes were inconsistent with his Indian claim.

"Indians do not have blue eyes," Mrs. Ross told Grey Owl.

"That's right. I am not an Indian," she quoted him as saying. "I was born of English parents, had a fair education, but had to leave England when I was a boy in my 'teens.

"I went to the States. There I learned all I know about Indian life."

Mrs. Ross, widow of a Royal Canadian Mounted policeman, who was also a soldier and barrister, continued: "I recall Grey Owl sitting down at my piano and playing the sweetest music you ever heard. But before doing it, he would ask if there was anyone else in the house.

Could Play Piano.

"He didn't like anyone to hear him play like that. If there was anyone else about he would just sit down at the piano and bang away as though he were unable to play. And he played from music."

Grey Owl lived like an Indian because he loved the forests and their wild life, Mrs. Ross said.

"If he had followed the teachings of his English birth he would not have been able to produce the writings he did produce," she said.

When Grey Owl first went to the United States he let his hair grow and then braided it because he believed he could carve his career out of the Indian appearance, Mrs. Ross said Grey Owl told her Shirley Dawn, his six-year-old daughter, was the child of a woman he wedded in an Indian ceremony.

The wild life lover was a friend of Mrs. Ross' son, Teddy, before he left on his tour of United States and England, which ended in December, 1937, the naturalist, Mrs. Ross said, swore her to secrecy and added: "They'll find out who I am after I'm dead."

LONDON, April 21 (CP-Havas).—Was Grey Owl the son of a Scottish scout and an Apache squaw, as he himself claimed, or was he, more prosaically, a native Englishman named Archie Belaney?

With parliament on vacation and nothing much happening on the diplomatic front, the press today gave plenty of space to arguments by supporters of one or other of these theories.

The divorced wife of Archibald Belaney expressed conviction the famous Canadian naturalist and her former husband were one and the same person. Belaney, she said, had a toe amputated after a Great War wound. She married him in 1917 at Hastings.

H. H. Lovat Dickson, Grey Owl's friend and publisher, heatedly denied the naturalist, who died last week at Prince Albert, Sask., where he was conservation officer for the Canadian government, was English-born.

Lovat Dickson's defence of the picturesque animal lover received support in the form of a cable from Major J. A. Wood, superintendent of Prince Albert National Park, and a friend of Grey Owl.

"Hands across the sea in your fight for Grey Owl," the message said. "Have reasonably conclusive proof that Grey Owl was born at Hermosillo, Mexico, in September, 1888, and visited England for the first time in 1906."

Lovat Dickson also showed newspapermen a letter signed "William A. Laycock," from St. Margaret's Terrace, St. Leonard's-on-the-Sea.

Mr. Laycock's letter said there was nothing to reports that Grey Owl was an Englishman.

Arrived Before 1904.

"It is all a lie," the letter declared, "for he (Grey Owl) arrived at Timagami prior to 1904, when he was with me as guide, philosopher and friends for several weeks. His love of nature 'clocked' with mine, and whenever I was at Beau Island I looked for him, my Indian half-breed friends.

"This was before old man Guppy knew of him. (William Guppy of Timagami Station, Ont., last week said Grey Owl was English).

"Grey Owl was in my days struggling between English and Indian. His enemies were powerful—lumbermen and fur traders in particular. He blocked them at Ottawa, and they hated him. This letter of vindication is from a friend of earlier days."

Sues Phychiatrist

There's a hint of Svengali work in the charges made by Mrs. Margaret Halas, ABOVE, against wealthy Dr. George A. Amaden, psychiatrist, which is being aired in the New York supreme court. Mrs. Halas, a widow, is seeking $500,000 from Dr. Amsden, alleging that he exerted a strange influence over her 22-year-old son, Julius, that turned her son's love for her to hatred. The beginning of the story goes back to 17 years ago, when Mrs. Halas left the boy in the doctor's care while she went to Detroit to seek work. Now, she charges, Julius refuses to leave the luxury of the doctor's penthouse to live with her.

Early Reports Are Indicating Increase In Tourists In 1938

Executive Of Kawartha Lakes And Haliburton Tourist Association Meets

(Special to The Examiner)

LINDSAY, April 21—"Despite the unsettled conditions in the States there promises to be a larger number of tourists in the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton district this summer than last year," said J. J. Dorris, of Peterborough, secretary of the Kawartha Lakes and Highlands of Haliburton Tourist Association, at a meeting of the executive held in Lindsay, Wednesday.

B. L. McLean, of Lindsay, corroborated the statement and T. H. Stinson, of Lindsay, pointed out that there was a 15 per cent. increase in the number of tourists in this district last season and he attributed some of this noticeable increase to the fine tourist booklet which had been distributed through the various agencies and bureaus in United States and Ontario.

Roy Bottum, of Bobcaygeon, president of the association; Ronald Curry, of Haliburton; Dr. Crowe, of Minden; and A. W. Robson, of Fenelon Falls, were quite enthusiastic regarding the possibilities of the tourist business in the district this coming summer.

Several concrete cases were recited where tourists had spent hundreds of dollars in certain stores, purchasing goods to take back with them to the States.

It was decided to issue a new booklet, fashioned after the booklet issued last summer, and to distribute 12,000 copies. The distribution will be taken care of by the federal and provincial tourist bureaus, at various stragetic points in Ontario and in United States and at certain hotels, also through railways, travel information bureaus. The color scheme of the booklet will be changed to orange and blue. There will also be other important changes.

The Fishing Season

It was decided to intimate to the proper authorities that the Association believes that the fishing season for lunge and bass should be from July 1st to October 1st. "There is far more harm done to the fish and the fishing season in the spring than in the fall," said Mr. Robson. "There is considerable illegal fishing going on and it would take an army of game officers to stop these ruthless fishermen, who catch lunge in the spring and consequently destroy thousands of spawn."

To Request Grants.

Secretary Dorris stated that Peterborough city council had granted $400 to the Association and Peterborough county council, $150, a substantial increase over last year's grants. Ronald Curry reported that Haliburton County Council had made a grant of $150. It is expected that Lindsay will give a grant of $200. Other substantial grants will be requested from various municipalities.

A Fine Map.

The map printed in last year's tourist booklet has been greatly improved by showing the trunk roads in heavy colored lines, as well as showing the loop through the county of Haliburton and through to Dorset. The map will be enlarged and will occupy two pages in the 1938 booklet.

Jumps To Death

Once one of Sally Rand's principal competitors, Thais Giroux, ABOVE, 26-year-old fan and bubble dancer, leaped to her death from the fifth floor of her New York hotel. It was reported that she had spent the day looking for work and then had wound up at a Greenwich Village party, after which she went home and jumped from the window of her room.

LAND SETTLEMENT SCHEME IS URGED

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, April 21—(CP).—Plans for the development of British Guiana by transportation of the surplus populations of British West Indian Islands to his colony were outlined in a resolution passed at a public meeting in Georgetown.

Jamaica, Barbados and other islands of the West Indies had teeming populations which they could not possibly provide for, it was said. British Guiana, the sole British possession on the South American continent, covered an area of 90,000 square miles. A sparse population of 320,000 inhabited the colony, and efforts to improve this situation should be made.

It was pointed out that British Guiana has fertile sugar-producing coastlands, a wealth of timber, tens of thousands of ounces of fine gold and thousands of carats of diamonds.

Representations to the British government would be made in an effort to have an Imperial investigation leading to a settlement plan of development. This would bring about prosperity for this colony, it was felt, and at the same time remove the pressing problem of over-population in British West Indies islands.

Missionary Program Campbellford Y.P.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21—A program arranged by the missionary convenor, Margaret Bateson, was an interesting feature of the weekly meeting of the St. John's Young People's Union held on Monday evening. The president, Miss Ruth Palliser, presided, calling upon Miss Evelyn Stotts(who gave the Scripture reading during the devotional portion of the program. This was followed by a reading entitled 'Easter Dawn,' by the president, and Miss Effie Dickie led in prayer.

The program opened with "The Old Rugged Cross," a vocal solo by Raymond Wragg, accompanied at the piano by Donald Bennett. Miss Marie Hardy contributed a piano solo and Ruth Palliser offered a reading entitled "The Martyr." Continuing his series, "The New Church Faces a New World," Rev. Harold B. Neal supplemented his remarks of the evening by the use of a number of colored slides which proved to be an outstanding portion of the program.

ASK ROOSEVELT TO SPAN OPENING

WASHINGTON, April 21.—(AP).—Members of the Thousand Island bridge authority arrived yesterday to invite President Roosevelt to the opening of the new International span acros sthe St. Lawrence river next August.

Headed by Chairman Elton Miller, of Watertown, N.Y., the group arranged to confer with the President to-day and present him an oak plaque as a "symbol of a good neighbor project between the United States and Canada."

The plaque had attached a 1¼ inch steel strand used in construction of the bridge. It was made by Mohawk Indians who worked on the project.

The Thousand Island bridge authority was established by the New York State Legislature and started construction of the $2,200,000 bridge a year ago. The structure, comprising five steel spans, stretches for 8½ miles across the scenic St. Lawrence connecting Collins Landind, N.Y., with Ivy Lea, Ont.

More foreigners visited London last year than ever before.

MOTHER HOLDS LETHAL TUBE FOR SLAYING IMBECILE SON

Jury in Tears Recommends Mercy, Rendering Murder Verdict

LOVE UNQUESTIONED

Leeds. — A tragic story of a mother's love for her five-year-old imbecile son, whom she murdered, was told at Leeds assizes.

Mrs. Kathleen Mumford, aged 40, formerly of Throstle-grove, Middleton, Leeds, was sentenced to death for the murder of the boy Derek, who died from gas poisoning.

The jury, who were absent for only five minutes, strongly recommended her to mercy. Two women jurors wept as they returned to court with the verdict.

Asked if she had anything to say, Mrs. Mumford declared. "In the eye of the law I am guilty. In the eyes of God I am not guilty."

G. Raymond Hinchcliffe, prosecuting, said that, while Mrs. Mumford was bound to command compassion, the law did not recognize any justification for the deliberate taking of the life of another.

Derek, who was an only child, was a mental defective. His legs were stiff, his right arm paralyzed, and he could not even hold a cup properly.

There was not the slightest doubt that Mrs. Mumford was devoted to the child, and on Nov. 10 she took him to see Dr. Vining, a professor of children's diseases at Leeds General Infirmary, who told her that he was incurable.

She then asked the doctor if he would take the boy into the infirmary and do away with him. When Dr. Vining explained that he could not do such a thing she said, "If you won't, I will."

Later, Mrs. Mumford expressed a fear that the authorities would take the boy away from her because he had reached school age and said that if they tried to do so she "would not let them have him alive."

Mr. Hinchcliffe said that Mrs. Mumford carried the boy to Leeds police headquarters on Nov. 21 and said, "I have done it in the bedroom at home with the gas. I knelt on the bed with the tube until he went. I have had a lot of trouble with him."

LENIENCY GIVES WAY TO KINDLINESS TOUCH

Wimbelton Magistrates Try Novel Experiment With Juveniles

London—Wimbledon magistrates, who are members of the panel of justices for the juvenile court, are making a novel experiment to cure juvenile crime.

They are trying the effect of replacing leniency with kindness. The first child to be dealt with in the new way came before the court recently. It was her third appearance.

Her mother had complained that she was beyond her control. She had said the girl used to go to cinemas at dinner time and stay there until they shut late at night.

The girl admitted that she used to wait until the doormen were out of the way and then "bunk in" through a back door.

The little girl has now been sent to an approved school, but when she heard the magistrate's decision there was none of the normal austerity of a "sentence" which nearly always marks magistrates' announcements that they are sending the child to a school.

Instead, C. W. Bourne, who was in the chair, called the little girl over to him, told her as kindly as anyone could wish what a nice school she was going to, and then presented her with a box of chocolates with the best wishes of the magistrates.

ILLEGITIMATE UNION DISINHERITS HEIRS

Estate of $95,000 Pre-empted by Crown Leaving Two Women Out

Edinburgh.—An unlawful marriage 42 years ago between a Fife man and his grand-niece prevented two women from sharing an estate of nearly £19,000 ($95,000).

The women, Mrs. Euphemia Dick Beaton of Kirkcaldy, and Mrs. Jean Martin Smith Philip Knox of Maidstone, Kent, disputed in the court of session here a claim by the crown to the estate of Thomas Moncrieff Philip, a bachelor.

Mr. Philp, a chartered accountant, of Edinburgh, was a cousin of Mrs. Beaton and an uncle of Mrs. Knox.

He died intestate in January of last year.

Lord Jamieson, giving judgment, said Mr. Philp was born of a marriage between George Philp and his illegitimate grand-niece, Jane Philp, in 1896.

After a review of the authorities on the question he (Lord Jamieson) was of the opinion that the marriage was not lawful, and the son must be regarded as having been illegitimate, and consequently could have no heirs.

The estate, therefore, went to the crown.

THROW SILVER COINS INTO BELLS FOR LUCK

Old Tradition Observed With Peace Tower Chimes

Croydon.—Bells for the 80-foot tower of the Peace pavilion at the Empire exhibition, Glasgow, were cast at Croydon Bell Foundry and the tradition of throwing silver coins into the molten metal "for luck" was observed by onlookers.

Lord Cecil and Sir Herbert Dunnico tossed in sixpences.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, M.P., and Mrs. E. M. Currie, convener of the Peace Pavilion committee, parted with threepenny-bits.

It was, of course, inevitable that there should be a joke about England's contribution being twice that of Scotland.

Sir Archibald Sinclair, chuckling, said his contribution had been brought specially from Scotland for the ceremony.

FRAUD CHARGE LAID TO 'LADY-BOUNTIFUL'

Sunday School Teacher Spent $3,000 on Presents for Friends

LEEDS.

Leeds.—Olive Marshall, 24-year-old Sunday school teacher with an inferiority complex, spent £600 ($3,000) on presents for friends—and was sent to prison for 12 months at Leeds assizes for obtaining money by fraud.

Rev. William Sargent of Trinity Congregational church, Leeds, said the girl had an "unusual inferiority complex which compelled her to live in a world of fantasy in which she played the part of Lady Bountiful."

The girl's frauds—from her employers—were carried out over five years.

In four years she was said to have spent £220 ($1,100) on flowers for friends.

Last year she began wearing an engagement ring—but it was from a fictitious lover. She had bought the ring herself, and the £4 ($20) she paid for it was the only money she spent on herself.

MOTORISTS ATTACKED BY EAGLE-LIKE BIRD

Drives Three Passengers From Car and Flits

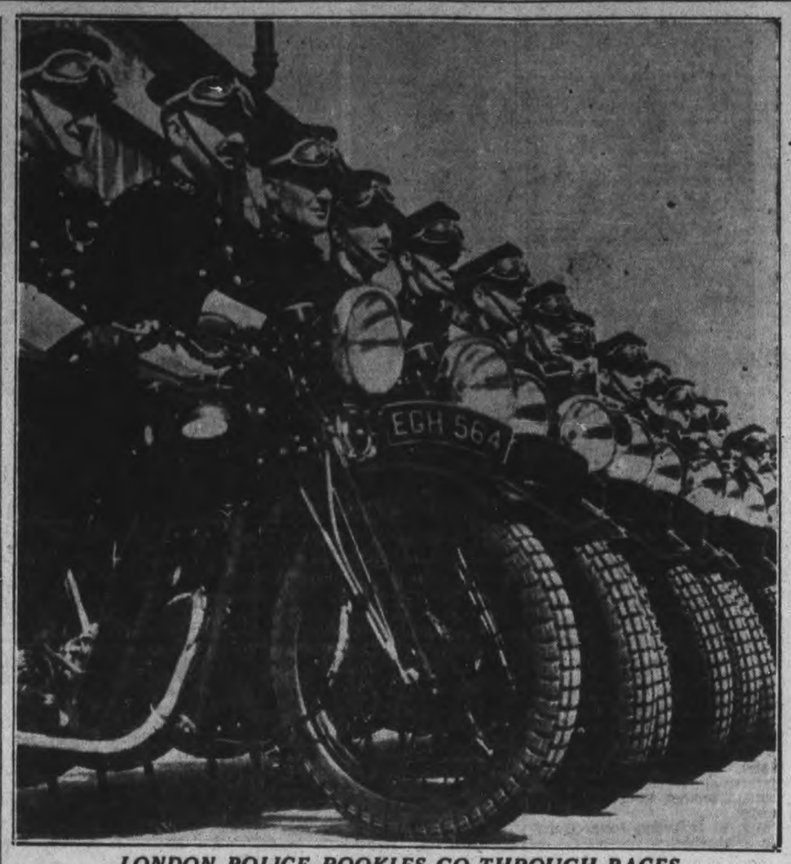
London.—A bird, said to be a little smaller than an eagle, and with a hooked beak, flew through the open window of a car driven by Shelley of Earl's Court, on the Petworth-Pulborough Rd.

It dived straight at Mr. Shelley's head.

He dodged, and the bird then flew at on of his two passengers.

Driving with only one hand, Mr. Shelley steered the car clear of an oncoming vehicle, defending himself against the bird with the other hand.

He pulled up, and he and his passengers jumped out. The bird then flew off.



LONDON POLICE ROOKIES GO THROUGH PACES

Lining up for inspection after a recent demonstration staged at the Metropolitan police driving school, London, England, are these eager-looking new recruits to the force of London's "bobbies." All are put through an intensive training period before being put "on the beat," especially if they are attached to the motorcycle division. This squad of rookies is apparently ready for action should an emergency arise.

COLD, DOG'S HOWLS ANNOUNCED 'GHOST'

Cottage Where Tenants Saw "Hooded Monk" Being Torn Down

Hornchurch.—A 300-year-old cottage in Hornchurch High St. is being pulled down.

The last occupants were Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Aldridge, who stated they often saw the ghost of a hooded monk.

According to their story, the signal for the approach of the monk, who usually carried a lighted candle, was a sudden drop in the temperature of the room, from which the dog would run howling in terror. Then in would walk the monk in his sandalled feet, crossing the room and melting into the wall on the opposite side.

A priory once stood in the vicinity of the cottage. The remains of two underground passages have been found near the cottage. One leads towards the parish church, and the other to an old manor house about a mile away.

FLYING ZOO ARRIVES

London.—Brought by aeroplane from Holland, two tons of birds and small animals, about 1,000 head, arrived here for the London zoo.

'GRETNA GREEN' MARRIAGES WILL BE BANNED IN SCOTIA

Only "Irregular" Form Recognized Will Be "Habit and Repute"

LAW CHANGES JAN. 1

London.—After January 1 next irregular marriages—with one exception—are to be abolished in Scotland. The only legal marriages will be those performed in churches and chapels and before registrars.

The only form of "irregular" marriage to be recognized will be that of "habit and repute"—where two people have been living together for many years, and are generally regarded as married.

The new law will do away with "Gretna Green" marriages; 15 days' residence in the district will be compulsory before any wedding can take place.

Walter Elliot, secretary for Scotland, presented a bill to the House of Commons to make these changes in the law. The bill will be discussed in all parts of Scotland before parliament are asked to vote on it.

Registrars are to be established in all parts of Scotland, and they will see that seven days' notice is given of all intended marriages.

There is to be provision for "special license" marriages, where necessary through illness or some other cause. These will enable marriages to take place without the publication of banns.

JUMPS OUT WINDOW WITH $5,000 IN LOOT

"Excuse Me," Polite Young Burglar Says on Exit

London. — "Excuse me, this is where I leave." With these words a well-dressed young burglar, challenged by the maid in a Wimbledon, S.W., house, jumped through a window to the courtyard 25 feet below.

With him he took £1,000 ($5,000) worth of jewelry from the home of J. Fell-Clarke, barrister.

The police believe that the young thief has studied the private affairs of Wimbledon residents to know when engagements take them away from home.

RUM MAKERS OF BUSH CUT COLONY REVENUE

Illicit Manufacturers Dodge Police Easily in Mangrove Hideouts

Georgetown, B.C.—Illicit manufacture of rum in the islands of the Essequebo river, near here, and the consequent loss to the colony in revenue is the problem before the police who patrol the islands.

Made in stills hidden in the mangroves along the coast and among the islands, the bush rum has a finer taste than most of the rum sold in the rural shops of the Essequebo coast. It has a greater alcohol content than the legal variety. Mainly accountable for its popularity among drinkers of the district is the fact that it sells for about half the price of legal liquor.

Unofficial figures place the loss in revenue due to sales of bush rum at more than $25,000. Of a total of 31 retail spirit shops in the Essequebo coast in 1930, only 11 remain to-day. The loss of the 20 shops means a loss of $3,000 to the government, while the loss in excise tax on the rum which these shops would have sold is estimated to swell the amount to more than $25,000.

The islands afford protection for the law-breakers, who are so clever that few traces of them have been found by police who make regular visits. Years ago the bush rum traffic was known only in the Berbice River district. From there it spread to Demerara and the Essequebo coast, finally taking a firm hold in the Essequebo Islands.

BRITAIN WILL SHIP BATTALION BY AIR

711 Men of Coldstream Guards Will Be Transported 233 Miles

London. — Plans are now being made for the transport by air of a battalion of the Coldstream Guards from London to Catterick camp, Yorkshire—a distance of 233 miles.

It will be the first time for the army to make use of the air in such an extensive manner.

According to present arrangements, the 1st Battalion Coldstream Guards, which is stationed at Chelsea, will fly to Catterick on June 3.

The peace-time strength of a battalion of foot guards is 711 all ranks, and it will be necessary, therefore, to use more than 30 aeroplanes for its transportation.

At the moment the program is in its initial stage, but arrangements have to be made with the air ministry for the troop carriers. Each troop-carrying machine will transport between 20 and 24 men with their equipment.

This move by air is in the nature of an experiment, and will be followed with great interest by the services.

Up till now comparatively little has been done in the way of transporting troops by air in the army. It has been confined for the most part to taking troops from Egypt to Irak.

The Russians not only carry men but also light transport tanks and trucks by air.

NO 'DESERTION' WHEN WIFE WON'T LIVE WITH IN-LAWS

Judge Refuses Husband's Divorce Petition Under Those Circumstances

"NOT SURPRISED"

Birmingham.—A wife's refusal to live with her husband's parents does not constitute desertion.

Mr. Justice Goddard gave this ruling at Birmingham assizes, when he dismissed a divorce petition brought under the new Matrimonial Clauses Act.

John William Johnson, of Bedworth, Warwickshire, alleged desertion of over three years by his wife, Maud Johnson, of Stratford-on-Avon.

Mr. Justice Goddard said that Mr. Johnson took several public houses. Then he became manager to one, but in 1932 received notice to quit. He went to London to look for work.

"I am not surprised," said the judge, "that the wife, as a young woman of 25, was not going to live in and carry on a licensed house without her husband's protection, and should pack up and return to her mother. Two weeks later Mr. Johnson wrote to his wife, saying that his parents, with whom he was living, would be pleased to take her in, too.

"From that moment," added Mr. Justice Goddard, "this man has never been in a position to offer her a home. The most that can be offered her is a temporary home with her father-in-law and mother-in-law—a position, it seems to me, which could only cause trouble.

"I should be making a farce of the word desertion if I held that Mrs. Johnson had deserted her husband. If I could see my way to give a divorce I would give a divorce to her, and not her husband."

BANNED FOR LIFE IN RAILWAY THEFT

Magistrate Emphasizes Serious Consequences of "Foolish Act"

London.—"A hard-and-fast rule," was how Walter Frampton described, at Marylebone court, a ban by the railways on employing men who have been convicted of theft.

Plea of "guilty," he said, meant that a man lost employment and could never again get work with any railway company in the United Kingdom.

Mr. Frampton was appearing for Frank John Glenister, a Great Western Railway motor-driver, of Rostrevor Gardens, Hayes, charged with stealing a metal pencil, wrist watch and ring, valued at 30s ($7.20), from a parcel in transit.

Glenister, a married man with a wife and three children, had been in the service of the Great Western Ry. for 15 years. Part of his duty was to take parcels from the Paddington terminus of the Great Western Railway to other termini. A test parcel was put on his van, and after its arrival at London Bridge the articles were missed.

"This man is absolutely penniless and is ruined by this foolish act," said Mr. Frampton to the magistrate. "I ask you to take a course which will enable him to obtain work and provide for his family."

YOUNG LADY SLICKER HOOKS GARAGE MAN

Three Pence Ring Accepted for Tank of Gas

Botley, Hants. — A well-dressed young woman, driving up in a smart coupe, explained at one garage that she had forgotten her handbag, and asked if the tank of her car might be filled with petrol on the promise that she would pay on her way back from meeting friends in the Queen Mary.

In return for 15 gallons of fuel she drew a sparkling ring from her finger and tendered it as security.

She was not seen again, and the garage proprietor took the ring to an expert.

"An excellent specimen of chain-store jewelry," was his verdict. "You might get threepence for it."

66-YEAR-OLD BARON TAKES BRIDE OF 21

"Bride Did Not Enter Much Into Social Life," Says Friend of Family

Aldington, Kent.—Sixty-six-year-old Lord Belhaven and Stenton married a bride of 21 by declaration at his home, Wishaw House, Lanarkshire.

Immediately afterwards he went with his wife to Hamilton sheriff court and applied for a warrant to register the marriage, which was granted.

Miss Sheila Dhantwill Pearson, of Knowll Farm, Aldington, Kent, was his bride. Before witnesses at Wishaw House they agreed to be man and wife.

Sheriff Brown was on the bench disposing of court cases when he adjourned the proceedings to confirm the marriage. The formalities occupied only a few minutes.

Lord Belhaven, who is a representative peer, is the 11th baron and was a widower. He has a son and daughter living.

In 1923 he retired from the army as lieutenant-colonel.

Miss Pearson is the only daughter of Captain and Mrs. A. G. Pearson.

A friend of the family said: "This is a surprise to us.

"Miss Pearson is a pretty brunette. She did not enter much into social life around here."

TOT FOR 42 HOURS LOCKED IN ATTIC

Two-Year-Old Lost Without Food From Saturday Till Monday

Sunderland—Hundreds of tiny footprints on the dusty floor of the attics of a Monkwearmouth shop told the tale of a terrifying week-end spent alone by two-year-old Jean Patterson.

For 42 hours she was locked in these disused attics without food, water or lights.

Jean disappeared while out shopping with her grandmother on a Saturday afternoon.

She wandered away from the folding chair in which she had been left, walked into a draper's shop in Dundas St. and went upstairs unnoticed.

Miss Ruth Richardson, manageress of one of the departments, found her when she opened the shop Monday morning.

NEWS AND VIEWS FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

800 WOMEN AND CHILDREN IN PERIL ON TRAPPED SHIPS

Fast in Ice North of Siberia But Whereabouts Not Known

2,000 MILES AWAY

Oslo.—Seven Russian merchant ships and six ice-breakers, with more than 800 Russian men, women and children on board, are reported to be in peril north of Siberia, according to the Oslo newspaper Aftenposten. The ships are all fast in the ice.

The ships started out during last summer and the autumn to demonstrate the possibility of sailing from Archangel to the easternmost point of Siberia and the Pacific.

Five of the ships, escorted by the icebreaker Lidge, with 250 people on board, were last heard of in November, when the Lidge reported a shortage of fuel. Their present position is not known.

The merchant ships, the Ilmen, 2,369 tons, and the Dickson, 2,900 tons, which are accompanied by the 3,828-ton icebreaker Lenin, gave their position last week as 75.58 deg. north, 120.58 deg. east. This is a point about 300 miles east of Cape Chelyuskin and some 2,000 miles from Archangel, the starting point.

It was stated that the ships were drifting towards the north-west. There are 296 people aboard these three vessels.

The three ice-breakers, Sedov, Maligin and Sadko reported their position on March 19 as 78.43 deg. north, 152.24 deg. east. This point is due north of the island Novaya Sibir and is nearly 400 miles east of the other ships. These ships, which have 200 people on board, were drifting towards the northeast.

The ice-breaker Krasin is also in these seas, with 70 men on board, but her position is not known.

FRANCE'S GAS MASKS WILL COST MILLIONS

Paris. — Important measures to protect the population of Paris against air raids were decided on at a conference held at the prime minister's office.

A credit of £1,250,000 ($6,250,000), to be found half by the state and half by the department of the Seine, will be opened at once for the purchase of gas masks.

Another £1,500,000 ($7,500,000), will be spent in gas-proofing the Paris underground railway system and in improving and extending bomb-proof cellars.

ARTIST, 9, SHOWS WORKS

Not One "Shocking" Picture At Paris Salon

Paris.—Paris' 49th Independent Salon opened, or was inaugurated, on the open Esplanade of the Invalides here when 3,215 works were unveiled simultaneously.

French art critics are disappointed for the age-old tradition that there should be at least one "shocking" picture that could be barred had not been kept. The youngest rebel of all is nine-year-old Gerald Singer who showed several promising works.

MINES YIELD $8,000 A DAY

Registered in Gold and Diamonds At Georgetown

Georgetown, B.G. — Eight thousand dollars' worth of gold and diamonds was registered with the lands and mines department in one day. The gold, weighing 161 ounces, came from Mazaruni and Demerara river districts and was valued at $4,500. The diamonds amounted to 291 karats, worth $3,500.

WAKENED BY SNAKE BESIDE HIM IN BED

Thought, at First, Mamba Was Kitten and Settled to Sleep Again

Bloemfontein, Orange Free State. —Waking during the night, Oswald Doyer of Babanango, Zululand, felt something stirring near him. He thought it was his kitten and settled down to sleep again.

The movements continued, so he decided to investigate. He threw back the blankets and flashed a torch without getting out of bed.

In the rays from the torch he saw a seven-foot black mamba, one of South Africa's deadliest snakes. It had been lying beside him in the bed while he slept.

Flinging the blankets over the snake, Mr. Doyer leaped from bed and shouted for help.

With the aid of a friend, attracted by his cries, he managed to kill the snake with a clubbed stick.

TO EXPLORE WILD COUNTRY

First White Men To Enter New Guinea Area

Sydney, N.S.W.—Twenty thousand square miles of New Guinea on which no white man has set foot and which are believed to be inhabited by fierce natives are to be officially explored.

An expedition led by J. L. Taylor, assistant district officer, will make the survey on behalf of the mandatory country, Australia. It will take a year.

FOUND SANCTUARY

Leyton, Eng. — A pheasant flew through the windshield of a car here and landed unhurt on the lap of a passenger. It was taken to a police station for "protective custody."

BOOTLEG CURRENCY GOES TO ETHIOPIA

Follows Efforts to Replace Coinage With Italian Money

Rome.—Bootleg currency by the thousands of dollars' worth is being shipped into Ethiopia, impeding Italy's efforts to replace with Italian money the coin of Emperor Haile Selassie's regime.

The semi-official Stefani News Agency reported that 100,000 new thalers have been minted in Brussels on the order of certain Paris interests which are sending them into East Africa. Apparently at the present low price of silver a considerable profit can be made by minting the silver coins and using them in trading with Ethiopian natives.

The big silver thaler, or Maria Theresa dollar, still is the favored coin in many sections. Its "cart-wheel" size and weight impresses natives more than Italian currency.

WHO OWNS WRECK? AUSTRALIAN PROBLEM

Sydney, N.S.W.—The federal attorney-general, R. G. Menzies, K.C., is unable at present to decide the ownership of the German cruiser, Emden, lying wrecked on Cocos Island.

This famous raider was sunk in the war by H.M.A.S. Sydney. Recently it was found that a Japanese lugger had obtained scrap from the wreck, and the matter was reported to Mr. Menzies for a ruling.

PREPARE FOR RAIDS

London.—Obscure the lights, clear the loft, attic or top floor of all that might be set on fire by incendiary bombs, are orders given by the government in a new air-raid precautions handbook.

SURPRISED CORPSE AWAKENS TO SEE HIS OWN FUNERAL

Sits Up During Services to Astound His Friends and Relatives

THEN DIED AGAIN

Scarboro, Tobago.—Evan Manswell, a resident of this southern West Indies island, who was believed to have died, surprised relatives and friends gathered for his funeral by sitting up.

The 70-year-old man was as astounded as were the people who had gathered to attend the last rites for him. He had gone into a trance, so similar to death, that preparations for his funeral had been completed.

Manswell recovered slightly, but died shortly afterwards. Relatives were still uncertain as to whether the Tobago man was dead or in another trance, and no announcement was made until three hours later.

The strange case recalled Jamaica's "Mother" Jones. The 90-year-old Negress terrified her "mourners" by rising from her coffin fast August. She had been pronounced dead by two constables, and, according to the custom during the hot season, packed in ice to await burial.

Five hours later, she rose from her coffin and gave an elaborate description of a heaven where, she said, there were no men. A month after her "first" death, the Jamaica Negress died a second time, and officials of the poorhouse where she was taken after her sojourn in "heaven," said there would be no return this time.

An icepack as a "cure" for death reached fad proportions in Jamaica before Kingston doctors discouraged the practice, declaring that normally such treatment would expedite rather than postpone death.

ITALIAN FLIERS GET MEDALS FOR VALOR

Rome.—Medals for valor in air force actions in Africa and in Spain were presented to officers and family representatives of dead airmen at the Littorio aerodrome, near Rome.

There was an imposing parade, during which Italy's latest fighting craft performed mass evolutions overhead. Signor Mussolini and all the members of his cabinet were present.

'BEAUTIFUL TATIANA' ESPIONAGE SUSPECT

Arrested Following Alleged Spy Activities in France

Paris.—Yvonne Talbot, 23, known to her associates as "the beautiful Tatiana," is one of five people arrested following alleged espionage activities in the south of France.

Posing as a Russian girl, she is stated to have frequented fashionable night resorts on the Riveria to establish sources of information for a Persian student named Amirian, with whom she lived at Montpelier.

Amirian, who is alleged to be the agent of a foreign power, was tracked to Paris and arrested in a bar in the Latin quarter. When his home was searched numerous important documents, written in Persian, were discovered.

DARKNESS RULED

London. — Shortly before the Bishop of Willesden started his sermon on "Out of Darkness Into Light," a main fuse in the church blew out and he went through with his address in the dark.

MINISTER ATTACKED ON ROAD TO CHURCH

Crowd Watching Roman Catholic Ex-Service Men's Parade Hold Up Car

Liverpool. — A car in which a minister was driving his two daughters to church for morning service was attacked by a crowd in Shaw St., Liverpool.

Door panels of the car were smashed and some of the crowd spat at the minister and the girls.

The attacked parson is the Rev. H. D. Longbottom, head of the Liverpool Protestant Reformers' church and leader of the Protestant party in the city council. He is an alderman.

He was driving with his daughters, Edith, aged 24, and Jean, aged 17, from his home in Wavertree, to the church in Netherfield Rd.

In Shaw St. he had to pass a parade of Catholic ex-service men. Crowds of people walking with the procession recognized him, and launched the attack.

The girls cowered back in their seats, but neither was assaulted.

NOT TOO OLD AT 50

Navy Veterans Regarded Active Enough at Mid-Century

London.—Men who have served in the navy are not too old at 50. They are now being invited to serve again.

There are not enough active service ratings available to keep the reserve fleet ships in a fit state, so pensioners up to the age of 53 are to be enrolled as a supplementary force solely for work in the reserve fleet.

CANADIANS DRINK TOO LITTLE MILK DOCTORS DECLARE

OTTAWA, April 21 (C.P.). — If Canadian families with incomes under $4,000 a year were to drink proportionately the same amount of milk as families with higher incomes, the increase would represent the production of more than 200,000 dairy cows giving 5,000 pounds of milk each per annum. This was disclosed in statistics placed before the Canadian Council on Nutrition by Dr. W. C. Hopper of the Dominion Agriculture Department.

Under Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, Deputy Minister of National Health, the Council met to discuss problems related to the public weal. Those present included Dr. J. G. FitzGerald, University of Toronto; Dr. M. R. Row, Alberta Deputy Minister of Health; Prof. C. H. Best, Toronto; Prof. D. L. Thomson, Montreal; Prof. Frederick Tisdall, Toronto; Dr. J. E. Sylvester, Quebec; Prof. George Hunter, Edmonton, and others.

Dr. Hopper presented results of a survey carried out by the Economics Division of the Department on the consumption in Canada of fluid milk. According to statements of 3,684 housewives interviewed, the average per capita consumption in four cities of Canada was 7-10ths of a pint daily. The municipalities concerned were Oshawa, Quebec, Calvary and Vancouver.

The survey also included the villages of Uxbridge, Ont., St. Romuald, Que., and Claresholm, Alta., with certain farm areas in Ontario, Quebec and Alberta.

Milk consumption in Uxbridge was similar to that in Claresholm, but in St. Romuald the average was lower — only one-third of a pint daily.

"This Quebec village had many unemployed and is probably not representative of the Province as a whole," said Dr. Hopper.

Surevys disclosed that French-Canadians, Italians, Jews and Orientals drank less milk than other racial groups. The most important factor affecting milk consumption was the family income. If the families with incomes lower than $4,000 a year drank an amount proportionate to that of those above that figure, the increase would represent a $15,000,000 boost to the revenues of Canadian dairymen, said Dr. Hopper.

GOES BLIND ON JOB

COLLINGSWOOD, N.J., April 21 (AP).—Harriet Young, 20, of Philadelphia, got a job after being unemployed for several months. In her first day at work she went blind. Hospital physicians said her condition probably was caused by nervousness.

Ford Dedicates Workshop

Henry Ford, world famous industrialist, LEFT, and Orville Wright, one of aviation's famous pioneering Wright Brothers, are posed in front of the Wright bicycle store which they used as a workshop. The Wright home and workshop were rebuilt in Henry Ford's Greenfield village and were formally dedicated on the 71st anniversary of the birth of the late Wilbur Wright. Tribute was paid to the efforts of both the brothers who lifted their homemade aeroplane under its own power into the air from Kitty Hawk, N.C., on December 17, 1903.

ASK VOTE FOR BOYS 18-21

OTTAWA, April 21—(CP).—The Eastern Ontario and Quebec Hi-Y Conference of the Y.M.C.A., at the concluding session of its convention last night, passed a resolution that those subject to conscription between the age of 18 and 21, now without votes, should be given a vote on the question of conscription. The resolution will be sent to the International Hi-Y Conference at Berea, Ky., in June.

HAVELOCK

Mr. Grant Seeney, of the Bank of Toronto staff in Cardinal, spent Easter with his parents, Reeve E. Seeney and Mrs. Seeney.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewett of Toronto were week-end guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. A. Anderson.

Miss V. Robinson of the Public School teaching staff is spending the holidays at her home near Madoc.

Mr. William Snoddy of the local Bank of Toronto staff spent Easter at his home in St. Mary's.

Mrs. S. J. W. Clarke and daughter Natalie are visiting their daughter and sister, Mrs. Allan McMullen, in Kitchener.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Winterbottom and daughter Ann, of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Quinn on Monday.

Master Bobby Jack is spending a few days in Toronto the guest of Master Bobby Bryans.

The regular monthly meeting of United Church Women's Missionary Society was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Chiles, with a very good attendance. Mrs. S. A. Kemp, president, conducted the devotional period, special Easter responsive service being held. A playette entitled "Talons of The Cross," was presented by some of the members, Mrs. A. Russell, Mrs. H. Watson, Mrs. C. Roberts, Mrs. R. Williams. A social half-hour was spent during which lunch was served.

Traffic policemen of Blackburn, England, will be served cups of coffee every morning.

IF IDEALS RIGHT SCANTY GOWNS AND PETTING ALRIGHT

TORONTO, April 21.—It doesn't matter if modern school girls wear a minimum of clothes, if adolescents "pet," or if manners of boys and girls have changed a great deal in the last generation or two; but it is important that the principles of right and wrong do not change, that boys and girls respect each other, and that parents are sympathetic toward youth's desire to change things.

That was the essence of the advice offered members of the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations yesterday by Miss Gordon Waugh, Principal of St. Clements School, in an address at the federation's luncheon at the Royal York Hotel, where Miss Waugh spoke upon the "Most important thing in the whole world—the formation of character."

"There are certain things that mustn't change: The principles of right and wrong; justice; honor; truth; fairplay—the great bases of character," she said. "It doesn't matter a bit if our girls wear a minimum of clothes, as long as it is the minimum; but it does matter that they have a maximum of honor in their hearts.

No Need To Worry

"A great deal has been said about petting," said the Principal, who classed it as "unessential." "When I was young it was considered perfectly appalling to go for a buggy ride with a boy, and let him kiss you, but I don't think we were any better off than they are now. I don't think we need worry about thing purely eternal," she added.

"Youth longs for reform," Miss Waugh pointed out. "But heaven help the world when youth ceases to want reform. Let's be sympathetic towards youth's desire to change things. That's the great strength of the Nazi and Communist parties. The first thing for us to do is to see what it is youth sees—to catch that lovely vision of life as they see it; even though they're perfectly horrible in the way they try to express it," she laughed.

There was at present, she said, a grave danger of mass hysteria—the thinking in collective, instead of individual, terms. "Considering that youth is so enthusiastic for political changes, it's up to us to give them moral stamina. And where are they going to get that stamina, except in the home? We can't give it to them in the school. They must get it from what their mother does, and what their father does.

Must Be Taught

"We're horrified, at the present, at hit-and-run drivers; but these boys of 22 and 23, who may be the hit-and-runners, are just the same as your boys, but they haven't learned to be responsible. If we want to produce citizens, we must teach them, from the time they're little how to stand on their own feet and take their share of responsibilities.

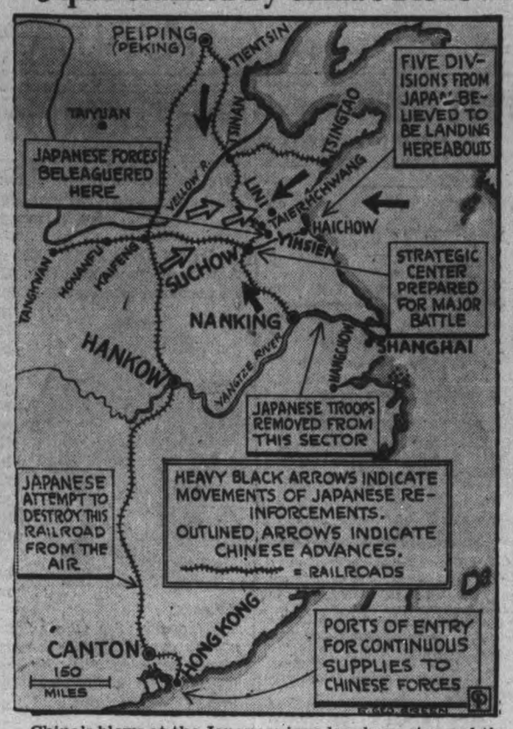
"Fifteen-year-old girls want more liberty to ride in cars with boys. Are we making these 15-year-old girls see any reason why they shouldn't do it except that we're old-fashioned? Let children in on how the family finances stand," she urged, asserting it would give them an idea of responsibility.

The Principal of St. Clement's concluded by advocating four measures designed to show children the dividing line between freedom and license:

"First, get our own opinions on essentials clear; secondly, take time to let your boys and girls see what the essentials are; thirdly, be a little selfish in your demands on your children, because you'll do them a tremendous kindness and the mother who always takes second place is only being unkind; and lastly, train your children to think for themselves," she advised.

It costs approximately $2,000,000 a year to maintain a first class battleship in peace time.

Japan Stunned By China's Blows



China's blows at the Japanese invaders have stunned the Japanese both in the field and at home. This map indicates how severely the Japanese have suffered. According to the latest reports, China is rushing 1,000,000 fresh troops into southern Shantung province to engage a concentration of 500,000 Japanese north and south of Suchow. Such a battle would be largest in the history of the Far East.

YOUNG'S POINT

Captain William Scollard, who has spent the winter in Northern Ontario, has returned to his home in the village.

Friends of Miss Isabell Hill will be sorry to hear that she is ill in St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough.

Guests of Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Moore at the rectory for Easter were: Mr. and Mrs. William Bland, Miss Elsie Chatten, Mr. Vincent Graham, all of Toronto, also Mr. James Arthur and Miss Matilda Moore of Toronto.

Easter was observed at St. Aidan's Church with joyous services. At the 8 a.m. celebration of Holy Commuion, there were twenty-seven communicants. The church was beautiful with cut flowers given in memory of loved ones who had passed on. After the Communion service, the service of holy baptism was administered to Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Heard's two little sons, Peter and Robert Wayne. The godparents were Mrs. Simmons of Peterborough and Mr. Ben. Heard, both grandparents of the babies. Rev. E. C. Moore officiated at both services.

Mrs. Edward Young, Sr., had for Easter guests at her home Mrs. A. Langlois of Windsor and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young, Jr., of Sarnia. Miss Clara Young returned to Windsor with her sister, Mrs. Langlois.

Mr. C. Young and his daughter, Mrs. Gibson, and Miss Mollie Young and son, Lea, of Toronto, spent the Easter vacation at their summer cottage in the village.

Miss Aileen Young of Codrington spent Easter with her father, F. M. Young.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll of Hastings were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll for Easter.

Miss Mary Walsh, Reg.N., of Rochester, spent the Easter vacation at her home in the village.

Mrs. J. P. Foley of Toronto was a guest at the home of her father, Mr. P. P. Young, for Easter.

Mr. and Mrs. Mackey of Toronto, with friends, spent Easter at their summer home near the village.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Herrity of Toronto spent Easter at their summer cottage on Wilson's Point.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson and Mrs. David Darling spent Easter with relatives in Windsor and Detroit.

Mr. Oscar Reid is busy building a new summer cottage on Reid's Point for Mr. and Mrs. W. Yale of Lakefield.

There is one filling station to every mile of hard-surfaced highway in the United States.

HASTINGS

On account of the very inclement weather, the annual congregational Easter social evening of St. George's church, on Monday, was not as successful as usual. However a good program was enjoyed. The Rev. Mr. Stocks acted as chairman and the opening number was a guitar and violin selection by Messrs. Jess Hall, J. Taylor and Cyril Blackbourne. A drawing contest was most amusing when everyone had to draw objects in the dark. Other numbers included the history of local people, by Rev. Stocks; writing poems, by Miss Plant, and community singing. Refreshments were served by the ladies bringing a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Born—On Monday, to Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fairman, a son.

Born—On Saturday, to Mr. and Mrs. William McMillan, a son.

Mrs. H. Stephenson spent Easter with relatives in Trenton.

NURSE STRESSES FAITH IN IDEAL

KINGSTON, Ont., April 21. — (CP).—"In this troubled world, we, as nurses, are fortunate indeed to have as our chosen work an ideal which carries us on, an ideal in which we have faith that what we are doing is of use," said Miss Ethel Cryderman of Toronto, in her presidential address at the convention of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario.

"After all, said Miss Cryderman, "what could be more challenging than to be an integral part of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario and not as individuals but as members of a group to work towards the perfecting of such an essential service as nursing?"

'Our pioneers builded well. From them we have inherited a foundation which enabled us to progress and has led us into broader fields of service. However, we must continue to build. Nursing education requires further experimentation."

"The majority of people interested in health insurance are not conscious that any plan without nursing service would be incomplete. Even we, the members of the nursing profession, are only awakening to the place of nursing in social and health measures."

MOTHERS! Ovaltine is a delicious pure food concentrate approved by thousands of physicians. It is particularly noted for the remarkable way it often helps nervous and underweight children.

One mother writes:—"My daughter was very nervous, underweight, and had difficulty with her lessons. We started giving her Ovaltine. After that she did wonderfully in school and overcame her nervousness. She also gained 4¼ pounds in four weeks."

This letter is so typical of thousands we have received that we believe a thorough trial of Ovaltine is justified for every child who is nervous and underweight.

Ovaltine can be obtained at drug or grocery stores. You simply give it mixed with milk—either hot or cold. Children love its delicious taste. Get a large-size tin today—and accept free offer at right!

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend, Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's, had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening. Barbara is furious to find the party still going when Garry brings her back to her apartment and orders Julia and the others to leave. Jimmy Minton, a notorious playboy, gets fresh and Garry knocks him down. In answer to a long distance plea from her former managing editor, Barbara has an acquaintance, Bruce Kemper, who is sick from dissipation, moved to a hospital. Kemper escapes from the hospital and returns to Barbara's apartment. When Garry enters, Kemper hides in the bedroom, armed with a gun.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 16

BARBARA'S eyes clung, fascinated, for a moment, to the vague outlines of thta figure in the mirror at which Garry was gazing. The silence was strained, hushed ominous. And a fear began to beat in the room until it grew as loud as the ticking of the clock above the fireplace.

Would Garry step toward that man? Would he speak? If he did, Bruce would shoot! She must act quickly . . . quickly . . .

Into the room there came the sharp ring of the telephone. Barbara tried to move to it. She could not go. She could only stand, waiting, for something, anything to happen.

Then Garry said, "I'll get it, Barbara."

He looked up from the instrument a second leater to say, "Someone is asking if you know anything about Bruce Kemper. Kemper—Kemper . . . Isn't he that newspaper man from . . ."

"Yes, yes, he is! I don't know a thing about him. Not a thing!"

Again that odd glance from Garry. Oh, what must he think?

Garry didn't hesitate. His eyes searched her face quickly.

"I must get going, Barbara, or I'll be late. Goodby."

He did not touch her. He did not glance at the bedroom door. He was out of the room and she heard him on the stairs. Steps came swiftly as he walked down one flight. Then he began to run—

Surely Garry would trust her! He couldn't doubt her! It was so idiotic, so preposterous! Were the sins of Julia going to follow her forever and forever? Then the doubts were pushed away by the advancing figure of the refugee.

"Good girl! The guy didn't tumble. Now you and I can settle down to a tete-a-tete." He sprawled in a big chair. "By the way, I'm hungry. Rotten food they have in those hospitals. I'd like a steak—a big one. I'll finish this bottle while you rummage in the cupboard. Never drink after I eat, you know. Get the preliminary work out of the way."

So Barbara prepared a steak and he ate it. He yawned when he finished. She wanted to scream. "I'll sleep here." Bruce Kemper said, nodding to the davenport. His eyes were heavy and the lids closed, then fled back

"Sleep?" Barbara's word was a surprised whisper.

"I can't start until tomorrow and I'm not going on the street and get dragged back to that joint where I've been stopping. Bellevue! No, thank you. I've dug stories out of it in my time but nobody's going to write me up for a Sunday supplement. Get some blankets?"

Barbara brought them. One thing was growing in her mind. If Bruce Went to sleep, she could hurry for help. He was tired. He might fall asleep quickly.

She knew that he read her mind. "That's your room there, sister," he said, and pointed to her bedroom. "I'll just give the key a turn and hold on to it. I wouldn't like to be left here alone tonight." He stood waiting for her to enter the other room.

"As you say," she answered.

Within the room she waited quietly. He would be asleep in a moment or two. And then—

At last she heard a snore.

She reached in a drawer for her pocketbook. Oh, it was fortunate she had put it away tonight instead of leaving it carelessly on the telephone table as she usually did. She took out a key. Not even Bruce Kemper had guessed that the same key that unlocked her outer door safeguarded her bedroom. The bedroom key was just an extra key, kept in the lock so it wouldn't be lost.

She unlocked the door, waited a long minute, slipped into the hall. There was a drug store at the corner which had a telephone. That was too far away. She would waken a neighbor. Only silence answered her first rap. She had no better luck at the next apartment. Either the people were in bed or away. She would try one more. A woman opened the door.

"May I use your telephone, please? It's dreadfully important."

"Well, I suppose so. But the way the neighbors profit while I pay the phone bill. . . ."

Already Barbara had seized the instrument. "I'll pay you," she said. "Oh, I don't know the number. I'ts Bellevue hospital. Could you get it for me, please?"

The woman grudgingly did so. In a few seconds Barbara had delivered her message and rece ived a promise that an ambulance and attendants would be along immediately.

The woman was sympathetic now. "Why didn't you tell me you were scared to death? Honestly the way folk bother me to use that phone would make even Job lose his patience. There was a man banging on doors tonight wanting to borrow it. Drunk as a coot, I guess. Good-looking, though. He was telling a tale of a man hiding in a room and somebody being in danger —Lot of silly stuff. So you see that's why I resented you."

"You mean a man tried to use your telephone?" Barbara asked slowly.

"You bet your eyelashes he did. And got the door banged good and proper in his face."

It must have been Garry! Then he hadn't walked out on her carelessly, thinking she wanted him to go. Oh, she had hoped that he had gone, trusting her to be able to explain! He had sensed the danger and dashed for help. That was far more than she had dared to hope.

It was nearly 12 o'clock now. Help had not come. Garry had not phoned again. Where was he? Had he changed his mind about her danger? Now a new battalion of worries began. They pushed their way through her mind, crowding the old ones out.

The ambulance came then and Bruce Kemper, still asleep, was removed. Barbara slipped into a gray woollen bathrobe, for the night was cold, and sat down by the radiator. She was shaking with a chill. Garry, Garry, Garry, where was he?

Maybe the producer might know. Twelve o'clock was early for theatrical people. She dialed the man's number. After a long time a butler answered the telephone.

"Mr. Hadley? He is out. Is there a message?"

"Could you tell me if Mr. Garry Page kept an appointment with him this evening, please? This is Miss Kingsley. I'm eager to locate Mr. Page."

"If you will keep the connection, perhaps I shall be able to find out for you," the meticulous voice answered.

"Thank you, I'll wait."

The clock ticked slowly. Somewhere a boat whistled, and a bell rang. Why didn't the butler hurry? Then Barbara heard his voice. "I'm sorry, Madame. Mr. Page has not been in the house this evening."

She hung up slowly. Then where had he gone and why? None of the pieces made a pattern. Garry trusted her. Tenaciously she clung to that thought. He would not go somewhere to brood just because of a situation he did not grasp at the moment.

Garry loved her! He had told her so. Besides, he didn't believe that love had to be proved piece by piece as one built a mosiac. He knew you built on faith—oh, this was silly!

"Cut out the philisophy," she whispered to herself. Then a new angle opened. Garry had known that it was to her someone had come for news of Bruce Kemper. Had he seen Bruce that day he had been at the apartment door, when Julia had given way to fanfare and drums? He had remembered the man's name tonight. Had he recognized him in the shadows?

She decided to make some coffee, but with the coffee pot on the grill she thought of Ray Lipton. If anything had happened to Garry, he woud help her find him.

DOROTHY DIX

Mere Suspicions Are Not Reasonable Grounds Upon Which a Wife Can Cast Her Happiness to the Winds and Rush Into a Divorce Court

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My husband is the average American good husband. Until very recently I have had no occasion to doubt him, but lately have suspicions (so far unfounded) that he is unfaithful to me. I firmly believe there is no special woman, just the "lilies of the field." He is as good to me as always and, though I hate myself for it, I find I still love him. Should I, or should I bear this indignity and calmly hope his decency will assert itself? I am just 30 and out of pique am seriously thinking of having an affair with some man, just to let myself know I am still desirable. What shall I do? I have no children who might be hurt by my behavior. A FOOL IN LOVE

Answer:

If every wife who suspected her husband of casting a roving eye at some other woman got a divorce, the world would be filled with the crash of falling homes, and there wouldn't be a marriage left intact in the length and breadth of the land.

There are mighty few wives who at some time during their married lives have not suffered from more or less acute attacks of jealousy, but the wise ones have shut their eyes to what they did not want to see and kept their homes together. And eventually they discovered that, after all, there was nothing to be green-eyed over. Or, after the husband had eaten his little bit of stolen cake, he found it didn't set well on his stomach and he came back to home and mother, a chastened man bearing gifts in his hand.

So you are facing a situation that many another wife has to meet. Heaven knows it is heartbreaking when a man really has forsaken his wife for another woman. It is a tragedy when he forces her to get a divorce so that he can marry his Lady Love. But in a case like yours, when you have no proof of your husband's infidelity or of the existence of any special affinity, and all that you suspect is that he likes to philander a bit, and he is still good and kind and attentive to you, it is sheer madness for you to talk about leaving him and breaking up your home just because your pride has been hurt.

Ask yourself what you would gain by leaving him. Would you be happier apart, cut off from all association with him, out of his life forever, never seeing him, than you are as his wife, having his companionship every day, having your position as the head of his house? Believe me, a half loaf is better than no bread. Do you imagine that getting a divorce will automatically make you cease to love him? Don't deceive yourself into thinking that a decree absolute will cure a hurt heart.

And certainly you know that financially and socially you will be much worse off as a divorcee than as a wife. It is one thing to have a little grudgingly given alimony. It is another thing to have a charge account at the best stores. All that most women get out of divorce is the necessity to support themselves, and when you are walking the streets hunting for a job you will wonder why you ever bothered about your husband and that platinum blonde.

As for revenging yourself upon your husband by having affairs of your own, that is too childish for an intelligent woman to think about doing. In the first place, instead of being a boomerang that would slay your husband, he would regard it merely as a justification of his course, and think there was no reason why he should have been true to a double-crossing wife. And, in the second place, if you did turn philanderer yourself, you would lose your own self-respect and the respect of every one who knows you. Two wrongs have never yet made a right. Nor is there any truth in the old adage that "revenge is sweet." It is bitter as gall, and once you taste it you never get the flavor out of your mouth.

My earnest advice to you is to put all suspicion of your husband out of your mind, and instead of trying to pick up some other man spend all of your energies and charms in vamping your husband.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—For a number of years I have clothed and educated a poor girl. Now she has a position where she might be advanced, as she is a capable worker, if she would only give some thought to her appearance. I have tried to encourage her to have her hair waved and to wear neat collar-and-cuff sets and to have her heels straightened and keep herself well groomed, but she can't see that it is of any importance. Do you think I should risk hurting her feelings by telling her plainly about it? MRS. W.

Answer:

I think it is your duty to tell her just as plainly as possible to speak that slovenliness in a woman is the greatest handicap she can have and that, no matter how hard she works, nor how efficient she is, she will get nowhere unless she is at least neat and tidy in her appearance.

A girl's looks are her best capital these days. They are her letter of introduction, her recommendation. They are what every employer judges her by when she goes to look for a job, and if she is sloppy and frowsy; if her hair is uncombed and her hands unmanicured; if her neckwear is soiled and her skirt needs pressing, she will never be chosen for any but the most menial positions. She is too hard on the eyes for any man to want to spend his days looking across a counter or a desk. No customers want to be waited upon by a girl who looks germy and as if she needed to be disinfected.

More than that, the sloppy woman proclaims her laziness by her attire, and that is another reason why she will always be passed over in favor of the spick-and-span girl who has enough get up and get to make the most of herself and her clothes.

* * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—My husband and I want to adopt a girl baby, but he is afraid she might turn out badly and be wild and wayward when she is grown. Do you think there is any danger of this? If we do adopt her, should we tell her about it, and at what age should she know? WE TWO.

Nobody has a guarantee that even their own children will turn out to be credits to them. You have to take that risk, but if the child is properly reared there isn't much danger. An adopted child should be told it is adopted before it is old enough to really understand. Then it grows up with the idea and is not shocked by it. DOROTHY DIX.

Look like the gay nineties in the new Gibson Girl shirtwaist dress. It just pretends to be a two-piece model. It has a young swing skirt and "blousy" bodice that makes your waistline look ever so tiny. The little round collarless neckline is so demure. It's really intriguing in plain and print crepe. It's the sort of dress that's smart for town.... for luncheon and tea and to go dancing in afternoons. With the same pattern, make a corselet waistline dress, that prefers to be beltless, of solid colored rayon crepe for town. The feminine white organdie collar and cuffs should be detachable so as to keep them crisp and immaculate. This version is strikingly smart in cotton prints for summer wear. It's just the gayest little model you would choose and so easy and inexpensive to sew. A complete diagrammed sewing instruction chart is included.

Style No. 2813 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material for waist with 2⅛ yards of 39-inch material for skirt.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S BAG

When Uncle Wiggily hopped from his hollow stump bungalow one day, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy called him back.

"Don't tell me I have forgotten the twinkle on the end of my pink nose!" exclaimed Mr. Longears as he raised one paw to feel.

"Oh, the twinkle is there all right," said the muskrat lady housekeeper, "but I want to ask if you will be kind enough to bring me a bag of beans from the grocery?"

"Of course I will," promised Uncle Wiggily. "So you are going to make a bean shortcake, are you? Goodie goodie!"

"Who ever heard of a bean shortcake?" laughed Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy.

"You did—just now!" chuckled Mr. Longears. "Of course I was only teasing you, Janie, about a bean shortcake," he said. "But I shall be in earnest about bringing you a bag of beans."

"Thank you," said the muskrat

"Oh, dear! Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

lady housekeeper, as Uncle Wiggily hopped over the fields and through the woods, up hill and down dale on his way to look fgor an adventure.

Business First

"Perhaps, though," he said to himself, "I had better first get Nurse Jane's bag of beans. Business before pleasure is an old and true saying. Getting beans is business and having adventures is pleasure. So ho for the beans! Ho, for the beans! Ho, ho, for the beans!" sang Uncle Wiggily as if he were in a moving picture.

Soon he was at the grocery kept by a jolly old Sea Dog who soon packed a bag of beans for the rabbit gentleman.

"You had better be careful of that bag of beans," barked the jolly old Sea Dog.

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Because it is going to rain," said the Sea Dog. "We are going to have an April shower. If your paper bag gets wet it will sort of melt, the beans will spill out and how will you get them home?"

"Well, they certainly won't walk, hop and run to my bungalow all by themselves," said Uncle Wiggily, laughing. "So I shall have to carry them."

"But how can you carry them if this bag gets wet in the rain and melts?" barked the Sea Dog.

"Perhaps it won't rain," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, it will rain all right," answered the grocery keeper.

"Well, perhaps the bag won't melt," said Mr. Longears.

"Yes, it will," declared the Sea Dog.

However Uncle Wiggily began to whistle as he hopped away but that didn't stop the rain from falling. It was a hard April shower, just as the Sea Dog had said, and Uncle Wiggily wished for his umbrella.

Spills The Beans

Then, all of a sudden, just as the dog had predicted, the rain melted the paper bag and out spilled the beans all over the ground.

"Oh, dear!. Oh, dear! Oh, dear!" cried Uncle Wiggily leaning over the beans to keep them as dry as he could.

"What's the matter?" asked a voice and through the rain flew a swallow from Uncle Wiggily's barn.

"I have spilled the beans! said the rabbit gentleman.

"Never mind, I will help you pick them up," twittered the swallow.

"Thank you most kindly," said Uncle Wiggily. "But picking up the spilled beans will do no good unless I have another bag in which to put them. You haven't a bag, have you?"

"No," twittered the swallow, "I haven't."

"Oh, dear!" sighed Mr. Longears. "What shall I do?"

I shall tell you in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily and Lady Baltimore. But I do hope the automobile radiator will be polite enough to take off its cap when it comes in the house.

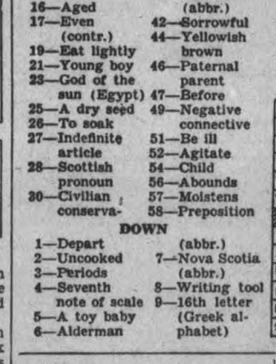
PAGE A CLAIRVOYANT

MAYBE SOME day there will be a genius who can tell us exactly when to lead our partner's suit against no trump, and when not to. If he is at all reliable, it probably will be because he has occult powers. All of the logic in the world can work out wrongly in this situation. It is not something calling for wisdom so much as for luck.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

After a spade bid by West, North bid 1-No Trump, South two and North three.

In response to his partner's bid, East led the spade 8, which West covered with the 9 and North took with the J. The diamonds A and K were next cashed. A club was then led to dummy's A, and the diamonds Q and J followed. The heart finesse was successful, so with no more entries to dummy and with hearts blocked, South laid down the heart A, and to his delight, the K dropped, making the Q good. A small club was North's next lead, which West won. He threw North in with the spade 10 to the King and North gave up the remaining tricks.

When the hand was over East realized that the situation would have been quite different if he had led a club instead of a spade, for with the club A knocked out of dummy, declarer would never have been able to cash the last two diamonds and take the heart finesse.

Farmers Realize The Value Of Having Soil Tested

Peterborough Farmers "Soil Conscious" Frank Paterson Says

Peterborough farmers have already become "soil conscious," Frank A. Paterson, agricultural representative, told the Examiner this morning.

Samples of farm soil that have been brought into his office during the last month or two weigh in the aggregate three or four hundred pounds. He is almost buried in it, and has just about decided that he has to dig himself out of the accumulated loam if he is to get on with the rest of his work.

Some time last year J. J. Duffus, M. P. and Art Runions began talking about mineral deficiency in the soil. Meetings were held throughout the county, experts warned the farmers that for years they had been taking the mineral content out of their land without adequate replacement, and as a result their farms were becoming inefficient machines yielding steadily declining income.

A Modern Need

It was all propaganda to awaken the farmers of Peterborough county to a modern problem of agriculture which is being recognized throughout Ontario. And the farmers woke up to it, assuming that they really needed awakening, as if the final trumpet had sounded.

Farmers have been bringing in soil of all kinds to be tested, some of it in cans, glass jars, bags and boxes, until it has got into the gear box of the agricultural office when a lot of other work needs doing.

"I have come to the conclusion that we've got the cart before the horse," Mr. Paterson remarked today. "I haven't the equipment for all this work, and I am sending quite a lot of the samples on to Guelph. Frank Morwick of the O. A. C. was here yesterday and told me the survey of Peterborough county soil would be started here any time, probably as soon as the land dries. It seems to me that we should first get this soil survey, and then arrange to handle this other work that has been piling up lately.

Taking a Keen Interest

Farmers are certainly taking a keen interest in this question of soil content and mineral deficiency. It is mighty encouraging but it requires adequate equipment. Mr. Morwick told me the two men who are to do this county have been appointed. One of them is up at Sault Ste. Marie just now, but we can expect that the survey is likely to get started any time. Meanwhile we will have to carry on the more than nine months ago.

Face Broke Out In Large, Red Pimples

Many an otherwise beautiful and attractive face; many a cheek and brow in the mould of beauty, have been sadly defaced, their attractiveness lost by the presence of skin eruptions.

Pimples are caused by the blood being in an impure condition, and are a source of embarrassment, and many of those so afflicted are ashamed to go out in company.

Burdock Blood Bitters drives out the impurities from the blood, and leaves the complexion clear, smooth and healthy.

Miss Phyllis Twiddy, Ivanhoe, Ont., writes:—"Last spring my face and back began breaking out in large, red pimples.

It was very embarrassing for me to go out in company, and people began to avoid me.

I tried several kinds of blood purifiers, but none of them seemed to help me. I heard of Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles, and my friends wondered where all the pimples had disappeared to."

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties. BUT, if you are cross, lifeless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure.

Make a note NOW to get a bottle of world-famous Pinkham's Compound today WITHOUT FAIL from your druggist—more than a million women have written in letters reporting benefit.

Why not try LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND?

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. McCauley and family of Douro, spent Sunday visiting relatives here.

Mr. William Thompson of Peterborough, is visiting at his grandmother's home at Mount Julian.

Miss Connie Legon is spending the Easter vacation at her home in Peterborough.

Special service was held in Holy Trinity Anglican church at 11 a.m. on Thursday, the rector, Rev. E. C. Moore officiating. The pupils of No. 1A, Burleigh school, under the supervision of their teacher, Miss Legon, attended this special service.

Easter service was held in Eden United church at 2 p.m. on Sunday and in Holy Trinity at 3 p.m.

HALL'S BRIDGE

On Tuesday evening the Y.P.S. met at the home of Mrs. A. Bennett. The vice-president, Miss Vera Haines, presided over the first part of the meeting as folows: Prayer, folowed by minutes of last meeting and several items of business were discussed. Worship convenor, Miss Muriel Bennett, then took charge and the folowing program was presented: Prayer by Mr. Muchan; Scripture reading by Miss Marjorie Windover; topic, "God's Love for Man," given by Donald Haines; poem, "Patiently Bear Thy Cross," read by Mary Marais; solo by Mr. Muchan; discussion on topic by Mr. Muchan.

The meeting closed with the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction.

Before departing an enjoyable half hour was spent in recreation.

Rebel Gains

Continuing their successful drive against loyalist troops, General Franco's forces reached the outskirts of Tortosa (3), from which loyalists retired in order. They crossed the Segre near Balaguer (2), but were driven back by artillery. Insurgent columns in the north (1) were said to have taken Bonaigua Pass and drawn close to Seo de Urgel.

WARKWORTH

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Thompson, Cobourg were guests of his mother, Mrs. J. E. Thompson, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. W. H. Nelson, returned to her home at Dartford after spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. Warren Harlow, Stirling.

Young People's Legion Hold Successful Sale

The Young People's Legion of the Salvation Army held a successful sale of work Wednesday evening in the Junior Sunday School Hall. Many people attended and the attractive wares were sold very quickly. The decorations were very effective, a large colored arch being erected at one corner to mark off the space where the tables were arranged.

There was a pretty display of fancy work in charge of Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. L. Cox and Miss M. McDougall; a table of delicious home-made cooking was looked after by the Misses A. Chambo, E. Grieve and M. Bolam; pretty little packets and cones of home-made candy were sold by Mrs. G. Kennedy and Miss L. Slaughter, and an ice cream stall was in charge of the Misses C. Prout and A. Sanderson. Refreshments were served at little tables by Mrs. L. Bolam and Mrs. R. Routly, leader of the Young People's Legion.

Wingrove—Kennedy

CAMPBELLFORD, April 21. — A wedding of interest to many in Campbellford was solemnized in Simcoe on April 7th when Jessie Marshall, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Kennedy, became the bride of Milton Eugene Wingrove, son of Mrs. Wingrove and the late Wesley Wingrove of Tillsonburg. The Rev. A. R. Ferguson of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, officiated at the ceremony which was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was dressed in white chiffon over taffeta and wore a corsage of wine colored gardenia and sweetheart roses. Miss Kathlene Kennedy, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore blue chiffon over taffeta and her corsage was of gardenia and forget-me-nots. Carl May assisted the groom. Mr. and Mrs. Wingrove will reside in Tillsonburg.

Bullock—Dunford

LAKEFIELD, April 21. — The first wedding to take place in the new parsonage of the Lakefield United Church was recently quietly solemnized, when Mildred Martha Jean Dunford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Dunford of Douro, became the bride of Peter Braden Bullock, son of Mrs. Peter Bullock of Young's Point and the late Mr. Bullock. Rev. G. F. Kelly performed the ceremony. The bride was attired in a yellow frock, with white accessories. The couple were unattended.

Gallagher—O'Neill

MARMORA, April 21—The Sacred Heart Church, Marmora was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday morning when Teresa, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neill, of Marmora, township, became the bride of Charles son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Gallagher, also of Marmora township. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father J. J. Keeley.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Charles O'Neill, looked very smart in a navy ensemble with matching hat and accessories. Mrs. Myrtle McCormick, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid and was attired in a sand suit with matching accessories. As the bride entered the church, Lohengren's wedding march was played by Miss Rita Deacon and during the nuptial mass Miss Genevieve Shannon sang.

The happy couple left immediately after the ceremony for Toronto and Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm in Marmora township.

A Trio of Happy Children

Gleaners' Class of Mark Street Church Present Amusing Comedy

The "Old Maids Matrimonial Club" held the regular bi-monthly meeting with a splendid attendance of members Wednesday evening on the stage of Mark Street United Church Sunday School Hall. With the president, Marribah Lovejoy, in the chair, the minutes were read by the secretary, Amarilla Heywood, and treasurer's report given by Priscilla Hope. The roll call was answered with apt quotations, such as "Time is long, eternity longer, spinsterhood longest".

It was too bad that Mary Ann Barnes should have allowed her outlook to become soured and change her opinion of matrimony, for the quotation she gave about the poisonous character of man caused general consternation and so upset poor Sarah Jane Spingster that she forgot her quotation and had to be comforted. For the benefit of 'Sister' Mary Ann, Section 2 of the by-laws was read later setting forth clearly the aims-and intentions—of the club, the recalcitrant sister being eyed sternly as the secretary read.

Comedy Presented.

One of the funniest comedies given this season was presented by the Gleaners Class of Mark Street Church, when they repeated, under the direction of E. Shortt, the one-act sketch, "An Old Maid's Convention". Many an attic must have been ransacked to produce the surprising array of ingenious costumes, making the scene on the stage a most mirth - provoking spectacle from the moment when the 'old maids' began to arrive and tripped up the hall past an appreciative audience. A full meeting of "unappropriated, unadmired and unclaimed treasurers", to quote their president, with the club's membership still intact after five years, displayed full skirts and high-necked bodices, fishus and bustles, hats heavy with flowers and nodding plumes, high tight boots and frilly little parasols.

In spite of Mary Ann's unsympathetic attitude which never relaxed an enthusiastic meeting progressed with "encouraging" report from the Look-Out committee given by Sarah Jane, in which the list of 'eligible' widowers and bachelors caused much merriment in the audience. Five sisters appointed to find ways of making the members more attractive gave varied reports to the meeting.

During the Literary period, Mary Ann again distressed her sister members by her choice of a selection, "I'm Glad I'm An Old Maid" but Selina Baxter (a vision in shades of red and pink with fringed shawl and plumed hat) sang a more appropriate number with the sisters all joining in the chorus.

"Professor Pinkerton" was then announced, causing a great flutter and much use of powder puffs, and bringing with him his "Electric Transformer" and bottles of the elixir of youth for brunettes and blondes.

Acts of Transformation.

Having aroused the enthusiasm of the sisterhood by accounts of what he could achieve, the professor began transforming the members, commencing with the timid treasurer who wish "to sing like a nightingale." in addition to being improved in appearance. After disappearing into the 'TransformHer' which whirred loudly in use, the metamorphosed lady who stepped forth delighted the audience with her singing of "In the Garden of Tomorrow" and "Rose in the Bud". Several others went through the transformHer with varying results the new Asenith Baker also enriching the program with solos, "When the Great Red Dawn is Shining" and "In a Little Town Nearby". After amusing recitations and other musical numbers, including a guitar duet by the twins, the secretary insisted upon becoming, Sarah Jane drank too much of Elixir I, and came forth a lively Topsy, but was caught and emerged again a fair little lady with a guitar. The last sister to come forward insisted upon becoming a man, and brought proceedings to a dramatic close.

The cast of characters in this novel and well acted comedy was as follows: Marribah Lovejoy, Mrs. A. Murray; Amarilla Heywood, Mrs. E. Mackey (transformed Elva and Jean Grey); Pricilla Hope, Mrs. R. Curry (transformed, Mrs. S. Mitchell); Anxiety Doghty, Mrs. H. Hunter (transformed, Marian Mackey); Augusta Prim Mrs. Rome; Faithful Blossom Mrs. W. Osborne; Fredora Bobkins, Mrs. Hanwell; Rhoda Larkin, Mrs. Star (transformed, Jennie Butcher); Susannah Smith, Mrs. R. Payne; Selina Baxter, Mrs. H. Desserts become increasingly important for they are our best vehicle for serving fruit—do remember that it is important to supply plenty of fruit this month and next until asparagus and strawberries and pineapples are here in abundance to give their fresh vitamin supply.

This dessert was the delight of the dinner when 'Is and 'Er Nibs ate it the other night.

Pineapple and Pear Salad De Luxe

Drain home canned pears and chill them. To ¼ lb. cream cheese add ½ cup drained and chopped home canned cherries and mix very well—moistening with a little cream if necessary to make them blend. Stuff the centres of half the pears with balls of this cheese and place another half of pear over it to make a whole pear. Prepare well cupped green leaves of head lettuce, drying them well ,on each place a slice of Hawaiian pineapple, place the pear on this and over all pour

Cherry Syrup

Heat to boiling 1½ cups cherry juice (from the canned cherries) and mix with it the juice of 1 lemon. Mix together 1-3 cup sugar and 3 tablespoons cornstarch. Add the hot liquid to the sugar mixture and cook until transparent then cook over double boiler 20 minutes. When done cool. If this is not tart enough for your taste a little vinegar or more lemon juice may be added. About 1 tablespoon of this syrup is enough over each pear.

She Argues Well But Loses Claim

SYDNEY, Australia, April 21 (CP). —Noni Horton travelled 12,000 miles, from Sydney to London, to argue an appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council but lost her 37th case.

Miss Horton, however, was complimented by the committee for the manner in which she argued that she should benefit, under a promise, from the estate of a wealthy sheep farmer whom she nursed through a protracted illness. The estate was worth $120,000. Her claim was barred under a law of Charles II.'s reign which provides that all contracts relating to land must be in writing.

She claimed it was a question of whether there was evidence of intention to enter into a binding contract. And after she had been speaking and reading from authorities for two hours a member of the committee, Sir George Rankin, offered to read a judgment for her. When the statement ended Lord Wright said the court was prepared to go through her papers and consider all the points raised. But the judgment was against her.

Hamilton Nurse Named President

KINGSTON, April 21.—The Registered Nurses' Association, meeting in its thirteenth annual convention here Wednesday, heard reports of the increase in the membership of the association during the last year, and also the splendid financial condition of that body.

Miss Ethel Cryderman of Toronto is presiding during the three-day session, which was officially opened by Mayor H. A. Stewart, who welcomed the nurses and said that the citizens would be pleased to see them at the centennial celebration of the city this August.

The report of the nominating committee for the officers for the year 1938 was as follows: President, Miss Constance Brewester, Hamilton; 1st Vice-President, Miss Jean Church, Ottawa; Second Vice-Presidents, Miss Mildred Walker, London, and Mrs. Leason, Peterborough; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Matilda Fitzgerald, Toronto.

Miss Fitzgerald reported that the receipts for the year were $10,777, with a balance on hand of $1,187.

Miss Ethel Cryderman, in her presidential address, asserted that activities of the association during the last year had not been sound. There has been a keenness of interest and an earnestness of purpose by the district associations that have been productive of progress. Much work of the association is carried on by provincial and district committees.

In 1937 membership increased by 867.

Many active committees exist to work toward the reorganization and the extension of community nursing services. The committee to consider the question that all those who nurse the sick for hire should be licensed is studying the need for legislation for this purpose; that on the distribution of nursing service in Ontario is attempting to arouse interest, in a scientific way, in the care given to the non-hospitalized sick; the Bureau of Nursing Committee hopes to have its dreams realized and to establish bureaus of nursing which will provide for all types of nursing needs; and the Committee on Health Insurance is on the alert to secure the inclusion of nursing in any health insurance scheme which may materialize.

Split, Butter and Serve Hot For Hot Breads are Welcome

Most Appropriate Especially When One Is Really Hungry

(by Mary Moore)

SOME OF THE sun and the breeze in the air should permeate this cooking lesson, for my window is wide open and paper weights are holding down all the piles of paper.

What makes me write about hot breads when it should be wind pudding (as Peter calls souffles) and sunshine cake etc.?

However the hot breads I have in mind are appropriate because I am hungry and it is barely mid afternoon. If the weather is doing that to me, it most likely affects you in the same way.

Raisin Orange Muffins

One-quarter cup butter or good shortening, ¼ cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 cups flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and ¼ teaspoon salt, grated rind 1 orange, ½ cup seedless raisins, ¾ cup milk. Cream together the shortening and sugar very well then beat in the egg which has been previously beaten. Sift together the flour, baking powder and salt. Add the rind and raisins to the creamed mixture then add the sifted ingredients alternately with the milk. Merely stir enough to combine the ingredients—do not give it excessive beating or you will have large holes in your finished muffins. Fill buttered muffin tins 2-3 and bake until golden. If you use tiny muffin tins they will take 20 minutes at 425 deg. Fahr.—30 if you use large sized tins. When done split, spread with soft butter and keep hot in covered napkin if you cannot serve immediately.

There is a certain hotel in a certain city where I have had toasted Sally Lunn twice—often enough to associate it with Sally Lunn for life—for two reasons because it is so good and I have been holiday-ing both times.

Now I know Sally Lunn should be made with yeast, but I am not the kind of cook that can keep my eye on a sponge for a few hours—for my visits to the kitchen are often but not for long. There are many of you like me—so for both our kinds I give you both kinds of Sally Lunn—they both have their virtues—but I think the yeasty kind has an edge on the baking powder product for flavor.

Sally Lunn (baking powder)

Two well beaten eggs, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 cups sifted flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk 1-3 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Sift the sugar, salt and baking powder with the flour, and rub the butter into these with the finger tips, then add the milk and eggs and beat. Pour into greased bread pan and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes.

Sally Lunn (yeast)

One cake yeast, 2 cups milk scalded and cooled, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 4 cups sifted bread flour, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt. Dissolve the yeast and sugar in the lukewarm milk. Add butter ,then flour, eggs well beaten, and salt. Beat until quite smooth. Pour into buttered loaf pans, cover and let rise in warm place until double in bulk—about 1½ hours. Sprinkle tops with sugar and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. If this is baked in layer cake tins there will be enough for two. If baked in loaf pans spread out rather thinly. Break apart with forks for serving.

I hate to be school teacherish with you but I supporse I have to get down to facts and print a recipe for best possible tea biscuits—the simple recipe—the charm of which lies in the handling and temperature of the oven.

Fluffy Baking Powder Biscuits

Two cups sifted flour (pastry or cake), 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter (isn't the price of it scandalous these days) about 2-3 cup milk the colder it is the better. Sift the dry ingredients together and cut the shortening into them or blend in with finger tips. Add enough milk to make a real soft dough, but not so soft that you cannot handle it. Roll out on floured board and pat to about ¾ inch thickness, cut into small rounds (there is nothing in large biscuits to compare to the delicacy of a small one) with floured cutter and bake on buttered or floured baking sheet at 500 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes. Split and butter and serve hot.

The nicest variations of this little biscuit are to use tomato juice in place of milk to give them a pink tinge and a savory flavor that makes them excellent with a main course luncheon salad.

To make Cheese Biscuits, add ¾ cup very dry old cheese grated OR dried out grated mild cheese—the cheese must be dry or if it is moist the additional moisture makes the biscuits tend to be heavy.

Peanut Butter may be used in place of some of the butter to give a change to the flavor.

Graham Nut Muffins

One cup Graham flour (or cracked wheat), ¾ cup white flour, ½ cup sugar, 5 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 3 tablespoons melted fat, ½ cup chopped pecans or almonds. Mix and sift the dry ingredients; add the nuts and milk gradually, egg well beaten and melted butter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. in buttered muffin tins for 25 minutes. This amount will make 16 muffins.

Cream Scones

Two cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 teaspoons sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons butter, 2 eggs, 1-3 cup cream. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, sugar and salt. Work in the butter with tips of fingers; add eggs well beaten (saving out a small amount of unbeaten white) and cream. Toss on floured board, pat out to ¾ inch thickness. Cut in squares, brush with reserved white, sprinkle with sugar, and bake in oven of 450 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

Now the above recipe for scones is a classic, but I like to use it for the sandwich part of Apple Butter Sandwich Scones.

These are made by rolling the scones to ¼ inch thickness and cutting out in 2-inch squares. Spread half the squares with apple butter (or plum jam) and cover with remaining squares. Bake same as scones—serve for High Tea.

Don't forget the stunt of using lemon or orange or gingerflavored barley sticks or lemon drops in place of cube sugar in your clear tea when entertaining.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"From too much love of living,
From hope and fear set free,
We thank with brief thanksgiving
Whatever gods may be,
That no life lives forever;
That dead men rise up never;
That even the weariest river
Winds somewhere safe to sea. . . .

I am tired of tears and laughter,
And men that laugh and weep
Of what may come hereafter
For men that sow to reap:
I am weary of days and hours,
Blown buds of barren flowers,
Desires and dreams and powers
And everything but sleep."

—A. C. Swinburne.

Dear Friends:

Do you think you will never be like that? Tired of everything, even life itself. You can love life so much that it becomes more of a dread of losing it than true living. Yet, no matter how you strive to hold it, one day you too must give it up.

And you can get tired of hoping and hoping. Fear becomes a nuisance and a bother, till you wish that you could be free of both hope and fear forever. And we should be thankful that no life lives forever, for it would not be a nice thing to happen anyone.

Sometimes we wish for the dead to return, but it takes but a short time for their place to be filled. Then again, we get a measure of resignation, and our joy at their returning might cause them to impose their will on us too much, so that we would lose all our pleasure in them in every way.

When we are young, there is a verve and a vim in life and living. We have the long look then, anticipation for the good we know must come if life is to be what we would like. We want our dream fulfilled, to have success in our chosen field of work. We want fun and love and marriage, tiredness is not for us.

But when the years creep up on us, taking away this, lopping off that, when we get disappointments one after another, somehow it seems like a play that is too long drawn-out, and it wearies us, so that we feel glad to think there will be that long sleep at the end.

Of course, we do not always feel that way. Days when we feel as young as ever we did, days when we are full of pep and the love of life in everyway. Days again, when everything is full and grand, so that we forget the heaviness which has lain on our spirits like a damp cold cloud.

But they do not come as often as they used to. The things that so pleased us before, loses it's savor, is tasteless or nauseating. There is a weariness of the flesh which resting will restore to vigor again, but there is a weariness of the spirit, when too many things happen that are not good, when hope is deferred so long that the heart truly gets sick, and longs for that last long sleep, and we are glad life cannot go on forever.

And then — suddenly something good happens, something unexpected and in a twinkling our weariness leaves us, and we feel alive again. I remember as a young girl, when I was looking forward to something pleasant, I would pray that God would not let me die before it came to me.

One time also, I saw a friend of mine die, and she did not want to go. She was just in the middle of her life, she had not done all the things she would have liked to do, but saved them for when she would have more time, but more time was not given her.

So, don't you think you should live fully while you can, enjoying things to the fullest, youth, and marriage, and your children, for time cannot be saved. Once, a friend said to me, "you could travel as far third-class Roberta, and save that much money." But I told her I would not travel that way again and I did not want to save on my enjoyment of it. So, forget about the days to come, live fully, for these days might not come for you. More Later.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Shanghai International Red Cross Bringing Relief to Many Refugees

Some idea of the suffering caused by the war in China may be gathered from the following accounts of the relief dispensed by the Shanghai nIternational Red Cross and other organizations, who it must be remembered are only able to look after a part of the vast number of homeless and destitute.

Extracts from a bulletin issued by the Committee on Relief in China of the Foreign Missions Conference of North America, show that the Shanghai International Red Cross (commonly known as S.I.R.C.) at the end of March, four months after its inauguration, found itself a feeder of some 128,400 mouths, a teacher of about 30,000 refugee children, a distributor of nearly 200,000 pieces of relief clothing and a beneficiary of no less than $1,286,338.77.

During the four months, several hundred people, Chinese and foreign friends, have given voluntarily assistance to the work of the S.I.R.C., thus enabling it to use practically all its funds for direct relief work. Under its Executive Committee led by Dr. W. W. Yen, eight sub-committees have been formed with a view to giving speedy and adequate attention to various phases of its relief program.

$225,430 a Month.

According to the figures released by Dr. J. E. Baker, director of the S.I.R.C., the cost of rations, fuel and trucking for 125,000 refugees runs to $225,430 a month. The cost of daily rations per 100 refugees amounted to $6.37½, the ration distributed including rice, beans, wheat, vegetables, salt, oil and fuel. In addition to food, clothing materials are also collected and distributed.

Under the supervision of the Education Committee, headed by Dr. H. C. Chen, the S.I.R.C. has put nearly 30,000 children in schools, specially set up in some 170 refugee camps, and short courses and classes for training adults in lace-making and basket weaving have been organized in some larger camps.

The Wounded Soldiers' Committee of the S.I.R.C. has taken charge of thousands of cases during the last few months, and on February 1 a hospital for crippled soldiers was officially opened. Other committees include the Committee on Surrounding Areas which keeps in touch with conditions in war-torn areas and makes grants where necessary.

Of the sums secured by the S.I.R.C., $794,328.83 came as straight donations, while $492,209.94 was derived from liberty bonds, Red Cross salendars and bank interest. More than 2,000 people have contributed to the relief chest, the majority of them being Chinese, with overseas Chinese and friends in foreign lands making generous donations.

The Christian Church.

The response of the Christian Church in China is a remarkable story of bravery and unstinted giving, with nation-wide activity and with a wonderful spirit of fellowship and kindness to their fellow countrymen in distress. In order to meet the special needs of the situation, the National Christian Council formed its own War Relief Committee with representatives from a number of organizations including the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A. With contributions from Christian churches throughout China, the War Relief Committee is feeding and housing many thousands more of the refugees. It has been estimated that $3.00 is sufficient to support one refugee in North China for a month.

Britain has 103 per cent more private automobiles than in 1928.

ITALY SOUNDING YUGOSLAVIA OUT ON MILITARY PACT

ROME, April 21—(AP).—French-Italian conversations are expected to-morrow to go into details of an understanding for peace, advancing anther step toward what eventually may become a Five-Power Pact to keep Europe out of war.

Instructions for proceeding with the talks were expected from to-day's French Cabinet meeting, to be given to Charge d'Affaires Jules Blondel.

Blondel will carry on the negotiations, which it is believed will be completed before France send a new Ambassador here—accredited to King Vittorio Emmanuel as Emperor of Ethiopia.

Diplomatic quarters here felt the goal of Il Duce's diplomacy was to weld Italy, Germany, Great Britain, France, and Poland into agreement —to enhance the value to Italy of the Rome-Berlin agreement and to provide a shock absorber if there should result a disaffection with Germany's Fuehrer Hitler.

Yugo-Italian Deal?

Diplomats here said Italy also was sounding out Yugoslavia on a military alliance which would, perhaps, be a long-range measure to check any possible German effort to regain Adriatic ports once held by Austria.

While it was expected France and Italy would conclude their agreement before the League sessions, two things stood in the way of an early accord.

One was the visit of the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, to Tirana for the wedding of King Zog on April 27. The other was Chancellor Hitler's visit to Mussolini, beginning May 3.

The accord is expected to follow in general outline the Italo-British understanding now completed. France likely will ask an exchange of letters similar to those with Britain on Spain and Africa (pledges to maintain the status quo).

Greenwich Village Birds Go On Binge As Blast Scatters 3 Tons Seed

New York, April 21 (AP).

THE WILD life of Greenwich Village was a lot milder last night than at any other time in the memory of the oldest inhabitant. Thousands of tough city birds—mainly sparrows and pigeons—were bogging themselves down eating three tons of birdseed. The birdseed started out as a cargo aboard a truck. It ended as dinner for practically all Manhattan's wild life (feathered) when the trucks gasoline tank exploded on Greenwich Avenue. After firemen finished scattering the cargo over the streets, the birds practically took over the neighborhood.

JANETVILLE W.I. ELECTS OFFICERS

JANETVILLE, April 21. — The April meeting of the Janetville branch of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. B. Heaslip on Thursday afternoon. Several items of correspondence were dealt with and a letter of thanks was read from Mrs. W. Armstrong for fruit received during illness.

A discussion on short courses to be held during the year was carried over for further arrangements at the next meeting. A report of the vegetable short course was given by the leaders and their expenses were voted paid. The treasurer, Mrs. W. Campbell, reported a balance on hand at the end of the Institute year, of $30.86.

Mrs. George Wilson, a former president, presided for the election of officers for the year 1938-39 which resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Charles Deyell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. H. Johnston; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. B. Heaslip; secretary, Mrs. M. Armstrong; treasurer, Mrs. J. Capstick; district director, Mrs. B. McMullen; branch directors, Mrs. Oswald McGill, Mrs. W. Campbell, Mrs. J. Nicholson and Mrs. T. McMullen; annual convention, Mrs. W. Hanna, Mrs. A. Heaslip, Mrs. A. Suggitt; sick committee, Mrs. G. Bradburn, Mrs. Maiers, Mrs. G. Wilson; flower committee, Mrs. B. Hyland, Mrs. G. Heaslip, Mrs. A. Suggitt, Mrs. R. J. Burn; press, Mrs. O. McGill, Mrs. M. Armstrong; pianists, Mrs. Maiers, Mrs. G. Heaslip; auditors, Mrs. A. Heaslip, Mrs. J. Nicholson.

The new president, Mrs. Deyell, took the chair and after a few remarks proceeded with the following program:

Reading, "Let Us Be Good to Ourselves" from the pen of Nellie McClung, by Mrs. O. McGill; violin solo, and encore, Mrs. Maiers; reading, "The Creed of the Caribou," Mrs. W. Hanna; vocal duet, "The Gold Mine in the Sky" and encore, by Bernice and Joyce Maiers.

A contest, sponsored by Mrs. A. Suggitt, was won by Mrs. Oswald McGill.

Dirty Licence Plates To Bring $3 Fine

Toronto, April 21

ANY MOTORIST caught driving with a dirty license will be fined $3 if he appears before Magistrate Jones.

This warning was given by the Magistrate on Tuesday when a man appeared before him charged with driving with a dirty front plate on his car.

"The police are finding it hard enough to read the numbers on clean plates," declared Magistrate Jones. "In future, any motorist who comes before me for having dirty plates is going to pay at least $3."

QUEBEC TO CURB SCOURGE OF T.B.

MONTREAL, April 21—(CP). — Health Minister J. H. A. Paquette of Quebec said last night that with the provincial government's plan for a medical research institute under way and with multiplication of health units, Quebec soon would be able to combat effectively tuberculosis and infantile mortality. Quebec then, he said, would have nothing to be ashamed of when comparative health figures are published.

Dr. Paquette was speaking at a meeting of the Montreal Medical Society at wich he and several Montreal doctors were honored. Dr. Paquette was chosen honorary president.

The minister promised in his address an early revision of the Quebec public charities act in view of granting doctors a more fair treatment.

The policy of increasing the number of health units had met opposition, he said, but instead of reducing the number of clients seeking medical attention it had resulted in an increase as it made parents conscious of the need of providing their children with medical care.

He said the government planned an extensive campaign against tuberculosis and that sanatoriums would be built at Hull, in the St. Lawrence south shore district and at Roberval. Others would follow if needed.

Dr. Paquette announced Dr. Armand Frappier of Montreal would head the medical research institute, to provide serum and medical supplies at present obtained outside Quebec.

Hamilton Businessmen to Enjoy Clearing House For Prayer

Pastor Plans Venture To Aid Those Worried By Trade Or Domestic Troubles

HAMILTON, April 21 — (CP). — Hamilton is to have a clearing house for prayer. A downtown office is to be opened shortly, at which businessmen can send in request for prayer for their problems. These will be transmitted through the office to various groups meetings here at the homes of the four lady referees of the organization, and will be taken by them to the Lord in prayer.

Described by its originator, Rev. I. H. Pritchard, minister of Caroline Street Mission, as an adventure in faith, it is designed to assist perplexed businessmen, who are worried by business or domestic difficulties.

The office will not be affiliated with any particular church association. Mr. Pritchard said. The idea, he reveals, was born in his heart about two years ago, and has taken form in the organization that will be known as the businessman's prayer fellowship, or B.M.P.F., for short.

A Faith Venture

Mr. Pritchard, who hopes, personally, to be in the office to receive any who are distressed and wish prayer, announced that Don Hardstone, student at the Toronto Bible College will be in charge as receiving secretary, during the summer, before returning to complete his course at Toronto.

"Every phase of this work must be a faith venture for the office and for all concerned. All requests must be kept private, and will be sent on to various groups for prayer, as they arrive," Mr. Pritchard said.

The executive of the B.M.P.F. includes the following referees: Mrs. J. Currie, Mrs. D. McKay, Mrs. A. E. Parker, Mrs. Stanley David, D. A. Souter. J. Platt, D. C. Platt, F. F. Hamilton, W. D. Heagle, Roy Leggat, J. Currie being jail and hospital visitor.

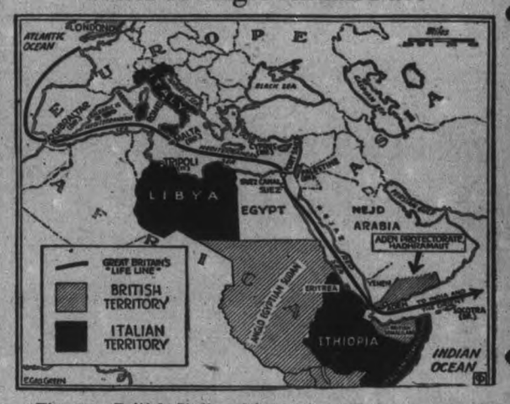
Orbit Of Anglo-Italian Pact



The new British-Italian friendship pact, hailed by both countries, safeguards Britain's strategic centres in the Mediterranean and recognizes Italy's vital interests there. Many see the pact as the first step toward a new lineup to break Hitler's hold on Europe. Under the agreement Italy will, for the first time, recognize the Aden protectorate and the Hadhramout territory formally added to it in March, 1937, assuring Britain of domination of the Indian ocean. Italy also will agree to respect the independence of the Indian ocean. There is likewise reaffirmation of the 1888 Suez Canal convention, which guaranteed freedom of passage through the canal in peace time and war; agreement not to increase fortified bases in the Mediterranean and Red Sea without prior exchange of information. And Italy agrees reduction of its reinforced Libyan garrison, which Great Britain had considered a threat against the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan. Britain's vital "life line" is protected by the pact.

Youth Vanishes After Fracas At Northbrook

Disappears From Home of Murdered Aubrey Sedore And On Same Date Victim's Body Burned Year Ago

(Examiner Correspondence)

TWEED, April 22.—The Provincial Police are seeking information concerning the whereabouts of Ross Peterson, of Elm Tree, who has been missing since Sunday, April 3.

According to information secured by Provincial Constable F. W. Barrett, Peterson was last seen on the above date as he was leaving a home near Northbrook, where, it is said he had been engaged in a fracas with a resident of the locality.

From the descriptions given of the missing man, he is about 19 years of age, 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs about 140 pounds. He is of medium complexion and was dressed in brown. Any information concerning him will be welcomed by the police.

At Murdered Man's Home

By a strange coincidence, the home where the alleged fracas took place was that of Aubrey Sedore, whose unsolved disappearance resulted in a charge of murder being laid against Robert Woodman, who was acquitted of the charge when tried in Napanee last Fall.

Another coincidence is that April 3 is the same date on which it is thought that the remains of Aubrey Sedore were burned in the bush near his home, not far from Northbrook, one year ago.

BURNS TO DEATH IN MATCH PLANT

TORONTO, April 22. (CP).—Thomas Kidd was burned to death today in a stock-room fire at the Book Match Company and Bert McLelland, another employee in the stock room, suffered serious burns.

Firemen and company officials could give no immediate cause for the fire, confined to the stock room where thousands of books of paper matches are stored. Kidd, dead before firemen reached the blaze, was believed to have been overcome by fumes.

McLelland raced from the stock room with his clothes afire and was rushed to hospital by fellow workers at the manufacturing plant.

SPENDING SPREE NOT THE U.S. CURE

TOPEKA, Kas., April 22 (A.P.).—Alf. M. Landon called upon "an articulate citizenry" to-day to make it clear to the United States Congress that "this huge appropriation" proposed in President Roosevelt's new recovery program must be met by adequate tax provisions.

The 1936 Republican presidential nominee, in an address prepared for delivery to the Optimist Club, said the President's proposal has ended the "period of uncertainty" as to the Government's fiscal policy.

"We are again upon an inflationary course," he said.

"If every time there is a recession in business the only way out that a Government can find is a further huge expenditure program to be applied on top of expenditures already too great, then we shall go bankrupt.

"If the Government spends money it must collect revenues to match the expenditures....

"It is not yet too late to pull up and save ourselves and pay our honest debts. We can pay the public debt of the United States if we are honest and economical. But we will have to economize— we will have to stop our spendthrift course."

"It has already been proven conclusively that when the people want something, and want it badly enough, they can get the Congress to follow their directions.."

REQUEST REJECTED

LONDON, April 22—(CP)— Request for an inquiry into the condition of some 3,500,000 "prematurely aged" ex-servicemen, sought by the British Legion, has been rejected by Prime Minister Chamberlain.

He refused to agree to a government inquiry into the status of these men, whom the British Legion contends are affected by war service or in need, and declined to approve various relief and pension proposals.

$1,000 PAID DOCTOR TO DRUG McINTOSH WIFE TOLD BROTHER

TORONTO, April 22.— (CP). — Donald McIntosh, Hamilton insurance man and brother of Angus McIntosh, wealthy Montreal importer, charged before a government-ordered inquiry into Homewood sanitarium to-day that his brother's wife told him she paid $1,000 to Dr. Colin K. Russell of Montreal to drug and take her husband to Homewood in 1934.

Dr. Russell testified yesterday, when the inquiry under F. H. Barlow began its second Toronto sittings, that he was paid $100 for taking the importer from Montreal to Homewood and that McIntosh was not drugged. McIntosh previously testified he was drugged and held in the sanitarium illegally.

Examined by Commission Counsel C. L. Snyder, Donald McIntosh testified he saw "nothing unusual" in his brother's condition in the period just before he was taken to Homewood.. The first thing he knew of his brother's arrival at Homewood was when he got a message from the institution.

He said when his brother was ready to leave Homewood the first time he warned him against going to Montreal with his wife. "Remember, she said she was going to break you," Donald said he told Angus.

Answering J. W. Pickup, Homewood counsel, as to why he thought his brother was doped upon arrival at Homewood, McIntosh said: "He was just like a drunken man. His ways were doped and he was trying to vomit. There was nothing the matter with him mentally when he was taken to Homewood."

McIntosh denied he was prejudiced against his sister-in-law.

May Call Mrs. McIntosh.

Possibility Mrs. Angus McIntosh would appear as a witness developed when R. S. Robertson, another Homewood counsel, asked if she was to be brought before the inquiry. Mr. Snyder said he would do all in his power to bring her here as a witness if the commission thought it advisable.

John W. Duckett of Hamilton, nephew of Angus McIntosh, testified that on a visit to Homewood in 1934, Dr. Baugh told him his uncle had only a "very slight" nervous breakdown and would be out conducting his own business soon.

Mrs. McIntosh arrived soon after he went to his uncle's room. She and Mr. McIntosh had a few slight arguments and his uncle complained about a slight loss in the sale of a house at Port Nelson, Ont.

"I saw him two or three times a week while I had permission to see him," Duckett said. "In the next

Hill Is Blown Up

The rocks at the right of this picture are not little pebbles, but huge boulders weighing hundreds of pounds and larger than a full grown man. It took eighteen tons of dynamite to loosen them from the solid rock face on the property of the Ontario Rock Quarry three miles east of Havelock at noon today (Friday). More than 100,000 tons of rock are in the air here, nearly all hidden by the dense pall of smoke caused by the dynamite.

Tenth Blast in Search of Trap Rock Takes Place At the Ontario Rock Company's Quarry near Havelock

(By A Staff Reporter)

HAVELOCK, April 22.—A dull rumble shook the earth near Havelock today (Friday) as eighteen tons of dynamite blew sky high close to 100,000 tons of rock in one mightly blast shorty after noon. It was the Ontario Rock Quarry's tenth blast in search of trap rock for commercial use.

The spectacular explosion made the earth tremble a full half mile from the spot where the boulders were torn from the land. A dense pall of smoke floated skywards, whipped to the east by a strong wind. Months of preparation that lay behind the blast, ended in less than two minutes.

The force of the explosion wrecked a line of railway track leading to the crusher, but no other damage was done. The crusher itself and the storage bins were not touched. The blast was a successful one, and went off just as he had planned it, Superintendent Harry Scott said afterwards.

Exhaustive precautions were taken by company officials to eliminate accidents from falling rock. Half a dozen news photographers and scores of spectators were shown vantage points a full half mile from the scene of the blast and the intervening area was policed to prevent closer view.

The company began preparations for today's blast on the first of last December using regular mining equipment. The crew consisted of two drillers and two helpers who drilled and blasted during the day shift, and four "muckers" on night shift, who mucked away from the face of the tunnel and carted away

BETTER FARMING NEEDED TO MEET LIVING STANDARD

LONDON, Ont., April 22 (CP). — Present-day farmers demand a "much higher" standard of living than did farmers of 30 years ago, and the resulting increased expenditure must be provided for by more efficient farming, Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture, said in an address here today.

"These extras mean the expenditure of a few hundred dollars more each year," Mr. Dewan told a service club (Kiwanis). "This additional expenditure must be provided for by more efficient farming, by the application of science, the application of any economic factor that will increase returns and by better farm management as well."

These factors are "inevitable" and farmers generally must face them as "realities," he said. "The young farmer of tomorrow must be trained for his task — must be armed with every valuable piece of information which is available to him. A local short course in agriculture should be made accessible to every young farmer who cannot avail himself of a course at one of our agricultural institutions."

Learn To Help Selves.

Governments can give only guidance, direction and assistance, said the Minister. By organization and co-operation, farmers must learn to help themselves. "I fear that in this province they have not yet learned this truth: that what the government can do for the farmer is insignificant compared with what he can do for himself."

Turning to a matter of "serious concern," Dr. Dewan said Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture were conducting intensive campaigns to eradicate cattle diseases. "Reasonable progress" was being made in Ontario toward eradicating bovine tuberculosis but

NAB EXTORTIONER SEEKING $30,000 IN LEVINE KIDNAP

CHICAGO, April 22—(AP)—Federal agents announced today the arrest of Charles Edmund Lavendar, 36, on charges of attempting to extort $30,000 from Murray Levine, father of 12-year-old Peter Levine, missing from his New Rochelle, N. Y. home since February 24.

D. M. Ladd, agent in charge of the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation, said Lavendar "undoubtedly" had no connection with the kidnapping of the boy.

Ladd said Lavendar sent a letter to the elder Levine April 14, instructing him to register at a Chicago hotel under the name "J. P. Smith." The letter, Ladd said directed Levine to bring $30,000 in small bills and in two packages, one containing $29,000 and the other $1,000.

A federal agent, masquerading as Levine registered at the hotel and was instructed in a telephone message to make a "contact" at Harrison and Halsted streets on the near west side.

Although the agent walked for about a mile on Halsted Street, no contact was established, but when he returned to the hotel a new message directed him to appear at Clark and Lake Streets, on the north edge of the loop.

There, Ladd said, the agent was accosted by Lavendar. With other G-men the agent made the arrest.

Sister Skeptical Photo "Brother"

CALGARY, April 22—(CP)—Despite the claim of the Toronto Originals' Club that the picture of an "unidentified soldier" on its walls is that of iLeut. Basil Winters, M. C., killed in action at Hill 70 during the war, his sister, Mrs. St. George D. Clarke, doesn't think the portrait is that of her brother.

The club sent Mrs. Clarke a copy and offered her the original, but—

"It's a very close resemblance, that's all," Mrs. Clarke said last night. "I have not seen the picture, only a copy, and it's not my brother, I'm pretty sure."

Mrs. Clarke said she had not done anything about the club's offer of the original, and won't do anything unless she can become satisfied it is that of her brother.

Allowance Tripled Since Birth of Last Son, Quints' Physician Says Outsiders After Control

CALLANDER, Ont., April 22 (CP).—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe today commented on a New York Daily News story that one of Oliva Dionne's complaints against the guardians of the quintuplets is the children's health has ben endangered by allowing them to be watched at play by tourists.

Dionne himself, Dr. Dafoe said, "is the only one who benefits from the tourists they say I am so much interested in. No charge is made for tourists. He has the only store around and that's located right across the street from where the babies are.

Dr. Dafoe said he has personally seen to it that the parents of the Quints received an increased income after the recent birth of a boy to Mrs. Dionne. Their income from contracts signed on behalf of the Quints was increased from $100 to $300 a month, he said.

Outsiders After Quints.

CALLANDER, Ont., April 22. — (CP).—A charge that "outside interests are trying to get control" of affairs of the Dionne Quintuplets was made to-day by Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the famous Callander babies.

Commenting on Papa Oliva Dionne's request for a juricial investigation into management of the Quints' affairs, Dr. Dafoe said:

"Now that the Quints have $600,000, there is strong interest being shown in them. It looks to me as if outside interests are trying to get control. I am told that outside interests are trying to influence the father. I don't think he is being very well advised."

Dr. Dafoe said he wished to "make it clear that all we are concerned with is the welfare of the children."

"I know nothing about the complaints against the guardians," he said. "I have only read about them in the newspapers.

Never Attends Meetings.

"I might say that Mr. Dionne is one of the guardians and he hasn't attended a meeting of the guardians for more than a year. If he has any objections to make, it is his duty to attend the meetings and make them known. We always notify him of the meetings by registered mail."

Judge J. A. Valin, also a guardian, refused to comment on Oliva Dionne's demand.

Dionne himself merely confirmed that he had commissioned Henri St. Jacques, Ottawa lawyer, to make application to the Ontario Attorney-General for the investigation. He had conferred with the lawyer here Saturday.

St. Jacques also represented the father of the Quints at a recent conference here with Percy D. Wilson ,official guardian for Ontario, Dionne said.

ANTIBES, France, April 22 (AP). —Friends of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor said today they had made plans to remain on the Riviera during the time King George and Queen Elizabeth pay their official visit to Paris, June 28 to July 1.

The Duke and Duchess, who arrived here from Versailles three days ago, are expected to return to Paris within a few days But friends said they would come back to Antibes about May 1 to remain several months.

MARRYING PAUPER FILM DANCER TOLD BY EX-MRS. COOGAN

LOS ANGELES, April 22.—(AP). —Betty Grable, $500-a-week film dancer, told to-day of ignoring a warning by her mother-in-law, that she was marrying a "pauper," if she married Jackie Coogan.

As Betty described what she said were Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein's efforts to break off her sons two-year engagement, Wallace Beery, a friend of Jackie's kid days in the movies rallied to his support in his legal fight for a share of his screen fortune.

A hearing was scheduled in court this morning on the petition by Mrs. Bernstein and Jackie's stepfather, Arthur L. Bernstein, to dismiss the receivership declared on the Coogan estate when the 23-year-old former star filed a $4,000,000 accounting suit against the couple last week.

Jackie maintained, and Mrs. Bernstein denied, that his father, Jack Coogan, Sr., had intended to give him his accumulated film earnings when he came of age. The elder Coogan was killed in an automobile accident in 1935, shortly before Jackie's 21st birthday.

Beery Recalls Promise.

To "the kids cause," Beery, a veteran star, added his word to-day, rubbing his jaw in a characteristic meditative gesture as he spoke:

"Not once, but many times—more than a dozen, I think—Jack (the young film player's father) told me that he had never used or intended to use a cent the boy earned.

"Every penny the boy was making was being put away and saved for him, Jack said on several occasions. He was careful at all times to impress everyone that Jackie's money would be all his—and rightfully—when the kid reached a man's estate."

Beery's recollections were of a period when he and Jackie played together in two pictures and he became a fast friend of the father.

NO QUINT PROBE TILL GUARDIAN'S REPORT STUDIED

Wilson Too Friendly To Suit Oliva Dionne

TORONTO, April 22.—(CP). — Attorney-General Gordon Conant said to-day he would take no action regarding Oliva Dionne's request for a judicial inquiry into the management of the quintuplets until he had studied a report by Percy D. Wilson, K.C., official guardian, who made an investigation recently.

The Attorney-General said Wilson's investigation was made at the request of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the Quints. The report reached the Attorney-General's office this week.

Unlike his predecessor, David A. Croll, chairman of the Board of Guardians until a year ago, Attorney-General Conant has no more than a general interest in the welfare of the Dionne Quints, wards of the Ontario government.

He refused to discuss directly the request of Oliva Dionne's Ottawa lawyer, Henri St. Jacques, for an inquiry into the Guardians' management. He issued the folloinwg statement:

"At Dr. Dafoe's request, P. D. Wilson, K.C., the official guardian, was instructed to investigate the affairs of the Quintuplets. Mr. Wilson's report has only been made available this week. Obviously no action could be taken or reasonably expected regarding Mr. Dionne's representation until Mr. Wilson's report was available and carefully studied.

Not Talked to Premier.

"I have not yet discussed Mr. Dionne's representations with the Prime Minister. The best interests of the Quintuplets, their welfare and their health, must always be the first and most important consideration."

Details of the Wilson inquiry could not be learned from members of the government or the official guardian himself who refused to comment on the request for a second and judicial investigation.

NAB BUGS MORAN IN CHECK SCHEME

CHICAGO, April 22.—(AP). — George (Bugs) Moran, prohibition era gangster chief, and five other persons were seized here to-day by police investigating a nation-wide plot to pass counterfeit travellers' checks.

Three Chicago men accused of being members of a counterfeit ring were arrested at iPttsburg last night.

Police of the State's Attorney's offices who made the arrest here expressed the opinion as much as $1,000,000 in counterfeit American Express Company checks had been printed for distribution in principal cities of the United States.

Moran, seven of whose henchmen were machine-gunned to death in the St. Valentine's Day massacre, was held at the detective bureau during the night. He and the others denied being involved in a counterfeit ring.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright announced those seized rere included Frank J. Parker, airplane pilot known as the "Flying Bootlggeer" during the prohibition days, Walter Nolan, an employee of a coin vending machine company, Marie Ribble, Loren Gant and a woman whose name was not divulged.

Those arrested at Pittsburgh gave their names af Frank Quigley, 54, D. J. Driscoll, 45, and Dan Keller, 45.

The uniforms belonged to Sheriff's deputies, who took her into the substation and held her on suspicion of drunk driving.

250,000-Pound Winged Boat, Trans-Ocean Bomber, 400 M.P.H. Fighter on Reserved List

NEW YORK, April 22 (A.P.). — Europe is welcome to buy United States "export" military aircraft for rearmament purposes because the Army and Navy are equipped to out-fly anything sold abroad.

The British mission now en route to Canada and the United States to explore the chances of purchasing airplanes will be offered 30 different types of machines, for most of which the United States armed services have speedier and more deadly counter-parts.

Secret developments, some of them of a fantastic character to the layman, constitute America's defensive ace-in-the-hole.

Three types of flying boats for coastal bombing are available for export. The United States Navy has flying boats which will fly rings around them. Under secret development is a winged boat of 250,000 pounds gross weight, three times the weight of th world's largest now being completed for commercial use.

Police Snatch Bride From Her First Dinner As She Entertains "In-Laws"

LEWES, Del., April 22.—(AP).—State police last night took 12-year-old Almira Mae McCesney from the dinner she cooked and the 37-year-old husband she protested she loves.

The girl, whose marriage April 13 was discovered when truant officers investigated her absence from the fifth grade school at Rehoboth Beach—Atlantic shore resort town—was taken to the Wilmington detention home.

She and her husband and his mother and father were at the dinner table for one of the first meals Almira ever cooked when State Policeman Howard Brittingham and an officer from the detention home came to the McChesney home.

Almira started to cry.

"We haven't time for that; you'll get dinner in Wilmington," one of the officers said.

They took her away as her husband, Samuel, who said there was "no call for the law to bull in," assured her:

"I'll come and see you right away."

When she was gone, he cried. He had little to say then except:

"They don't understand. I love her. Why can't they leave us alone?" He held papers given him by the officers directing him to be in Wilmington May 7 for a court hearing.

Hitler Pays Bills And Exiled Kaiser Sets A Very Modest Table

New York, April 22 (AP).

CHANCELLOR HITLER is paying the bills of former Kaiser Wilhelm of Germany, Poultney Bigelow said yesterday, and an accountant goes to Doorn, Holland, regularly to check them.

"All the Kaiser owns in Germany is sand waste and forest land," said Bigelow, 83-year-old author, on his return from his annual visit to the former German emperor, his boyhood friend.

"He has to be subsidized by Hitler for his household expenses, and an accountant goes down to Doorn to check all his bills." The former German ruler lives in exile at Doorn.

Bigelow said the former Kaiser "does not set half as good a table as most of my neighbors on Malden-on-Hudson. Usually he merely has soup, a joint and a simple pudding at dinner, but ha never complains."

A Paying Proposition

For some reason or other they said "don't use his name", although there is no apparent reason for omitting it from this little story. A Campbellford merchant who has always had a friendly feeling for the Examiner bought 50 copies of 1937 special tourist edition, the Examiner's Mail-It-Away number, and mailed all of them to people he knew on both sides of the border. And the response and effect was that 34 of them called at his store during the summer to acknowledge their copies of the edition and thank him for remembering them. That was one man's method of co-operating with the Examiner in giving the tourist number, publicizing the Kawarthas, an extensive circulation where it will do the most good. Watch for announcement of the 1938 Mail-It-Away edition.

LOYALISTS NIP REBELS' DRIVE IN EAST SPAIN

Two-to-One Superiority In Man Power Shows Up

HENDAYE, France, April 22 (AP)—The Spanish government's almost two to one superiority in man power apparently has halted the Insurgent advance in eastern Spain.

The latest communique issued by the Insurgent general headquarters, which for days has detailed a long list of captured towns, spoke merely in general terms of a "continued advance" down the coastal road towards Castellon de la Plana.

The communique, however, placed the Insurgent southern columns still in the vicinity of Alcala de Chivert, which was reported captured 36 hours before.

A similar impasse seems to have been reached all the way to the Pyrenees frontier, where for the last two days the Insurgents have been taking "complete possession" of the Aran valley.

Along the 100 miles of the 190-mile front—from Gandesa north to Sort—the militiamen have held firmly for more than a week. At strategic Tremp and Balaguer the government reported counter-attacks had reduced Insurgent bridgeheads.

Gained Only 18 Miles

During the month since the Insurgent attack developed in Catalonia, General Franco's troops have penetrated an average of only 18 miles within the province—about one seventh of its breadth.

The stabilization of the government's defences behind the natural barriers of the Segre and Ebro Rivers has enabled the militiamen to make the fullest use of their strength.

Their line of fortifications also has balked the Insurgents' favorite flanking tactics, forcing them to make frontal attacks. Against these the most effective weapons are the automatic rifle and machine-gun, the only ones in which the government has superiority.

Government dispatches from Madrid said new Insurgent efforts to crack the city's defence line, weakened by transfer of troops to the eastern front, had been checked by exploding mines.

"This went on for two or three months and an attendant told me my uncle was committed. I knew he was a voluntary patient and I was surprised as I knew none of his relatives knew anything about it.

"I inquired from Dr. Clare (Homewood superintendent) whether Angus was committed, and Dr. Clare said he did not think it was any of my business. I told him as I was his (McIntosh) nephew I thought I should know."

Duckett told of hearing of an effort in Montreal to have his uncle interdicted. About a week later he spoke to Dr. Clare, who told him he had nothing to worry about and that his uncle would be out in a "couple of months."

Dr. Clare told him he had not testified in the Montreal hearing. Later he confronted Dr. Clare with evidence the sanitarium superintendent had testified at Montreal.

"You Won't Have a Nickel."

Duckett told of efforts to free his uncle during 1934. He quoted Mrs. McIntosh as saying to her husband in 1934: "Well, my boy, I've got you where I want you. Before I'm through with you, you will be over in the place where they keep the bad patients. You won't have a nickel and you will be scrubbing floors too."

In 1935, when McIntosh was ready to leave Homewood, Duckett said he warned his uncle to find out conditions of his release. He quoted Dr. Clare as saying: "Mrs. McIntosh put him in here and she can take him out. It's none of your business."

Dr. Clare refused to tell conditions of his uncle's release, Duckett testified.

NO QUINT PROBE

Oliva Dionne's request for judicial investigation of their guardianship, Henri St. Jacques, Dionne counsel, said here today.

The Ottawa lawyer said that through the request to Attorney General Conant of Ontario, Mr. Dionne hoped to regain custody of his children and control their education, leaving their guardians with authority over finances.

Reinstatement of Miss Jacqueline Noel, nurse, and Miss Clare Tremblay, teacher, recently dismissed from the Dafoe nursery and a curb on "extravagance" in the management of the quint business affairs also will be sought, St. Jacques said.

Request for a probe by a judge was made public by Mr. St. Jacquis last night. A letter was sent to Mr. Conant some time ago but no reply was received. In the meantime Mr. St. Jacques thought it would not be "courteous" to make the letter public.

He said that more than a month ago Mr. Dionne sought the judicial investigation and Mr. Conant asked Percy D. Wilson, official guardian of minor children and a quint guardian, to investigate. Mr. Wilson had visited North Bay and conferred with Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe and Judge J. A. Valin, guardians, as well as Mr. Dionne and others concerned. Nothing had come of the probe, Mr. St. Jacques said.

He added that Mr. Dionne had understood the investigation was to be a judicial one and when it developed into a "friendly visit" by Mr. Wilson he retained Mr. St. Jacques to make formal application.

Mr. St. Jacques said Mr. Dionne considered Miss Tremblay and Miss Noel as competent and wished to have them reinstated in their jobs.

Reason For Dismissals

He charged that Miss Tremblay was dismissed by Dr. W. E. Blatz, Toronto child psychologist, because she had not carried out the "spirit" of instructions to speak English to the quints at their noon meal. Dr. Blatz formerly directed the quints' education.

Mr. St. Jacques said Miss Noel had been dismissed when she reported Miss Tremblay's dismissal to Mr. Dionne.

The probe requested by Mr. Dionne would cover the manner in which Dr. Dafoe has supervised the children's health and education and inquiry into the conduct of their business affairs.

Mr. St. Jacques said the request is being backed by L'Association Canadienne-Francaise D'Education D'Ontario, an organization formed to protect the educational rights of French-Canadians in Ontario.

bangs disease was causing "enormous losses."

15 Counties T.B.-Free.

Fifteen counties and four districts now are free of tuberculosis, he said. They were: Carleton, Prescott, Russell, Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville, Leeds, Prince Edward, Northumberland Durham, Ontario, York, Peel, Halton, Manitoulin Island, Kenora, Thunder Bay and Timiskaming.

Counties where farmers had requested cattle tests were: Lanark, Peterborough, Victoria, Simcoe, Grey, Lincoln and Rainy River. Lennox and Addington had fyled a petition for all territory "south of Highway No. 7, which takes in most of the cattle district," said the minister.

Counties where work now is "actively progressing" included Oxford, Hastings, Wentworth, Welland, Haldimand, Norfolk, Elgin, Middlesex, Brant, Waterloo, Dufferin, Bruce and Essex. Work soon will get under way in Frontenac and Perth, while there has been little activity in Wellington, Huron, Lambton, Kent and Renfrew.

High Toll from Abortion

"So far, we have not had any organized campaign for the elimination of Bangs disease, otherwise known as contagious abortion," Mr. Dewan continued. "This disease is the cause of enormous losses to farmers and I sometimes feel more perturbed about its control than the control of bovine tuberculosis."

Animal nutrition was one of the Department's "recent problems." A new department to study the problem was being established at the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph. "Continued cropping of the soil has left it deficient in certain necessary food elements," he said and this will be studied by the new nutrition department.

Fruit and vegetables now are in the class of "big business," said the minister. New varieties are being tested but new diseases "are creeping in as well." To aid fruit growers, the Department is sending trained men throughout the various fruit-growing districts in the province.

BESIEGED 2 WEEKS GARRISON OF JAPS ESCAPES CHINESE

SHANGHAI, April 22 (AP)—The Japanese garrison of 5,000, under siege for two weeks and recently reported facing starvation in the walled town of Yihsien, 24 miles northwest of Taierhchwang, today broke through Chinese lines, the Chinese high command admitted, and joined columns advancing from Lini.

The United States Japanese force then pointed an offensive southward toward Taierhchwang, hoping to retake that battle shaken town and avenge their stinging defeat there. The invading forces captured Lini Wednesday after bitter fighting.

Meanwhile, it became evident that Japan is sacrificing much of the Hopeh province area she won early in the war to throw more troops into the central China front.

The greatest concentration of Chinese forces since fighting started July 7, 1937, and continuing guerilla raids against Japanese outposts have created for the Japanese a critical situation.

The fighting is centred in southeastern Shantung, and along the Peiping-Hankow and Peiping-Suiyuan railways.

Forced to muster every available man since the sharp defeat at Taierhchwang, first major loss in modern Japanese military history, the high command was said today to be withdrawing garrisons from Hopeh, between the two railways.

Chinese Reds already have set up a Soviet state in the area with an army of several hundred thousand troops. It now seems likely all centre Hopeh soon may be under their domination.

the broken material. Tunnels had to be drilled through the rock, one of the hardest formations to be found, so that the explosive could be spread over a wide area.

The eighteen tons of dynamite were placed in charges, double wired with rubber insulated wire and back-filled with fine rock dust.

748 Feet of Tunneling.

The tunneling was 748 feet long, comprising a main tunnel and a number of offshoots. The main tunnel was 56 feet in length with drifts varying from 73 to 115 feet. It was four and a half feet in height by three and a half feet in width—or wheelbarrow size. It ran an average of seventy-five feet through solid trap-rock of extreme hardness and irregular surface.

When all had been prepared, the switch placed some 300 yards from the scene of the blast, and the opening to the tunnnel covered, Superintendent Harry Scott announced he was ready. Company officials from head offices arrived shortly before 11.30 o'clock and the path of the falling rock was cleared. A whistle sounded and exactly half an hour afterwards, at 12.07 noon, Clifford Scott pulled the switch that ended five months of hard work.

It was the tenth giant blast in the Havelock quarry, eight of which have been engineered by Superintendent Harry Scott. The biggest blast on record at the quarry was fired on April 8, 1931, when 39,354 pounds of high explosive were shot, resulting in a break of over 125,000 tons of rock.

Not Largest Blast.

While this year's explosion was not the largest in history by any means, it was in the same proportion as most. In 1929 two blasts were set off, one with 405 feet of tunnelling, the other with a smaller one with 175 feet. In 1930 two shots were combined with a total of 1,062 feet. In 1931 847 feet were tunnelled. Not until 1934 was another shot fired, and 707 feet were dug. In 1937, next time a shot was fired, there was 846 feet of tunnelling.

A rapidly increasing demand for the grade of rock produced at the Havelock quarry during recent years, has necessitated blasting two years in a row. The rock is of extreme hardness and durability and has proved invaluable in several forms of construction. It is most commonly used in road surfacing, concrete work, and in making floor materials. Street and road surfacing in Toronto and district takes about 80 per cent. of the quarry output.

The rock that was broken to-day will be loaded into four-yard cars by a steam shovel, dumped into a jaw crusher, which will reduce it to eight-inch sizes. From there the product will pass over various vibrating and scalping screens and through other crushers until the finished product is placed either in storage bins or on the rock pile.

The Havelock quarry experienced one of the most successful seasons in its entire history last year. The supply of rock from 1937's gigantic blast was exhausted in less than a full year. This is the first occasion since 1931 that market conditions have made it necessary to have blasts two years in succession.

FREE FROM SCIATICA FOR 35 YEARS

In Perfect Health at 73 Thanks to Kruschen

Thirty-five years ago this septuagenarian was helpless with sciatica. Then he heard of Kruschen. Since that day, he has enjoyed perfect health. Here is his remarkable story:—

"Thirty-five years ago, I had a severe attack of sciatica, and could scarcely move for about six weeks. Then I started taking Kruschen—about half-a-teaspoonful every morning in hot water. In a few weeks, I got rid of the awful pain in my hips. I have never had to consult a doctor since, and am still in perfect health at 73 years of age, which I can only attribute to taking Kruschen Salts every morning". — T. A.

Most of people grow old long before their time because they neglect one vital need of health—the need of internal cleanliness. Eventually, they start the healthy Kruschen habit. Then, probably for the first time in their lives, they start getting rid every day, of all waste matter from the system. The result is renewed health and vigour. Ailments due to clogged systems vanish, youth returns, and life becomes really worth living. Advt.

MORE ARE KILLED IN THEIR HOMES THAN ON HIGHWAY

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22—(CP)—Industry is showing the way to accident prevention, but a way must be found to stop the "increasing slaughter" caused by accident, according to Louis Blake Duff on Wedland, Ont.

Addressing the annual banquet of the 21st convention of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations here last night, Mr. Duff said man now is safer amid speeding factory wheels than he is in his home or on the highway. The automobile caused 24 per cent of all accidental deaths, he said, industry 17 per cent, and home accidents 35 per cent.

But from Dr. J. S. Thomas, president Chrysler Institute of Engineering, delegates at the two-day meeting which ends to-day heard a defence of motor cars. On a mileage-covered basis, cars "don't kill as many persons as the horse did," he said. "In 1912 in the United States, 4,000 people were killed by runaway horses. In those days people never went anywhere. Now they go everywhere."

The convention, attended by more than 1,500 delegates from many cities and towns in Ontario, closes with a luncheon to-day, at which W. J. Cameron of the Ford Motor Company, Detroit, and E. O. Morgan of the Canadian National Carbon Company, Limited, will be among the speakers.

A. H. Harvey, president of Lever Brothers, Toronto, was elected president of the Associations, succeeding A. G. Wright, Hamilton. R. B. Morley, Toronto, was continued as general manager.

DIONNE WANTS QUINTS' AFFAIRS INVESTIGATED

Hires Lawyer to Learn If Fortune Dissipated

OTTAWA, April 22 (CP).—Oliva Dionne, the Callander farmer who has fought for almost four years to have his quintuplet daughters returned to him, is seeking judicial investigation of the way their lives are being managed by their guardians.

Acting through Henri St. Jacques, Ottawa, lawyer, Mr. Dionne has requested a probe by a judge into the manner in which Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe has supervised the children's health and education and inquiry into the conduct of the quints' business affairs.

Mr. Dionne's move presents the possibility the amazing story of their birth, their fight for life and their story-book march toward a $1,000,000 fortune will be told for the first time in a law court.

Mr. St. Jacques announced here last night that a request for the judicial investigation was forwarded several days ago to Attorney General Conant of Ontario. Mr. Conant could not be reached for comment last night and other officials and Dr. Dafoe refused it.

Mr. St. Jacques said he had been retained by Mr. Dionne in a conference at Callander two weeks ago. He had received no reply from the Attorney General and supposed "the government does not know what to do." He declined to make public the text of his letter to Mr. Conant.

Fortune Being Squandered?

The Ottawa lawyer indicated the purpose of the request was to de-

"Flying Fortress" is available for export. But the Army's faster, more lethal super-fortress is not. Under secret development are sub-stratosphere bombers capable of flying to Europe and back non-stop. To be launched by catapult, they will be powered by six engines.

Available for export are single-engine combat planes with speeds of some 300-miles-an-hour. Not for export is a combat plane with a top speed of 365 m.p.h. and an even faster counterpart which the Army has been testing for six weeks.

This latest of the Army's pursuit planes is said to be capable of more than 400 m.p.h.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, April 22—(CP). — Despite transient rallies from two-cent bottom levels Winnipeg wheat futures failed to make much recovery to-day and closed 1¾ to ⅞ cent lower, May $1.23⅛, July $1.12⅝, October, 89¾ to ⅞ cents.

Tired longs, discouraged by poor demand for top-grade Canadian wheat yesterday and a five-cent setback in the premium of No. 1 Northern to nine cents, sold in small volume to-day to send prices steadily lower until the finial hour.

Then minor export purchases, estimated at 100,000 bushels of both old crop and new crop wheat, supplied buying power to lift prices.

Plague Of News Censorship Spreading To America

Self - Government On Trial, Only Free Press Can Uphold It Says Editor

WASHINGTON, April 22 (AP). — Walfred H. Kirchhofer, president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, asserted today that "the black plague" of newspaper censorship is spreading to North America.

Kirchhofer, managing editor of the Buffalo Evening News, opened the society's annual convention by declaring it is the duty of the free press "to defend and interpret free institutions."

"Today self-government is on trial," he said. "An independent press can uphold it.

"History shows that even the best of the politicians, job-seekers and office-holding bureaucracy tend to become self-serving. If they aren't thinking of re-election or reappointment, they are thinking of their place in the sun.

"It is the duty of the newspaper press to warn against such self-aggrandizement. To do this requires a high degree of competence, intelligence and experience in our editors and reporters.

"We should indeed be at the end of our rope if the American press were so subservient to government that it, in its entirety, reflected only the views of the government rather than reported and interpreted its actions objectively.

Job of the Press.

"Our job is not to keep America, in these changing times, in the shackles of the status quo, but to make sure that, through methods of discussion and education which are basic features of the newspaper function, the virtues and defects of proposed alterations in our political, social and economic system are understood before we take steps which may lead to change but not necessarily to progress or reform."

Kirchhofer said it is an anomaly "that at a time of greater competition in news dissemination than ever before, the circulation of American newspapers is at an all-time high and that increasing criticism is being directed at these self-same newspapers."

"It doesn't make sense," he added, "unless you accept the thesis that the masses are looking to these newspapers for competent, honest and courageous leadership. In other lands dictators who establish propaganda bureaus think it is enough if they know. Here the people must know and understand.

"It is our responsibility not only to be concerned about what we print but about presenting it so there will be more certainty that it is read and understand."

LAST 'FIFTY-EIGHTER' DIES

GRAND FORKS, B.C., April 22 —(CP).—James Copeland, last survivor of the 'fifty-eighters" — the men who came to what is now British Columbia seeking gold 80 years ago—died in hospital here yesterday, aged 99. He was the oldest continuous resident of the province.

He witnessed the christening of British Columbia at Fort Langley and was present at Fort Yale when the first white child, Fraser York, was christened there.

No Monkey-Business For Toronto Buyers

Toronto, April 22 (CP)

THANK YOU, but Toronto's Union Stock Yards will have no monkey-business.

A livestock man in Calcutta wrote the yards asking if they would care to handle a shipment of monkeys—to sell at $1.30 each. Sahib Ellery, the exporter, mentioned he also could supply anything from a tiger cub to a baby elephant.

No thanks, replied the stock yards.

EASTER MESSAGE ROSENEATH W.A.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, April 22. — An Easter Service of worship, "Christ Lives" was the special feature at the regular meeting of the United Church W. A. The meeting was held on Wednesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. T. Carew.

Items of busines stransacted were: On motion it was decided to buy jardineres for the church, the flower committee to attend to this matter. After a discussion regarding raising of funds, the executive were named on a committee to arrange for some form of entertainment, and advertise the same. It was suggested that the society provide annual flowers for the perennial border on the church grounds, and Mrs. T. Carew and Mrs. E. Braithwaite offered to donate plants for this purpose. Their offer was gratefully accepted.

A number of visitors were present to whom the president extended a welcome and an invitation to enroll as members. Five members were enrolled.

Mrs. E. Sandercock offered her home for the May meeting. Mrs. Alfred Braithwaite and Mrs. W. Robins form a program committee, and the theme of the devotional period will be "Mother." Mrs. E. Braithwaite program convenor, contributed a fine paper, entitled, "A Woman's duty to herself." She presided during this period, calling on Mrs. L. Tucker who read an article illustrating the influence of small things. A touch of the season was found in an egg-guessing contest conducted by Mrs. C. Grigg. The prize was won by Mrs. M. Radley. After the closing exercises the hostess assisted by her daughters Eileen and Jean served afternoon tea. The president Mrs. A. Nill was in the chair.

Miss Eileen Carew of Cobourg spent Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Carew.

Going To League

A vital part of the recently concluded Anglo-Italian agreement, the recognition of Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, may be blocked by Haili Sellassie, former emperor of Ethiopia. Sellassie has notified the League of Nations that he intends to send a delegation to the league council meeting on May 9, presumably to block the recognition of the conquest of his country. The vote of the league must be unanimous before Italy's conquest can be recognized.

ARCTIC HARDSHIPS TOLD AT MILLBROOK

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 22.—Mrs. C. M. Westmacott entertained the W. A. of St. Thomas church for its Easter meeting, Mrs. J. W. Hilton reading the lesson and the president leading in the prayers.

Mrs. T. A. Campbell reported interest and study on the part of the senior girls' group, which has now a membership of fourteen, as steadily increasing information, and bringing good attendance at each regular gathering. For the junior girls' the leader, Miss Bella McCorry, reported thirteen on the roll, and between tree and four dollars raised by a sale of homemade candy on Easter Saturday.

Mrs. Campbell covered the last two chapters of the study book, dealing with "The Call to Conflict," and "The Word in the World," and Mrs. Westmacott read a letter from a nurse in the Arctic.

The program with the Doxology, and Mrs. Hilton the supper hostess, served sandwiches and coffee during the social hour. For the May meeting, which will be the last until September, the supper hostess will be Mrs. L. M. Bonneville, and the meeting, as usual, will be at the home of the president, Mrs. C. M. Westmacott. It is not planned to have a delegate at the annual meeting the last week in April, in Toronto, but to rely on the branch representative for the report of the sessions.

EX-MARMORA GIRL HONORED IN WEST

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, April 22.—The following news item reprinted from the Minnedosa Tribune of April 7 will be of interest to old residents of Marmora:

"Mrs. A. G. Beddome, pioneer resident of the Hazelwood district, celebrated her ninetieth birthday at her home southeast of town, Sunday. Enjoying perfect health, Mrs. Beddome was guest of honor at a birthday party during the day and was showered with best wishes and congratulations from children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren and from a host of friends who called during the day. Weather and road conditions prevented a number of members of the family from attending the celebration, and a reunion of relatives and friends is planned later in the summer. Present Sunday were four generations of the Beddome family, including Mrs. A. G. Beddome, her son, B. Beddome of Minnedosa; a grandson, L. W. Beddome, and a great-grandchild, Miss Muriel Beddome of Minnedosa.

"Mrs. Beddome was born in Marmora, Ontario, in 1848, and was married to Arthur George Beddome in 1865. They moved to Winnipeg in 1879, and came to this district in 1881, before the town of Minnedosa was founded, and when the only means of transportation west of Winnipeg was by horse or ox cart.

"Shortly after, Mr and Mrs. Beddome settled at the present home in the Hazelwood district. A family of nine sons and three daughters were raised there amid all the difficulties and hardships faced by the earliest pioneers. Six sons, B. Beddome of Minnedosa, Arthur and Sam of Hazelwood, N. P. Beddome of Winnipeg, George of Kamsack, and Ernest of Gary, Indiana, and two daughters, Mrs. D. Orr of Port Arthur and Mrs. J. Thompson of Hazelwood, are living."

SIDNEY BARN BURNS

BELLEVILLE, Ont., April 22 (C P.). — Farm buildings including a large barn and commodious house owned by Walter Ketcheson, Sixth Concession, Sidney, three miles from Frankford, were destroyed by fire early to-day. At the time there was no one living on the property and the fire is of undetermined origin. The loss is $5,000, partially covered.

It Makes Poor Reading

News from the car-making district of Michigan is not so good. At this season of the year the workers ought to be busy. It should be the time when they would be catching up a little against a slack season which is certain to come later. But we read of strikes in progress and strike votes being taken. Like this:

"Approximately 200 in two departments of the Plymouth division of the Chrysler Corporation remained away from work...Union employees of the Bohn Aluminum and Brass Corporation, three Detroit plants of which have been closed by strikes are planning to extend the strike to five other factories of the same firm here...At Flint where employees of Fisher Body plant No. 1 and the Buick Motor Co. prepared to return to work, union members in Buick and Chevrolet plants started balloting on a strike call."

Then there was what is termed a "dues strike" in Flint. It appears there are a good many members of the United Automobile Workers who have not been paying their dues, so the union formed a picket line and sought to prevent workers entering the plants unless they could show that their dues had been paid. In that way all the workers lost three days' work until the strike was called off. Such a strike should never have been called and should never have been sanctioned. The fact that members of the union do not pay their dues is something for the union itself to settle, and there is no justification for making out of such an issue a condition which would cause stoppage of work in the plant. Michigan might well have hoped that with all its strikes and negotiations and settlements of last year that it had secured a closed season against strikes. That is why the news from that section makes poor reading.

Joseph And His Father

Joseph Paul DiMaggio is 23 years of age and the son of an Italian commercial fisherman in San Francisco. Joseph is in a better line of business than his father as far as making money is concerned. He has signed on again with the New York Yankees at $25,000. Last year he was paid $15,000 and the year before $8,000. Young Joseph was gunning for $40,000 this year but he didn't get it. But he will get more than $25,000. He has in his short ball career taken $12,000 additional from world series games. Then he has made money from radio and moving pictures and magazine stories to which his name is attached. Likewise he endorses commercial articles about which he may know much, little or nothing at all. In all it is claimed his extra money runs between $75,000 and $100,000.

DiMaggio Sr., working out of San Francisco as a commercial fisherman, would not find the going as comfortable as son Joseph, he of 23 years. We have no figures to prove it, but we are quite certain of the fact. Making $100,000 is beyond the expectation of the great majority of men during a life time of hard work. A man earning $2,000 a year would have to keep working for 50 years to take in that much. DiMaggio Sr. catches fish, and the fish would be good to eat; they would be classed as necessary things. But Joseph Jr., plays baseball, and a hungry person could watch a baseball game and remain hungry. Possibly those who catalogue vocations would say that Joseph Jr. is employed in a non-productive calling, but Joseph Jr. at 23 has already discovered that the world places its seal of financial approval on this non-productive occupation of his. He has found it much better than following in the foosteps of father who toils in the deep sea catching fishes.

Our Young People

The educationists who have gathered in Toronto for the O.E.A. convention have been talking about the young people who attend schools. Dr. Lloyd McHaffie of Ottawa says the state of nutrition in the child population is not worrying him much. He admits times have been tough in some families and social workers are continually coming to the front with new cases of hardship, but he contends "Our 'teen-age boy and girl is taller, healthier and heavier than ever before, and our high schools and universities are full of six-footers." The Examiner found no trouble at all in locating a number of six-footers in the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School; our camera man lined up so many of them that he was short of film before completing his assignment.

Then Miss Gordon Waugh, principal of St. Clements School, told a gathering of Home and School Associations not to worry too much because young people were doing things differently. She was not much alarmed because the girls did not wear as much clothing as was formerly the accepted standard, nor was she alarmed by what is referred to as petting. Taking a chapter from her own experience Miss Waugh related:

"When I was young it was considered perfectly appalling to go for a buggy ride with a boy and let him kiss you, but I don't think we were any better off than they are now."

The lady principal stopped right short there according to the printed report. She didn't say whether she insisted on hopping out of the buggy and walking home, or whether she looked forward with expectation to the next buggy ride.

An Individual Matter

Dairy farmers are getting ready for the opening of the cheese factories in this district. Experienced men have been appointed in the districts to take over the job of milk testing, usually at the factories, to enable the dairy instructor, W. J. Moore in this area, to devote more time to visiting dairy farms as the source of milk supply.

The Department is making a greater effort to raise the quality of milk and cheese. In all this work shouldn't the individual farmer realize that he is in competition with some dairy farmer in Denmark, and another in New Zealand, all trying to get British cheese business?

The quality of the cheese will not be any better than the quality of the milk used to make it. It may seem a long stretch and a good many miles for the individual farmer to realize that he is actually in direct competition with farmers living in far-off lands which he has never seen. But it is a fact. The individual farmer has a great deal to do with determining the quality of Canadian cheese which is going on the British market.

A Distressed Father

It is several weeks since a son of Murray Levine of New York disappeared, and since then Levine has been living through days and nights when despair has been a greater factor than hope. One need not know the Lawyer Levine to appreciate what he has been through.

He offered a reward of $30,000 if his son were returned to him. He offered to pay the money, take no action and ask no questions. Following that he has found himself dealing with men who know nothing whatever about the location or fate of the boy. They professed to have information, but their desire was to get their hands on the $30,000 or any part of it. Three of these kind of people were finally arrested and they admitted they knew nothing which could aid in returning the boy. They were simply trying to make some money out of the agony of the father.

The last message from Murray Levine is that he will pay a reward of $5,000 for the return of his son's body. He has given up hope of having the lad returned alive, and probably desires what degree of cold comfort he can extract from giving to his own flesh and blood decent burial. Perhaps the world is getting better as some people claim. We believe though that Murray Levine might think otherwise.

An Unusual Visitor

Henry Ford is going to Washington to have a chat with President Roosevelt. Undoubtedly they will discuss business conditions, and Mr. Ford if given opportunity will advance his favorite theory that cultivation of the land is the salvation of the nation.

In speaking of the approaching visit Mr. Ford made one remark worth repeating. Just this: "I want to give the President a chance to look at somebody who doesn't want anything."

We believe there is a deal of truth and substance in that few-worded remark. People who want something call on presidents if they can get through to them; they call on members of all manner of governments; they call on prime ministers and cabinet ministers. If they are experts they go singly because they know the way; if they are amateurs they organize large deputations and depend on the weight of numerical strength to state the case for them.

That is what gives point and charm to Henry Ford's remark that he will give the President a chance to look at somebody who doesn't want anything. The President will probably have a good time out of such a visit.

Selecting A Vocation

All angles of education have been discussed in Toronto this week at the annual meeting of the Ontario Educational Association. What comes of all that is said we do not know; the Association has no standing as far as legislation is concerned; it can recommend but has no power to enforce its recommendations.

There was something said about making a better selection of boys who are intending to enter industrial life, and one cannot argue against that because the view is reasonable. The trouble comes in making such a desire or theory workable. It would be quite possible to select a dozen boys in a secondary school who might express the wish to become plumbers. They might be given training which would start them in that direction, and such training might also indicate that the boys were in a line for which they were suited. But when their schooling ends the trouble it to find places which will be ready to accept the services of these boys. They have been properly trained in a primary knowledge of the business; they like it and wish to continue, but the chances are they may have to turn to something where they can find a chance to go to work and for which their training does not essentially fit them.

That has happened a good many times particularly in the last seven or eight years, but it is no adequate reason for not keeping on with the effort of trying to attach young men to lines of work for which it has been shown they are fitted. When we experience a period of industrial slackness it has been found that selection of vocations is at a lower ebb than at any other time. The youth out of school and faced with the necessity of going to work is not in a position to exercise selection. The stubborn fact that he must find something to do as soon as possible outweighs his desire to follow some line he has had in mind and for which he may have been partially prepared. When all the educationists gather in Toronto we might expect some light on that essential point, but so far we have not seen the solution suggested.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Car drivers might note: A motorcycle policeman may not be near, but a hospital usually is.

Quebec magistrate has issued a warning that he promises to be severe with road hogs. Most people will hope that in that regard he will go the whole hog.

A news heading says that all church sextons are not overworked and that of course justifies the inference that the rest of them are.

Fishing columns will soon begin to appear in the newspapers but just now it is the fish and game overseers who are chiefly concerned about "Where To Get Them."

Woman teacher says children should be taught to think for themselves. That of course is all right so long as they think the same as their parents do.

With summer not far away the St. Thomas Times-Journal mentions that a temperature of 158 degrees was registered the other day on the Sahara desert.

We learn that some parts of United States have a custom whereby dentists get paid in produce from the farms. A farmer trades the produce of an acre for the removal of another acher.

Oshawa hockey fan who stole a fire truck got a suspended sentence on the ground that he was suffering from temporary insanity. It is to be imagined that the last game with St. Boniface effected a permanent cure.

The president of the United States Rubber Company receives a salary of $150,000 a year and when he retires will get a pension of $75,000 a year. There is one man for whom a minimum wage law has no interest.

The Olympic games scheduled for Japan in 1940 may be postponed if the war in China is still going on. By then however the Chinese hope they will be able to cause the Japanese to set up new records for the backward jump.

Oshawa welcomed its beaten junior hockey team with a reception worthy of winners. The Motor City folk are to be congratulated upon their recognition of the fact that how you play the game is as important as winning.

Franco says the war in Spain is already won and he will now show no mercy to the leaders. That claim is probably correct enough as the man has yet to demonstrate even a remote connection with mercy.

It has been found necessary to advance the date of the Niagara Blossom Week show to May 6. Only one thing is missing, and that is the annual notice that there will be a shortage of peaches on account of so many trees having been killed during the winter.

Armed robbers took $4,000 from a Toronto bank, and about the same time a policeman in Orillia grabbed two men in a car. They had a loaded revolver, dynamite, fuse coils, etc. Apparently we have not snuffed out our travelling arsenals yet.

SMART?

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Two bright men put gas in their tank, and drove away to rob a bank, they knew it could be done; they knew just what the thing might pay, they'd studied how to drive away, they also took a gun.

¶ They would retire on what they got, and loaf when summer days got hot, they dreaded not being old; they'd lead a simple life of ease, and do about just what they'd please, go south when it got cold.

¶ They had to shoot the banker down, they made a rumpus in the town, it was a wicked day; they drove off just as they'd mapped, and knew they hadn't yet been trapped, they made a get-away.

¶ They got a long way from the spot, they knew the trail was never hot, they had great wads of cash; and neither one spent time in toil, and so they had to spend their spoil, to buy them prunes and hash.

¶ The bills they spent were rather big, enough to buy a fatted pig, it took a lot of change; the man down at the corner store, had never seen the like before, he thought it rather strange.

¶ The grocer told the village cop, and all at once the case got hot, the robbers had no start; he took them to the village jail, and held them there refusing bail—two men who were so smart

China May Save Our Democracy

(Family Herald and Weekly Star)

NO WONDER HITLER thought that the proposed Schuschnigg plebiscite an Austrian independence would have been unfair. Hitler himself being the judge, it would have gone heavily against even the partial subjection of the proud remnant of the old Austrian Empire to the German Reich. It was because Hitler was frankly fearful of this result that he demanded its withdrawal and then sent his soldiers into Vienna to make sure that he was obeyed. Now he holds a perfectly "fair" plebiscite of his own; and Austria votes even more strongly in favour of its own death than Germany votes for its admission to the Reich.

It is quite probable that Schuschnigg and his Government would have been able to reverse these figures, especially if they had followed the Hitler policy and denied ballots to Nazis. Hitler denied them to Jews. What earthly satisfaction these European rulers can take out of such farcial elections as these, it is impossible to imagine in this free atmosphere. They only give the world a dramatic exhibition of the terrorizing power of a dictatorial government. Nearly eleven thousand Austrians did go to the polls and vote "No". It will be interesting to see what happens to them.

Meanwhile across the border in democratic France the emancipated politicians of that land of freedom are using their liberty to present to the world an unparalleled example of impotence. The people of France at their last elections voted definitely for a Popular Front Government. But what they have got today could not by any stretch of the imagination be called a Popular Front Government. Ex-Premier Blum says that he resigned to avoid creating a "revolutionary situation." He was undoubtedly right in not risking that.

It seems to be the fate of democracies to "muddle through." They have a better time doing it than the dictatorships can possibly have while being bayonetted through. But, of course, the important question is:—"Will they get through?" There must come a point at which constitutional incompetence may fall so low that constitutional competence will be able to deliver a death-blow.

The only bright spot on the horizon seems to rest over China. If the Chinese reports from Hankow are even half true, then it looks as if Japan might find the task before her so heavy that she will break under the strain. From the Japanese point of view, it is not now a situation in which she can take a half-loaf and be satisfied. If the Chinese millions gather sufficient self-confidence and obtain an adequate armament to stop the Japanese in their tracks, they will—with unlimited man-power behind them and deep hatred in their hearts—be almost certain to enhance that force until they can drive the island invaders out of their country. A decisive defeat on the Yellow River might ultimately lose the Japanese even Manchuria.

The police revolt in Tsinan, the capital of Shantung, is a most significant incident. The Japanese occupied Tsinan and pushed far beyond it. They were so secure in their possession of this pivotal city that they organized a puppet government and enlisted a local Chinese police force to defend it. Doubtless the Chinese seemed docile enough, as they have in Manchoukuo. But at the very rumour of a great Chinese victory nearby, this police force turned its guns on its Japanese masters. It was Chinese at heart, and seems to have been so hungry for a chance to fight for its country that it struck before conditions were quite ripe. A great Chinese war lord disappointed the Japanese in the same way just the other day.

It is entirely possible that Japan has worked the miracle of making China a nation. Nothing will do this quicker than a brutal attack with humiliating results by a foreign army. History records case after case. Perhaps it can now record another. But what Japan has to think of is that a Chinese nation, armed and angered against a comparatively little and always despised people, will not stop at brushing off the mosquito. It will want to pour lethal oil on the swamps where the mosquitoes breed.

THE SOARING COST.

(Financial Post)

THE COST OF Provincial Government in Canda in 1936 (less federal subsidies) was $212 millions, or $19.22 per capita. The figure is from a new study by the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada.

Though this was slightly lower than the peak figure of the previous year due to a drop in relief costs, it was 85% greater than the corresponding provincial outgo of $114 millions, or $12 per capita in 1926. Back in 1922 the amount was $90 millions. In 1913 it was $40 millions.

How can we appraise this staggering growth in the cost of this branch of government? A few figures of changes which have occurred in other directions in the past ten years may be cited.

While provincial expenditures were soaring 85%, our population rose only 17%; our national income dropped 20%.

While provincial bonded debts rose 40% and expenditure on debt charges soared 96%, our national wealth remained unchanged and immigration shrank 90%.

While public welfare costs (as shown in provincial accounts) rose 245%, manufacturing output rose only 11% and the dollar value of our trade dropped 37%.

These and similar figures are the simple yardsticks against which Canada must measure her growing expenditures in the field of public finance.

No country can continue indefinitely to allow public expenditures to run so far in advance of material progress and growth as has Canada in the past decade.

MARRIED WOMEN WORKERS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: May I say a few words about married women working in some of the factories in the city. In some of the factories when a girl gets married, she has to quit and make way for single girls, but in a few of the factories married women are still working steady. It's all right for a married woman to work if her husband is sick or if her husband is dead. More credit for her going out and working to support her family, but in some cases husband and wives are working steady all the time and in one particular factory husband and wives are working together year in and year out and in slack periods the single girls are laid off and the married woman takes their places until it gets busy again.

It doesn't seem fair because a single girl needs the money worse, and it doesn't seem fair when so many single girls are out of work and are walking the streets day after day looking for work. It's pretty discouraging. There should be a set law—no married woman should work when her husband is working, because it's only keeping a single girl out of work, and on the other hand a married woman can't look after a home right and work outside at the same time.

FAIR-PLAY.

Peterborough, April 21.

CANADIAN YOUTH

Editor Examiner:

Sir: We think of the growth and advancement Canada has made since the early pioneers came to this country. They brought with them their determination to make this new land a land of possibilities, and they made their contribution toward its commercial life, and also to its religious life.

The question would arise—will our young men and our young women of today do their part in promoting a still greater Canada? Canada today has a splendid youth but we are living under an entirely different environment. The changing conditions we are passing through are a greater challenge to our youth than ever. They need to be inspired with this one outstanding thought that victory is as possible as defeat. The captivating influences of our social life is dominating the lives of many of our young men and young women. The dance halls, the beverage rooms, the card parties, these things fail to produce any strength of character or elevation of thought in our youth, but is making of them weaklings and easy victims to further downward influences.

Canada wants a strong youth with high ideals of life, youth that will catch the vision of the dignity of human life and will take pride in embracing every opportunity that will contribute to the elevation and promotion of a still greater Canada.

As the future of Canada lies in its youth. Let us hope when they come to the realization of their power and influence they will honestly and courageously take their place in contributing to still higher Canadian idealism.

REALIZING IT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The upheaval in the religious world gives evidence of producing beneficial results. Many of our finest people have been persuaded that the technical teachings of religion are barren and arid. They fell back upon good works and the kindly treatment of their fellowman. This however involved neglect of the supernatural and now that our greatest scientific minds are regarding "the significance" of creation as well as the operation of it with the closest attention the old idea that there is no more in life than an animal existence is fading away and the impossibility of believing that we who know we have a spiritual nature are surrounded by a blank wall, is coming to the fore.

Mussolini Prefers Britain

(By Anne O'Hara McCormick, in New York Times)

SHORTLY BEFORE the Ethiopian War started, Premier Mussolini and Sir Eric Drummond, now the Earl of Perth, British Ambassador to Italy, had a long and grave conversation one sultry evening in the Palazzo Venezia. The diplomatic atmosphere was as heavy as the Roman weather, and the two men spoke bluntly, one to the other, about the situation in East Africa and its consequences.

At the end of the talk Mussolini told the British Ambassador that he was quite aware that their two countries were entering a period of strained and difficult relations. "But it will pass," he said. "In three years at the most, I predict that we shall be better friends than ever."

That was in the Autumn of 1935. In December of the same year, when the war was on and Great Britain had led in the imposition of sanctions on Italy, Mussolini repeated his prediction in an interview with this correspondent. Although it was one of his darker moments, when the world was against him and news from the front was not encouraging, he talked chiefly about Britain.

"We have to agree," he kept saying. "It is a geographical, historical and political necessity for us both. Eventually you will see that we will agree—and on a different basis from that of the past. . . ."

Both countries have a vital interest in keeping the new agreement. Italy must keep on terms with Germany, if only to keep the Germans out of the Mediterranean, but she recognizes that to do that she must also reinforce Britain in the sea wherein she aims to be an equal partner, not a third partner. The British, on their side, cannot fight Italy in the Mediterranean, Germany at the Channel ports, Japan in the China Sea and the Arabs on the route to India.

Today, and under all the rivalry of the old and the young empires this is the deeply significant reality: Britain sees advantages in a strong Italy if Italy is a partner, and Italy vastly prefers a strong Britain to a strong Germany splashing about in "Our Sea."

The effects of this shift toward the old balance may be decisive in the developments of the next few years. The swift action of France to end the feud with Italy, if possible before the Hitler visit to Rome, shows how the new wind blows.

In Italy itself the turn will be like a reprieve. The unpopularity of the German alliance among rank-and-file Italians almost amounts to a phobia. The cheers outside the Chigi Palace for the British Ambassador on Saturday were real cheers.

A Bit of Nonsense

TRUE TO FORM

During a very stormy Channel crossing a judge, staggering below, ran into an obviously seasick passenger whom he recognized as a barrister who practiced before him.

"Can I do anything for you?" he enquired solicitously.

"Yes, your Lordship" gasped the sufferer. "Will you overrule this motion?"

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

THE LAW of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is they servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults. . . .

Wash me throughly from mine iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. . . . Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow.—Ps. xix, 7-12; li, 2, 7.

"JERRY-BUILDING.

(Manchester Guardian)

LAST WEEK I mentioned jerry-builders, and asked if any of my readers could say who Jerry was. Promptly a correspondent has written to inform me that there ain't such a person.

The explanation is, he avers, that jerry-building is merely a corruption of Jericho building. Is it not described in the Book of Joshua, Ch. 6, v. 20, how at the sound of trumpets and shouting of the people the walls of Jericho fell down flat. That, he says, is the origin of the phrase.

THE TIDY Indian hamlet at Round Lake, up the Mississauga river is reported to be no more. Fur buyers used to say it was a model community where all the cabins were well built, the surroundings neat, the winter wood piles ample. The dozen families, sequestered from the world did not know how to make moonshine till a Soo fur buyer taught them the art. These forest dwellers were, it used to be said, "pagans," but the authorities never had any reason to visit them. Now it is reported that civilization has reached this sylvan retreat, and the families are all on relief in nearby communities.

200 Accidents Handled Daily By Compensation Board

Municipal Bond Holdings Giving Way To Dominion, Provincial Issues

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22 (CP).—The "great trust" of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario "is one of the finest services ever established in Canada," John Harold, board chairman, told the annual convention of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations here to-day.

Recently appointed to the Compensation Board, Mr. Harold discussed before 1,500 delegates gathered for the safety convention and exhibition of industrial safeguards 'some first impressions' of this work. "The duties were more onerous and there were many problems to be dealt with than I had anticipated," he said.

Discussing the board's financial position, he said its total investments as at December 31, 1937, stood at $33,835,519.

Fewer Municipal Bonds.

"The proportion of Dominion and Provincial bonds held as compared to bonds of municipalities has been changed. At present the board's portfolio shows 38.71 per cent. of municipal bonds. In 1934 municipal bonds formed 73.3 per cent. of the total."

In view of the board's financial position, "a steadily improving one," it was felt some reduction in rates could be made in 1937, the chairman reported. "Therefore, the average provisional rate for 1937 was reduced to $1.39 for each $100 of payroll as compared with $1.50 for the previous year."

More than 200 accidents daily have to be dealt with by the board, Mr. Harold said. About 1,000 cheques and 3,200 letters are sent out daily. Since the work of compiling "the great volume" of reports on accidents was organized, 1,253,323 accidents were reported. The board's clinic last year treated 9,619 cases.

"The silicosis work is another branch that has been organized with great care," he added. "Last year 25,000 X-rays were taken before mining centres by our doctors. It is estimated that over 500,000 workers are protected under our Act in Ontario. About 24,000 employers are required to make returns."

The board's most important problem at present was the preferential-rating plan, "taken on more or less as a trial." An inquiry into the problem now is under way, Mr. Harold reported, "and a number of important changes are to be made and to be retroactive for the past two years."

PLANT AT DONALD TO REOPEN SOON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 22. — The announcement has been made that the Standard Chemical Company plant at Donald, which had been closed down for several months, would be reopened at an early date. This will prove welcome news to the residents of the village, many of whom were employed by the industry. The company has thousands of cords of wood in the yard to be used in the manufacture of alcohol and other products.

TWO BOYS BUILD PLANE FOR $225

TORONTO, April 22—(CP)—Bud Hay, 19, and Joe Harrison, 18, are two youths who intend to take to the air in their own airplane. The two Toronto boys said last night they hope to have completed shortly a new type biplane they are building in an abandoned factory here.

They have spent about $100 so far on their project, and expect to spend about $125 more, the greater part of which will go toward a motor-cycle engine to provide the driving power for the one-passenger plane.

Bud intends to take it up for a test flight on completion and after it is inspected by the department of civil aviation. He works for an airplane firm and has several flying hours to his credit.

SUICIDE BLAMED TO MARRIED LIFE

CORNWALL, Ont., April 22—(CP) — Ernest Lalonde, 47-year-old Cornwall teamster, died March 20 from a gunshot wound apparently self-inflicted while in a state of mental depression brought on by the conduct of his wife and George Ducker, a boarder in the Lalonde home, a coroner's jury found yesterday.

Relating a tale of an unhappy married life during the past 15 years, Mrs. Linda Lalonde told the jury of the birthday party held the night of her husband's death. She said that although the party was in honor of her husband, he did not participate and when she prepared to retire her husband walked into her bedroom and said "Lin, I'm going to shoot you."

She said a shot was fired but it did not strike her. Shortly after she heard another shot and a few minutes later her husband's body was found on the rear steps of the house.

Mrs. Lalonde testified she had been acquainted with the boarder, Ducker for seven years but there had never been any trouble between Ducker and her husband. She said she never got along well with her husband "since the day after our marriage," and that he was in the habit of beating her two or three times a year.

Ducker told the jury he had been boarding with the Lalonde's for six years. "I was not on speaking terms with Mr. Lalonde since Christmas", he said.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

TOOK IN the Brinton Bowling Banquet at the Elite last night and found it was quite an affair. Some 80 members were on deck for the grub and prizes and they seemed a right sociable gathering. As Vern Dawson—who is prexy of the local senior ball club—said, there is no sport more sociable for gals and guys in a shop than bowling in the winter months. Vern suggested more sports for the company (and we're for it) and said they would sponsor a girls' softball team this summer. We promptly phoned Ev. Thomas, president of the Girls' Softball League, and he promised to get in touch with Mr. Dawson. There are not enough local firms interested sufficiently in sports, we figure, as employees go for some line of athletics in their spare time and a company-sponsored sport undoubtedly builds up that friendly feeling and co-operative spirit.

* * * * * *

NEVER IN our life have we seen so many prizes handed out in one league for one season of competition. Those Brintons were dishing 'em out right and left to everybody and his sister. The list is in elsewhere, if we didn't miss some, and they ranged from cups to rugs, with a bit of lucre probably mixed in. Seemed to us that Irene Pavy, softball catcher, collected quite a few, as did Walter Firth, while Leo Martyn got several also and Tom Maudsley a couple. Special draw prize of a ladies' wrist watch was taken by Annie McGarrity. Joe Duffus was on deck and had the gathering laughing heartily at a humorous speech. And Jack Withers sounded so much like Harry Lauder on his 8th farewell tour that we felt like doing a Highland Fling with a bit of Haig and Haig for a partner. A grand gathering of sports.

* * * * * *

AND A little lacrosse news to give the gutted-stick sport followers something to chew upon. Ye locals will be playing again in their arena on George St. and may be grouped in senior "B" company along with Oshawa, Brooklin, East York, Toronto Roden A. C. and the Cheltenham-Inglewood team that eliminated 'em in Ontario semi-finals last year. Nothing too definite yet but that seems to be the way the O.L.A. is looking at it just now. Such a group would go over big here and mean tight tilts all the way through for local fans to see, instead of lop-sided scores until the playoffs began. The novelty of it drew many fans last year, but it'll take keen competition to keep up that fine following this season.

* * * * * *

THE LOCAL lacrosse gang have started building an inside fence around their playing field, four feet high with the corners rounded. Early workouts for the players are predicted, and a smart squad should represent Peterborough. Likely a few new faces when playing time rolls around, too. While in Toronto at the O.L.A. convention last week, Doug Miller and Red Creighton lined up a couple of exhibition games for the next month. In return for the Petes playing their towns, both Brampton and Orilla Terriers will come here for exhibition tussles. Both are well-known senior squads and the Terriers this year have Bucko MacDonald, thumping defenceman of Detroit Red Wings, as playing coach. Quite an attraction, what?

* * * * * *

THE LACROSSE club has asked the five service clubs here, the Y's men's, Kiwanis, Lions Rotary and Kinsmen to sponsor teams in a boys' lacrosse loop of the city. The club will supply the grounds and each team will be coached by a senior or intermediate player. It's a fine idea for the promotion of lacrosse, as you must build up from the bottom to be assured of future material. If our baseballers had been as wise in recent years, that game would be humming here like a gossip session of the sewing circle, instead of being practically on the ropes.

* * * * * *

PREXY DAVE LEETHER of the men's City Softball League announces that the next re-organization meeting of that circuit will be held this coming Wednesday—not Monday, as previously announced—eve at eight in Duffus'. The idea is that he is working on a Southend Loop angle for another strong entry to the City League, and he plans to attend the next Southend Softball League meeting, which'll be on Monday. Dave expects the uptown circuit will line up with at least four teams, playing this summer at the Bowl. Two have entered already, Motorists and a London crew, while the Young Petes and Westclox are liable to be in shortly. There is no truth to the rumor that games at the Bowl this summer will be played under lights.

* * * * * *

AND THE president of the Petes, Vern Dawson, suggests that one or two Toronto baseball officials be invited to the C.O.B.L. session in Cobourg a week from tomorrow. So that, in case the Airport, Perth and Smiths Falls are out, a Toronto team may be lined up. "A three-team league isn't much good," Mr. Dawson said—and truer words never were uttered. By the way, a light outdoor workout tomorrow for prospective Petes will be held in Riverside Park at two bells, and those interested should attend. Several of the boys were over there last night and report the infield okay and the outfield not too soggy. And if the weather is oke tomorrow, they'll loosen up the muscles in ye olde horsehide corral.

* * * * * *

WHILE THEY'RE cleaning up the loose ends of a big hockey season in Oshawa, they expect to stage a mammoth "Hockey Night" in the Armouries about next Thursday. Maybe Mitch Hepburn there, too—Mitch and Oshawa folk being closer than ham and eggs! With the Motor City Juveniles winners of a Provincial title, and the Generals winners of Ontario and Eastern Canada honors, and several other squads in town, there should be oodles of orchids shovelled around—and rightly so. The writer there slips us this info: "All the teams get out of Memorial Cup gate receipts is mere expenses. Sad, but all too true. And by the way, that 'automobile' story was mere rumor." What, not even a used car or two!

BRINTON LOOP WINDS UP GOOD PIN SCHEDULE

A successful bowling season was brought to a fitting conclusion last evening at the banquet of the Brinton Bowling League in the Elite Grill. Over 80 members took part in the refreshments, entertainment and the presentation of prizes at this enjoyable affair. J. J. Duffus, M.P., was a special guest.

President Leo Martyn was master of ceremonies, while R. V. Dawson, the company manager, presented the President's Cup and did the drawing for special prizes. T. A. Holden was recording secretary for this league during the year, with C. Corbett, financial secretary, and Mrs. D. Fuller treasurer. The executive received a vote of thanks for its work. Following the banquet and presentation, with musical accompaniment, the ladies and gentlemen remained for dancing.

A large number of prizes were distributed to winners of league competition and special events for the past season. Mr. Dawson congratulated the bowlers and spoke feelingly of the social aspect of this sport for fellow workers. He urged more company sports and suggested entering a girls' softball team in the local and district league. Mr. Duffus gave a witty address on business and bowling, and finished by offering to donate a cup to the Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. for sports' purposes. Brief addresses with prize presentations, were made also by Dave Leether, W. L. Ferguson, I. E. Brock, Clarence Corbett and C. H. Wishart. Jack Withers sang entertainingly for the gathering. Mrs. Fuller presented special prizes.

Three Sections

The prizes were divided into three sections. In the first division, the high average went to Walter Firth with 214, and he also won the high three with 771. G. Corbett took high single with 324. For the ladies, Mrs. I. Pavy won high average with 163 and high three with 647, as Mrs. E. Jones got the high single with 225. The first team, the Peterminsters No. 2, consisted of: Miss K. McMillen, Mrs. E. Jones, E. Hodson, W. Firth, G. Corbett and A. Halliday. Second team, Avondales No. 9, included: Mrs. D. Fuller, L. Glaum, A. Pilling, R. Girrard, M. Staples and T. Maudsley.

In the second section, Walter Firth took the high average with 223 and high three again with 773, as Tom Maudsley rolled 330 for high single. Mrs. E. Jones took high average for the ladies with 159, while Miss M. Parks had 636 for high three, and Mrs. I. Pavy won high single with 291. The Peterpans No. 3 were first team, with Miss M. Parks, M. Langfield, E. Brooks, V. Rose, F. Walton and E. Hele. Second was the Royal Sarouks No. 7 of Miss E. Hodson, A. Pilling, L. Morley, T. Maudsley, R. Martyn, S. Townsend and A. Burns.

In the third section Leo Martyn copped high average with a mark of 233 and high three with 773, while G. Caird had 343 for high single. Mrs. I. Pavy returned strong in this division to take high average at 163 and high three by rolling 602, while high single went to Miss D. Simmonds with 249. Peterburns No. 10 were first players being Mrs. D. Fuller, M. Hall, C. Shanque, G. Caird, F. Watson and F. Hill. Super Sarouks No. 1 were next with Miss B. Fitzgerald, M. MacFarlane, C. Farr, L. Martyn, J. Withers and A. Hawthorne.

Among special prize-winners were: Leo Martyn with a mark of 773 for high three games of the season, and Mrs. I. Pavy with 647 for high three of the season. Mrs. Ferguson and Tom Maudsley also won rugs, four being presented by the company. The ladies' wrist watch, presented by Mr. Dawson, was drawn for and Miss A. McGarrity was the lucky winner. Leo Martyn won a special rug which was bowled for to end the season.

Other special prize winners, who were presented with their tokens by Mrs. D. Fuller were: Miss E. Hodson, M. Langfield, Mrs. E. Jones, Mary Parks, Mrs. Fuller, H. MacFarlane, Mamie Ayotte, Leo Martyn, E. Hele, Jack Withers (2), C. Shaughnessy, F. Hill, and George Dodson.

OFFICERS ELECTED BY C.G.E. SOCCER

At a meeting held recently by the Canadian General Electric soccer club, the following were elected for the season 1938: Hon. presidents, C. A. Salmonson, H. A. Cranfield and Ian McCrea; president, Alexander McKinley; vice-president, Bert Rowe; secretary-treasurer, William Rickard; executive, A. Hazlett, A. Pilling and J. Adams.

The club intends to participate in the Peterborough and District Football League and carry out their policy of the previous year by the exchange of games between outside teams so as to create interest in the game and is looking forward to a record season.

Permission has been received from the city to erect the goal post, on King Edward Park, but the park will have to be cleaned of the refuse left from the skating rink before any game can be played. Some of the players have made arrangements to erect the uprights at the first opportunity.

A far greater number of players turned out, last night, for the practice game and many new faces as well as the usual reliables have been getting into shape in preparation for the coming year.

A special meeting of the local association will be held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms on Monday night, at eight o'clock. There is no news coming from the Canada Packers this year but it is rumoured that the Brinton and the Quaker Oats may enter a team and the C.C.F. depending upon the youth that made such a favorable impression at the end of the season. Deloro expects to be represented in the league.

1935 Dominion Rugby Champs Out To Regain Lost Laurels

Reg. Threlfall, Former Football Star With Purdue University

WININPEG, Man., April 22. — The first major move in Winnipeg Blue Bombers' efforts to regain the Canadian rugby championship, which they held in 1935 and dropped the following year when beaten in the Western playdowns by Regina Roughriders, has been taken with the announcement that Reggie Threlfall is to be the new coach of the team.

Threlfall, who for the past six years has been head coach and athletic director of South Dakota State university, follows the dynamic Bob Fritz, who for many involved reasons was relieved of his position.

Fine Record

The new Peg mentor comes with a brilliant coaching record. Graduating from Purdue in 1927, where he learned his football under the famed Jimmy Phelan, Threlfall coached at Bates college in Maine for two years. His record there won him the line coaching job at South Dakota where two years later he was made head coach and athletic director being at that time the youngest athletic director in the United States at a major school.

In the past six years Threlfall's teams have been near the top in the North Central Conference. His club won the conference title in 1939 and has never finished worse than third.

Beat Wisconsin

Each year South Dakota State teams have played at least one Big Ten team. In 1935 they turned back a powerful Wisconsin squad 13 to 6, the only time a North Central school has ever beaten a Big Ten team. On the four occasions Trelfall's team has played Wisconsin the South Dakotans have registered the first points.

It is only a quirk of fate that Threlfall is not to-day head coach at his alma mater, Purdue, it is said. In 1935 he refused the line coaching job at that school, preferring to remain as head man at South Dakota. Last year Noble Kizer, noted Purdue mentor, was forced to retire on account of a serious ailment, and this year the man who took the job refused by Threlfall stepped into Kizer's shoes.

During his coaching career, Winnipeg's new coach has developed many great football players, having one year had the distinction of having no less than eight pupils playing pro football. Paul Miller, brilliant halfback with Green Bay Packers, is Threlfall's latest contribution to pro football.

Exceptional recommendations from C. W. Pugsley, president of the South Dakota State university, and such noted coaches as Stuhldreher of Wisconsin, Waldorf of Northwestern, Thomas of Alabama, Phelan of Washington, Noble Kizer of Purdue, Jack West and Casey Finnegan of North Dakota university, played no small part in the decision of the Winnipeg Rugby club officials to tender Threlfall a contract. Threlfall is 36 years of age, married and has one child. He is of British extraction, both his parents being born in England. He expects to take up residence in Winnipeg with his family early in May.

The Mighty Bows, Bradman Beaten

LONDON, April 22.— (CP).—A boot boy bowled out the Empire's greatest cricketer—and astonished the English sports world.

Don Bradman, captain of the Australian team here for the test matches against England, was practising at Lords.

Paul Wilson Brooks, 16, a Lords boot boy, bowled to the Australian. Bradman missed a ball that caught his middle stump cleanly.

Said Brooks later, "Iwas flabbergasted but Mr. Bradman said nothing."

To-day the boot boy had his picture in the papers, with interviews and stories on "how I bowled out Bradman."

The News-Chronicle in an editorial said: "No feat is comparable with this since Goliath was laid low by a pebble slung by the boy David."

Sopwith Against Yacht Challenge

SOUTHAMPTON, England, April 22 (AP)—T. O. M. Sopwith, twice unsuccessful challenger for the America's Cup, sees no prospect of Britain challenging again for the famous international yachting trophy for many years.

"Under no circumstances will I make another attempt with Endeavour II," said Sopwith on his return from New York Wednesday. "Until we have a testing tank for sailing ships of the type that has been perfected in America, it's not the slightest use to try to build a yacht that can beat the best America can produce—to do that costs an immense sum of money."

Mr. Sopwith lost to Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger with Endeavour II last year and to Vanderbilt's Rainbow with the First Endeavour in 1934.

Hastings League Will Re-organize

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, April 22.—Reorganization of the Hastings softball club will take place Monday evening, April 25. Election of officers and other routine business will be done. The meeting is being held in the Clarendon Hotel at 7.30 p.m.

The club had a very successful season last year and some keen rivalry developed between the teams.

Constable W. Wellman has suggested that baseball be reorganized here but unless more enthusiasm is aroused among village folk, his suggestion will bear no weight towards having it organized.

Hastings lawn bowling club are having a second meeting May 4, to draw up their schedule, and decide been getting into shape in preparhouse to be built at the bowling green.

TORONTO LEAFS LOSE BASEBALL OPENER AT JERSEY CITY

32,652 Fans See Visitors Lose Out In Hectic Tenth To Giants' Farm Team 6-5

Clifton And Reiber Hit Homers To Give Leafs An Early Lead

JERSEY CITY, April 22 (AP).—The optimism that comes in the spring to loyal baseball fans glowed at white heat today in four International League cities — Newark, Jersey City, Baltimore and Syracuse.

The league opened its 55th season yesterday with banner crowds in each of the cities and fans saw the local boys come through in each game. Jersey City shaded Toronto 6-5 in a 10-inning thriller watched by 32,652 fans, the largest crowd of minor league history; Newark, defending its championship, knocked off Buffalo 5-3 on Buddy Blair's homer; Syracuse coasted home to a 3-1 win over Montreal behind the giant Johnny Gee, and Baltimore started knocking down the fences in an 11-4 triumph over Rochester.

The crowds totalled 66,450 for the four games.

The Biggest Thrill.

The biggest crowd got the biggest thrill. Babe Herman, the amiable but eccentric outfielder, cracked out a double in the 10th with three on, two out and the ocunt at three and two to beat the Maple Leafs for Jersey Giants. It ended a great ball game. The Leafs had taken the lead in the same inning with a two-run rally and the Giants were sunk until Herman hit one.

Frank Makosky teamed with Blair to beat the Bisons for the Bears. Blair hit his homer with Les Scarsella on base in the eighth, but the Bisons came back and put two men on in the ninth with none out. The left-handed Makosky relieved Ernie Bonham and retired the next three men.

A crowd of 15,298 saw the battle which marked the debut of Johnny Neun as Newark's manager and Steve O'Neill as the Bisons' pilot.

Syracuse fans got a thrill from Gee's hurling. He is a native who came to the International via the University of Michigan. The six foot, nine inch youngster pitched a well-paced game, allowing six hits to best the veteran Ben Cantwell of the Orioles. About 8,000 saw the battle.

Crouse Sets Pace.

Manager Bucky Crouse set the pace for the Orioles with a three-run homer. Phil Weintraub, the Flocks' new first sacker, hit one and so did an old standby, Ab Wright, the League's home run king last season.

Harry Matuzac hurled for the Orioles and breezed home behind the hitting which reached a climax in a seven-run seventh inning. Norbert Kleinke, the Red Wings' nominee, departed in that frame.

Bisley Organizer Resigns Position

BISLEY, England, April 22 (C.P.).—Canada's Bisley team will find a new man in charge of the big shoot this year.

Organizer of the classic for the last 17 years, Major C. E. Etches has retired as secretary of the National Rifle Association. Since he became organizer the entries for the King's Prize alone increased from 63 to 1,108 last year.

He was British Army champion in 1901 and 1902, and his military career includes service in three campaigns—the Nile Expedition in 1898, the Boer War, and the Great War.

Canadians know of Major Etches' sense of humor. It is revealed in his mantelpiece. A motto in big letters says: "Work Is Fun," while underneath in minute letters: "... In Cool Weather," and marksmen remembering the high temperatures around Bisley time appreciate the joke.

He tells some interesting stories There is the one about Earl Jellicoe's good day at the targets. A follower who always made it his business to look after the equipment announced the scores to the crowd: "My Lord, a bull's eye—five....My Lord, a bull's eye—five....My Lord, a bull's eye—five. My Gawd, a magpie—three."

The Duke of Wellington signed his register ticket at a Bisley meeting as "Wellington." The register-keeper tapped the Duke on the shoulder with: "Look here, you. I want to know your name, not the name of your ship."

THREE MANAGERS' GRAVES

BALTIMORE—(CP). — Three of baseball's greatest managers, John McGraw, Wilbert Robinson and Foxy Nel Hanlon are buried in the same cemetery here.

CARL HUBBELL BEATS BOSTON IN MOUND DEBUT

NEW YORK, April 22.— It looks as though the big leagues have come up with a bumper crop of fine new pitchers. Four already have made their 1938 debut in the big-time, and their showing has been extraordinary, two of them pitching shutouts and a third permitting only three hits.

Latest to hit the main show with a bang is Forest Pressnell, 31-year-old Brooklyn addition, who blanked the Phils yesterday 9-0. He gave nine hits, but was invulnerable when it counted.

Atley Donald, star of the Newark staff last season, started his career as a New York Yankee by limiting Boston Red Sox to three hits until his wildness caused his removal in the seventh. The eight free passes he distributed enabled the Sox to make it three out of four from the champions by a score of 3-2, but such absence of control was to be forgiven under the circumstances and detracted little from the youngster's great showing.

The pitching job that Jim Baby, Jr., of the Red Sox did in his inaugural against the Yankees on the opening day already has been thoroughly told, nor was Dutch Leonard's feat of whitewashing the Athletics for the Washington Senators in his coming-out two days ago overlooked. They complete a quartet of hot-looking freshmen.

Donald, the only one of the four to start with a loss, could charge it to the Yankees' continued failure to hit in the clutches. They touched Johnny Marcum for 13 hits all told, but were pitiful runners on base.

Hubbell Beats Bees 3-2.

The day's other important news attached to old Carl Hubbell, himself. He exhibited his 1938 model screwball against Boston Bees and beat them 3-2, and if all the Giants have to worry about is King Carlos they can ease up. The 35-year-old ace struck out seven, one of them with the bases filled, and walked in with the winning run in the fifth.

There was a complete re-shuffle to-day, with eight new openings in eight cities. Biggest crowds were in prospect at Detroit, where the Tigers entertained Cleveland Indians, and at Yankee Stadium, where the erstwhile Bombers were hoping for better times against Washington.

Second Homer For Hank.

The Tigers, generally picked to give the Yankees their hardest run in the American League, managed to salvage the final of their three-game series with Chicago White Sox 9-3. Elden Auker held the Sox to seven hits and Hank Greenberg popped his second home run of the young campaign.

In the other American League tilt, Cleveland Indians took the odd game from St. Louis Brown 4-3. Lyn Lary doubled with the bases stacked in the eighth, giving a well-deserved victory to the veteran Earl Whitehill, who allowed only four safeties in eight innings.

Pittsburgh Pirates continued their terrific hitting to beat St. Louis 6-5 and sweep the series. They socked Curt Davis, obtained by the Cards in the Dizzy Dean deal, for 12 hits in eight frames and then climbed on Guy Bush and Max Macon for two more in the ninth.

Paul Derringer held Chicago Cubs to four hits and Cincinnati Reds came through with their first victory, 6-2. They piled up 13 hits off Tex Carleton.

Bob Fritz Goes To Edmonton

WINNIPEG, April 22.—(CP). — Bob Fritz, former playing-coach of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Western Canada senior rugby champions, Thursday left for Edmonton where he is expected to conclude negotiations to coach an Edmonton team, in the Western Inter-Provincial Senior Rugby League.

Reg. Threlfall, coach of South Dakota State University gridders last year, succeeds Fritz here. Threlfall will be a non-playing coach.

SCOTTISH CUP FINAL SATURDAY

GLASGOW, April 22 (C.P. Cable) —Thousands of tickets remain unsold for the Scottish Football Cup final between Kilmarnock and East Fife at Hampden Park on Saturday. It is estimated approximately 100,000 spectators will see the classic.

When Celtic defeated Aberdeen 2-1 in last year's final, the huge enclosure was packed with a crowd of 144,000, but the attraction at the week-end is not so great following the elimination of all Glasgow teams from the competition. Since 1929 the trophy has gone to either Rangers or the Celts.

Kilmarnock, cup winner in 1920, and again in 1929, is favored to win over the plucky Second Division squad from the small Fifeshire town of Methil. The only Second League team ever to appear in a Scottish Cup final, East Fife reached the last stage of the competition in 1927, but lost 3-1 to Celtic.

Although the Killies are among major league teams threatened with relegation, their cup displays have been outstanding, Celtic and Rangers being numbered among their victims. After hugging the bottom of the league for the early part of the season, Kilmarnock made a great recovery under the managership of Jimmy McGrory, former Celtic star, who took charge on Christmas Day.

The East Fife eleven is a smooth-working outfit, but has no real stars.

Kilmarnock's players have been training at Tinto, a little village in Lanarkshire, 1,500 feet above sea level, but their opponents have kept themselves fit at home with a few visits to St. Andrew's for golf.

No league games are scheduled for Saturday, but a few clubs are expected to play off games postponed for various reasons earlier in the season.

Mike Jacobs Expects $250,000 Business

NEW YORK, April 22.—(AP). — Mike Jacobs, the czar of boxing, expects the Barney Ross-Henry Armstrong match May 26 to "do" $250,000 business, one of the biggest purses two little fellows have ever drawn.

The tubs are already beginning to thump for the battle. According to word from Jacobs' office $30,000 in reservations have been received. Under the scale of prices which Jacobs has fixed, $16.50 for a ringside seat to $2.20 for a spot in the great out-of-doors, the match could draw $400,000 through the gates of Madison Square Garden's bowl.

The outdoor record is held by the Benny Leonard-Lew Tendler bout which bettered $400,000.

Fed Up On Minors Pat Malone Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 22.—(AP).—Declaring he was "fed up on this Minor League stuff" and "through with baseball," Pitcher Pat Malone said here to-day he was quitting the Minneapolis team of the American Association and going to his home at Milan, Ohio. The former Chicago Cub and New York Yankee hurler was signed by the Millers this year for $7,500.

Tigers Pilot To Catch One Throw

DETROIT, April 22.— (CP). — Mickey Cochrane, manager of the Detroit Tigers' Ball Club, and first-string catcher until he suffered a skull fracture last summer, will get into the American League opening game here to-day.

Mickey will catch the first ball as hurled by Pitcher Dick Reading, otherwise known as Mayor Richard Reading of Detroit, who insisted it would take a catcher of the Cochrane calibre to catch his fast one.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Carl Hubbell, Giants—Opened 1938 campaign with eight hit 3-2 victory over Bees and struck out seven.

Forest Pressnell, Dodgers — Made major league debut with nine-hit shutout against Phillies, 9-0.

Al Todd, Pirates—His two hits, one a double, helped Pirates shade Cardinals 6-5.

Paul Derringer, Reds—Limited Cubs to four hits as Cincinnati won first game of season 6-2.

Johnny Marcum and Joe Vosmik, Red Sox—Marcum allowed 13 hits but was tight in pinches and Vosmik's triple drove in winning run as Sox downed Yanks 3-2.

Hank Greenberg, Tigers — Hit homer which helped Tigers down White Sox 9-3.

Lyn Lary, Indians—Doubled with bases loaded in eighth to give Tribe 4-3 win over Browns.

JOINS PRO RANKS

CAPE TOWN — (CP). — A. D. (Bobby) Locke, famous South African golfer, has relinquished his amateur status and will take part in the South African open championship, as a pro.

CHICAGO MAY GET BIG BOUT

NEW YORK, April 22.—Promoter Mike Jacobs revealed today that he is considering Chicago "more seriously than ever" as the site for the million dollar Louis-Schmeling heavyweight title fight on June 22. He gave four reasons for this consideration:

(1) A riot between Nazis and American Legionnaires at Yorkville Casino Thursday night indicated increasingly anti-Nazi sentiment in New York.

(2) Leonard Hicks, Chairman of the Board of the Chicago Hotel Association, conferred with him today and indicated that Jacobs could have Soldier Field for an unexpectedly low" rental;

(3) Governor Henry Horner of Illinois, Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago and other Illinois officals and business men are working hard to get the bout, while New Yorkers—aside from the Boxing Commission—are apathetic, and

(4) A new hitch which developed recently and "which I cannot discuss" may influence him to take the fight out of New York.

"Any one who believes that it's cut and dried for the fight to be held in New York is crazy," Jacobs said. "There's less chance now of a New York fight than there was a week ago. This bout is one of the biggest naturals in history, and I'm not going to take any chances with it."

CALVES OFF $1.50 ON WEEK'S SALES, HOGS ARE STEADY

TORONTO, April 22 (C.P.). — Calf prices dropped about $1.50 cwt. on the Toronto Live Stock Market this week, the Dominion Live Stock Branch reported. The cattle run was light, but there was no export buying and trade was slower. Weighty steers sold off a little, but other grades were steady with a fair cleanup made.

Hogs recovered an early loss of 10 cents. Some feed-lot lambs sold 40 to 50 cents higher than last week. Sheep prices were unchanged.

Weighty steers traded at $5.25 for common up to $6.50 for a few choice loads. Good butcher steers and heifers brought $6 to $6.25 and some choice light steers reached $6.75. Most butcher sales were above $5 cwt. Butcher cows moved at $3.50 to $5, canners and cutters from $2.25 to $3.25.

Good butcher bulls traded at $4.10 to $4.50, and bolognas at $3.75 to $4. Fed calves were firm at $5.75 to $7.50, with a few at $5.75. A small supply of stockers sold at $4.25 to $5.25 cwt. Milkers and springers were unchanged at around $70 for tested tops.

Tops at $9.00.

Veal calves took a seasonal drop and closed weak at the decline. Tops were $8.50 to $9.00, with common light vealers from $3.50 to $5.50 cwt.

Hogs opened lower at $9.75 to $9.90 off-trucks for bacons and closed at $9.85 to $10. The market was weak and several loads were re-shipped to Montreal. Sows were sold at $6.50 to $7.00 off trucks.

One car of Western lambs was included in the light sheep and lamb run. Good feed-lot lambs from Ontario brought $9.75 to $9.90, with others downward to $6 cwt. The car of Westerns went at $10 cwt. Thursday. Small lots of spring lambs were $5 to $10 each. Sheep ranged from $2 to $6 cwt.

TWINS REACH 88

ORILLIA, Ont., April 22 (CP).—This district's oldest twins, Mrs. J. A. Adam of Orillia, and Mrs. Richard Anderson of Gravenhurst jointly celebrated their 88th birthdays today. The celebration took the form of a family re-union at the home of Mrs. Anderson's son, Charles Anderson, in Oro township near here.

MORE ABOUT—

DIONNE WANTS

termine whether the fortune the youngsters have built up—now estimated at $750,000—is being dissipated. He said that while Mr. Dionne was aware guardianship books are audited by government officials he was not satisfied their funds were being conserved properly.

It has been estimated that $2,000 is spent each month in keeping up the Dafoe nursery where Annette, Yvonne, Cecile, Marie and Emilie live 100 yards from the humble home where they were born. This covers Dr. Dafoe's salary of $200 a month, a grant of $100 a month to their parents and salaries of teachers, nurses, housekeepers and guards as well as nursery expenses such as food, clothes and heat.

The object of the guardians has been to establish a large enough fortune so that the interest will keep the girls, who will be four years old on May 28.

Wards Of King Till 18

An act of the Ontario legislature passed March 15, 1935, made the quints wards of the King until their 18th birthday. Appointed as guardians were Dave Croll, then Ontario Minister of Welfare, Dr. Dafoe, Judge J. E. Valin of North Bay and Mr. Dionne. The children's father has attended only one meeting of the board since last June.

Mr. Croll stepped out of the picture on March 8, 1937, with the statement that the quints' business had grown so heavy he could not handle it. He added he thought their affairs should be taken out of politics and moved an amendment to the guardianship act making the official guardian of minor children in Ontario a quint guardian. This office is now held by Percy D. Wilson, former Ottawa lawyer.

Besides Dr. Dafoe, Mr. Wilson and Judge Valin the quints have a business manager in Keith Munro, former Toronto newspaperman, and William Flannery of North Bay is secretary-treasurer of the guardianship.

The present board replaced one set up July 26, 1934, when A. W. Roebuck, then Ontario Attorney-General, said it was necessary to save the little girls from "certain death" through exploitation. A few days after their birth their father had signed a contract to exhibit them at the Chicago World's Fair later repudiating it. Dr. Dafoe and Oliver Dionne, grandfather of the children were on the board.

The first guardianship, which was for five years, was agreed to by Dionne but he has never publicly endorsed the second board. He opposed his children being made wards of the King and fought to have them returned to his care. He petitioned the Ontario government several times and in March, 1936, wrote to King Edward VIII in an effort to regain their custody. The petition to the King was referred to the Dominion and then the Ontario government, eventually finding its way to Mr. Croll.

Had Enough Assistance

Mr. Dionne's attitude in recent months has been that while he admitted the children would not have lived without the assistance of the Ontario Government the time for that assistance had passed.

Dionne told friends he would not object to some form of government supervision of their business affairs but demanded the right to bring them up as members of his family with their three brothers and four sisters.

It is believed he planned building a large home to replace the humble farmhouse where the Quints were born on May 28, 1934, bringing his family of 12 children and he and his wife, Elzire, together. Their latest child, a boy, was born on April 4, their second child since the Quints arrived.

The same plan has been entertained by the guardians. Dr. Dafoe often has said he would favor having the family live together if numerous obstacles could be cleared away. Recently Judge Valin expressed the same opinion.

In her few public statements on the subject, Mrs. Dionne has pleaded with the authorities to return her babies to her.

She sees them now as often as she wishes. The Dafoe nursery is only 100 yards from her home and she and her husband rarely miss a day visiting the youngsters. Often they bring along their other children and the whole family played before thousands of tourists who visited the Quints last summer.

Further separation of the family has come within the past few days. Ernest, 12-year-old brother of the quints, became a student at College Apostolique St. Alexandre at Ironsides, Que., near Ottawa, yesterday and their sisters, Rose, 11, and Therese, nine, were enrolled as students at the Ursuline Convent at Quebec City. Their expenses will be paid out of guardianship funds.

SUCCESSFUL TEA HELD BY SOCIETY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22. — Nearly fifty members of the Ladies Aid Society of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church were guests at a tea and program held at the home of Mrs. B. Frederick, Balcalava Street on Wednesday afternoon. The event was a further effort in the Society's drive for funds and on this occasion the ladies on the West side of town were the hostesses to those from the East side. Mrs. Thadeus Patrick and Mrs. Wilson MacDonald were the convenors and Mrs. J. C. Anderson acted chairman. The program included an instrumental number by the Misses Josephine and Doris Locks; vocal solo, Miss Shirley Herriott; vocal duet, Reta and Rhea Patrick; violin solo, Jack Bell; vocal solo, Miss Monica DeCarrol; piano solo, Jean Scott; vocal duet, Beryl Spencer and Constance Black; vocal solo, Miss Ruth McCredie; novelty dancing number, Reta and Rhea Patrick; piano solo Charles Allan, J. C. Anderson offered several violin selections during te afternoon.

Mrs. Peter Meiklejohn and Mrs. Saunders Burleigh poured tea and those who assisted in serving were Misses Ruth McCredie, Jean Scott, Helen Oliver, Esther Innes, Dorothy Reynolds, and Mrs. Charles Fraser. A guessing contest staged during the afternoon was won by Mrs. Irvine B. Hutcheon.

BILIOUSNESS

If you are subject to bilious attacks or the pains and discomforts of heartburn, dyspepsia, and other stomach trouble, you will be deeply interested in this case of Miss D. B. Glassco, of Mitcham. "For three years," she writes, "I suffered from very bad bilious attacks, until I learned about Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Since then I have taken it regularly and have been free from these attacks."

Doctors speak highly of Maclean Brand Stomach Powder which is used in many hospitals. It is designed to quickly neutralize the acids which are gnawing at the stomach walls, and to soothe inflamed, delicate tissue so that the stomach is helped to recover its proper, pain-free activity. Be sure to get the genuine Maclean Brand Stomach Powder—bearing the signature, "Alex. C. Maclean", on both bottle and carton. In powder and tablets, 75c, at druggists. 111

OBITUARY

MRS. NETTIE CAMERON

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, April 22—Funeral service was held in Codrington United Church Tuesday afternoon for the late Nettie May Cameron, wife of the late Eldred Cameron and only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ames, Codrington, who passed away in Campbellford hospital early Sunday morning. Death was caused by severe burns which she received Friday morning, April 15.

She will be sadly missed in the community in which she lived as she always took an active part in all community affairs. She was forty years of age and her good natured, kindly disposition will be long remembered. Her husband predeceased her three years ago. She is mourned by her parents and three sons, Jack, Don and Harold. Interment took place at Mount Olivet Cemetery.

WILLIAM JOHN MITCHELL

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BALLYDUFF, April 22.—One of the oldest residents of Manvers township passed away on Saturday morning, April 16 in his ninetieth year at his farm home west of Ballyduff, where he had lived practically all his life being born on the farm across the roadway from where he died.

He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, pioneer residents of this district.

A few years ago the late Mr. Mitchell suffered a stroke which somewhat impaired the use of his right hand but all other faculties remained sound during his long period of nine decades of life. About two weeks ago his health began to fail and a physician was called but to no avail and he passed peacefully away at Easter He was a life-long farmer and Liberal in Politics.

His wife predeceased him several years ago. Left to mourn his loss are his sons Harvey, Alvin, Howard, Bill and James and a daughter, Mrs. Ben Holmes (Hilda). A daughter, Mrs. Harry Uddy (Leda) passed away nineteen years ago. The entire family reside in this vicinity. One surviving brother, James Mitchell remains.

The funeral on Monday afternoon was conducted by Rev. V. Walker, pastor of Ballyduff Presbyterian Church at the home of the deceased when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to pay a final tribute of respect to an old and honorable citizen.

Those present from a distance were a sister-in-law, Mrs. Nichol of Barrie, a sister-in-law, Mrs. Martha Parker and Miss Ellen Parker of Toronto and Mrs. Joe Holmes of Reaboro.

100,000 TONS OF ROCK DISLODGED AT HAVELOCK QUARRY BLAST

Huge boulders the size of a full grown man and bigger were blown a hundred feet in the air at Havelock at noon today (Friday) in a spectacular explosion that had been planned and prepared for by the Ontario Rock Quarry since last December. It was the tenth time in the company's history that such explosions had taken taken at the quarry, whose solid rock face is seen in (2) just before the explosion.

Eighteen tons of dynamite were planted in tunnels cut from the solid rock by workmen who labored for five months. Cliff Scott and German Ellis were in charge of the tunnelling operations. They are seen in (1) at the opening to the 846-foot long tunnel, which was sealed after all the high explosives had been placed inside, ready for the blast. Cliff Scott (3) is seen her pulling the switch that set off the roaring explosion. More than 100,000 tons of rock were shaken loose.

Never Give A Sucker A Break Janitor Of Police Station Avers As He Finishes His Job

Fish Is Revived By Being Placed In Bath Tub At Station

The police department succeeded in keeping alive an important piece of evidence all Thursday night, only to have it slaughtered this morning when Caretaker George Grange arrived on the scene.

The evidence took the form of an over-sized sucker which an eager but illegal fisherman had yanked out of the Otonabee River at the Peterborough Lock Thursday. After the culprit had been caught in the act by temporary overseer Phillip Maynard and had been brought to the police station after putting up a battle that necessitated a call for police assistance, the fish in the case, with the gaff still in him was left in the guard room by Traffic Officer Clark.

A little later signs of life were noticed in the sucker and the police station bath tub was hurriedly filled with water and the sucker placed back in his natural element. Soon he was swimming around the tub as if such things as gaffs had never entered his young life and all night he was inspected from time to time by members of the night staff, each report being that he was back to normalcy.

This morning however disaster struck. The cleaning staff put in an appearance and a woman worker refused to have anything to do with a bath tub that contained live fish. So caretaker Grange was called into action and by the time he got through swinging the sucker was a wreck. "Never give a sucker a break" the janitor of the city buildings was heard to mutter as he completed the job of despatching the fish.

The man who originally hauled the sucker out of the Otonabee will be called upon to explain his end of the affair before Magistrate Langley and Mr. Grange had a tough job this morning convincing the police that he shouldn't be indicted for taking a fish out of season and destroying evidence.

CAR ROLLS FOUR TIMES

WINDSOR, Ont., April 22 (CP).—Leslie Doidge, 17, Windsor, was brought to hospital last night with a possible fractured spine after an automobile in which he was a passenger rolled over four times on a gravel road 10 miles south of here, crashing through a fence and ending up in a field. Five other 17-year-old companions escaped with cuts and bruises.

CAMPBELLFORD

MUSICAL PROGRAM PLEASES AUDIENCE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 22.—An appreciative audience attended the musical program presented in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening under auspices of Christ Church. Rev. T. H. Floyd who acted as chairman for the occasion paid tribute to Miss Hilda Bonnycastle for her work in arranging and directing the entertainment which drew a large number despite various other attractions on the same evening.

NO POLICE WOMAN

CALGARY, April 22—(CP).—Calgary isn't going to have a police woman.

When estimates were considered by City Council yesterday a proposal of Alderman Rose Wilkinson to have a police woman appointed for Calgary was defeated.

The Police Commisison decided, Mayor Andrew Davison told the council, it would be necessary to establish a special department to get any benefit from women police officers. Council members didnt think such a department was necessary.

MOTHER MOURNS GREY OWL'S DEATH 'NO ONE LIKE HIM'

LONDON, April 22—(CP Cable).—The British pres sto-day continued to interest itself in Grey Owl, the naturalist who died last week in Saskatchewan where he made his home. The question is whether he was an Indian half-breed, as he himself maintained, or Archibald Belaney, an Englishman with no Indian blood.

The latest development is a letter published in The News-Chronicle as one sent by Belaney's mother from Devon to her sister at Hastings.

"I write with regret of the passing of my beloved son," the letter said. "It is the passing of a great man with a soul so unique that never has there been anyone like him."

The Star announces a long serial autobiography of Grey Owl. The Daily Express prints a large picture of the naturalist on its front page.

"What does it matter if he never was a Red Indian but a Paleface who persuaded the Indians to believe he was one of them?" The Express asked editorially. "You can forgive him the deception, for it hurt nobody."

"The world is ready to forget the private lives of Burns, Shelly, Byron, Marlowe, Verlaine, Swinburne, and Rossetti," commented The Daily Herald. "The beauty of their work lives on. So should it be with Grey Owl. He preached a gospel of tolerance towards the animal world, not for sentimental reasons but because 'it is just sense.' He was a man who had courage to tell the civilized world it stil lhad much to learn."

The Manchester Guardian says that for his work he will be gratefully remembered when speculation as to his birth-place and race is forgotten.

SCRAP IRON THEFT NETS FIFTEEN DAYS

Stealing scrap iron from the G. Walter Green Company, an offence that only brought in cash returns of 50 cents, has cost Allister Hutchinson, 17, and Bruce Burfield, 18, their liberty for fifteen days.

The two youths were charged with the theft in police court this morning and both pleaded guilty.

Crown Attorney McElderry said that the pair were both out on suspended sentence at the present time. On the night of April 13, he told the court, they had borrowed a truck, taken the scrap iron from the Green property, drove back to the home of the man who had lent them the truck and left it there all night. In the morning the man had sold it.

"The stuff was not very valuable," he said. "I think they only got 50 cents for it."

"I don't think a short term in jail will do these boys any harm," said Magistrate Langley as he imposed a fifteen-day sentence on each of the accused.

Roy Thompson, Hunter Street, charged with receiving the stolen scrap iron, pleaded guilty and was allowed to go on a year's suspended sentence. He told the court that one of the boys had borrowed his truck to get some scrap iron, without telling him where it was to be got, and in the morning he had bought the stuff off the boys and resold it to a junk man.

SAVES THE CASH

TIMMINS, Ont., April 22 (CP).—Harry Shephard received a crack on the side of the head but he saved the money in his candy-shop cash register that a gunman went after early today.

When the bandit walked into the shop and told Shephard to "Stick 'em up," the youthful proprietor reached for the telephone to call police. The bandit slugged him over the side of the head.

Stunned by the blow, Shephard grasped at the gunman but was unable to hold him.

"Bill" Green claimed today that the sudden drop in temperature was accounted for by the fact that icebergs are coming down the Trent Canal. The meteorological department has not confirmed this theory however.

NO FISHING

There seem to be folk who do not yet know that at the present time it is illegal in this county to angle for any kind of fish, whether of the game variety or not. This applies to suckers, perch and sunfish. The first legal fishing will get under way a week from tomorrow, Saturday, April 30, when the trout season opens.

NOTE FOR CHILDREN

The story hour at the public library Saturday at 10.30 a.m. will be the last of the season.

DISCONTINUE RELIEF

The council of Cobourg has decided to discontinue direct relief to able bodied men after May 1.

BUILDING TWO HOUSES

Nineteen building permits were issued in the week ending this morning at City Engineer Parsons' office. Two of them were for houses, one estimated at $2500 and the other at $2,200, on St. James and Prince streets. An alterations job on Simcoe street will cost $1,000, a new bathroom $550; a duplex change on Sheridan street will cost $400; and other items range all the way down to $16 for roofing a verandah.

TO PUBLISH BOOKLET

The executive of the Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association decided at a meeting in Lindsay Wednesday afternoon to publish a new booklet presenting the holiday attractions of the district. Lindsay has promised a contribution of $200, completing the financing of this publicity project. Roy Bottum was chairman of the meeting. Partly to offset the earlier opening of the lunge fishing season the Association recommended that the closing date be advanced to October 1, two weeks.

A RELIEF CHARGE

Herbert Jackson was charged before Magistrate Langley in police court this morning with receiving $44.70 worth of relief from the Peterborough Relief Board under false pretences. It is alleged that Jackson represented to the relief authorities that he was living with his wife and family whereas according to the indictment such was not the case. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry asked for a remand until Saturday

Longshoremen Stage Riot

When three gangs of longshoremen attempted to run the gauntlet of a picket line, established by the sailors' union of the Pacific, around San Francisco's docks a riot ensued. These two men are staging a private battle during the height of the riot while those on the left are hurrying to join the main melee.

MYSTERY FLIGHT NEW YORK-LONDON MYSTIFIES PRESS

NEW YORK, April 22.—(CP). — The mystery that shrouded Arthur Korp's mercy flight from New York to London, Ont., for a package of wheat germ oil for an ailing sister was explained to-day. It seemed the smoke screen was thrown about the affair because Korp and others concerned considered it "a personal matter not requiring publicity."

Korp completed the International air dash last night and hurried the oil, containing vitamin E and used in maternity cases, to the fashionable apartment of Mrs. Roslyn Rubin. In his wake came the "press" for a so-called "mercy flight" spells news in capital letters.

The newspapermen promptly ran into a screen of mis-statements designed to throw them off the track. After being informed neither Korp nor Mrs. Rubin lived in the apartment block, they were informed "15 Rubins live in the building." Finally a Rubin family was found on the 13th floor, but a man who answered the door would only say: "I have nothing to say."

The doctor attending Mrs. Rubin was just as mysterious. His office-nurse said the doctor had ben away for a month fishing. Suddenly he was available to callers, but he wasn't available for comment on the Rubin case.

All this was last night. Korp tired this morning of playing hide-and-seek with the press and came right out in the open to explain he considered the flight a personal matter. "And it's going to be kept personal," he added. "Good day."

BIG ANNOUNCEMENT COMING ON FRIDAY

Dr. J. J. Craig, chairman of their agriculture committee, promised the members of the Kiwanis Club that he would hit the headlines of The Examiner with a story next Friday, but as to details he was resolutely noncommittal even under the threat of a fine of a "saw-bill." Presumably the crytpic intimation has something to do with the agricultural interests of Kiwanis, but that remains to be heard if not seen a week hence.

The special speaker for today's luncheon missed connections, and George Walsh of Oshawa extended the entertainment feature with a group of songs sung with a robust and ringing baritone. For the rest of usual after dinner period the members accepted the invitation of Jerry Duffus for a bout of bowling, at the same time expressing their appreciation of his hospitality in the Duffus alleys across the street from the Empress headquarters of the Club.

Crazy Negro Kills Maid, 2 Men

CLEVELAND, April 22 (A.P.). — Two men and a woman were slain to-day by a 43-year-old negro, who police said apparently went suddenly insane and obtained a revolver.

Police listed the victims as: Hans Getslaff, 33, Mitchell, Paser, and Lily Traylor, about 24, a negro maid.

The two men were killed in a fashionable apartment within 15 minutes after the woman was thrown from the slayer's car near the apartment building.

Police captured the slayer after an 80-mile-an-hour automobile chase which ended in a gasoline filling station lot.

"I hope they're all dead," police quoted the man, booked as William Peters, 43, as saying.

Five brothers, Thomas, Ernest and Harold of Coe Hill, Clarence of Hall's Bridge, Emerson of Peterborough, and two sisters, Mrs. Canfield Cartier of Cornwall, Ontario, and Mrs. Roy Hannahs of Coe Hill, also remain.

Attending the funeral from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Sanfield Cartier and Reta Cartier of Cornwall; Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Reid and Ruth and Kenneth Reid of Peterborough; Mrs. Grace Monaghan of Peterborough; Clarence Reid of Hall's Bridge, Mr. and Mrs. Russel Dafoe of Actinolite, Mr. and Mrs. John Dafoe and Bruce Dafoe of Tweed.

RELIEF GARDENS MAY BE ABANDONED BY CITY COUNCIL

Enquiries around the city hall today intimated that the council is likely to abandon the relief gardens that have been conducted for five years. A limited supply of seeds may be distributed from the relief office, but otherwise the annual spring project will probably not be continued. The council has not made any decision on this subject, in fact it has not been discussed, but there has been proposal to carry on, and several aldermen said that increasing costs of relief have to be considered.

Relief gardens were begun as a means of assisting people who were on the border line and who wished to avoid applying for municipal and provincial assistance. The late A. B. Cunningham was the director of the gardening scheme to which he gave a great deal of time and attention with results that were greatly appreciated by the council and by many citizens who adopted it.

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend, Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry become interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jeck Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's, had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia, Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening. Barbara is furious to find the party still going when Garry brings her back to her apartment and orders Julia and the others to leave, Jimmy Minton, a notorious playboy, gets fresh and Garry knocks him down. In answer to a long distance plea from her former managing editor, Barbara has an acquaintance, Bruce Kemper, who is sick from dissipation, moved to a hospital. Kemper escapes from the hospital and returns to Barbara's apartment. When Garry enters, Kemper hides in the bedroom, armed with a gun. Garry sizes up the situation and leaves. Not long afterwards the telephone rings.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 17

She was reaching for the telephone when it gave forth a swift vibrancy of sound that crashed the stillness so sharply that she choked back a little cry.

"Miss Kingsley?" a woman's strange voice asked.

THE STRANGE feminine voice at the end of Barbara's telephone line was crisp and professional.

"Will you hold the line a moment, Miss Kinksley? This is Bellevue hospital."

Bellevue. Then it was another message concerning Bruce Kemper and she had dared to believe that it was news of Garry. She was weary of Bruce. Suddenly her nerves were taut strings ready to break. Her voice wouldn't come. She hung up the receiver. Let the telephone ring! She would not answer.

It did ring again. Over and over and over again. Finally, in desperation, merely to stop the noise she removed the receiver from the hook. A voice was speaking at the other end so she listened.

Then her voice came back. "Garry, Garry, where are you?"

"Oh, thank the Lord, I've got you at last," his voice answered. "I've been shouting you name into the empty telephone ever since the nurse said you answered."

"The nurse?" she asked swiftly. "Garry, where are you?"

He ignored her question. "Barbara, sweet, are you all right?"

"I'm fine now."

"You're sure?"

"Yes, very sure, but what about you?"

"Sweetheart. I'm at Bellevue with a mile of gauze draped around my head like a Turkish turban. You ought to see me—"

"Garry, be sensible. What happened?" Her voice was trembling with fright.

Instantly he sobered. "I caught a glimpse of that man in your apartment. Barbara, did he have a gun with him?"

"Yes."

"It's a good thing I wasn't certain. I'd have charged at him for sure. And the thing was pointed at you, I knew, if he had one. No I guess I could have kept my hands off. You see, I didn't know if he was a legitimate visitor whom you didn't want recognized at the moment or an intruder but I didn't like the looks of it."

"But you didn't mention it!"

"Listen, you sweet little nut! Your whole manner was trying to tell me to keep quiet if I suspicioned anything and you did a grand job of it. That mugg had the vantage point. If I had gone after him, he was protected and we were easy targets. So I made a dash for help. But your neighbors—never mind them. They padlock their telephones. I was cutting across the street to borrow one when something struck me and I just woke up in the hospital."

"You've been unconscious all of this time?"

"They gave me an opiate. And I've been darned near crazy with worry about you these last five minutes."

There was no time to explain about Bruce Kemper. The nurse took the phone from Garry, but Barbara heard him asking her to make sure that the man was gone. In a few words she told the story and heard it being relayed. Then the nurse said: "Mr. Page wants to know if you'll drop in at his apartment tomorrow night after work. He's going home in the morning."

It was late when Barbara wakened the next morning. For a moment she tried to remember what had happened. Then it all came back. Garry was hurt. She flew to the telephone and dialed the hospital.

"Mr. Page?" the nurse said presently. "Sleeping comfortably. Yes he is going home presently."

She was going to e latbe to work this morning. She dashed under the shower, dressed quickly in the black dress whose accessories she now varied. Today she chose a coral necklace and a black beret that diped over one eye, and was banded in back with a coral piece of leather. Then she wriggled into her last winter's jacket of Persian lamb, grateful that it was an accepted sports model. She ran down the stairs, walked quickly through the crisp, bright air that was generously speckled with snowflakes, and ducked into a drug store for a double orange juice and some coffee.

"Hello, Tardiness," a lazy voice greeted her as a man sat down on an adjoining stool at the counter. "Celebrating last night?"

The man was the last person she expected to see at a drug store counter on Sixth avenue and Eighth street at 20 minutes of nine in the morning. It was Jack Metcalf and he was in evening clothes.

"Coffee," he told the clerk. "Tons of it, boiling and strong and straight." He turned back to Barbara. "I have to go home and pound out two chapters to wind up a serial. Imagine, out all night and two chapters due tomorrow!"

"Was the evening a success?" Barbara asked. "It must have been, the way you prolonged it."

"The evening! My child, I was at work for my publishers. Ever hear of a visiting English authoress? There's one in town and she wanted to see the city so I was her escort. We saw it—she could fill the five shelf libraries of America with her notes. And she wouldn't go home."

"Where is she now?" Barbara asked.

"At her hotel—I just dropped her at the Lafayette. She likes living near where Mark Twain used to reside. Ever see his house? You haven't and you live so near! Listen, my innocent country lass, I'm taking you sight-seeing the next time I have a night off!.."

Barbara stood up. "I must fly."

"Wait until I drink this. I'm taking a cab and I'll drop you."

They were caught in the stream of cross-town traffic in the West forties, travelling east, when Barbara glanced from the window. There, on the corner with other pedestrians stood Natalie. She was slim and chic and lovely in a Dubonnet suit and silver foxes. Her eyes caught the occupants of the cab at the same moment. For a second, caught unawares, her defenses were down.

"Where she loves him. She loves Jack!" Barbara thought.

Then she waved at Natalie, and spoke to Jack. "There's Nat. Can we pick her up?"

He glanced out of the cab and back at the girl. "We can—but why?"

"She works so near me—"

"Listen, Barbara, Natalie would refuse to get in this cab if we asked her. Better take my word for it."

"All right. But what makes you think you rate so much with her?"

"Darling, darling, when you grow up—" The cab swept on and Barbara carried with her the picture of Natalie, white-faced, on the curb. She called her at once from the office explained gaily how she had been picked up.

"I thought so. Barbara, stop worrying about me. Not anything that man can do would upset me any more. As for his visiting authoress, you may rest assured she was very pretty."

One thing remained in Barbara's mind. Natalie might hate Jack, but she loved him, too. Whatever his charm had been for her years before, it lingered. And he wasn't worth it. Why his heart had a dozen compartments and he could keep them all occupied at the same moment.

Love that dared all things, believed al lthings, hoped all things, endured all things—love that remained straight and true and honest was something of which he had not known, something of which he could not write. Suddenly she knew why his books were so brittle and superficial. He could note write of things which he could not feel. She felt sorry for him.

"Now these cutlines for the dancing rabbits series," she mused to herself, "are lovely and sincere and the youngsters will live the pictures. Maybe I can rhyme the cutlines—"

She wished, though, that she had taken the subway. She would avoid Jack in the future. Then she lost herself in her work. Then she lost had the office boy bring her some soup and a salad. At five o'clock she bought a book which she knew Garry wanted and had not read and started to walk to his apartment house. She had been there for tea several times during these two months that he had been back, for dinner once or twice.

The funny old servant let her in. "Mister Page is watching for you."

Then there was Garry, white-faced with bandaged head, but smiling gaily in his big arm chair.

"Excuse me for not rising," he said. "But you put me in my present state."

"Oh, I'm so sorry—"

He stopped laughing. "Barbara, how soon do you think you could manage to marry me?"

"Marry you?" She had waited for these words and now that they had come she could only repeat them.

"Marry me, sweet. I've been holding my breath so I wouldn't suggest it until I had something to offer—maybe the play will jell with the public and maybe it won't—but oh, honey. . . . ."

"Garry darling, what does the play have to do with it Of course I will!"

Paradise wasn't a marble city with spires and a golden gate. It was a brown living room and a man's strong arms. Then she drew away.

Into the security and peace of Garry's long living room where a log burned brightly in the immense fireplace, and yellow peonies, too large for anything but a brass bucket, kept guard by the hearth, a fear came stealing into Barbara's mind. There was a cloud on this happiness. . . . She groped to find it. She sat down on a hassock.

"Jimmy Minton," she said when the fear materialized.

Garry looked at her in surprise. "What made you say his name?"

She tossed back her bright hair and pulled the hassock nearer his chair. "Listen to me, my bandaged Lochinvar, you've got to do something about that man! He threatened to get you once—I don't know, Garry, why I'm afraid of him. But I am."

"Have you been hearing the cock-eyed threats he's been making?" Garry asked slowly.

Etiquette Paves Way to Gay Good Times

Don't Guess at Good Manners

What a kick to take Nathalie on an outing! She's practiced the smooth, gracious ways that put a man at ease until they're second nature to her.

Chattering merrily, she steps to one side to let Dick show his good breeding by opening the car door for her.

When they meet Dorothy and Jack at the country club for lunch Nathalie doesn't enter the dining-room clinging possessively to Dick's arm. She and Dorothy follow the head waiter, the two men bring up the rear.

And when they wind up the day at the movies, they seat themselves—Jack, Dorothy, Nathalie, Dick—the girls in the centre, the men on each side.

Don't guess at etiquette. Little things—like accepting compliments gracefully, knowing that it's the girl's place to end a telephone conversation, say when it's time to go home—rate you socially. Our 32-page booklet tells how to make a correct, charming impression anywhere. Formal and informal parties. Movies. Restaurants.

Despite All the Examples on How to "Pop the Question" Set in the Movies, Young Men Still Find Trouble in Asking Girls to Marry Them

Believe it or not, innumerable letters come to this column from young men who want to know how to propose marriage to the girls with whom they are in love. Offhand one would think that a knowledge of how to do this would come by Nature, as Dogberry thought a knowledge of reading and writing did, but apparently such is far from being the case.

Shy youths choke up on their Adams' apple when they try to ask Angelina or Mary Jane to be theirs. Glib talkers find themselves dumb when they reach the crucial point in the courtship. Many a long drawn-out "keeping company" gets longer and longer because the Boy Friend can never summon up nerve enough to pop the question. And many a poor girl gets so worn out waiting for a dilatory lover to mention weddings rings that she has to bring up the subject herself.

Just why a man who isn't bashful about asking for anything else he desires should get panicky when he offers a gilt-edge life job to a girl who has given every indication that she is ready to jump at it, nobody knows. Yet he generally does. Maybe it is his Guardian Angel whispering a last warning to him to go slow, that he is about to tie a knot with his tongue that he can't untie with his teeth. Or something. Anyway, most men are in such a blue funk when they propose that they bungle the situation, and about the only ones who do it gracefully are the profession philanderers who never have the slightest intention of taking up their option on a maiden's heart and hand.

The way men pop the question has long been a sore grievance with women. For ever since she was old enough to have her first permanent every girl has dreamed about being wooed in beautiful, romantic, poetic language and at last having some handsome lad tell her that life without her would be cinders, ashes and dust, and implore her to be his as he clutched her to his many breast, while a muted violin sobbed in the distance and the moonlight turned it all into a scene of enchantment. Cinema business, you know.

But, alas and alack, how different is real life from the movies! When and how and where do men propose? I have known a man to ask the vital question when he and the girl were dodging traffic during the rush hour on a crowded street. And when they were eating corned beef and cabbage at a restaurant, with half a dozen waiters hanging around within earshot. And when a man had beguiled a girl to look at a new house and sandwiched his will-you-be-mine in between his ballyhoo about the plumbing and the heating apparatus.

I have known a widower to tell the girl he was asking to marry him that the reason he fell for her was because she reminded him so much of his first wife. And another who seemed to think that a girl would jump at the chance to marry him when he informed her that he was looking for a good cook and that her apple pie had hit the vulnerable spot in him.

Of course, women do say "yes" to his proposal if they want the man, no matter how much it wrecks their romantic dreams, but it is a bitter pill for them to swallow. And you will notice that one of the secrets that no woman ever tells, not even to her grandchildren, is what Grandpapa said when he asked her to marry him.

Heaven knows, there has been little enough of glamour about the average proposal and in the future there promises to be still less. For the students in one of the colleges that have a course in love-making and marriage are being warned not to pop the question except at high noon in the broad light of day when they will be immune from moons and starlight and ballroom backgrounds and all the seductive influences that make for sentiment and turn any ordinary girl in a white dress into a siren.

"Using one's head is difficult a tany time in choosing a life partner," says the professor, "because love is an emotional matter and under strong emotional forces it is hard to think clearly, and the very force of desire clouds your reasoning ability."

Which is all true, of course. But the question is if you take away all the lures that lead to marriage, would anybody ever get married? Would any man ever want to marry enough to propose at 12 o'clock in the day, and would any girl every marry him if he did?—DOROTHY DIX.

THE EXAMINER FASHION SERVICE

A simple princess dress that's very gay in spirit. You'll find it a joy to slip into in mornings in town or country. Lovely if made of dotted cotton print. It's simple buttoned-down-the-front coat-like closing, gives it a smart casual air. Other interesting details are the slim fitted corselet waist effect and scalloped collar, cuffs and pocket flaps. Developed in an exquisite pastel shade of spongy cotton with vivid contrasting shade sleeves and fitted waist sections, it would be strikingly individual. For the other version, a touch of embroidery in peasant coloring would add further chic. Note the collarless vee neck and decorative slide fastener. It's so easy to sew and so moderate in price, you'll want both versions.

Style No. 2855 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust. Size 16 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY AND LADY BALTIMORE

Uncle Wiggily was in trouble. He had bought a bag of beans for Nurse Jane but, in hopping through the rain, the bag was water-soaked, it burst and Mr. Longears spilled the beans.

"Oh, dear!" cried the rabbit gentleman.

"I wish I could do something more to help than just offering to pick up your beans in my beak as I pick up mud pills from a puddle to make my nest," twittered the Barn Swallow.

"I need a bag! A bag is what I must have to carry these beans home, even if you pick them up," said Uncle Wiggily.

He was stooped over like an old rabbit gentleman picking up sticks, for by stooping in this way, Uncle Wiggily's back made a sort of porch or piazza above the spilled beans on the ground and kept them from getting too soaked with the April shower rain.

"But I can't stay bent over this way all day," said the rabbit.

"Indeed you cannot," agreed the Swallow. "How would it be if I flew to your bungalow and told your wife or Nurse Jane to come here with an umbrella and a bag?"

Has a Plan

"That would be kind of you," said Uncle Wiggily. "But before you could fly to my bungalow I will be straightened up and then the beans will be all wet and spoiled. I can't stay stooped over them much longer."

"You will not have to!" suddenly twittered the Swallow.

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggily, still bent over the beans.

"Because I am going to pick the beans up in my beak and put them in your pockets. I just noticed you have many pockets and they will hold beans as would a bag."

"So they will!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Ha! Ha! I never thought of that. How clever! Now I'll straighten up and you can pick up the beans in your beak and stuff them in my pockets."

"No, don't straighten up," said the bird.

"Why not?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Because you need to bend over the way you were so I can reach your pockets," the Swallow explained. "Also you must lean over the beans like a front porch to keep them dry."

"Oh, yes, of course," agreed the rabbit gentleman. "Carry on!"

So the Swallow began to pick up beans in his beak and thrust them into Uncle Wiggily's pockets as he was bent over. But after a while the bird said:

"This is funny!"

"What is?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"Why, though I have been picking up in my beak beans from the pile that spilled out of the wet paper bag," said the Swallow, "it seems there are as many beans as when I started. What the matter?"

"Oh, my goodness!" all of a sudden exclaimed Uncle Wiggily as he put his paws in his pockets. Which was no easy thing to do all stooped over as he was. "Oh, my goodness!"

"What's the matter?" asked the Swallow.

"I just remembered," said the rabbit, "I have on an old suit. Every pocket has a hole in. As fast as you put the beans in they ran out through the hole an down the legs of my pants into the pile on the ground. You can't fill my pockets with the beans to keep them dry no matter how hard you try. Oh, dear, what shall I do?"

"Do not give up!" begged the Swallow. "Never give up. If at first you don't succeed, try, try again. Here comes Lady Baltimore, I am sure she will help you. Hold everything!"

"Who is Lady Baltimore?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

He soon found out and so shall you, in the next story which will be about Uncle Wiggily bringing the beans. But please do not let the lollypop jump off its stick and try to walk all by itself.

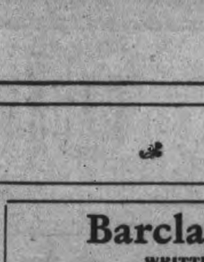
PITY THE HAND HOG

SOME PLAYERS just won't let their partners play a hand unless they have to. They will bid and rebid their own declarations regardless of hemlock and high water, just as if they considered themselves as holding a corner on all the playing skill. They may hog a lot of hands that way, but their opponents usually hog the majority of plus scores.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

One spade was North's opening call which South took to 1-No Trump. North now bid 2-Clubs and South called 2-No Trumps. When North bid 3-Spades, South continued with no trump, but North refused to allow the contract to remain there and went 4-Spades.

North, who failed to make his contract of 4-Spades, argued that the hand seemed unsafe to him at a no trump contract because of his distribution. However, playing with a dependable partner, he should have given him credit for realizing that North's distribution was four clubs and five spades and therefore short in the other two suits.

With stoppers in the two unbid suits, a splendid fit for North's second bid suit and fair strength in the first, South was justified in trying for a no trump game. By the way, notice how 5-Clubs would have worked if South had taken out the four spades.

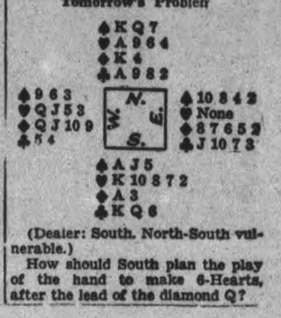
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

How should South plan the play of the hand to make 6-Hearts, after the lead of the diamond Q?

Chronic Fatigue
Tells of exhausted Nerves

In health, rest soon overcomes fatigue. When you become chronically tired there is an underlying cause.

Perhaps you cannot rest or sleep because of the irritability of the nerves. Memory and power of attention soon weaken when the nervous system is exhausted. It is difficult to concentrate the mind and the daily task becomes a worry and a burden. Indigestion and sleeplessness ruin your temper, and you become depressed and discouraged.

Whatever may have been the cause there is a way in which to regain health and that is by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. New Nerve Force is created to restore the functions to the bodily machinery and ensure the healthful working of the mental and physical organs.

Snags Seen In Path Of Britain Buying U.S. War Planes

Observer Believes It Bad Policy To Add Too Many New Types To R.A.F. Classes

LONDON, April 22 (CP-Havas) —Although it was reported in usually well-informed quarters that 500 military airplanes might be purchased in the United States by the British mission which sailed Wednesday for an investigation in that country and Canada, difficulties in the way of the group were emphasized today by Major F. A. Robertson, writing in the Manchester Guardian.

"Two things are certain," he said, "in the American enquiry which Air Commodore J. G. Weir and his companions are to make. First, it would be a bad thing to multiply the number of types in any one class of aircraft used by the Royal Air Force, and secondly, if American manufacturers were to build types of British design it would take longer for them to get these types into production than it would take for British firms to complete preparations which are already under way.

"These considerations lead us to rule out the possibility of buying either single seater fighters or medium bombers from the United States. It is only in the heavy bomber class that we can not claim to be at least as well off tse the United States.

Speedy Delivery Essential.

"As yet no four-engined bombers of long range and high speed have been adopted by the Air Ministry for issue to the Royal Air Force. It is perhaps worth our while to buy some heavy bombers from the United States if American manufacturers are not too busy to be able to supply them with fair promptitude.

"It would not be surprising if the mission were to investigate the possibility of manufacturing British types in Canada. Several American aircraft firms have branches and factories there, and there are also some British Empire firms, such as Canadian Vickers.

"But Canada is now increasing her air force, and that will probably keep most Canadian firms busy for some time."

Other sources said new plants might be set up in Canada in order to assure Britain of an adequate supply of planes in time of war. Motors and airplane bodies could be made in Canada, they said, and assembled in England.

The possibility was even discussed that under war time conditions Canadian-built planes might be flown to Britain, thus evading the danger of destruction by submarine attacks on shipping.

Some observers said the British government was more interested in aircraft supplies than in planes, hoping with American materials to end a lag now noted in aircraft production in comparison with other branches of the re-armament program.

POLICE PROBING BLAZE AT TWEED

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, April 22—Inspector D. H. Saville of the Fire Marshali's Department, arrived in Tweed on Wednesday to probe the fire which destroyed the barn and livestock of Clarence Graham, early last Saturday morning. In company with ConstableClair Hayes the Inspector visited the scene and commenced a careful investigation.

It is suspected that grain thieves were the cause of the fire and two persons have been questioned by Mr. Saville.

Buildings on the Ketcheson homestead, situated on the sixth concession of the Township of Sidney including a large barn and house were totally destroyed by fire shortly before midnight on Wednesday night. The fire was of undetermined origin and the loss is estimated at $5,000 partially covered by insurance.

The farm buildings had not been occupied for some time, the last tenant moving from the property in February. The fire was discovered by Blake Stickle, a neighbour, who called other residents by telephone. When they arrived the fire had gained considerable headway, the barn being practically down and the house well alight. The farm buildings were owned by Walter Ketcheson and has been in the family name for many years.

I.O.D.E. URGES ALL ELECTED PERSONS TAKE OATH TO KING

HAMILTON, Ont., April 22 (C.P.) —Retirement of three officers of the Provincial Chapter of Ontario, Independent Order Daughters of the Empire, was announced at their 18th annual meeting here on Thursday. Mrs. W. K. Foucar, Hamilton, is retiring as honorary secretary, Mrs. W. H. Harris, Port Perry, as Echoes secretary, and Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, London, as educational secretary, the latter having accepted office in the National Executive.

While each report presented at the session deals with a specific branch of work, there was an underlying emphasis on necessity for strengthening bonds within the British Commonwealth of Nations.

In presenting the 18th annual report of the Chapter, Mrs. Foudar said the Chapter is co-operating in the fund established to honor Miss Wilhelmina Gordon, for many years national educational secretary, now retired, the interest of which will be used as an annual scholarship in Queen's University.

In line with a decision of the National Chapter to co-operate with medical authorities in their campaign against cancer, the Provincial Chapter will distribute literature and other information.

Mrs. Foucar referred to the fact the expense of the Chapter's donations to Northern Ontario schools must be borne by the Chapter, the railways announcing that only to three Prairie Provinces was free transportation given.

New Chapter in Sarnia.

An application to form a Municipal Chapter in Sarnia has been approved, she said. Provincial Chapter's thanks were voiced by Mrs. Foucar to Dr. A. G. Dorland and Dean K. P. C. Neville, of the University of Western Ontario, London, and to M. Asbury, Sarnia, for their aid in selecting the winners of bursaries and scholarships.

In discussing resolutions, Mrs. Foucar said, it had been ascertained after communicating with the Federal and Provincial Governments, the law did not compel a member of a Municipal Council to take the oath of allegiance on assuming office. It was, therefore, decided to forward a resolution asking the law be amended making it compulsory for elected persons to take the oath. Consideration has been promised by the Department of Municipal Affairs. This was a resolution from Ottawa Municipal Chapter.

Mrs. A. P. Sharpe, Galt., convenor of child and family welfare, reported on welfare work.

Total receipts amounting to $20,013 was reported by Mrs. O. Main, treasurer. Educational work cost $2,271; contributions for specially designated purposes came to $6,513; national funds amounted to $13,889, and provincial funds $6,124. Balance in the general funds is $3,577.

POLLY AND HER PALS — By Cliff Sterrett

Looking Back
On This Date

APRIL 22

Fred Williams

Every year as the eve of St. George's Day comes around my thoughts go back to that April 22, 1897, when Hon. W. S. Fielding brought down his first budget and made clear, to the Liberal party at least, that the ministry intended to keep its pledge in opposition, that, if entrusted with office, it would endeavor to increase trade with the mother country.

The British preference principle inserted in that budget was not, as so many people think, a new gesture by Laurier and Fielding after they had taken office. It was in truth a plank in the Liberal platform adopted at the Ottawa convention in 1893 and had been presented to the House of Commons more than once by L. H. Davies of Prince Edward Island, and voted down by the Conservatives. I well remember Mr. Fielding's closing words that the morrow would be St. George's Day and that the next morning the customs houses of Canada would open on more favorable terms to Britain than to other nations.

The reaction was world-wide. Not only was Canada pleased, but the British press was convinced that a new era in empire relations had been born, created by those Canadian Liberals whom many English folk had considered disloyal because they would not accept imperial federation. A London correspondent wrote: "The spirit of preference for the mother country appeals to the imagination here." And that is just what it did in Australia also, where those then engaged in the creation of the commonwealth saw in the Canadian move an argument for their own national unity.

It is true there were obstacles. Britain had treaties which would have to be amended before the tariff preference could be complete. Sir Charles Tupper said these were an insuperable barrier. Mr. Laurier replied that Britain would see to it that the Canadian offer was made effective: and it was. Indeed, by one of those paradoxes which history so often brings, this Fielding preference was not, as Laurier and some of the Liberals believed, a step toward "free trade as they have it in England," but the leaven which was in 1932 to result in the inter-empire treaties of Ottawa and the abandonment of free trade by Britain. That April 22, 1897, was a real landmark in British Empire history.

Holland Sends Call To Enterprise For Ontario Maple Sugar

Tweed, April 22.

AN ORDER for maple sugar to be sent to Holland has been received by H. E. Vannest, well known sugar bush owner of Enterprise district. It is believed to be one of the first direct orders thus received in Ontario.

Maple sugar, practically an unknown product in Holland until recently, has been gaining favor, and orders for fine quality sugar have been heavier.

Sugar from the Vannest farm has gained considerable popularity abroad, having been ordered from points as far as Europe and the United States.

RELIEF STRIKER JAILED FOR SCRAP

CALGARY, April 22. —(CP). — First of Calgery's 2,000 relief strikers to be arrested since the walkout from civic projects was called April 6 in protest against relief allowance reductions, William Chibree was released from jail last night on bail.

A member of the Strike committee, he was taken into custody yesterday after a demonstration at St. George's Island Park when a city works foreman, Arthur West, and a bystander, William Toner, are alleged to have been assaulted. Police reported the men were carried bodily from the park and warned not to return.

Chibree, charged with assault, was released from jail on two property sureties of $100 each. He was arrested when he stepped out of a barber shop and will be arraigned in court to-day.

Cafeteria Supper Catholic Women's League

A most successful and much enjoyed event of Thursday evening was the well planned Cafeteria Supper held in St. Alphonsus Lyceum under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League.

Easter decorations in charge of Miss A. Simons were effectively and prettily used around the walls, and consisted of twisted streamers of mauve and yellow, pussywillows, entertaining white bunnies and yellow chicks, and 'shields' composed of chicks and flowers. Baskets of lilies and tulips and a huge red coated bunny decorated the stage.

The many little supper tables were attractive with the white and red cloths of the Catholic Women's League. Under the supervision of Mrs. A. Cauley and Mrs. J. E. Sullivan, a group of prettily gowned girls served the guests. They were the Misses Marion Best, Vivian Sullivan, Helen Burke, Jean Dorris, Jean White, Madeline Whaley and Myra Hickey.

The ladies behind the counters, which were laden with a delicious and varied assortment of dishes, were the Misses E. Deannard, L. Hurley, A. Simons, M. Clancy, and Mesdames E. White, F. Corrigan, F. Hope Dawns for Paralyzed Girl

Here is a picture which may mark the most important milestone in the life of 20-year-old Sylvia Davis, of Kansas City, Mo. The girl is shown breathing "on her own" after the current operating the respirator had been shut off. Sylvia is the girl who took a 50-50 gamble with death in submitting to a spinal operation to relieve a paralytic condition with which she has been inflicted since birth.

After the opening hymn, the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. F. Burnham and Mrs. J. Brown led in prayer. A solo, "The Holy City," was beautifully rendered by Mrs. L. Groombridge, accompanied, at the piano, by Mrs. W. A. Greenslade.

A short dialogue, entitled "Some Excuses Why I Do Not Believe in Missions," was given by Mrs. W. Cunningham, and Mrs. M. McLean.

The subject for the evening, "Missionary Work in Trindad," was ably presented by Mrs. F. Wand by the use of maps and interesting slides, depicting the people and conditions in Trindad. Mrs. W. Morton gave a brief address on the progress of missionary work at home and abroad, urging all to do their part in helping to extend the work of spreading the gospel. The meeting closed with the benediction.

O'Brien—Doris

A quiet but pretty spring wedding took place on Thursday morning in St. Peter's Cathedral at 9 o'clock when Mary Kathleen Doris of Keene became the bride of Mr. George S. O'Brien, of Peterborough, second son of Mrs. Michael Scott and the late Dennis O'Brien. Rev. Dr. Masterson performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly attired in a gown of shell pink triple sheer over taffeta with a matching jacket, pink hat and gloves and white kid sandals. She wore a shoulder bouquet of lily of the valley and carried the groom's gift, a pearl rosary. She was attended by her cousin, Miss oJsephine Lynch of Peterborough who wore a gown of pale blue georgette over taffeta, matching taffeta hat and white gloves and shoes. She wore a shoulder bouquet of carnations and narcissus and carried a pearl rosary.

The groom was attended by her brother, Mr. Michael O'Brien.

During the progress of the Mass, Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M. played appropriate music.

After the ceremony, breakfast was served to the immediate families at the home of the bride's parents in Otonabee.

After a short honeymoon to be spent in Montreal, the young couple will reside at 578 Harvey street.

Mrs. E. W. Glover Hostess W.C.T.U. Rally and Tea

Mrs. E. W. Glover, Reid street, lent her home yesterday afternoon for a W.C.T.U. rally and a delightful tea. During the afternoon, a musical program was enjoyed, opening with the usual devotional service. The scripture lesson was read by Mrs. L. A. Campbell, from St. Luke's gospel and Mrs. W. Boorman led in prayer. A very pleasing vocal solo "Angels Ever Bright and Fair" was sweetly sung by Leonard Couper, accompanied at the piano by Miss Eleanor Glover. Mrs. A. J. Throop, county W.C.T.U. president gave an interesting and instructive talk on the work of the W.C.T.U. Miss Ruth Fisher delighted with her lovely violin solo "Minuet" with Mrs. Boorman as accompanist. Announcements and offering brought the successful tea to a conclusion.

Alphabetical Sale Girls' Guild, St. Paul's

Candy, Art Gallery, Marmalade and Pickles—the first letters spelling CAMP,—were features of the novel "Alphabetical" sale the Girls' Guild of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church held in the Sunday School Hall Thursday afternoon.

Members of the Guild, looking very trim in middies and skirts, were very busy passing cups of tea to the guests, and others had charge of the different booths and the delightful "mock are gallery," where an ingenious display of jokes—puns in still life—caused much amusement. Easter colors of mauve and yellow were used for the pretty baskets and to decorate the candy stall, the pickles and preserves table, the table of marmalade and jellies, and also a display of attractive little novelties at another booth.

The many guests were received at the door by Miss Elizabeth Walker, the Guild leader, and the president, Marion Barrett. At the large tea table, Mrs. A. T. Barr and Mrs. T. J. Carley presided, and arrangements were in charge of Mrs. W. Burrell and Mrs. R. C. Prophet. The table was beautifully arranged with prettily patterned lace cloth, and centrepiece of pussywillows with tiny yellow chicks perching in the branches, and grouped with little Easter eggs in the surrounding green base. Miss Sadie Anderson acted as treasurer.

WAR VERSUS MUSIC

LEEDS, England—(CP).—In the disturbed state of the world it was impossible for musicians and the musically-inclined to give their whole thoughts to music, declared Lady Snowden at the annual meeting of the National Federation of Music Societies here.

Pay Full Wages In Confinement

BERLIN, April 22 (CP) — The German Labor front has been campaigning in Thuringia to get wage concessions for women workers who are expecting to become mothers. More than 500 employers of labor in this district have now announced the following concessions:

Six weeks before the expected accouchement the woman should give up her work; during her absence the employer will pay full wages; and during the last four months of the pregnacy an expectant mother may only be given light work to do, but she must be paid her usual weekly wage.

WOMEN'S WORK AND INTERESTS

Religious Drama Is Presented In St. James' United Church

"For He Had Great Possessions," the story of the rich young ruler, Ben Azel, who sought Jesus, formed the basis of the impressive and very beautiful religious drama presented Thursday night in St. James' United Church by members of the congregation, with E. R. Frost, Sunday School superintendent, acting as chairman.

With its inspiring Easter message of resurrection, the sacred play, directed by Mrs. Ernest Kitney, A.T.C.M., assisted by Rev. F. W. and Mrs. Craik, and Mrs. A. Rosborough, was a dignified presentation of events in the life of the young nobleman before and after the crucifixion of Christ.

The young people who enacted so well the five scenes, seemed to have caught the real meaning of the poignant story in its full import and with all the doubts and uncertainties that pervaded these dark days.

Presented with fine lighting effects in a colorful Eastern setting, and the rich furnishings of the nobleman's courtyard, the beautiful costuming too, was a faithful reproduction of Biblical times. The speech, also, followed the picturesque forms of the Scripture in all its dignity and impressiveness. In graphic style, the story (fancied or otherwise) of the rich young man, who was commanded by Jesus to sell his goods and give to the poor, was unfolded. Ben Azel's sad and disillusioned return from this visit was pictured and the climax was reached in the calamity which befell his household, in the death of his only son, a lovely child. This crushing blow does away with Ben Azel's self interest and pride of his great possessions and love comes into its own through the influence of the Christ. The final triumphant note was sounded in Ben Azel's ringing declaration of faith, "I believe. There is no darkness. There is no death. There is only—God."

Well Portrayed.

Ben Azel, who was preparing for his secret visit with the Master, was portrayed with great perfection by Ernest Davis, while his wife, the beautiful Asenath, in the shimmering silken robes and jewels of the East, was splendidly depicted by Gladys Langton. Their greatest treasure, a darling little son, Azor, was one of the finest characterizations of the whole drama, as done by Glen Hagerman, while his companion, Hadassah, the charming maiden, a devoted young Christian, was appealingly presented by Jean Hammond, who won her audience at once. In their graceful flowing robes, the hand maids of Asenath, Leah and Miriam were well impersonated by Evelyn Watson and Shirley Brown. Contrasting the costumes of the male members of the cast were more dignified in character, as shown by Johanan, a friend of Ben Azel and Nason, his steward. Both of these roles were excellently played by Jack English and Rev. Mr. Craik respectively.

Showing the great influence of Jesus also, was Zakkai, the chief tax collector of Jericho, who was represented by Earl Wood in realistic manner, while blind Bar Timaeus, the father of Hadassah, whose sight was restored through his faith in the Galilean, was ably acted by Harold Fife.

Adding greatly to the effectiveness of the production was the suitable musical setting with selections from Handel's Messiah, with Cecil Lapp, the church organist, at the piano throughout. The program between scenes included: Ladies' quartette, Misses Iva Pilling, Martha and Agnes Sands and Nancy Lane: (a) "I heard the voice of Jesus say," (b) "I love Him because He first loved me"; piano solo, "He shall feed His flock" (Messiah), by Cecil Lapp; solo, "Then shall the eyes of the blind be opened," Mrs. J. Monks; quartette, "Open my eyes that I may see," Mesdames E. R. Frost, G. Cuffs, and Messrs. Gerald Cuff and B. Pitchford; solo, "If with all your heart" (Elijah), Harold Lee.

As a fitting finale to the program were the triumphant strains of the "Hallelujah Chorus," sung by the choir, while the audience reverently stood and was dismissed by the pastor with the benediction.

Also contributing to the success of the evening was the assistance of Robert Hardie, John Sanderson and Arthur McLaren, the Brotherhood, and Mrs. W. Davidson for flowers.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"When Earth's last picture is painted,
And the tubes are twisted and dried,
When the oldest colors have faded,
And the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest, and, faith, we shall need it—
Lie down for an eon or two,
Till the Master of All Good Workmen
Shall set us to work anew."
—L'Envoi by Rudyard Kipling.

Dear Friends:

In my mail this week there was a letter from a lady who said in part: "Roberta, recently my doctor told me my heart was rather bad, that I was liable to go any time, and that I must go easy. Now after working hard all my life, I am slowed down, and can give more time to thinking of the next world, (if there is such a place."

Well, I'll tell you "troubled" as far as I am concerned, if I were not absolutely convinced there was another world, I do not think I would care to go on much longer with this life. After all, no one can deny that there is more pain than pleasure, more work than play, more disappointments than fulfilments, so, if there was nothing to look forward to after this is over, we have been hoodwinked, fooled, let down and betrayed.

Many historical works have been written, but how many could you name offhand? You seem well-educated, so let me ask you something. If the Bible were only a historical work, why has it survived for over nineteen centuries? All through the old testament men worshipped God, gave sacrifices to Him individually, then for a family, then a tribe, until God's Son Jesus came and was a sacrifice, not alone for the Jews but for the whole world.

It used to be "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," but when He came, all that was reversed, for He preached love. Battles of every kind has raged around the Bible, yet it still survives, and is the only thing we can depend on for life here and hereafter.

Look around you at the order of the Universe. The seasons, the trees, the flowers, grain and fruit, the days, weeks, months, years. Order in all of them, so is it natural to suppose there would be no order in our lives too? We grow from childhood to man or womanhood, middle age to old age, and as we grow we learn by the evidence on every side that this is not all there is to it.

Kipling tells us further:

"And those that were good shall be happy:
They shall sit in a golden chair;
They shall splash at a ten-league canvas
With brushes of comet's hair;
They shall find real saints to draw from—
Magdalene, Peter and Paul;
They shall work for an age at a sitting
And never be tired at all!"

It will depend on ourselves and how far we have progressed as to what place we get in the next world, or whether we go there at all, or are destroyed as worthless rubbish. But, never let anything or anyone cause you to doubt there is a Heaven, for without it all order would fail, and just as we look forward to full growth, or relief from pain, or getting a diploma, so must we look forward to fuller growth in the next world.

"And only the Master shall praise us, and
Only the Master shall blame;
And no one shall work for money, and
No one shall work for fame;
But each for the joy of the working, and
Each, in his separate star
Shall draw the Thing as he sees It
For the God of Things as They are."

That is what I try to do for all of you, draw the things as I see them, as they have been shown to me, and who else could show them but the One who made them and me? How else would I be sure, unless I got the vision to see.

I, too, am living on the edge of Eternity, and I naturally don't want to fool myself any more than I would fool you. There are many things of life and living I cannot explain any more than you could, but one thing I do know, there is another world for which this one is only the preparation. Write again, "troubled." Your Friend,

ROBERTA.

Proxy Mothers To Take Charge

NEWARK, N.J., April 22 (CP)—In some home in New Jersey State a mother is ill and there are children to feed, a house must be kept in order. But there are 1,025 "mothers," operating in 36 New Jersey municipalities and 14 counties, under the relief administration, who are prepared to take over where illness, death or other emergency has incapacitated the housewife.

The housekeeping brigade completes the charge of household duties, usually not longer than three weeks. The mother by proxy arrives at 7.30 in the morning, prepares the children for school, and takes over the daily routine—dishwashing, cooking, mending and so on. Before they enter a home the proxy mothers, who are paid $62.50 a month, receive special training supervised by public welfare doctors and nurses.

Mrs. Helen L. Davis, state supervisor, says the project which began in December, 1935, in Morristown, may soon employ 1,000 more women.

Millbrook Personals

Mr. F. L. Edworthy is visiting at Ottawa, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander.

Born: At Millbrook, on Wednesday, April 13, to Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Lunn, a daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Thomas, of Toronto, are spending the Easter vacation with their daughter, Mrs. J. W. Wright, and Dr. Wright.

Mrs. T. C. and Miss Vanita Ingram returned at the beginning of the week from Toronto, her son, Lawrence, who was recently injured in an accident, accompanying them home.

Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong, of St. Catharines, left on Monday after spending the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wood.

George Elson, of Regina, Alberta, is visiting his brother, Wilfrid Elson, and Mrs. Elson, at the homestead, Seventh Line, Cavan.

Mrs. H. Martin, and two children, of Kitchener, have returned home after a visit with Miss Emma Hunter, Huston street, over the Easter holiday.

Mr. Jack Stinson, of Wellington, and Miss Jean Stinson, of Cobourg, are home for the Easter vacation with their parents ex-Warden Percy and Mrs. Stinson.

According to word received from Dr. L. B. Williams, president of the Toronto Durham Club, the organization plans a pilgrimage in June to the Scriven Memorial, preferably at Port Hope, providing the stone is removed to a more suitable location, and put in better condition than it has been kept in up to date.

The club feels that to hold its pilgrimage to the actual burial-place of the well-known hymn writer would not be the best plan, since electricity would not be available to install loud speakers, and other advantages would be lacking. The actual grave of Joseph Scriven, and the monument marking it which was raised by popular subscription, is in the little private cemetery on Pengelly farm, by the shores of Rice Lake, as will be generally recalled.

JUST LOVES PARTIES

LONDON—(CP).—Mrs. Charlotte Despard, noted suffragette leader, hopes to celebrate her 94th birthday in June with a party, "because she loves parties' and will visit the Women's Freedom League of which she was first president.

Germany has a shortage of chemists.

Tulle for Dancing

A BLACK TULLE frock is romantic for spring and summer dancing. Florence George, young screen player, is modeling this dress, an original by Edith Head. The skirt is full and made in layers over the slip. The bodice line is interesting, and narrow straps of the tulle accentuate the decolletage. A large petaled fan of stiffened black tulle is introduced with the gown, and indicates the revival of fans.

Selwyn Personals

Mrs. Ballard and Miss Ballard of Meaford are the guests of Hr. and Mrs. Carmen Whitmore, for the Easter Vacation.

Mr. Ray Crapp of Hamilton spent the Easter weekend visiting with relatives and friends in the vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Bell and daughter Beverley of Peterborough were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyl over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Preston and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald visited with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Seabrook in Otonabee, on Monday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Wilson and daughter June spent the Easter weekend with Mrs. Wilson's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Neil Whitmore in Apsley.

Miss Maurietta Elliott of Peterborough and sister Miss Edna Elliott spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Sanderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jim McConkey were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald on Easter Sunday.

Mr. F. M. Young of Young's Point and daughter, Aileen of Codrington visited with friends in the vicinity on Sunday.

Miss Thelma Galvin of Peterborough spent the Easter weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hughes.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Association of the Selwyn United church, Rev. C. C. Miller was present and brought before the women, the proposition of installing the Hydro in the United church. The matter was left entirely with the men of the congregation and although no definite plans have been made as yet, it is thought that the electric power will be brought to the church from the Selwyn Cheese-factory corner.

11 DETROIT UNITS TIED BY STRIKES

DETROIT, April 22 — (AP). — Strikes closed the Bohn Aluminum & Brass Corporation's eight plants here to-day, bringing to 11 the number of industrial units in Detroit in which labor troubles have stopped production.

In Flint, 3,700 employees of General Motors' Fisher Body Plant No. 1 returned to work without incident after a three-day shut-down resulting from a United Automobile Workers' picketing campaign to collect union dues.

Fifteen hundred men employed on the Buick Motor Co. final assembly line were expected to resume work either to-day or to-morrow when bodies from the Fisher plant become available.

The U.A.W. agreed Tuesday to withdraw its dues-collecting picket line at the Fisher plant when William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors, announced operations would not be resumed until the practice was discontinued.

The plants idle in Detroit, in addition to the Bohn aluminum units, were those of the American Brass Corp., closed since Tuesday because of a U.A.W. demonstration against a 10 per cent wage cut; the Michigan Steel Castings Co., and the Detroit Moulding Co.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, April 23.

Old as well as new plans and undertakings are under excellent indications for progress and success on this day, according to the sidereal operations. It is likely that sudden and possibly devastating changes, with removal and change of plans, may be needed to get settled in the most harmonious and helpful situation. Land, property, old investments, perhaps insurance, gifts or inheritances, may figure in this, with young people as well as old having important consideration.

If This Is Your Birthday,

Those whose birthday it is are under very encouraging auspices for growth, progress and financial stability after a radical upheaval or reorientation of environs, plans ideas and associations. Sudden factors may arise to change plans, and these may be in connection with investments, property, wills, insurance or gifts. Young people have important place in decisions and final success.

A child born on this day may have fine creative and inventive ability, with much originality and progressive ideas, but it may be adventurous, unsettled, and even eccentric. It should have an eventful life.

Entire Antarctic Continent Claimed For U.S.

Assert Land Located by New Englander in 1820 But Maps Suppressed by British Government

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 23 (AP).—The entire antarctic continent, including the South Pole, was claimed today for the United States by right of discovery in a report before the American Philosophical Society by Dr. William H. Hobbs of the University of Michigan.

Speaking in the shadow of Independence Hall where representatives of the American colonies signed the Declaration of Independence, Dr. Hobbs declared that the first map of the antarctic, made by a New England sea captain, was deliberately suppressed by the British government in 1822 and a new one issued to give England priority in the discovery.

The first discovery of the continent was made by Captain Nathaniel Brown Palmer, who server as commander of an American vessel in the war of 1812 as a youth of 18, Dr. Hobbs said.

Mapped Whole Coast

In 1820 he sailed on a seal-hunting expedition to the south polar seas in a ship little larger than the lifeboats of modern super-liners. He landed on the antarctic continent, sailed along its coast to map it and later discovered also the South Shetland Islands, he added.

During the following year he again coasted the polar seas and cooperated with a Captain Powell of the British navy in charting other areas, Dr. Hobbs declared. The original map of Captain Palmer, on which antartica was designated as "Palmer's Land", was suppressed by English authorities, he added, with most of the names of bays, inlets, and prominences changed and antartica re-named "Trinity Land."

These facts can be proved, the Michigan University geographer declared, from maps, log books, and other records which he found in libraries of the United States and foreign countries and in the British Admiralty Office.

Claimed Only When Useful.

Whether the proof of priority in discovery will ever prove useful is impossible to determine, members of the Philosophical Society said. They pointed out, however, that the United States has never asserted its rights of discovery of Canton Island in the South Pacific until it recently became useful as an air base on the trade route to New Zealand and Australia.

It might also be that Antarctica will become useful as a transpolar air base, they said, since Russian flyers successfully flew over the North Pole last summer. The flights of Lincoln Ellsworth and Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his associates over the Antarctic continent indicate that it is feasible.

Explorations of the Byrd expeditions also indicate that coal and mineral deposits exist in Antarctica and might some day prove valuable, Dr. Hobbs said.

IRELAND, BRITAIN IRON OUT DISPUTE GOING BACK TO '32

LONDON, April 23 (A.P.). — Ireland was aligned to-day among the countries settling their differences with Great Britain, with the conclusion of an agreement hailed as the most important between the two countries since Ireland was partitioned in 1922.

The Dominions Office announced the accord yesterday, but details were reserved until Monday when the agreement is to be signed.

Prime Minister Eamon de Valera and his colleagues planned to leave Dublin to-night for London. The formal signing on Monday will take place in the Cabinet Room after a luncheon with Prime Minister Chamberlain.

It was reliably reported in Dublin that the agreement settled longstanding land annuities and tariff differences and included a compromise on defence questions, but left untouched the major issue—Mr. de Valera's ambition for a united Ireland including the six northern counties.

The settlement was announced as Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary of State for War, prepared to visit Premier Mussolini in Rome this afternoon as a friendly personal gesture following the signing last Saturday of the Anglo-Italian pact, and British ministers arranged for a conference next Thursday with Premier Edouard Deladier of France.

Easier Feeling in Ireland.

It was said the understanding with Ireland should relax the longstanding political tension between Great Britain and the former Irish Free State, and perhaps pave the way for a better understanding between Ireland and Northern Ireland.

In this connection significance was attached to the selection of the Protestant, Dr. Douglas Hyde, 78-year-old Gaelic scholar, by Ireland's two largest political parties as their candidate for President in the May 31 election.

Dr. Hyde's selection was seen as a gesture toward Northern Ireland, where Protestants are in the majority. Dr. Hyde yesterday announced his acceptance of the joint nomination, and his election became a virtual certainty when Alfred Byrne, Lord Mayor of Dublin, abandoned plans to run as an independent candidate.

Cardinal MacRory, Primate of all Ireland, gave his "cordial endorsement" to the Hyde nomination.

Troubles Date To 1932.

Economic differences between Britain and Ireland date back to 1932, when Mr. De Valera, then Irish Free State President, withheld payment to Great Britain to land annuities

NOTED WAR NURSE PASSES OUT WEST

WINNIPEG, April 23 (CP).—Miss Jean Matheson, noted war nurse who retired last August as matron of Shaughnessy Military Hospital, Vancouver, died last night in hospital here. She was 65.

Miss Matheson joined the Canadian army medical service in 1915 and was decorated by King George V for meritorious service in Salonika, where she served two years with No. 5 Canadian Stationary Hospital at Liverpool, England, where she remained until the end of the war.

Returning to Canada she was appointed matron of Shaughnessy Hospital at Vancouver and held that position until her retirement. She received the King George Jubilee Medal in 1936.

Daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. Archibald Matheson, she was born in Clinton, Ont.

Nearly 900,000 people in England have been rehoused under the Government's slum clearance project.

Season's First Catch Who says there is a scarcity of muskies in this district? Here is one one of the dozens of the breed seen by two Examiner men this week. Held by the government's fish hatchery superintendent, Harry Cheeseman, this fellow weighs more than 25 pounds. He will be waiting to greet good fishermen this summer at Pigeon Creek. The government men have ten nets sunk in the water of Pigeon Creek. Each morning they lift the nets, take the spawn from the female lunge, and the sperm of the male. From one net they lifted more than a ton of fish—lunge, bass, perch, sunfish. (Examiner Staff Photo.)

Poisons Brothers For Vengeance

Girl Factory Worker Admits Using Rat Killer To Even Score After Two Teeth Knocked Out

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—Assistant District Attorney Edmund Rowan said today that Elizabeth Wagner, 22-year-old factory worker, had confessed killing her brothers, Henry, 21, and Charles, 14, by feeding them rat poison.

Rowan said the girl told him after an all-night questioning she had administered the poison in her brothers' meals over a period of weeks. She was charged with homicide and held for arraignment in Queens Felony Court.

The Assistant District Attorney said Miss Wagner told him she did not know she gave the poison to to her younger brother but that she was angry at Henry because he shouted at her and once struck her in the face, knocking out two teeth.

Henry, an unemployed tinner, became suspicious after he and his brother fell ill about two weeks ago, Rowan said the girl related, and accused her of poisoning their food.

"Don't be foolish," Rowan quoted Miss Wagner as saying. "I'll taste it myself."

The girl, whose widowed mother, Mrs. Marie Wagner, works in the factory with her, then became ill, not know why she gave the poison She recovered. The brothers died early this week.

ONTARIO SEEKING TIME TO APPEAL IN COMBA'S CASE

TORONTO, April 23. —(CP).— Application will be made in Supreme Court of Canada Monday for extension of time in which to appeal the Ontario Court of Appeal decision quashing the murder conviction of John Comba, 26-year-old Pembroke cripple, W. B. Common, senior solicitor in the Ontario Attorney-General's Department, announced to-day.

Comba recently was freed from Pembroke jail after being sentenced to be hanged for the sex-slaying of 13-year-old Ethel Hedderwick of Renfrew last fall. The Attorney-General's Department is awaiting a minority report of Mr. Justice F. R. Latchford on the successful Comba appeal before deciding whether to appeal Comba's release.

Deadline for the Attorney-General's appeal ordinarily would expire April 27 and the Department has asked for at least a 30-day extension, Mr. Common said.

FRESH LOYALISTS STRIKE TO RETAKE LOST CATALONIA

HENDAYE, France, April 23.—(AP).—General Jose Miaja's reinforced government army defending the Mediterranean coastal region north of Valencia to-day counter-attacked along a 16-mile front extending from Albocacer to Alcala De Chivert.

Hand-to-hand fighting was reported in the streets of Albocacer as government forces undertook to reconquer the 390 square miles of territory captured by the insurgents during the past week.

The government Catalonian forces have checked the insurgent drive northward in the Tortosa sector, holding a defence line along the northern bank of the Ebro river.

General Miaja's counter-offensive in the theatre of operations 80 miles north of Valencia was designed to push the insurgents back toward the Ebro and, if possible, regain control of the coastal plains linking Catalonia with South-eastern Spain.

For two days the insurgents, trying to spread their seacoast wedge, have made no advance southward in the Albocacer-Alcala De Chivert sector.

Trucks and trains brought reserve troops from Madrid, Granada and other points in the South-eastern Spanish territory over which General Miaja is military ruler.

SAFE DRIVERS' REWARD

ST. PAUL, April 23.—(AP).— A "safe drivers reward" plan whereby motorists with good traffic records will receive a 15 per cent debate on casualty insurance premiums was approved to-day by State Insurance Commissioner Frank Yetka.

Toll In Virginia Explosion May Reach 41

10,000 Relatives, Friends, Neighbors Rush to Spot As Rescue Crews Dig Frantically Through Debris

GRUNDY, Va., April 23 (AP).—Bodies of 20 men, victims of an explosion in the Keene Mountain mine of the Red Jacket Coal Company, were recovered today from the debris-filled shafts and workers said the death list might reach 41.

Although a check of men in the two shafts believed to have been the only one affected showed only 28 men were in the mine at the time of the blast, it was discovered that 13 others were in another part of the mine.

Mingo Keadle, vice-president of the Red Jacket Company, said the air had been cleared in all shafts, and rescue squads were working their way through them, but scant hope was held for any of those in the mine. All the miners were white men.

Superintendent E. R. Kirby was one of the first to enter the damaged shafts and took charge of the rescue work. The crews found a steel fan constructed to supply 32,000 feet of air per minute twisted from its base.

Shock Felt for Miles.

The explosion, believed caused by dust, wrecked the mine, one of the largest in Buchanan County, just after four mine cars carrying men for the night shift had entered the shaft. The concussion was felt for miles around.

Rescue workers who did not reach the scene until after dark, first came upon the bodies of four mine motor operators sprawled in the motor barn not far inside the mouth.

News of the disaster spread quickly in the colony huddled in a narrow valley over which Cumberland Peaks tower. Two hours later State Police estimated 10,000 persons were on the scene.

Relatives, friends and neighbors, a pathetic group, were held back by State Police and later retired from the scene at the urging of the officers.

Bodies of the men removed from the mine and those killed at the entrance were taken to Richlands, Va., where they filled the town's two funeral homes. Several were so badly burned that identification was difficult and three remained unidentified.

Three Escape With Injuries

Twelve identified were: Ernest Boyd, Hammond Varney, Orville Street, Coy Reed, J. L. Blevins, Kilmer Patrick, Ed. Gilley, Claud Dollar, J. W. Combs, Glenn Ratcliffe, Arvil Norris and F. L. Buckler.

Three miners suffered injuries. They were: J. W. Elam and Clarence Combs, and Ed Harris.

The coal mine on Keen Mountain opened last November and was one of the most modern in the Appalachian region. It had a potential capacity of 7,000 tons a day, but had been operated in recent weeks at only 2,000 tons daily.

Sergeant Paul F. Sprenger of the Virginia State Police witnessed the explosion and said two men were decapitated by the big motor as it fell.

Sergeant Sprenger took charge at the entrance as friends and relatives hurriedly assembled, frightened, almost stunned.

The mine, of the "rift" type and one of the largest operating in this section, normally employs about 300 men. There are numerous entries

COOGAN'S MOTHER IS GIVEN CHANCE TO CHANGE STORY

HOLLYWOOD, April 23 (A.P.).—Jackie Coogan's mother, stating "I'd go through fire and water for the boy," was given permission to-day to alter or amend the sworn deposition she made last Monday in the suit filed by her son for an accounting of the money he earned as "The Kid' of the silent screen.

The mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein, won the right to change her statement when young Coogan's attorneys agreed she should be allowed to give a more complete account of early financial transactions in the days when Jackie was styled as a million-dollar star of the screen.

A proposed trip by Coogan to New York will not be made, his attorney said to-day. Although it had been stated by the young actor's associates he was to appear on a radio broadcast there, no reason was given by the attorney for Coogan remaining here.

A Guardianship Explanation.

Completion of Mrs. Bernstein's deposition was ordered by the court to be made on Monday. She said she wished to explain the guardianship petition she and her deceased husband filed in 1923 in Probate Court in which they declared their intent to establish a trust fund for their son's earnings. Mrs. Bernstein previously testified she never planned to establish a trust fund for Jackie.

Argument on the question of appointment of a temporary receiver for all Bernstein and Coogan property pending the outcome of Coogan's suit against his mother and step-father was continued until May 2.

RESCUE EFFORTS ON BLAZING AUTO COST MAN'S LIFE

TORONTO, April 23.—(CP). — Burned from head to foot, Hubert Grattan, 22, died to-day a few minutes after he and two companions attempted to drag a blazing automobile from a barn in York township.

Grattan's clothes caught fire as he and Miller Longworth and Theodore Brown tugged at the car. Longworth and Brown were burned badly.

John O'Flaherty and a companion rushed from a nearby house and threw a dressing gown about Grattan in an attempt to put out the flames. Cause of the fire, which destroyed the barn, could not be explained immediately by the police.

FIND FISH BOAT BURNED ON ISLE FEAR TRIO DEAD

Launch Fleet Combs Manitoulin Waters

GORE BAY, Ont., April 23.—(CP).—The fire-blackened hull of an open gas-powered fishing boat was found to-day on the shores of Barrie Island after an intensive search got under way for Clifford McKinley, Donald Merrylee and Louis Wittyn who left here Thursday morning.

A fleet of gas launches set out from Gore Bay, on Manitoulin Island in Northern Ontario, as soon as Alvin Phelan reported finding McKinley's boat. A slim hope was held that the three fishermen may have found shelter on one of numerous islands that dot Lake Huron near the fishing grounds.

Though residents here had no definite word, it was believed possible Thomas Goldern of Silverwater, near here, may have been with the fishing trio. Golden left his home Thursday morning and has not been heard of or seen since.

Fishermen here said hope of finding the trio alive was slim, that their only chance was they were near shore when fire broke out in their boat. Ordinarily, however, trout and whitefish fishermen do their netting a mile or more from shore.

The searchers headed first for the islands nearest the spot where McKinley, Merrylee, and Wittyn were known to have been fishing If they reached one of the islands they would not have been able to communicate with the mainland without a boat.

SHANTUNG BATTLE RAGES UNABATED

SHANGHAI, April 23 (AP).—The 26th army which defeated Japanese at Taierhchwang more than a week ago bore the brunt of furious fighting today defending that ruined town in South Shantung Province.

Centre of the battle was at Hungwatutun, red-tiled village between Taierhchwang and Yihsien, from which a Japanese garrison of 5,000 cut its way yesterday after several days of siege.

General Tan Gen-Po, who asked to be executed if he failed to take Taierhchwang in the recent successful Chinese attack, was defending three villages immediately south of Yihsien as Japanese endeavored to crack Chinese lines.

Moving to the support of Japanese units on the Tientsin-Pukow Railway line at the Hanchwang crossing of the Grand Canal, and on the branch line before Taierhchwang, Lieut.-General Kenjo Doihara, Japan's "Lawrence of Manchuria," was reported to have arrived with his 14th Division at Tenghsien. He proceeded with his troops in trucks south toward Tsaochwang, 37 miles north of Taierhchwang.

Chinese war maps showed General Sun Lien-Chung defending the village of Likou north of Tsaochwang. Eastward on the nearby Yi River front, Chinese believed to number 200,000 launched a counter-offensive northward on both banks of the river, in an effort to turn the flank of Japanese lines.

CLOCKS ADVANCE TONIGHT

TORONTO, April 23 (C.P.). — The clock moves ahead an hour to-night as more than a dozen Eastern Canadian cities, towns and villages revert to daylight saving time for the summer. In most cases the "fast time" will be in effect until September 24.

ANOTHER MONKEY CHASE

HALIFAX, April 23 (C.P.). — This city's monkey menace broke out anew to-day when two more of the Simians which escaped from the Far East freighter City of Salisbury were seen around the docks. Attempts to lure them into traps with bananas failed. They slept among the girders of the freight sheds all night.

Rumania is replacing foreigners by Rumanians in commerce and industry.

Candid Shots Of Detroit 'Eve' Prove Cop No Photographer

Under-Exposes Over-Exposed Model Then Pinches 19 Camera Fans, 2 Nudes and The 'Prop'

DETROIT, April 23 (C.P.).— An under-exposed picture of an over-exposed model was police evidence to-day against the operator of an "art" studio and two models, who, police said, posed in the nude for candid camera enthusiasts. Warrants charging disorderly conduct have been recommended against Lester Ash, 36, studio proprietor, and Ann Adams, 21, who was doing a bit of an "Eve" when police raided the studio on Thursday.

A 17-year-old girl, also alleged to have posed in the nude, is in the Juvenile Detention Home. Four women and 15 men who were snapping shutters in the studio when it was raided were released after questioning. They said they had each paid a $1 fee to the studio operator.

Police have a picture of Miss Adams posing au naturel, taken by Patrolman Leo Sonner with a candid camera. Unaccustomed to shooting pictures of undraped females, Sonner muffed the assignment and only one picture was printable out of a roll he took at various angles. The lone picture is hardly discernible.

Cars Whip 200 Miles Of Muskeg To Save Life Of Priest

No Trains Available So Railroaders Take to Trail to Reach Cochrane In 12-Hour Epic

MOOSONEE, Ont., April 23 (CP) —Story of toil and hardship encountered in an automobile trip over all but impassable northern Ontario roads—a trip necessitated by urgent need of medical attention for an ill Roman Catholic priest—was related here last night by a railway section foreman.

Back at his home here, Charles Pullen, section foreman for the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, said the trip "was the hardest I ever put in in my life." Only the serious condition of the priest, Father, Edward Meilleur, forced a two-car expedition to continue on to Cochrane, he said.

Father Meilleur, member of the Oblate Order's Mission here, was stricken with appendicits on Wednesday night. Hospital attention was needed. Train service to the isolated port at this season is sharply curtailed and Pullen volunteered to attempt the 200-mile trip south to Cochrane by motor-car.

Purse-Grabber's Blows Bring Lashes

Montreal, April 23 (CP).

EDOUARD LEVESQUE, 23-year-old purse snatcher, will get a taste of his own medicine for beating a woman he robbed.

Levesque pleaded guilty to striking Jeanne Martel, 26, when he stole her purse and $34. Judge F. T. Enright sentenced him today to three months in jail and fifteen lashes.

"It is the only punishment fit for you," said the Judge.

$5,000 License On 5-Ton Truck Is Way Australia Ends Road-Rail Fight

Montreal, April 23 (CP).

WHEN an Australian truck driver pauses to wipe the dust from the licence tags of his machine, he's dusting something really worth while, according to Chairman J. W. Davidson of the Queensland Transport Board.

Plates for a five-ton truck—and they don't come much bigger — cost almost $5,000, enough for a couple of Canadian cars with perhaps a chauffeur thrown in and a little left over for the license.

But not all trucks, said Mr. Davidson before he sailed today in the liner Duchess of Bedford, do licenses cost that much. The small, one-ton delivery wagon may be equipped for $1,140 a year. There are, however, a few exceptions, including machines used for charitable purposes.

The high licence fee was Australia's solution to highway-rail competition, the board chairman said.

"It wasn't a popular move," he admitted, "but it had to be done."

Current To Death Chair Fails As Killer Pleads Innocence

Texas Governor Is Forced To Delay Double Execution For a Week

HUUTSVILLE, Tex., April 23. — (AP)—Two condemned murderers received a week's reprieve today because current supplying the electric chair at state prison here failed while one of them was declaring his innocence in a death chamber speech.

As John Vaughan, convicted as the slayer of a policeman, stood before the chair, Warden W. W. Waid called to Chaplain C. E. Garrett: "Wait just a minute. The motor is down."

Inspection disclosed a motor-generator unit had broken down. Waid telephoned Gov. James V. Allred, who reprieved Vaughan and Johnnie Banks, Negro convicted of killing a 13-year-old girl, for a week.

Vaughan, smoking a cigar, surveyed the group of about 40 witnesses.

"I have a speech I want to make you men," Vaughan said, his hands on his hips. "I am being executed to save another man from being executed. I said a prayer today and I asked God to stop this electrocution and he has brought warning to man to realize it was against his will—"

Officials went behind the scene to inspect the generator.

"Gentlemen, I'll continue my speech," Vaughan went on. "I fell heir to another man's crime."

Waid returned announced "well, we'll have to put it off." Vaughan started back to death row.

LOYALISTS PERISH TRAPPED AT SEA

HENDAYE, France, April 23 (AP). —The insurgent fleet, led by the cruiser Canarias, today captured or sank a score of fishing boats in which government militiamen were attempting to get from Catalonia to the coast farther south to join the forces of General Jose Miaja.

Insurgent dispatches said the smallest of the government ships hugging the coast were taken by fishing boats the insurgents had armed, while the Canarias and other units of the fleet captured a number of small steam craft.

Most of the fugitives made their dash down the coast at night, but the insurgent navy spotted them with searchlights.

The militiamen previously had belonged to the command of General Miaja, now commander-in-chief for all government Spain except isolated Catalonia. They were caught in the Tortosa sector when the insurgents drove through to the sea at Vinaroz last Friday, driving a wedge between Catalonia and other government territory.

PROBE IN TORONTO SITS TWO WEEKS

TORONTO, April 23.—(CP). — The Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial relations will hold its Toronto sittings in the Assembly Chamber of the Ontario Legislative Buildings, starting Monday, it was announced to-day.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant will welcome the commissioners, headed by Chief Justice Newton W. Rowell of Ontario, who are to hear presentation of more than 20 briefs during their sessions here. Sessions are expected to last two weeks or longer.

The Ontario Government brief is to be submitted during the week of May 2, according to preliminary arrangements.

Briefs will be submitted in the following order at the start of sittings next week: Citizens' Research Institute, Toronto Board of Trade, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, (Supplementary Brief), Canadian Mortgage Institute (Supplementary), Canadian Chain Stores Association, Ontario Municipal Association, Toronto Property Owners' Association, National Construction Council and City of Toronto.

REV. J. M. ALLAN IS SPECIAL SPEAKER Y.P.U. CONVENTION

"Christian Youth Facing a New World" was the theme of the spring convention of the Peterborough Presbytery Young People's Union, held in an all-day session yesterday in St. James' United Church, with the president, Bruce Dawson, presiding.

The morning session opened at ten o'clock with the registration of delegates, after which Havelock Y.P.U. led the worship service.

A cordial welcome was extended to the visiting young people in gracious words by Rev. Fred Craik, pastor of the convention church, while Bruce Dawson responded, thanking St. James' Church for their kindly hospitality and attention to their comfort. The appointment of committees resulted in the following groups: Nominating Committee: Rev. C. H. Ferguson, convenor, Bob Spence and B. B. Dawson. Business: Vance Wilson, Phyllis Kidd and Don Charlton. Courtesy: Bob Spence and Betty O'Brien.

Young People's Problems.

In an open forum, young people's problems were discussed, and much practical help given to the representatives of the various unions. Announcement was made of the summer school to be held at Oak Lake, and all workers urged to attend. The morning session closed with prayer by Rev. Mr. Ferguson.

Robert Kitchen, convenor of the missionary department, presided at the afternoon session, with the Lakefield union conducting the service of worship. Reports of the Presbytery executive were presented by the convenors, the treasurer, the secretary and the president, showing a year of fine activity in every branch, with a hopeful outlook for the coming year.

Religious Drama.

A feature of the afternoon was the presentation of a religious drama, "The Dust of the Road," by the Lakefield group under the direction of Rev. George Kelly. With its modern setting and fine delineation, this playlet brought a real Easter message and demonstrated to the young people how the religious drama can add to the spiritual life of the church.

Just here, words of appreciation for his splendid service to the Presbytery were expressed by Homer Borland to the retiring president, Bruce Dawson.

The assembly was broken into departmental groups and each led by its own Presbytery convenor. These conferences are highlights in every convention, where the lay members feel free to ask for needed information and the leaders thoroughly qualified to give it.

Reports of committees were heard, including that of the Nominating Committee by Rev. C. H. Ferguson.

Officers Elected.

A splendid executive staff for the coming year was presented by the committee and duly elected and installed, with the Rev. E. M. Cook, chairman of the Presbytery, presiding:

Honorary President, Rev. E. M. Cook; Past President, Bruce Dawson; President, Bob Spence, Lakefield; Secretary, Barbara Dawson, Stewart Hall; Treasurer, Don Charlton, Peterborough; Christian Fellowship, Frances Clarke; Christian Mission, Bob Kitchen; Christian Citizenship, Vance Wilson, Yelverton; Christian Culture, Olive Bell, Peterborough; Recreation, Esther Thornton and Loretta MacDougall, Peterborough; Dramatics, Lloyd Richards, Peterborough; Leadership Training, Rev. C. L. Brown, Springville; Publications, Earl Chase, Lakehurst; Promoter Boys' Work, Don Charlton; Promoter Girls' Work, Phyllis Kidd, Millbrook; Promoter Young Adult Work, Vera Squire, Peterborough.

District Chairman — West, Clara Beer, Bethany; East, Earn Bongard, Norwood; Centre, Charlie Huffman, Trinity, Peterborough; North, Anna Franks, Fairview; Advisory Committee, Fred Barnard and Homer Borland; Chairman Religious Education, Rev. C. H. Ferguson.

The program gave way to a rollicking session of recreation led by Esther Thornton, assisted by Rev. Mr. Kelly and Bob Spence, when the young people not only enjoyed the social time, but gained many new ideas for their own societies.

At 6.30 about two hundred delegates and visitors gathered for their fellowship banquet for which the King's Own Bible Class efficiently catered. Spring colors of mauve and yellow prevailed, with daffodils centering the prettily arranged tables.

During the supper hour Rev. Mr Kelly led a spirited sing-song, with Mrs. Kelly at the piano.

The report of the Courtesy Committee was brought in by the new president, Bob Spence, who expressed the thanks of the Y.P.U. to all who had contributed to the fine success of the convention. Adjourning to the church auditorium, the delegates were led in worship by members of the Hastings Union, whose theme was "The Stewardship of Life."

Two societies, George Street and Ebenezer, tied in registration at the convention, but in consideration of the evening attendance, the banner was awarded to Ebenezer Union.

Special Speaker.

The convention was happy in the choice of a speaker in having secured the Rev. J. Maxwell Allan of Pembroke, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference, who brought a challenging inspiration to every young person.

"Youth's Supreme Possession" was the intriguing theme to which Rev. Mr. Allan gave a wealth of personal consecration and experience with young people.

The address was based upon the disciple's cry in referring to their Master: "What manner of man is this?"

"We are all embarked on the voyage of life," said the speaker, who followed out this metaphor throughout his address. Some of the aims of this voyage were cited, the first being the seeking of a winning personality. It is also a laudable ambition to be attractive, but the secret must be found within. It may be developed by right thinking, which enables us to rise to the highest, noblest and best. It is a desirable trait to seek on the ocean of life for happiness. Our religion should be such a happy one that it will become contagious to others.

We need intelligent people today—we must either stop thinking, or stop and think. It is a legitimate desire also to have money. If we realize it as a trust from God, and use it in His service, we may be seeking all these things on the voyage of life, but without character, our ships will be wrecked. We must take as our chart the Bible and for our wireless the power to communicate with God—prayer. On this voyage the greatest of all our possessions will be Christ as our pilot.

In closing, Rev. Mr. Allan urged that all should come to know our Pilot better, that our lives may be radiant and that we may love one another so that at the end of the voyage we may go into the safe haven.

The fine spirit of consecration was maintained in the beautiful closing service led by Bruce Dawson and Bob Spence, with Loretta MacDougall contributing the appropriate solo, "Take My Life," and prayer by the visiting speaker concluded another convention of inspiring success for Peterborough Presbytery Y.P.U.

Rocket Project

Out of all the more than 800 exhibits at the Y.M.C.A.'s Boys' Hobby Show, spectators picked this model rocket projector as showing the most ingenuity. Its inventor, Roy Hiscox, gifted 17-year-old P.C.I. student, is seen here standing behind his intricate machine adjusting one of its hundreds of delicate parts. It took him more than six months to complete the invention. The rocket projector can be controlled by voice or by light beam. By speaking through a microphone that he built, Roy can direct the machine to move on its axis from side to side, raise or lower its elevation, turn a cylinder holding a pasteboard rocket until it is in firing position, then propel the rocket thirty feet across the room, merely by saying "Fire."

N.Y. EDITOR BEATEN FOR HIS REFUSAL TO KISS SWASTIKA

NEW YORK, April 23 (AP).—Dr. Charles Weiss, 31, crippled editor of the publication of the Anti-Communist, Anti-Fascist and Anti-Nazi Leagues of Brooklyn, was given hospital treamtent last night after he told police four men entered his office, beat him, and scratched Nazi emblems on his chest and back with sharp sticks dipped in ink.

Dr. John H. Kern, director general of the league and Jean Mathias, American legionnaire who was a principal figure in Wednesday night's clash between Nazi followers and war veterans in Yorkville, reported they found Dr. Weiss semi-conscious on the floor of his Brooklyn office.

The victim said the intruders ordered him to kiss a Nazi flag, and when he refused they ripped down an American flag in his office and beat him with the staff. Then, he said, they dipped sharpened sticks in ink an scratched Swastikas on his back and chest.

He said he had gone to his office to write a letter to a Brooklyn American Legion commander regarding the Yorktown riot in which German American bund members beat war veterans who attended their meeting. Police could find no witnesses to the attack.

GOOD CAKE?

DEEP BROOK, N.S.—(CP).—The thief who stole $54 from Walter A. Ditmars' home just couldn't resist the temptation as he escaped—through the pantry window—and added a delectable cake to his loot. Police are not interested in the thief's opinion of Mrs. Ditmars' cooking.

EAST FIFE TIES KILMARNOCK 1-1 IN SCOTTISH CUP

HAMPDEN PARK, Glasgow, April 23—(CP Cable).—Ideal conditions prevailed to-day for the Scottish Football Cup final between Kilmarnock and East Fife. After a dull morning the sun broke through as early arrivals passed through the turnstiles, but it was not anticipated that the crowd would exceed 100,000. The teams:

Kilmarnock. — Goal, Hunter; backs, Fyfe, Milloy; halfbacks, Robertson, Stewart, Ross; forwards, Thomson, Reid, Collins, McAvoy, McGregan.

East Fife.—Goal, Milton; backs, Laird, Tait; halfbacks, Russel, Sneddon, Herd; forwards, Adams, McLeod, McCartney, Miller, McKerroll.

First Half

The opening exchanges were confined mainly to midfield and the first real threat came from the second division team. McLeod snapped up a pass from Herd and sent in a hot shot, but Hunter saved splendidly.

East Fife displayed the better combination, with Adams and McLeod conspicuous on the right wing.

There was a trace of luck about the opening goal that went to East Fife. Hunter ran out to clear from McCartney, but collided with Fyfe Running up, McLeod shot the loose ball into an empty net.

Following this reverse, the Killies attacked strongly. A shot by Thomson went just over the bar, and then McAvoy and McGrogan forced corners, but the opposing defence was sound.

Kilmarnock evened the count after 26 minutes following a free kick. Ross shot from 40 yards out, and a scramble ensued in the goal mouth. McAvcy finally diverting the ball into the net with his head.

Half Time: Kilmarnock 1, East Fife, 1.

Second Half.

After two minutes the Killies forced a corner. Milton fisted the ball away, but Thomson headed in again and the Methil goalkeeper again conceded a corner. Thomson struck the post and the ball was cleared.

Adams and McLeod rallied the Second Division squad carrying the ball to the other end of the field where Hunter saved by throwing himself at McLeod's feet. On another raid Miller's ground shot went a few inches wide of the post.

Each side had a full share of the play, with most of East Fife's attacks being engineered on their right wing. Adams and McLeod continued to harass the Kilmarnock defence and several times go through, but finished weakly.

Game over—Kilmarnock 1, East Fife 1.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following unchanged prices: New—Large, 17¼c; twins, 17½c; triplets, 17¾c. Old—Large, 19¾c; twins, 20c; triplets, 20¼c Medium, 18¾c; twins, 19c; triplets, 19¼c.

TORONTO POULTRY

TORONTO, April 23 — (CP). — Wholesale poultry prices were unchanged to-day.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, April 23 (C.P.). — Despite transient rallies from two-cent bottom levels Winnipeg wheat futures failed to make much recovery yesterday and closed 1⅜-½ cent lower, May $1.23⅛, July $1.12⅝, October, 89¾ to ⅞ cents.

Tired longs, discouraged by poor demand for top-grade Canadian wheat yesterday and a five-cent setback in the premium of No. 1 Northern to nine cents, sold in small volume to-day to send prices steadily lower until the final hour.

Then minor export purchases, estimated at 100,000 bushels of both old crop and new crop wheat, supplied buying power to lift prices.

Liverpool, however, showed strength with May wheat advancing a penny on short-covering a belief tenders on May contracts would be small. Recessions resulted in closing values ½d higher to ⅜d lower. Buenos Aires was fractionally up at noon. Chicago closed unchanged to ⅜c down.

Export purchases of barley featured coarse grain dealings. All barley futures advanced ¼c. Other grains eased.

from a mission at Port Albany, 60 miles north-west of Moosonee, enroute to Quebec City to visit his father, looked after Father Meilleur. The trip was completed at 1 p.m. Thursday and Father Meilleur was placed aboard a train for Montreal where he arrived today.

But before the little party reached Cochrane, Pullen said, its members several times thought they would be forced to give up and return to Moosonee. Only the serious condition of Father Meilleur forced them to continue. The first 140 miles were covered over trails buried under 1½ feet of snow.

Between here and Moose River, 44 miles distant, the party had to push the cars 12 miles. It was midnight before Coral Rapids, 140 miles south of Moosonee, was reached. The party stayed there overnight and pushed on to Cochrane early Thursday.

Father Meilleur received medical treatment at the Roman Catholic Mission in Cochrane and when placed aboard the train for Montreal was said to have been in an improved condition. Pullen and Father Ladoie, who cancelled his trip to Quebec to replace Father Meilleur, returned to Moosonee yesterday.

CUTTING OFF RELIEF.

Relief in the smaller communities seems to be a more casual responsibility than in the larger cities. Cobourg decided the other day to give no more relief to able-bodied men, but Madoc is going a step further May 1, discontinuing relief for both single and married men.

CAMPBELLFORD

YOUTH IS FINED ASSAULT CHARGE

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 23. — Pleading guilty to a charge of assault causing bodily harm, a Campbellford youth was assessed $10 fine and $13.20 costs by Magistrate Langley in police court here Friday. The assault was allegedly committed on April 8, when the plaintiff, a Peterborough man, stopped his car on the road between Hastings and Campbellford to offer aid to a number of Campbellford youths who were stalled with their truck in the ditch. It was claimed that the accused jumped on the plaintiff, knocking him down and administering a severe threshing when he offered his help to the stranded youths.

The case of the Crown against Tim Connelly in which Richard Mahoney was the informant, was adjourned for another week. Connelly was jointly charged with his father, John Connelly, of stealing trees from a farm in Seymour township which they occupied while the property was allegedly in the custody of the Registry of the Board of Review for Ontario.

Biblical Thoughts For The Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James
Toronto

WHAT LOVE DOES

JESUS saith unto her:— MARY. St. John 20; 16.

JESUS said:— He that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father and I will love him and will manifest Myself unto Him. St. John 14; 21.

It happened in the Garden of the Resurrection. A fitting spot for a garden implies life, growth, joy and happiness. The Lord Jesus reveals Himself first of all to Mary Magdalene. She needs Him most and she loved Him for all He had done for her in casting out the evil spirits.

It is Our Lord's fulfilment of His promise: "He that loveth Me shall be loved of My Father and I will love Him and will manifest Myself unto Him". Perhaps you have not noticed these words in this famous fourteenth chapter of St. John. He promises He will reveal Himself only to those who love Him. Nothing wonderful or extraordinary about that for it is a law of human experience. You may be much misunderstood by your business friends but there is one who loves you. To her you have revealed yourself. To her you have opened your heart. To her you have manifested yourself. Even so is it in spiritual things. The Lord after His resurrection is living in the spiritual sphere. He has a spiritual Body, which can be seen, felt and handled only by those who love Him. Have you the eye for spiritual things? If you have a love for God and His Christ to you also is the fulfilment of this promise that He will reveal Himself to you.

There is the recognition by the Lord after His resurrection. He knows her. He is the same and yet not the same. A change has come over Him. He has passed through death. "Death hath no more dominion over Him." To some degree there is a change in His appearance which is clearly stated in the Gospel story.

Shall we recognise our loved ones when we pass into that spirit life? Yes. It is helpful to remember the words of a great theologian:— "Do you think we shall ever know anyone till we get there?" In this world we do not know our loved ones completely, utterly.

Mary is standing at the sepulchre weeping. She is alone. The Apostles have gone to their home. She is full of grief. Then suddenly she feels that someone is near. "She turned and beholdeth Jesus"—the word and tense imply a lingering gaze. "Jesus standing and knew not that it was Jesus" How could she know Him? Her thoughts were on the dead body she had come to embalm. The voice of the stranger is full of sympathy as he enquires: — "Woman, why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?" She pours out her grief to Him. "I will take Him away" she offers. Then apparently there is a silence as she continues mourning. "Jesus saith unto her:—Mary." The Good Shepherd calleth her by name.

The blinding veil of grief is torn away. Her eyes are opened. In the accent of Galilee, in the Hebrew, in the mother tongue of Our Lord, she cries:—Rabboni—my Master.

She still thinks of Him as a teacher. He is, but He is more. He is the risen Lord, the God-Man. This she has to learn. He has thought of her. Also of His Apostles. "Go, tell My brethren." He is not ashamed to call them brethren. He is the Son of God in a mysterious, unique sense of the word. They are sons by adoption and grace. "My brethren."

In the day of sorrow He comes to you also with the question:—"Why weepest thou?" He is your Elder Brother and is willing to comfort and reveal Himself to you also. When He has comforted you, to you also is the command:— "Go, tell My brethren." It is your privilege to tell them that He has appeared to you, even you, because He loves you and you love Him.

"HE CALLETH HIS OWN SHEEP BY NAME."
"THEY KNOW HIS VOICE".

Receiving Vision For Service

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson for April 24 is Mark 9:2-10, the Golden Text being Mark 9:7, "This is my beloved Son: hear ye him.")

THE PRIVILEGE Jesus gave to Peter, James and John, of witnessing his transfiguration was not given them for the purpose of entertaining them. It was for the purpose of inspiring them to greater service. Vision, voice and venture are found together again and again in our Bible. When the vision and voice do not result in venture they have failed to serve God's purpose.

The Vision

Six days after Peters confession of faith in Jesus as "the Christ, the Son of the living God" "Jesus taketh with him Peter and James and John, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them; and his garments became glistening, exceeding white, so as no fuller on earth can whiten them. And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus." (Luke adds that "they spake of his decease which he was about to accomplish at Jerusalem.") . . . "And there came a cloud overshadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud This is my beloved Son: hear ye him. And suddenly looking round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves."

The Nature of the Vision

This then was the vision and this the voice seen and heard by the highly privileged inner circle of our Lord's disciples. It came about, Luke tells us, "as he was praying." For a brief time God gave transparency to the veil of his human flesh and allowed the full glory of his deity to shine forth to the utter amazement of those who but lately had become assured that their Master was infinitely more than a man among men. Their hearts bore them testimony that he was "the Son of the living God." Now by a vision of God and by the voice of God the testimony of their hearts is confirmed to these "eye witnesses of his glory." Peter calls it a revealation "of the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." In other words, God staged for these three favored disciples a "preview" of that glorious spectacle of our Lord's second coming at the end of this age when men "shall see the Son of man coming in a cloud with power and great glory."

The Purpose of the Vision

Peter mistook the purpose of the vision. He wanted to stay there on the mount and enjoy it forever: "Peter answereth and said unto Jesus, Lord, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles, one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah. For he wist not what to answer; for they became sore afraid." It was a time of high and holy inspiration for the three disciples which Peter would prolong indefinitely. But inspiration is never an end in itself. The privileged vision of the mount must be carried to the underprivileged in misery in the valley below. The vision and the voice must move to venture in service in behalf of those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death in the lowlands of society. Church going and convention attending never will of themselves save the world. They serve their God-given purpose only as they illuminate, inspire and inflame those who worship on the mount to come down from the mount with Christ to the valley of human misery and serve by sharing the blessings of the mount with the teeming multitudes in the depths of human need below.

Pitch Lake Feature Of Trinidad Island

The Romance of Trinidad will be the title of a picture sermon in St. Andrew's church on next Sunday night. Trinidad is the most southerly and next to Jamaica the largest of the West Indian Islands. The population is 385,091. There are four mineral springs, and several mud volcanoes, but the two most striking natural features are the Maracas Falls, and the Pitch Lake. The asphalt wells up in low bulging masses, separated from one another by narrow channels, in which the rain forms pools, near the centre of the lake, the pitch is always liquid, and can be observed bubbling up. When the sun is hot the lightest footfall leaves an impression and the pitch emits a strong odour. The soil of the surrounding district is charged with asphalt but is very fertile. Trinidad asphalt has been used upon highways in practically every country in the world.

Of the inhabitants of the island one third are East Indians, of the rest the wealthier classes are creoles of British, French, and Spanish blood. The poorer people are of negro, or mixed negro origen, with a few Chinese, English is spoken in the towns, and in some of the country districts. A mongrel French, and some Spanish prevail in the cocoa growing areas.

"The understanding, even in a degree, of the Divine Allpower destroys fear, and plants the feet in the true path, — the path which leads to the house built without hands "eternal in the heavens."
—Mary Baker Eddy.

Rev. Dr. Laird Trinity Preacher

The preacher at Trinity United Church on Sunday morning will be Rev. Robert Laird D.D. Treasurer of the United Church and one of its outstanding leaders and preachers. Dr. Laird has recently returned from an extended pilgrimage to Europe and Asia. After attending the World Conference on Life and Work at Oxford and on Faith and Order at Edinburgh in July and August of last year, Dr. Laird visited many countries, particularly Palestine, India, China, Japan and Korea spending considerable time in five out of the eight Foreign Mission fields of the United Church. In addition, he met with a great number of missionaries and leaders of other communions. Out of a wealth of information gathered from first-hand contacts, Dr. Laird with his keen powers of observation and interpretation, will bring a great message on "Christianity in the Far East" to his audience on Sunday morning. At the quadrennial meeting of the General Council of the World Alliance of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches held in Montreal last year, Dr. Laird was chosen President for the Quadrennium 1937 to 1941. The next meeting of the General Council of the Alliance will be held in Geneva, Switzerland in 1941, when it will be Dr. Laird's duty to preside.

"There is a great beauty in going through life fearlessly. Half our fears are baseless, the other half discreditable."
—Bovee.

The Golden Text

Mark 9:7—"This is My Beloved Son: hear ye Him."

A National Message

By the late Rev. W. Pascoe Goard; LL.D., F.R.G.S., F.R.E.S.

The second coming of our Lord; from the standpoint of the temple. Ezekial deals with this very full in connection with his ministry to the Captivity.

Up to the time of the captivity, the Temple of Jerusalem had been the centre of Israels worship, as the recognzed earthly dwelling place of God.

Over the mercy seat in the Holy of Holies, there shone the Sheknah glory.

To this pont the eyes of the people were turned in prayer and worship from every part of the world.

But now the glory of God was on the point of withdrawing from the Temple, and it became necessary that the people of God should be advised of this fact and the reason therefore. Accordingly, Ezekial is caused to see in a vision the departure of the glory of God from the Temple. and the reason which led to that departure. (Ezekiel viii-xi.).

The reason for the departure of God was the practice of abomination by the Elders and the people of Judah. Read the eighth chapter carefully.

The fact of the withdrawal of the glory of God is stated in the following verses: Ezekiel x. 18, 19 and xi. 22, 23.

In the progress of the Book of Ezekial, after a marvellous sequence of events, comes the restoration of the city, and of the Temple, (see last chapters of Ezekiel). Seven times of punishment have ended according to the Covenant of the constitution, (see Lev. xxvi). The restitution of all things spoken of by the prophets is now no longer dependent upon the human will, but is to eventuate by the judgment of God. And the time of Israel's emergence from her humiliation has arrived.

These things are preparatory to the establishment of the reign of our Lord on the Holy Hill of Zion, once again.

The plans of the new temple are given in the last Chapter of Ezekial, and the laws which shall obtain in regard to the City, and the Temple are set forth.

Everything being now ready, there is shown the return of the glory of God to the Temple, coming from Eastward as it departed, (Ezekiel xliii).

From the Temple once more the voice of the Lord is heard speaking, and the first word of the Lord is regarding the cleansing of "the place of My Throne, and the place of the soles of my feet where I will dwell in the midst of the children of Israel forever". Henceforth the centre of worship shall once more be in Jerusalem.

Thus is the return of the Lord and the purification of His Throne told from the standpoint of the Temple.

This is the spiritual return, beyond which many cannot see.

Rev. Parr Plans Sermon Series

Rev. M. C. Parr will begin a new series of Sunday evening addresses in George Street United Church on the challenging and attractive theme, "Signs on Life's Highway". Road signs which invite, exhort and warn travellers along the highway have also a moral and spiritual application in the life of every person.

The series will consist of the following sermons—(1) Stop; (2) Dangerous Curve: Drive Slowly; (3) Caution: Soft Shoulders; (4) Do Not Pass on the Hill; (5) Men at Work.

"Fear always springs from ignorance."
—Emerson.

"Fear in the world first created the gods."
—Statius.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

There is one aspect of our Lord's life and mission that demands more consideration than it generally receives, and that is, that He is, above all, the Great Example. For the fact remains that He lived the life that we must live if we would be in harmony and unison with the Greater Life of God. He suffered in order to prove beyond all doubt that there is, and never can be, any such thing as death for those who centre their lives in the Love of God. For death is only a thing of the body, an illusion born of the conditioned aspect of matter, which has nothing to do with that subtler form of energy, we term spiritual. In itself, matter is only a variant of the eternal energy emanating from the Father; only our bodily limitations prevent most of us from seeing it as it actually it. The forms change but the cause remains forever the same. Life enters into bodily form, remains a while and then departs, only to enter into other and higher forms, for Life is of God and so, eternal. It was never created and never can be destroyed. And with that Life is always associated mind and consciousness, so that when the bodily machinery wears out and is no longer able to function as a vehicle of expression for the Life that called it into being, then that Life departs, together with the modicum of mind and consciousness associated with it, in order to find other and better vehicles of expression. So that, truly, there is no death, but only the scrapping of an outworn body and the puting into service of another one. But when we speak of mind, we mean the higher mind, the mind that is of the higher order than our outward selves, the mind which is in unison with all mind, in which all separate self is merged in that unit.

Even as the colours of the rainbow are contained in, and are a part of the white light of the sun, while yet retaining their individual tincture, so are our true selves, our true minds, merged and contained in the Light of God. We dwell in God, we dwell in each other and everything dwells in us. From a false multiplicity we return into a true unity, in God and the Christ of God. From a consciousness that is limited and hampered by a material outlook, we enter into the greater consciousness of being a part, a necessary part of all that is. This it is, to truly enter the kingdom of heaven, which is the kingdom of love.

Millbrook Y.P.A. Discusses Poets

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 23. — The Young People's Union held its Easter meeting at mid-week, with the assistantant cultural convenor, Dorothy Sisco, in the chair.

Immortality, as shown in hymns of the church, and Bible readings, was appropriately chosen for the study theme. Lorne Foster read the lesson, and among thase who read hymns dealing with immortal life were Lloyd McMahon, Mary Smith, Elsie Theobald, and George Flannigan.

A discussion of the study topic through the poets was in the hands of Della Mae Sisco, who quoted, rfom a pessimistic angle, first from the Old Testament poetical writers, and then from St. Paul's writings, as a confirmed optimist, in New Testament pasages. Poems from the pen of George Elliot were read by Phyllis Kidd and Billy Kerr, and following a sing-song of hymns bearing on the theme of the evening, the meeting was dismissed with the benediction in unison.

Easter Dance.

The annual Easter dance, under the auspices of the local Cadet Corps and held in the Armouries on Wednesday evening, drew a very large attendance, over 170 paid admissions being received at the door. Guests were present from Peterborough, Port Hope, and other outside points.

Music was furnished by Harry McDonald's Swing Band from Peterborough, and the lucky door prize was won by Ken Kidd, who held number 392. Edworthy's catered for the supper. The booth was well patronized, and approximately $45 was received, the funds going to swell the Cadets' balance in the bank which is used to send the rifle team to compete in the D.R.C.A. matches at Ottawa in August.

A ROBBERY TRICK

LONDON, Ont., April 22 (CP).—Officials charged in London court today that 62-year-old Thomas Shepherd had invented a trick by which he systematically defrauded a London groceteria.

Shepherd admitted that since the worth of groceries. He was sentenced first of the year he had stolen $50 to 30 days in jail by Magistrate Donald Menzies.

Crown Attorney Norman Newton showed Magistrate Menzies a large paper bag with a trick side in it. The side had a trap door which would open so Shepherd could put small parcels into it.

BERNHARD ON WAY HOME

PARIS, April 22 (CP-Havas).—Prince Bernhard, consort of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, who has been touring Italy and southern France since March 8 left here by automobile today to rejoin his wife.

The Prince's trip abroad was taken on the advice of physicans to hasten his convalescence from injuries suffered in an automobile accident last fall, qauifed sources said. Reports Prince Bernhard had quarrelled with Princess Juliana and her mother, Queen Wilhelmina, were denied by these same sources.

Receiving Vision for Service — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Mark 9:2-10.

About nine months before his crucifixion Jesus inquired of his disciples who men thought he was and who they themselves thought him to be. Peter answered, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

Six days after this Jesus took Peter, James and John with him, up into a high mountain. As he was praying his face began to shine as the sun and his garments became as white as snow.

This was done to let them see something of the glory of his deity shining through his humanity. God's voice spoke, saying, "This is my beloved Son, hear ye him."

Peter wanted to stay on the mount but Jesus knew there was need below. So the privilege of the mount is intended to help us serve the underprivileged below. (GOLDEN TEXT—Mark 9:7)

He's Sunk

The lives people live are now and then revealed in court cases. We notice where Stanley Dutot of Brucefield, in Huron County, was in court because he was not supporting his wife from whom he is living apart. He had spent a week in jail after being convicted of non-support.

Dutot is a farm laborer and he said the most he could make in a year would be about $260. The magistrate wondered why it was that the defendant was able to drive a car, but it was explained it was an old one and a man had to get around if he was going to find work these days.

The result of the case is that Dutot gets suspended sentence, but is ordered to pay his wife $3 a week except in the threshing season when the lady is to receive $4 a week. The threshing season is not of great duration, so it looks as though Dutot would have to pay his wife about $164 a year out of his earnings of $260.

We know of farms where a hired man is engaged the year through, and there is a small house provided where man and wife can live. Wages are not high as wages are regarded today but the cost of living is low as much of the table supplies come from the farm or from the garden plot adjoining the small house. But for a man to be somewhat of an itinerant and find his work here and there and using a car to travel around looking for jobs, and then from his proceeds try to keep a wife who is living apart from him—well he's sunk.

Peculiar Case

Magistrate Makins when conducting court at Goderich had before him the domestic difficulties of Mrs. Solonia Cole and her husband. Solonia had been born in Russia and had for some time been living in Calgary, which place has so strong a place in her affections that she desired above all else to return instead of living on a farm in Goderich township.

It was a tedous and difficult case to hear as the Coles, husband and wife, are deaf and dumb. It was necessary to have an interpreter in court who could understand their alphabet and tell the magistrate what it was all about. A constable had gone to investigate and he said the lady smashed nearly every dish in the house, and had sent catsup bottles popping out through the kitchen windows. The pitching commenced, according to the evidence when the husband objected to starting out on the long trip to the beloved West.

As a rule being deaf and dumb is supposed to keep people from quarrelling. There can be little satisfaction in spelling hasty words out on the fingers. They cannot well emphasize them, and it may be that was why Solonia decided to pitch dishes around the kitchen and fling bottles through the window panes. If she could have hollered at her husband there would have been no need for demonstrative exuberance to have taken the form of a barrage of chinaware.

The magistrate gave the lady a marked passage from the Criminal Code to explain what might happen if she persisted in her peculiar method of expressing her deep love for the West and its great open spaces. And yet in the hearing of such a troublesome case those who knew most about it could speak never a word in court. Which was just as well.

A Timely Demonstration

Peter W. Foley is 85 years of age. To make that more impressive it might be well to spell it out—eighty-five. On the 19th of April Mr. Peter entered the Boston Marathon, the length of the course being 26 miles and 385 yards. He did not win the race, but he finished the course. Last year he completed but 18 miles because his son did not want him to continue. This year Mr. Foley put on his running togs and said nothing at all to the people at the house.

Perhaps you will say it couldn't be done, or that it shouldn't be done, but the blunt fact is that it was done. And Mr. Peter W. Foley is 85 years of age.

Such an accomplishment is timely; it seems to have come at just the right and proper time of the year. This way: There are a good many men who are not yet 85 years of age; not even close to the mark. When spring comes they are not given to great activity. They prefer to plan things which should or might be done outdoors rather than actually participate in the doing of them.

They suggest readily enough that they should not actively participate in the spring work in the garden or the yard; they should not be called upon to cause paper to adhere to a wall, nor should they put the soft end of a brush in a can of paint and cause it to be spread ofer a given area. They urge that it is well to spread work out among those who need it; they can find virtue in engaging another man to gouge holes in the ground, and they can find pleasure and a sense of accomplishment in standing with their hands in pockets or on hips and seeing the work being done. And yet many of them are far removed from being 85 years of age.

So it is that Peter W. Foley, 85 years of age, has demonstrated what a man of years can accomplish. We are not suggesting that men in general begin scampering about the block dressed in running suits, but merely in a mild and kindly way drawing attention to the fact that men in general should be able to do a number of things around the premises.

What Will They Say?

The Canadian Youth Congress desires to meet for a convention in Toronto, and request was made for the use of Harbord Street Collegiate in Toronto and the Central Technical school as well. It was explained that as many as forty class rooms would be required and the objection to using the schools was based on the fact that it would hardly be possible to have so many class rooms in use in the evening while the schools were in use during the day time.

Reading the report of the discussion it became evident that a number of members of the Board of Education did not want the convention. They were afraid of it and the word "communism" was freely mentioned. The organizations which will send delegates are stated to be: United Church Young People's Societies, the Y.M.C.A. and the Y.W.C.A., the Catholic Social Union, the Canadian Young Friends (Quakers), the Y.M.H.A., the Student Christian Movement, the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Federation of Young Judea, the Universal Negro Improvement Association, the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada.

During the discussion it was stated that the large delegation of French-Canadian young people would probably hold discussions in their own language. Just why that should have been mentioned in the discussion is something difficult to understand. Surely it is not considered a misdemeanor to speak French in Toronto where they have plenty of schools for the teaching of the language.

If the Toronto Board of Education was sincere in the belief that there was not room in the schools and that the convention would interfere with the smooth operation of these places, then they were right enough in refusing to grant the use of their buildings. If they were afraid of what might be said when all these young people got together then the Toronto people are not on good ground. If they have views, dreams, visions or ideas of which adults may not approve, then we believe it is much better and safer for such views to be brought right out into the open so we can see them and find out where they are wrong.

They Want Lower Prices

Several ladies from the Housewives' Association in Toronto made a trip to London the other day for the purpose of organizing a branch in that city. Speakers said the chief objective of the association was the lowering of food prices, and a review of the work done in Toronto touched on the boycott against butter when prices were high; stores were picketed, parades were held, the women wrote letters to their members of parliament and so on. It was stated the publication of a newspaper was to be undertaken in order to carry on the fight for lower prices of foodstuffs.

One of the speakers said that conditions under which men worked today had much to do with bringing the wives together in an organization to make their dollars go farther. Men were paid low wages, there were periodic lay-offs and these conditions made the financing of a home exceedingly difficult. All of which may be true enough.

But we are moved to doubt whether the organization of a Housewives' Association will bring about either more steady employment for the husbands or cheaper prices of foodstuffs. The women in Toronto burned up much energy in carrying on their strike against the price of butter. They did not cause the price to come down, nor do we see how they could have done so. They failed because they were trying to do something which could not be done at that time. Butter prices will probably recede because cows will soon be on pasture and they will produce more abundantly and with less cost.

There are a good many lines of groceries sold in our stores today on which there can be little profit. There may be some who do not like the word profit, but it cannot be taken out. The merchant must pay his rent or taxes, his business taxes, his wages and all the bills incident to running a store and he must pay them out of the profit he makes in selling goods. Yes—he must actually sell his merchandise for more money than he pays for it. If he does not then he will go out of business. Asking or insisting that a merchant cut his legitimate prices is suggesting that he should also cut his wages in order to do it.

The ladies who are forming these societies admit freely that they know to their discomfort what it means to have their husbands receiving low wages and being laid off at intervals. We fear that the corrective course they are taking is going to put others in danger of facing similar conditions.

Who Will Pay For It?

Henri St. Jacques is a barrister in Ottawa. It appears he has been retained by Oliva Dionne, father of the five famous sisters, to make demand of the Attorney-General of Ontario for another investigation into the way in which affairs are and have been handled. News of a request for this latest probe came to Ontario by way of a story from Ottawa published in a New York newspaper. Then it was that word came out of another private investigation which had been carried on at the request of Dr. Dafoe. The New York newspaper it appears has Oliva Dionne and all his family apart from the quints under contract for pictures and stories. What special advantage there is in such a contract is difficult to determine unless the desire is to try and reap a cash reward for whatever Dionne may do or say in connection with the probe for which he has asked.

The situation is growing complicated and rather strange. When the quints were bits of things with little life in them the father Dionne signed a contract to have them taken off for exhibition purposes in Chicago. That was about as stupid a thing as could have been thought of and the Attorney-General of the province shortly after arranged a guardianship, a proper enough move. The first guardianship extended for a five-year period, but at a later date the Ontario Legislature passed a special Act making the children wards of the King until their eighteenth birthday. Whether that was a wise thing to do or whether there was any justification for it has always been open to question.

When the children have passed the point where their health has been well guarded, and where it has been made apparent that the handicap they faced by reason of multiple birth has been entirely overcome, it is more difficult to find good reasons for maintaining state direction over children whose parents are living. It cannot be said that money has anything to do with it now because the children have some $700,000 in trust for them already. There are a good many reasons for believing that the Dionne family would be better off if they were united. If the children kept up the tourist attraction at their hospital home then that would require supervision, as Dionne himself is not capable of attending to it.

One thing should be made clear, and that is if Oliva Dionne asks for and is granted another investigation it should be stated plainly in advance that the people of the province are not going to pay for it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Britain is not going to challenge for the America's Cup this year so that is one yawn we will miss.

According to a hotel chain purchasing agent, the old-fashioned nightshirt is still popular with many men.

Carrying coals to Newcastle may seem a silly sort of thing but it is not any more bizarre than to have a mill in Virginia importing cotton from India.

More government aid for United States railways is being sought. Canada is not the only country, evidently, where rail transportation is a problem.

Dr. Tombs has been designated by the League of Nations Secretariat at Geneva to represent that body at the Canadian conference. Somehow the name seems peculiarly appropriate.

Joe DiMaggio has decided that $25,000 a year is better than nothing so he has returned to baseball. If the money does not seem large Mr. DiMaggio will probably agree that the hours are all right.

Montreal detective retiring after 25 years, has turned in his revolver which he never had to use in all that time. Obviously he is a man of sound judgment or he would have at least had a shot at something or other.

HARDER

(By A. R. K.)

¶ John Thomas says life's harder now, puts deeper furrows in the brow, it's not a simple life; he says it's harder than before, in fact today it's quite a chore, to go and find his wife.

¶ John Thomas says some years ago, he'd know exactly where to go, just to some neighbor's door; she'd just dropped in to visit there, be resting on a kitchen chair, he'd have to search no more.

¶ Today he says all this is through, to search 'twould take an hour or two, he'd telephone and look; so many places she might be, he'd need a list so he could see, and write it in a book.

¶ She might be at the barber shop, to have some curls put in her mop, he'd never find her there; John Thomas says he's not assured, she might be getting manicured, in some well-hidden chair.

¶ She might be playing bridge that day and learning some new-fangled way, she might be at her lodge; she might be at some lecture room, to hear of war's dead fatal boom, and shells they have to dodge.

¶ She might be learning how to swim, or getting wrinkles off her chin, or in some tea-room nook; John Thomas feels like war and strife, when he goes out to hunt his wife—he don't know where to look.

Thinks Courts Need a Warning.

(Toronto Telegram)

TWO PECULIAR features marked the recent murder trial at Sault Ste. Marie. At the conclusion of his charge the presiding judge is reported to have said "I could never reconcile my conscience to convicting this accussed on the type of evidence that is offered here." And shortly afterwards the Crown-Attorney told the jury that he would like a verdict of guilty or not guilty, he did not want a disagreement in view of the expense of another trial. Both these comments appear out of place.

After the jury had brought in its findings it would have been quite proper for the judge to agree that he could not convict on the evidence. But if in his view there was no evidence to go to the jury, the usual course would be to have taken the case from the jury. It would be manifestly improper, in committing the case to the jury, for the judge to have said that his conscience would require him to convict on the evidence before him. It was just as improper for him to inform the jury before it retired that he could not conscientiously convict.

The comment of the Crown-Attorney seems to have overlooked the fact that it is the individual duty of every juryman to well and truly try the case before him. If a juror conscientiously believes there should be a conviction, it is as improper for him to change his view to agree with a majority as would be a similar change on the part of a juror who believed there should be an acquittal. If three men were for acquittal and nine for conviction, it would be a shocking thing that the desire for economy should send the accused to his death.

Courts have a practice of building up precedents. It would be most undesirable that comments of the kind quoted should be allowed to be regarded as good law. They warrant a review of this case by a court competent to pass on what appears to be serious departures from good practice.

MR. AND MRS.

(New York World-Telegram)

IN THE YEAR beginning June 1 about 2,000,000 blushing American couples will take off on the adventure called matrimony, and all of them will be sure they're going to live happily ever afterward. But Dr. Paul Popence director of the Institute of Family Relations, warns that at least 200,000 of them will crack up sooner or later in the divorce courts.

How can you and the sweetest girl keep from being one of the 200,000?

Any battle-scarred survivor can give you a lot of rules. For instance, a successful husband won't call her the Ball-and-Chain, or say her new hat looks like a young coal scuttle, or get binged in company and make her blush with locker-room stories, or neglect to shave on rainy mornings, or dunk his rolls, or hang his clothes on the floor or forget to send flowers on the wedding anniversary or . . .

A successful wife won't call him the Old Man, or crack her chewing gum, or serve canned peaches, weak coffee and burned toast for breakfast, or correct his grammar.

Dr. Popone says a lot of divorces could be dodged if the high contracting parties didn't look on getting married as a "settling down."

An old hand at this game would add two more ingredients for a workable marriage—old-fashioned kindness and a well-oiled sense of humor.

GADGETS OR BRAINS?

(Montreal Star)

"WHEN A DRIVER of an automobile is unable to satisfy himself that the course he is about to adopt is a safe one he should stop until he is able to satisfy himself in that regard."

The whole "law and the prophets" of safe and sane driving was never better summed up than in this remark of Justice Bond in a judgment on an automobile accident case the other day. Another equally cogent epitome of all the warnings ever uttered against speed goes to the credit of someone now forgotten who said —or wrote— "Never drive so fast that you cannot stop in the stretch of road which you can see." If every driver would get these two maxims engraved on his windshield and would make a practice of reading them occasionally—when his car is stopped, needless to say—there would be far fewer acicdents than there are.

MY PARENTS.

A son speaks:

At eleven years: "My parents are grand. They know simply everything."

At sixteen: "Really and truly, my parents are not quite so grand as I used to think. They don't know everything."

At nineteen: "Although my parents think they are always right they really know very little compared with what I know already . . ."

At twenty-two: "My parents do not understand young people; they have nothing in common with the young generation."

At thirty: "To tell the truth, my parents were right in many things."

At fifty: "My parents were wonderful people. They had a clear mind and always did the necessary thing at the right moment. My beloved parents . . ."—Neues Wiener Tagblatt, Vienna.

SECOND STORIES

"You say a love of stories brought you to this prison my poor man?"

"Yes mum."

"Promiscuous reading is undoubtedly bad. What stories attracted you the most?"

"Second stories, mum."

TOO "DEAR."

Tammas—"What do they mean by 'a dear friend,' Sandy?"

Sandy—"I dinna ken, but the dearest friend I ever had was a man that was married three times. He cost me twa wreaths and three wedding presents in six years."

How Hastings Would Have It.

(By Campbellford's Fully-Clad Poet)

Adam and Eve so The Tale goes, began wearing clothes for moral reasons. The idea caught on but got ahead of the reasons and ever since you cannot tell whether clothes are struggling to get back to the first cause or away from it.

Hats, so we are told were first made to shelter the head and keep the brain from becoming over-heated, but today, they plainly prove how this race of ours has advanced, for the peaked crowns now do the duty,
I suppose of shedding rain as well.

You could not have expected Eve to have known psychology and of course did not wear a pointed brim, but milady of today shades her face and thinks she is cool, while she exposes the top of head through a net or wears a criss-cross ribbon that suggests protection. It just goes to prove what education can do for you.

Morals have come a long way since
Eve. It seems moods and fancies have affected them. One can wear this season a voluminous flowing black velvet that has just the modest touch, but next year it is apt to take a knee-length according pleated to put over that restrained look. Morals just refuse to be regimented. Sometimes it's full-fashioned black silk stockings that give the necessary demureness and then again there is the simple soul who finds nature pure as she is and goes in for anklesocks.

It kind of seems Adam and Eve thought they were one until the apple spoiled the happy illusion. But women can live down mistakes. Just look how slacks and the frilled-wing collar and bow-tie shirt-waists and tuxedo-suit coats are again putting over the idea that women are like men or men like women. Which is it?
For a long while the womenfolks kind of got away from nature and the great outdoors of the Garden of Eden, but they are on their way back again
according to the looks of last summer's sun-tan bathing suits.

A book in faded scarlet bound.
Lies open at my gaze,
Shakespeare's familiar fancies shrined
In his immortal plays.
But this is what would happen now
As Hastings law decrees—
If kings and courtesans stepped out,
With sun-tan unclad knees.

They'd think the love-lorn Juliet
However gently bred,
A brazen flapper to be spanked.
And straightway put to bed.
And they would send Orphelia to Muskoka's sanitarium
And Falstaff along the main highway,
Like any other bum.

Lady Macbeth aquitted might Become their bridge-playing queen
And tell the way she did the deed,
In Rotary's magazine.
By order of the Board of Health,
Poor Yorick's skull we'd see,
No longer rolling underfoot
But buried decently.

Conscience Money Being Paid

(Kitchener Record)

THE REVENUE department can be thankful there is that indefinable thing called conscience; otherwise it would experience much more difficulty in collecting customs duties.

Some people, however, try every means of bringing dutiable goods into the country without making the necessary declarations. They try to make themselves believe there is no particular harm in cheating the government, unmindful of the fact, perhaps, that indirectly they are cheating the citizens as a whole, many of whom are taxpayers in financial distress.

A number of those who at times evade payment of customs duty don't reckon with that "little spark of celestial fire" implanted in the soul of every child of God and later experience remorse. Their conscience will not let them rest until they have made restitution. Hence the department of national revenue from time to time receives various sums of money usually accompanied by anonymous notes explaining the amount enclosed is "Conscience Money."

The current issue of the National Revenue Review says these donations vary from one cent to hundreds of dollars. It states that recently a sum of $500 was enclosed with a letter typical of many, which set forth that the writer at various times during the past 20 years had purchased in the United States shoes and dresses for personal use and occasionally for friends, bringing them into Canada without paying duty. To free the conscience of the writer a cheque for $500 was enclosed.

Another amount of $350 was sent to the department with the explanation that the writer had not cheated the customs for the past ten or 15 years but now felt that the duty should be paid on the odd dress or two brought in without declaring as far back as 25 or 30 years.

The stirring of conscience in a traveller in far distant Japan also prompted the sending of a remittance to the department.

The lesson learned by these people who repented of their dishonest deeds and made amends later is that in order to have happiness without alloy one must be able to live within his own soul in peace.

A Bible Message For To-day . . . .

CREATE IN ME a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within he. . . . The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God thou wilt not despise.— Ps. li: 10, 17.

I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect, will of God. . . . Let love be without dissimulation. Abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another.—Rom. xii: 1, 2, 9, 10.

Be ye therefore followers of God, as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savour.— Eph. v: 1, 2.

JUSTICE DONE IN.

(Christian Science Monitor)

JOHN A. HEFERMAN tells this story in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle of Mr. Justice Dunne of the New York State Supreme Court. It seems Justice Dunne was presiding at a damage suit, when came this dialogue between the lawyer and the witness:

"Did you see the plaintiff knocked down?"

"Who, me?"

"Yes, you."

"No not me."

"Did you see the defendant at all?"

"Who me?"

"Yes, you!"

"No."

"Then why are you here?"

"Who, me?"

"Yes, you!"

"To see justice done."

"Who, me?" demanded Justice Dunne, gazing sharply down from the bench. The story is recent enough to have nuisance value; and the pun broad enough to have nuance value.

MORBID CURIOSITY.

(Windsor Star)

IT IS NOT A VERY pleasant commentary on human nature that when certain types of cases come up in court there are always those who crowd in for the purpose of hearing evidence. Mr. Justice Tweedie, at the criminal assizes at Calgary, uses strong words to denounce such morbid interest.

When he noted a packed court room at the trial of a man charged with a statutory offence, His Lordship said: "In the past I have excluded the public in such cases, but legal decisions now prevent me from doing so. The people of the province have decided they are entitled to all the dirt and filth and they can't be put out of the court room."

The jurist's strong words apparently had much the same effect as if he had the legal power to exclude the public. Shame-faced "spectators" filed from the chamber.

Mr. Justice Tweedie was quite justified in making the statements he did. It is not essential to the cause of justice that the general public be permitted to revel in the filth of certain types of trials.

MILLBROOK W.M.S. HAS BUSY SESSION

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 23.—Mrs. A. Coyte extended the hospitality of her home for the Easter meeting of the W. M. S. of Grace Presbyterian church, which met on Wednesday at 3 p.m., several car-loads driving out to the meeting-place.

Mrs. S. E. Eakins, president, was in the chair, Miss Agnes Johnston reading the lesson with the Easter message, and the following members taking the 'Seven words from the Cross' in turn with explanatory notes: Mrs. H. Ball, Mrs. S. Weatherup, Mrs. H. Seaton, Mrs. W. T. Deyell, Miss A. Johnston, Miss M. Hales, and Miss Ruth Thorndyke. The roll-call was answered with a verse of scripture, and after prayer by Mrs. Deyell, the president read "The First Easter."

Following the taking up of the Easter thankoffering, Mrs. J. R. Thompson offered the prayer of gratitude and consecration, and Mrs. Seaton gave a paper on "The Secret Knowledge of the Risen Christ." A letter from Mrs. (Dr.) Barr, of Peterborough, regarding the retirement of the Presbyterial president, Mrs. Ewart, of Cobourg, and the corresponding secretary, Miss Harvey, both of whom have held office for many years, was read and definite action taken in regard to the request therein contained.

Mrs. H. Ball, bale secretary, reported a donation of $2.75, and mentioned that the requirements this year include an outfit for a sixteen-year old girl; the winter coat was promised by the president, and the other articles will be ready when needed. Announcement was made that the Presbyterial annual meeting will be in May, in the new Presbyterian church at Cobourg, and Mrs. Eakins and Mrs. Thompson promised cars for conveying delegates to this important gathering.

Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mrs. A. S. Hall, and Mrs. H. Ball were appointed program committee for the May meeting, and after the benediction adjournment was made to the dining-room, where a dainty tea was served, the ten cent fee netting about two dollars to the treasury. After the usual votes of thanks, and an agreement to arrange for a quilting, Mrs. R. J. McMahon having offered payment for a quilt which the society is shortly to complete for her, the guests left for home.

Hatching Chickens

Agriculture is being taught in the Lakefield High School this year and the project planned consists of the incubation and hatching of chickens. RAWDON PIONEER IS 94 YEARS OLD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, April 23. — John Webb, the oldest resident of this district, celebrated his ninety-fourth birthday at his home one mile south of Bonarlaw on Thursday of this week. Many presents and birthday cards were received and a number of friends called to wish him many happy returns.

His son, John Webb, and daughters, Mrs. Henry Wallace and Mrs. Charles Benson, together with their "better halves" and a number of grandchildren, made up a merry birthday group, and Mr. Webb, who is still in excellent health, appeared to be the merriest of all.

Born near Cork, Ireland, he landed in Canada 87 years ago, accompanied by his parents and four brothers and five sisters, bringing enough money with them to buy a 200-acre farm. The money was all in silver and carried in bags on their backs. After being in Canada about a year the farm long dreamed of was purchased. This was on the 11th Concession of Rawdon, and he has been a resident of Rawdon ever since.

Mr. Webb is still very active, has an erect carriage and a bight eye. His memory is excellent, and he is much interested in current events. He is a member of St. Mark's Church and a frequent attendant. On Easter Day he was in his accustomed place with the worshippers and communicants.

The entire community wish him health and happiness for many years to come.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 23—(A. P) — Commander Earl Winfield Spencer, first husband of the Duchess of Windsor, will be retired from the United States Navy June 30, naval headquarters here said today.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, April 24

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds promise of rather peculiar angles in connection with important matters of estate, home, investments or progressive business propositions. An elder or a bereavement may affect these propositions. In all, hidden factors call for much vigilance and discretion. Move wisely as important issues are at stake.

Those whose birthday it is are at the crossroads of very important events having to do with the fortunes, the home, and the interests of the young, with elders figuring in such major decisions. An element of intrigue, peculiarity or even treachery might arise to becloud the issues unless great precaution and wisdom are exercised.

A child born on this day may have very expansive ideas and large ambitions, which, although ultimately successful and productive, may find difficult and treachrous angles. It should finally attain renown and good reputation for major accomplishments.

For Monday, April 25.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for very important occurrences with high promises of major operations in business, investments or speculation. Promotion, prestige, substantial support of influential personages and financial increase are shown, but all these may be put in jeopardy by quarrelsome, rash and hasty decisions or untoward actions. Be calm, wise, tactful and restrained.

Those whose birthday it is are promised excellent opportunities for definite progress, promotion, enhanced popularity and financial increase through work, employment or investments. But all may be imperiled by rash, tempestuous and passionate activities, with unhappy reactions on the personal contentment. Use restraint and sagacity to reach unusual climaxes.

A child born on this day may have great ambitions and expansive ideas backed up by much practical creative ability, but a tempestuous, impulsive and quarrelsome nature may undermine its best interests.

LAKEFIELD

INSTITUTE HEARS ADDRESS ON TREES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, April 23. — Mr. Patterson, agricultural representative for Peterborough County, was guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Women's Institute which was held on Wednesday afternoon in the Memorial Hall. Mr. Patterson gave a most interesting talk on trees and reforestation.

A good attendance marked the meeting, at which Mrs. H. J. Bullock, the president, presided.

Miss Margaret Sanderson, the secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, and a report of the recent rug-making class which was sent in by Mrs. T. W. Chaplin.

It was decided that the Women's Institute would serve refreshments at the Junior Institute dance which is to be held on Friday evening, April 29, in the Memorial Hall. The committee appointed to be responsible for the arrangements was made up of Mesdames J. H. Payne, Art Montgomery, S. E. White and A. Windsor.

Mrs. Stan. Higgins was appointed the convenor of a committee to look after catering for the Masonic banquet.

The secretary reported having received safety pledges for those desiring them. It was announced that the May meeting will be held in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield, on May 4, at 2 p.m. Convenors of all standing committees are asked to have annual reports ready for that occasion. At this meeting the officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Mrs. J. Moore, who is convenor of the Agricultural Committee, was then called upon to take charge of the program. She introduced Mr. Patterson, who gave an enlightening address on "Trees and Reforestation."

At the close of Mr. Patterson's address the National Anthem concluded the meeting.

Presentation Made.

The presentation of a quilt to Mrs. Creighton, wife of Rev. W. J. reighton, pastor of St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Lakefield, was made at a special meeting of the Lakefield Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. James Earnshaw, Lakefield. A very large turnout of members marked the occasion.

After the business period, the president, Mrs. C. Stenner, presented Mrs. Creighton with a Dutch girl quilt, made by members of the Auxiliary. Mrs. W. W. Leonard read the following address:

"Dear Mrs. Creighton,—We, the members of the Lakefield Ladies' Auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, learn with regret that you and Mr. Creighton and your family are leaving our village in the near future. You have endeared yourself to us with your kindly personality, and we shall miss your interest and help in the work of our Auxiliary. Both yourself and your husband have been a kind friend to all, not only in your own church but to everyone in our community. This kindness will always be remembered, and we can only at this time wish you all every happiness in your new home. As a small token of our love and as a remembrance from the members of our Auxiliary, we ask you to accept this Dutch Girl quilt and hope it will be very useful.

"Signed on behalf of our Auxiliary,

"Mrs. F. Stenner, President.
"Mrs. G. Waldon, Secretary."

Mrs. Creighton, in a few well-chosen words, thanked the members for their most thoughtful and loving gift. A social time was then enjoyed by all.

LINDSAY

THIEVES RAIDING FARM GRANARIES

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, April 23.—Thieves are again preying on the farmers in this district, and the police are working overtime in an effort to run down the guilty parties. A short time ago an Ops resident reported the loss of sixty bushels of grain, which was taken from his barn. Friday the police received word from Hector Flett, of Fenelon township, that his granary had been visited and forty-five bushels of barley and oats carried off.

Dr. W. E. Blatz, psychologist of international reputation, and who was in charge of the social training of the Dionne quintuplets delivered an address Friday at the annual meeting of the Victoria and Haliburton Children's Aid Society.

The death took place Friday of the oldest resident of Ops township, in the person of Rose Dever, who had reached the age of ninety-one years. Miss Dever was born in the township and is survived by one brother, Thomas, with whom she resided.

Lindsay lost one of its oldest residents Friday when Mary Grozelle, widow of the late Felix Gassien, passed away at her residence, Simcoe street. She was born in Quebec and came to Lindsay when quite young. She is survived by four sons, all residing in Lindsay.

The death is announced at Plunkett, Sask., of a former resident of Harvey township, Peterborough county, in the person of the late George Henry Brumwell. Mr. Brumwell conducted a store at Nogie's Creek for a number of years before moving to the West. He is survived by his wife, Ella Moore, formerly of Harvey township; three sisters and three brothers.

FELLER LEARNING THROUGH EXPERIENCE OF DEAN AND ROWE

YOUNG HURLER IS SAVING ARM FOR LATE YEARS

NEW YORK, April 23—Four years ago three great young pitchers starred in a world series between the Tigers and Cardinals. It was their splendid pitching over a full season that won pennants for their teams.

Don't look now—but isn't that Paul Dean pitching in the Texas league? And what of the arms of Schoolboy Rowe and Dizzy Dean, fireball flingers of yesteryear? Rowe still doesn't know whether he'll be able to get anybody out in a major league ball game. And Dean, after a dull and discouraging year, is nursing carefully the arm he used to tax with generous abandon. He is still in the doubtful class despite a good start for the Cubs.

Feller Takes His Cue

The experience of the two Deans and Rowe have been very enlightening and beneficial to another young speed salesman—Bob Feller, who at 19 has learned the valuable lesson that it is possible to throw your arm over the grandstand and far away, no matter how strong the old souper may feel.

The example of other young fast ball pitchers, plus the fact that he sidetracked his good right elbow last summer, has made Feller as careful as a Scottish banker with his high hard one. The kid who tried to strike out everybody in the trade last summer has learned, with some help from his new boss, Oscar Vitt, that he doesn't have to throw a ball through a brick wall every time he takes hold of it, and that a pop fly is just as effective as a third strike in getting a man out of that batter's box.

Wisdom Outlasts Valor

The youngster from Iowa still can turn it on when he has to, but he is using vastly better judgment now that he doesn't have to prove that all those stories about his sizzler are true and not just ballyhoo. He work hard on the first batter to face him each inning. Then, with one out, he lets an infielder or outfielder have a chance to earn some money, too. In the tight spots he can turn it on.

Return of Rowe would make a pennant possible for Detroit this year. If the two Deans were in there chucking them as of 1935, all the Cardinals would have to do would be to have world series tickets printed. But that hitch in his shoulder still bothers Rowe. Paul Dean has gone back to the bushes and Dizzy is a Cub instead of a Card.

If you were Bob Feller, you'd slow up, too.

Yesterday's Stars

(By the Associated Press)

Clint Brown, White Sox—Limited to three hits in 5 2-3 innings of relief pitching and won own game by doubling and scoring in 13th.

Pep Young, Pirates—Drove in two runs in 7-4 victory over Reds, hitting two singles.

Red Ruffing and Frank Crosetti, Yankees—Ruffing blanked Senators with four hits; Crosetti made three hits and drove in three runs.

Enos Slaughter, Cardinals — Tripled with bases full in ninth and scored on error to give Cards 6-5 victory over Cubs.

BY A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well Mac, at last we got the hockey all laid away in moth balls for the season and we kin turn our attention toward the baseball show. The amateur hockey titles, Mac, has both gone west and they aint no arguments as to the claim them Western outfits has on the honors. The St. Boniface kids and the Trail Smoke-eaters has much the same style—spread to toss away and a checkerboard passing play that makes you think they're doing it with mirrors or something.

And on top of that the Westerners play clean hockey and the combination of speed, cleverness and cleanness makes them best sellers at the box office. Seems to me, Mac, there is something there for eastern teams to learn. We been getting closer to the pro standard all the time in the matter of rough tough and nasty stuff and I for I think we're on the wrong track. The cheers the Westerners has been getting and the crowds they been pulling in shows the folks which pay in their money at the box office likes the kinda hockey they dish up.

They Done Well

So far as Oshawa is concerned Mac, I don't think the fans in the Motor City has much to complain of. With a team that wasn't supposed to have a chance to win their own group the Generals has been battling along, knocking I good team after another kicking until they got within I game of the Dominian championship. Incidentally Mister Doc Rowden with material that on paper didn't seem anything like as good as what Mister Hancock had to work with has made a whole lotta better showing with Oshawa than the high-priced gentleman what coached Oshawa teams for a no. of years.

Right Out On The Line

And now it's baseball and already some folks has been asking me to come right out and pick the big league winners. Well you know me Mac, I aint going to take that kinda stuff lying down so here and now I predict that when next October comes around the world's serious games will all be played in one city and it won't be in Boston, Chicago or Philadelphia either. In other words, old timer I'm calling for another nickel series with Mister McCarthy's Yanks and Mister Terry's Giants clashing again. The Yanks, it's it's true, aint starting very well but it's long time to the fall and the way I look at it, they got too much power left yet to be knocked off this season, although their lead won't be nothing like last year's margin.

As for the Giants, they got the best defense in either loop good pitching and while not as high-powered as some of the other outfits they don't need to be. They can win on fewer runs than any of their opposition.

So there you are the Yanks again in the American; the Giants again in the National.

If I'm wrong the customers won't be surprised for it wouldn't be the first time; if I'm right I probably will be surprised myself.

Anyway that's my story even if I'm stuck withit.

Sportfully Yours.
A. Wise Cracker.

FAVORS NUMBERS ON SOCCER TEAMS

LONDON, April 23—(CP)—Since Canadian hockey players introduced numbers to British sport there has been a growing agitation to have the idea extended to football. Those who suggested numbers for rugger players were not even answered. Nobody dared include cricket.

But champions of the move to avoid confusion finally found the ear of the soccer authorities. And when the suggestion was turned down for the Cup final at Wembley, April 30, between Preston North End and Huddersfield Town a hue and cry was raised.

Unbending English tradition didn't even bother to explain. The Football Association was told by each club they wouldn't wear numbers because it wasn't necessary.

"If a plebiscite could be taken now of the 95,000 who will see the game," says Henry Rose in the Daily Express, "you can take it as certain that it would show something like a 100 per cent 'Ja' in favor of numbering." He added a strong plea for the authorities to force the teams to take numbers.

Sports DAY by DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC PERDUE

BUCKO MACDONALD has more color than a chorus gal in makeup for the Klieg lights. He is one of those enviable figures in sports—like Dizzy Dean in the National League, Hitler in the Dictators' Loop, and our own Shrimp McDougall—who catch the headlines regularly, whether he is doing his chore properly or not. One of the vagabonds who catch the public eye with his antics on and off the ice. For that reason, we were rather tickled when we heard the other day that Bucko had been signed as playing coach of Orillia Terriers and that team would be here in May for an exhibition lacrosse match with the Petes. 'Cause we poor sports scribes love a guy that is good copy like Marc Antony went for Cleopatra, since there is so much that is drab or free publicity in sports. And if we raved too much about Bucko just before the Orillia-Petes' game, we would be accused of slapping on the publicity paint. But they can't say so now.

* * * * * * *

YOU REALLY have something when you get hold of a sports' figure with color. Tickled like a shark in the hands of Wimpy of Popeye fame when we had Knotty Lee here, we were a bit amazed at a few disgruntled folk who thought we played him up too much as the Petes' ball coach. Yet the players who did their stuff under him never yelled about the paper space we gave him then—and they now often say he was the most colorful skipper they ever had and big and little sheets here and in the U. S. frequently speak of old Knotty. As they've been doing for years. One Montreal baseball writer has said Knotty was the most arresting third-base coach he ever saw, and Dan Parker in N'Yawk rated him the best of the minor league coaches. We were lucky to have him here for three years to write about, and we made the most of it. Knotty had enough color to brighten up the barns all through the Bancroft district. So has the great Bucko.

* * * * * * *

WHILE THE bumping, bouncing defenceman of Detroit Red Wings, who got great creadit a year ago for bumping opposing outfits out of the picture as the Wings went through to the Stanley Cup, is chiefly noted now as a hard-hitting hockey player, he was first of all a star lacrosser. In fact, Bucko turned pro in lacrosse in Toronto, but the old professional gutted-stick sport folded and Bucko had to make his way in hockey. He tried out with Toronto Leafs in '33. Conny Smythe couldn't see him and Wilfred MacDonald, the then 20-year-old Sundridge, Ont., boy, hiked to Buffalo of the International League. He kept up his rough-tough-and-nasty checking as in lacrosse and in one winter developed fast. Went then to Detroit Olympics ad moved up next year to the Detroit Wings. And starred.

* * * * * * *

NATURALLY THOSE noisy American fanatics went for a guy like the great Bucko just as they do for Dizzy Dean. They roared approval every time he draped an opponent over the boards and his picture was run as often in the papers as Greta Garbo. They even described in detail how much he ate, MacDonald evidently having an appetite like a lumberjack at a pie social. All Bucko had to do to rake in the shekels and hit the headlines was to be himself off the the ice and to bash rivals on the glazed surface. He did both to perfection. They say in lacrosse he is not only a tough hombre on defence but one of the smoothest passers in the game. Fans here will go for a bird like that and this writer, who has been hollering more or less vainly for years for a thumping, bodychecking puck and lacrosse defenceman, will forget what little dignity he has left and yell too.

* * * * * * *

THE LOCAL lacrossers are beginning to feel as high as a stratosphere plane over the prospects of their game for this year, and we don't blame them. They have as good a playing field as any team in the Province and they expect to line up the strongest amateur league in Ontario this summer. Including the team that knocked 'em off in the playoff semi-finals last years. At least, you can't say they are afraid of anyone. And fans here will certainly go for this lively and rugged game if the contests are fairly close. And they will be this year.

ANNUAL MEETING of the Church Softball League will be held on Monday night at seven o'clock in the Y.M.C.A., and all churches are asked to have representatives on deck. This loop has always been a big success, handling as many as 26 teams in a year, but it requires a lot of organization work and each team should have a responsible party at the one meeting held by the circuit. Entry of teams will be the big item, besides the election of officers and the question of getting Central for any other Church League playing field. Retiring officers are: Prexy Len Agnew, Secretary Don Charlton, Lloyd Parnall, Art Mann and Byers Smith. As president of the Ministerial Association. Rev. C. M. Parr is honorary president of the loop. Teams in last year included: Mark, St., St. John's, George St., St. Paul's, Murray St., All Saints, Knox, Park St. and St. James. These and St. Luke's. St. Andrew's, Trinity and St. George are urged to send delegates to Monday's session.

BILL PRINDIBLE informs us the annual banquet for the Junior City Hockey League champions will be held Tuesday p.m. at seven in the Paragon. Coach Wm. Jackson's P.C.I. puckists, winners last winter, will be guests, besides the trio of players who won shields. Corkery of St. Peters won th Throop Shield for being cleanest player, Mortimer of All Saints' led the scorers to take the Chown Shield, and Parnall of P.C.I. copped the Sheehy Shield for being most valuable player. The loop is sponsored by the Peterborough Hockey Club, with Bill Prindible the chairman.

UP TORONTO way they have a slightly different slant on baseball than we in the C.O.B.L. have. For instance,, the G. W. Grads, senior O.B.A.A. winners last year, lost Smokey Smith, Jim Dowling and Alex Stanley of the 1937 squad but they feel quite cocky over the '38 season. 'Cause why? Well, they figure they've got some first-rate replacements in George Blazetich and Kitch Jeffers of Napanee and Ken Long and Don Long. A Toronto report calls Blazetich the "sensational fireballer from Napanee," and says of Ken Long—who batted .236 for the Petes last year—"Ken is a first baseman and has been the leading hitter in the Hamilton circuit for the last few seasons." Ye locals used to fight to get up to the plate when Blazetich was heaving!

St. Paul's cagers have an eight-point margin to protect in Brampton tonight in their O.C.B.A. intermediate final. . . . . We once knew a guy that would argue about anything; he even gave a turnip a blood transfusion once to prove his point! Yeh, he was an umpire.

NICK WALL MAY RIDE AN ENTRY KENTUCKY DERBY

NEW YORK, April 23.—(CP).—Not many days hence—May 7 to be exact—leading three-year-olds of the United States turf start in the Kentucky Derby and should either of two jockeys win, Canadian racing might well count itself a share of Derby glory.

Not since 1935, when Smokey Saunders, lithe little rider from Calgary, booted Omaha home in front, has a Canadian jock won the classic of the Blue Grass country. This year Canadian possibilities are Johnny Longden and Alfie Robertson.

There's a possibility too, that Nick Wall, the half-pint jockey who learned to ride around Montreal and Ottawa and rode Stagehand to victory in the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby, may have a mount at Churchill Downs, May 7.

A win for Longden would be extra special Kentucky Derby glory because, barring something unforeseen, the long-legged saddle star from Taber, Alta., will be up on a would be equivalent to the 1919 win of the Montreal-owned Sir Barton. Greater glory could come only from a win by a Canadian-bred galloper in this race that has been won by only one foreign-bred racer— the English runner, Omar Khyam, in 1917.

Longden, leading rider at the Current Jamaica race meeting, gets the mount on Wise Fox, owned by A. G. Tarn of Winnipeg. Latest odds show the son of Gallant Fox, 1930 Derby winner, at 30 to 1, but his backers point to Wise Fox's recent win in the Louisiana Derby under Longden's hands as auguring well for the Canadian combination in the 1¼ mile race at Louisville.

Robertson, among the first flight of jockeys for more than a decade, has been nominated to ride Tiger in the Kentucky race for Mrs. Ethel V. Mars. Recently Tiger has shown signs of lameness but Alfie gets a Derby Mount anyway. If not up on Tiger the Toronto jockey is to pliot Mrs. Mards' Mountain Ridge, No. 2 entry of her Milky Way farms.

DUCHAK LEADS ALLAN SCORERS

CALGARY, April 23 — (CP). — Western Canada's preference for a stream-lined style of hockey, coming nearest to perfection in the play of Trail Smoke Eaters, was vindicated to-day with the British Columbia champions holding the Allan Cup.

Coach Elmer Piper's troupe of speedsters, who liked to pass as well as score, decided the question, for a year at least, by defeating Cornwall Flyers 3 to 1 here Wednesday night in the fourth game of the best-of-five series.

Records remained intact in the series which saw the trophy donated by Sir Montagu Allan come to the West for the fourteenth time in thirty-one years.

Scoring records for the series:

AN ESSENTIAL FREEDOM

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 23 (A. P.). — E. B. Stahlman of the Nashville Banner urged students of Southern universities last night to uphold freedom of the press as the prime safeguard of their liberties. He told a student convention: "The welfare of the newspaper is linked inseparably with your welfare—its freedom is your freedom."

Bill McKechnie Is Worried Over Work Of His Pitchers

Grissom's Ailing Arm Has The Cincinnati Ball Manager Disturbed

TAMPA, Fla., April 23. — Six weeks of intensive training have helped Bill McKechnie complete a new diagnosis of the situation that confronts the Cincinnati Reds in their attempt to raise their standing in the National League.

Sensational success of the Reds in the Grapefruit League hasn't dimmed the perspective of McKechnie, who still feels that plenty of work must be done before any appreciable gains can be made into the margins set up by some of the clubs over the Reds last year.

He is optimistic about the spring performances of Frank McCormick, Dusty Cooke, Harry Craft and Lew Riggs, all of whom were not sure of regular jobs until McKechnie took a peak at them during the exhibition contests. All four are assured starting posts and if they continue to play in the manner they have thus far, the Reds will be in for bigger and better things.

Add Necesary Punch.

Craft and Cooke have added plenty of speed to the outfield, while McCormick fills first base, a position that was weak most of last season. Rigg was the 1937 third sacker, but suffered a poor season, and was mentioned several times as a possibility to be traded. McKechnie said repeatedly he had a higher regard for Riggs' ability than most managers, and this opinion was substantiated by the manner in which Lew started to play this spring.

This year's line-up will be vastly different than the one that played most of the 1937 schedule. When Willard Hershberger, new catcher from Newark, goes behind the plate, the line-up, exclusive of pitcher, will contain only three men who were 1937 regulars. These three men are Riggs, Shortstop Bill Meyers and Rightfielder Ival Goodman.

Moundsmen Doubtful.

The optimism created by the performances of McCormick, Craft, Cooke and Riggs, has been partially dimmed by failure of some of the hurlers to round into good form. A disturbing element has been the complaint of a sore arm by Lee Grisson, ace of the 1937 staff ,and rated as one of the greatest mound prospects of the league.

Mound enthusiasm comes from the manner in which Gene Schott, who led the team in effectiveness last year, has been working. Schott is ahead of the other hurlers in condition, a direct contrast to 1937, when he was below regular form until about the middle of the season.

Paul Derringer, who won forty-one games for second division teams in 1935 and 1936, is entirely recovered from the effects of a hernia operation, and also looks well.

Success by Lloyd (Whitey) Moore and Johny Vander Meer, hard-throwing but wild youngsters, would set up the pitching staff to a real point of efficiency. However, regardless of all the possibilities of the staff, it must be said that the spring training period has indicated that the ball club is a bit over the standard everybody set for it before it went into spring training, but that the pitching staff needs development before it can be rated as highly as it was six or seven weeks ago.

Belleville Beats Peterboro Ladies

BELLEVILLE, April 23. — Fraternizing on the alleyes in an inter-city match, the Belleville ladies' quintette eked out a victory over the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. ladies on the former's alleyes when the local ladies won two of three games and the series by a total score of 2164 to 2089.

The Belleville ladies won the first game by a hundred point margin, but the Liftlock City women came back to win the second match with a forty point advantage, but the homesters rallied and won the final test by 15 pins, to take the series. A return match will be played in Peterborough next week. On Monday night the champion ladies team of the Belleville "Y" alleyes will be the hosts to the champion ladies team from Peterborough "Y" alleys.

Mrs. Crowe of Peterborough carried off the high score during yesterday's match with a 154, 203 and 163 for a total of 520, while Mrs. Russ Smith of Belleville was a close second with a score of 167, 146, 187 for a 500 total. Three of the local ladies only bowled two games, however. Following the inter-city Y.M.C.A. games yesterday, the Peterborough ladies were the guests of the Belleville ladies during a refreshment period followed by a social half hour.

The respective scores were:

Peterborough:
Mrs. Coursey	94	107	172	—373
Mrs. Ward	100	110	170	—380
Mrs. Brumi	175	140	164	—479

WHITCOMBE WINS $5,000 TOURNEY

RICKMANSWORTH, Eng., April 23 — (AP). — Charles Whitcombe, captain of the British Ryder Cup team won a £1,000 ($5,000) open golf tournament at the Moor Park Club to-day with a 72-hole score of 276. He finished two strokes ahead of his 24-year-old nephew, Eddie Whitcombe, and Alf Perry, former British Open champion.

W. J. Cox, another member of the Ryder Cup squad, made a hole-in-one of the 162-yard third hole and went on to set a new record of 67 for the Moor Park high course. His total of 282 for the four rounds put him in a tie with Open Champion Henry Cotton for fifth place.

For the Public WELFARE

Who can reasonably question either the influence of the daily newspapers in moulding public opinion, or their effectiveness in educating their readers upon a great variety of important subjects! These tremendous powers of the daily newspapers contribute immeasurably toward a higher and more enlightened type of citizenship. They tend to create for advertisers an ever-improving and more receptive audience for the messages which their advertisements present.

Advertisers who spend their advertising dollars in the daily newspapers not only get immediate results in the form of sales, but through their support of the newspapers help to create for themselves a better class of customers. The advertising dollars spent in daily newspapers do not end their usefulness with the appearance of the advertisements.

YANKS BLANK WASHINGTON 7-0; GIANTS DRUB DODGERS 3-2

BUCS HANG UP 4TH STRAIGHT NATIONAL LOOP

NEW YORK, April 23 (CP).—If anyone wonders about that "subway" world series that was freely predicted for the 1938 baseball season a week or so before it started, the happenings of the past few days appear to have done no serious damage to the prospects.

Although the competition in both leagues may be keener than was foreseen, the Yankees don't really look so bad even though they have lost three of their first five games and the Giants have a new "big four" hurling corps that appears ready to function smoothly and effectively.

The Yanks still need Joe DiMaggio, who is due to report today. They need some hits from Lou Gehrig, who hasn't connected yet, but they showed they still have the old power when they walloped Washington 7-0 in their home opening yesterday.

Red Ruffing pitched a game that could have been won without much trouble, giving only four hits. But the Yanks tossed in a little extra when Frank Crosetti made his third hit, a double with the sacks crammed in the eighth.

Spoil Brooklyn Opener.

After leading off with Cliff Melton, Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell, the Giants completed their hurling quartet by tossing in Harry Gumbert to spoil an opening day for 31,154 Brooklyn fans. The Giants won the game 3-2, their third in four starts.

Doubles by Hank Danning and Dick Bartell, surrounding Joe Moore's single, produced the winning runs in the eighth after the Dodgers had passed up frequent scoring chances. Dolph Camilli knocked in both Brooklyn runs with a homer and a double, and Cookie Lavagetto made three hits before going out with a pulled muscle in the sixth.

In spite of the commendable efforts of New York clubs, the Pittsburg Pirates remained on top in the National League with their fourth straight victory and Cleveland and Chicago moved up to make it a four-way tie with Washington and Boston in the American.

Indians Beat Tigers.

With a record crowd of 54,500 in the enlarged Briggs Stadium, Cleveland's Indians chalked up a 4-3 decision over Detroit Tigers as Mel Harder pitched a fine game and started the winning rally in the fifth with a double. The chief consolation for the home fans was that Schoolboy Rowe, whose lame arm caused plenty of grief last season, gave up only one hit in five innings after relieving Tommy Bridges.

The White Sox went 13 innings to beat the Browns 4-3 before 5,644 St. Louis customers. A double by Pitcher Clint Brown, an infield out and Rookie Henry Steinbacher's single produced the winning tally.

The Pirates gained a 7-4 decision over Cincinnati's Reds, who have been beaten on their last 19 appearances at Forbes Field. Four runs on passes to the Waner brothers and four straight singles decided the games as early as the third.

St. Louis Cardinals got four in the ninth to beat the Chicago Cubs 6-5 and gain their first victory of the season.

ORIOLES HOLD HITTING POWER FOR 1938 RACE

(By the Associated Press.)

Rain washed out yesterday's International Baseball League program, but it failed to wash out the inaugural day impression that Baltimore Orioles are going to make plenty of trouble this season for the champion Newark Bears.

The Orioles got off to a bad start last season, losing their first 10 games and winning but five of the first 30. Their heroic comeback to make the playoffs under the leadership of Bucky Crouse, who replaced Guy Sturdy as manager, is history now, but the hustle and spirit the veteran catcher instilled in his players still is plainly visible.

Acquisition of Phil Weintraub, Leo Norris and Nolen Richardson has lent power and finesse to the infield. With the popular Frank (Beauty) McGowan returned to his old job in centrefield for the Orioles, and with Ab Wright and George (Pooch) Puccinelli, sluggers extraordinary, flanking him, the fences in Oriole Park are in for plenty of pounding.

Four of the 13 hits the Birds made against Rochester on opening day went for extra-bases, three of them homers. Wright got a start toward retaining his home run crown with a homer and Weintraub and Crouse also connected for the round trip.

The same teams which were scheduled to face each other yesterday will meet to-day. Rochester and Baltimore will make up the washout by playing the first doubleheader of the season, while Toronto pairs with Jersey City, Buffalo goes against the Bears, and Montreal opposes Syracuse.

SEALS GET BIG WELCOME HOME

WINNIPEG, April 23 — (CP) — Largest crowd ever to pay tribute here to a group of athletes since Winnipeg Falcons won the Olympic hockey championship in 1920, cheered St. Boniface Seals as they arrived home from Toronto Friday.

The Seals, crowned Dominion junior hockey champions after defeating Oshawa Generals in a gruelling 5-game series, were given official congratulations at both Winnipeg and St. Boniface City Halls before a monster parade was concluded.

The 12 players and club officials were greeted by 3,000 Winnipeg fans who cheered as each player was introduced.

One hundred and forty-three cars, trucks, fire-engines and commercial vehicles formed the parade through Winnipeg and St. Boniface's main streets. Stops were made at the Winnipeg City Hall, where Mayor John Queen told the players they really had the upper hand in Winnipeg today.

WAITRESS SAYS SMITH TOLD HER OF 'LOVE MURDER'

MONCTON, N. B., April 23. — (CP).—With a restaurant waitress' declaration that Arthur Smith had told her he had "done away with" Naaman Ricker last winter already written into testimony, inquest into Ricker's death will continue May 5.

Eva Leblanc told the inquest before adjournment last night that Smith had confided in her Feb. 5 in the restaurant whre she was employed, saying he had "done away with" Ricker because he loved the 30-year-old garage mechanic's wife.

A few hours after Ricker's body was found Monday beneath a bridge crossing the Petiticodiac river here, Smith and Mrs. Ricker were taken into police custody. When the inquest is resumed, provincial analysts will report on examination of the internal organs of the dead man, who had been missing since Dec. 30.

Ricker had said: "They will find the body in the spring when the snow melts," the waitress testified. Then he added, she declared: "Rat poison will kill a man."

Discussing the conversation with her later the widow asked her to pay no attention, Miss Leblanc said, "because if anything happened to Arthur she would go crazy."

Tipped to Habits By Wife.

The waitress declared of the talk with Smith: "He said that Sadie Ricker had told him Naaman would drink anything when he was drunk and that he had bought drinks for Naaman that day and on the marsh that night gave him a drink that Sadie prepared."

Smith, his breath smelling of alcohol, told her tearfully that Ricker's father had blamed him for killing Naaman, she related. But if the older man 'didn't look out" he would meet the same fate as his son, she quoted Smith as saying.

Others among the 11 witnesses said Ricker had met Smith on the afternoon of Dec. 20 and the two were seen later near the bridge where the body was found. Smith said he was with Ricker that day but declared he had left Ricker in the early evening in the marsh near the river with Elliott Crossman.

HYDE WILL RUN FOR PRESIDENT

DUBLIN, April 23 — (CP). — Dr. Douglas Hyde, poet, historian and retired university professor, to-day accepted the nomination of Ireland's two large political parties to run for president in the May 31 election.

All Erie, the former Irish Free State, hailed the joint selection of Dr. Hyde by Prime Minister Eamon de Valera's Fianno Fail and the Opposition, Fine Gael. The two parties thus hope to avoid an election contest.

"I feel very touched at both parties in the Dail (parliament) agreeing to my selection," said the 78-year-old nominee.

With Government and Opposition agreed on the nomination of Dr. Hyde, Mr. De Valera and colleagues prepared for a week-end departure to London to resume negotiations Monday for an Anglo-Irish agreement.

The Canadian Press understands announcement of the result of the lengthy talks may be expected Monday night or Tuesday morning, as Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, is expected to refer to the situation in his budget speech in the House of Commons Tuesday afternoon.

The choice of Dr. Hyde, a Protestant, as the single candidate for the presidency was greeted with unanimous approval by all factions of the Irish press.

Salute For The Fascist Conquerors Of Lerida

Long accustomed to the clenched fist salute of the Spanish government forces, these men and women of Lerida, Spain, are trying out a new one—that of the Fascists—as Lerida changed hands and was occupied by the victorious Insurgents after weeks of intensive fighting. This was one of the important towns taken by Franco's troops in their drive along the Aragon front

BANANAS PUT END TO MONKEY SPREE

HALIFAX, April 23 — (CP). — For all the world like a pair of young innocents, two mild-eyed monkeys languished in a rude cage at the Nova Scotia Light and Power Company's waterfront power house to-day, their cavortings at an end.

Apparently the pair were the last of 25 which escaped from a cage at pier 20 Wednesday to be captured. Of the group of fugitives that led police and Longshoremen a wild chase through docks, streets and parks, they were the noisiest and most imaginative.

The 25 escaped from their cage while the freighter City of Salisbury, carry them to New York from the Far East, docked here to be fumigated. Part of a shipment being taken to the United States city for medical research, they quickly raced to nearby vantage points.

Several of the runaways gave in quickly when tempted with bananas and other delectables. Others were believed to have perished in Point Pleasant Park when a cold, wet night descended.

The two which held out longest were having the time of their lives when power house employees finally caught them. They scrambled over transformers and high-tension gadgets until a stoker caught one.

In captivity, that one shouted warning to his pal until he finally fell off to sleep. Then the last belligerent allowed himself to be snatched by walking into an intricate trap, containing a couple of bananas and a bottle of pop as bait.

WESTERN PRIEST DIES

WINNIPEG, April 23 — (CP). — Father Adrien Gabriel Morice, 79, author of some 30 works on the history of Western Canada, was literally active to the end of his life.

The heavily-whiskered priest, who did his writing almost exclusively at his small apartment in a North Winnipeg house, had a volume on "Origins of Catholicism in Winnipeg" in preparation at the time of his death yesterday.

New All Time Low Set Up In '36 For Permanent Disabilities

Dividends From Accident Prevention Work Almost Incalculable Says President

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23—(CP).—An all-time low record of permanent disabilities as a result of Ontario's industrial accidents in 1936, the last year for which complete records were available, was reported to the annual convention of the Industrial Accidents Prevention Associations here to-day.

In that year 835 permanent disabilities, "a new low for all time," were recorded by the Workmen's Compensation Board of Ontario, A G. Wright of Hamilton told the convention in his Presidential address. There were 272 deaths. He said that in 1915, when the Workmen's Compensation Act was put into force ,there were 1,339 permanent disabilities and 296 deaths.

"Over a period of years our work is very much worthwhile and pays dividends which are most substantial," said Mr. Wright. "It can be said that the hazard of life and limb in industry in Ontario has been reduced by two-thirds over the years that our safety associations have been in operation."

"This record has been achieved in spite of the fact that accidents on our highways involving industry have ben increased quite materially," the President added. 'In connection with highway hazards, our associations have saved many hundreds of lives and thousands of limbs. Measured in dollars, this reward for your efforts to prevent accidents is incalculable."

First Aid Men a Boon.

Discussing increasing medical costs, Mr. Wright said that while the associations had reduced permanent disabilities and fatal accidents in industry, "those involving temporary disabilities and medical aid only have increased." It was felt that with proper first-aid facilities and trained first-aid men "a lot of minor accidents involving medical aid would be transferred to the list of accidents involving first aid only."

The associations' work during the past year had been carried on "in the usual manner," the president reported. It was the "constant endeavor" of the administrative committee to devise some method of measuring the results of the work done by the associations but "for the statistical result of the work as a whole we have to look to the report of the Workmen's Compensation Board."

In the belief that accident-prevention work could best be carried on by organized and local effort, a new division had been created in Central Ontario. "We look forward to the creation of a still further division in the future," Mr. Wright said.

WARKWORTH

Mrs. Wesley Darke and son Earle of Castleton are visiting Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Boyce.

SCHOOLS REFUSED

TORONTO, April 23 (CP).—Toronto Board of Education last night turned down a request of the Canadian Youth Congress for use of two schools for its annual meeting here in May.

THREE POOLROOMS SHUT

WINDSOR, Ont., April 23 (CP).—Three poolroom license holders were told by Windsor Police Commission last night they must obtain new tenants because handbooks had been found by police in the establishments. A fourth lessee will appear before the Commission to explain why a handbook was found on his premises.

Three of the affected poolrooms are situated on Windsor's main street, and are known as the Palace, the Paramount and the Arcade. The commissioners noted that the Palace, owned by Peter Meretsky, had four handbook convictions against it since a poolroom license was obtained a few months ago.

ESSENTIAL FOOD LIST STALS 52

KINGSTON, Ont., April 23. — (CP).—Continuation of the discussion on Dominion registration and the receiving of further reports were scheduled for the closing session to-day of the convention of the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario. Officers also will be elected.

If the system of Dominion registration were set up it would give the nurse wider recognition and a wider field to work in and also combat restriction placed on nurses by the regulation now in force, called provincial registration, it was argued at last night's session.

It was announced that the question of Dominion registration would be one of the main topics when the Canadian Nurses' Association convenes in Halifax this summer.

Dr. Frederick Tisdall, chairman of the Nutrition committee of the Canadian Medical Association, gave an address on "what to eat to be healthy." He said that by enriching the diet there is proof that we can prolong longevity. "There are 52 food elements which we must use," he said. "Eggs, milk, meat, vegetables and fruit are needed in out diet. Milk is our best food, adults need half a pint each day to supply calcium, while children at the age of fifteen, need three times that amount."

Envoy To Soviet?

Charles E. Stuart, of New York, is prominently mentioned as a likely successor to Joseph E. Davies as United States ambassador to Moscow on the transfer of the latter to Belgium in the near future. Mr. Stuart is a director of the American-Russian chamber of commerce. He also is a member of the national foreign trade council. In 1935, after a tour of Europe, he made a report to the state and commerce departments on European conditions and their relationship to international trade and export credits.

GERMAN OFFICERS DIRECTING REBELS

LONDON, April 23—(CP-Havas).—Following charges from the Spanish embassy here that German staff officers are in control of Spanish insurgent operations on the Franco-Spanish frontier, the Daily Herald (Labor) today published an "authentic" tabulation of German and Italian forces fighting in Spain.

According to the diplomatic correspondent of this newspaper the Italian army corps with General Franco totals 30,000 effectives, while foreign troops, including artillerymment, tank forces, fliers and experts, total 60,000 men.

The accusations by the Spanish embassy were contained in a communique which read:

"On April 16, the German staff decided to keep control of all operations on the Pyrenees frontier. That night five high officals left Berlin by air for Durgos. The command in the northern front in Spain is at present in the hands of German Generals Wolf, of the German Air force, and Witershein of the 14th Army Corps.

"On April 14 and 15, 63 officers left Munich in Junker planes 52 of them for Seville to prepare an immediate offensive against Almeria from Malaga (in southeastern Spain). This offensive will be commanded by General Prager of the reserve corps and Colonel Hiler of the seventh Germany army corps.

The Italian Set Up

The Daily Herald said the Italian army corp commanded by General Berti, whose second in command is General Manzini, includes three divisions, the Littorio, under General Bergonzoli, the "Black Flames and March 23," under General Francisci, and the Arrows, under General Roatta.

The article also mentioned three artillery regiments, the first, second and fifth, with guns of from 2.55 inches to 11.1 inches, under General Manca, and two tank battalions and one of armored cars, under Colonel Sabini.

Italian air forces in Spain were said to be commanded by General Bernasconi and to eight squadrons of 'Savoia 81" planes, 8 squadrons of the Savoia 79 model 10 scouting planes of the Breda 61 model, and 35 squadrons, or 385 planes, of the Fiat and Romeo pursuit models.

ANDERSON IN RING

SASKATOON, April 23 (CP).—Dr. J. T. M. Anderson, former Premier of Saskatchewan, and Alderman S. N. MacEachern will contest the two-member Saskatoon constituency under the Conservative banner in the Provincial elections. They were chosen unanimously at a nominating convention here last night.

President's Kin Visits British Columbia

Daughter of President Roosevelt, Anna Roosevelt Boettiger and her husband, John Boettiger, former Washington correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and present managing editor of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, are shown here as they visited Vancouver. Eleven-year old Eleanor and eight-year-old Curtis Dall, children of Mrs. Boettiger by a previous marriage, accompanied the couple on their visit to Canada.

$10,000 FIRE HITS PEACE RIVER TOWN

SPIRIT RIVER, Alta., April 23. —(CP).—Damage from fire which destroyed five business premises and a post ofifce in this Peace River town was estimated to-day at $10,000.

Jack Armstrong, a tailor, was burned seriously when the flames broke out in his shop yesterday from undetermined origin. His clothing afire, he ran from the building to spread the alarm. His condition was reported "quite favorable."

Practically all the male population of the town of 350 turned out to prevent spread of the fire to the main business section and they were aided by an easterly wind blowing the flames away from the town, 300 miles northwest of Edmonton. Several of the fire fighters suffered burns.

Destroyed premises were Armstrong's tailor shop, the post office, Major Pitton's cafe, Holmberg's store and sash and door factory and Cowan's garage. Post office records were saved.

New roads planned for the Philippines will cost $18,500,000.

Pig Refused To Die

ST. CATHARINES, Ont.—Story of a pig that refused to die comes from the Bismark district. A farmer's crippled pig was found, apparently dead. The farmer buried it in a refuse heap. Three days later his dog barked vigorously by the refuse heap. The farmer dug in it and out rushed the pig, lean and weak.

Thieves Have No Luck

HAMILTON—Thieves are having a run of bad luck in shoe thefts. Last week in Toronto a thief stole and abandoned 50 shoes when he found they were all for the left foot. The same thing happened here this week. C. A. Wilson, London, reported theft of two cases of sample shoes. All were for the right foot. They were found abandoned.

CANADIANS FAIL TO PLACE SUFFICIENT VALUE ON TRADITIONS

Senator Iva Campbell Fallis Addresses Art Association At Its Annual Dinner Meeting

Senate Is Workshop While Commons Is Theatre Providing The Stage

"It seems to me that if in Canada we have a national fault, it is that we do not put sufficient value on traditions. We have an instinctive patriotism, but we need to be more aware of the continuity of things, and to realize that deep roots encourage growth."

Senator Iva Campbell Fallis, addressing the Lyceum Club and Women's Art Association at the annual dinner in the Empress Hotel Friday evening took an attentive audience into the realm she knows so well to give most instructive and interesting "Glimpses of Parliament Hill". The senator who was a distinctive figure in a gown of black Valenciennes lace trimmed with huge flowers of gold velvet, was introduced by Mrs. F. C. Neal, who presided at the dinner in place of the president, Mrs. F. E. Hooper, absent at the Provincial I.O.D.E. convention in Hamilton.

A brief but comprehensive history of the origin of our well known symbols, traced to the Mother of Parliaments at Westminster, included the history of the Woolsacks, where the justices of the Supreme Court sit while the speech from the throne is read, at the opening of Parliament; and the mace, the symbol of authority, than which nothing is more steeped in tradition, said the speaker, and reminded her audience of Cromwell's historic utterance when dissolving Parliament in 1653. That same mace is in use today.

Mrs. Fallis related the adventure of the maces of Canadian Parliaments. In the war of 1812, the United States troops carried away the mace from York to Annapolis where it remained till 1934 when President Roosevelt had it returned during the celebrations of the 100 years of peace. It is now in the Royal Ontario Museum, and was used during the ceremonies at the last session of the legislature. After the union of Upper and Lower Canada a new mace was made of silver, which was destroyed in the fire of 1916 at Ottawa. In the same year the Lord Mayor of London presented the government with a replica which is used today.

Abolished In Days of Elizabeth

The Senator told her audience an interesting and little known fact about the earliest days of the British parliament, when Abbesses and ladies of high rank took part in the debates, but strange to note, the right was abolished in the days of a woman ruler, Queen Elizabeth.

"You so often hear comments to the effect there is no need of the Senate, that it is an additional expense, only duplicating the vote of the House of Commons, and would be better abolished. This is not correct", stated Mrs. Fallis emphatically, "The Senate is not a second House of Commons, and there is a radical difference".

The Senate was established by the Fathers of Confederation that the minority might never be swallowed up by the majority. In the House of Commons, with the number elected according to population, (as 82 from the West and 26 from the Maritimes) legislation where their interests conflict, naturally tends to benefit the larger number. But no bill is law till it passes the Senate where the representation is equal (e.g. 24 from the West and 24 from the Maritimes) and no matter how the population shifts, the proportion never changes.

More Debating In Commons

The manner in which the legislation is administered is another difference. There is far more debating in the Commons, where members, elected for five years must show many pages in Hansard, if they hope for re-election. This is to the good bringing many different ideas from different parts of the country. In the Senate every major bill is sent to committees, which revise and amend with the idea of making it perfect before it leaves. "So the House of Commons is the theatre supplying the stage on which is enacted the drama that goes to making the nation, and the Senate is the workship."

As a third point the Senator mentioned the different political complexion usually found in the two Houses, caused by the changes of Government, and which acts as a safeguard against extreme partisanship. In these days of many isms it is a good thing also to have a body that cannot be swayed by sudden changes if they should sweep the country".

Mrs. Fallis made reference to the Divorce bill before the Senate at present, providing for increased grounds for divorce and which has created much interest, and the Railway committee, appointed to meet the heads of the two railways and endeavor to find a solution to the problem of saving millions each year, is not, as many people suppose a bill for amalgamation but for unification of management.

Fight to Retain Freedom

The Senator closed with an appeal to her audience to feel and accept individual responsibility and to fight the forces at work that would destroy our freedom. "For we know that only in a democratic country such as ours is there freedom of speech and action", she declared. "I am amazed every day", said the Senator, "at the number of women, who take an intelligent interest in everything else, and none at all in the government of the country and the laws under which they and their children live". The speaker instanced the dictatorship in Germany today where women are barred from the universities and the professions, and outside their homes may fill only menial positions.

"Anything can happen anywhere", said Senator Fallis, and called on Canadian women to give of their time and energy and "stand together for a common objective, to have peace within our own borders and try to bring about that day of great understanding between the nations when war is not and hate is dead".

Beautifully sung solos by Miss Alicia Langley were much enjoyed at the close of the Senator's address. Accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Gwen Craw, Miss Langley sang "Happy Song", "Love Is Meant to Make Us Glad" and as an encore, "As I Went A-Roaming".

Mrs. Neal, expressing to Senator Fallis the thanks and appreciation of the association for her presence and speech, said that of necessity we see our own distinguished people all too seldom. The flowers on the head table, tulips, daffodils and snapdragons, were presented to the Senator before she left.

The annual banquet of the Red Patch Club held to commemorate the first battle the Canadian Corps took part in, was held on Friday, April 22, and was a very successful event. The president of the club presided, and among the guests at the head table were Major Dingle of the Canadian Corps Association, Lieut.-Col. L. T. McLaughlin, C.M.G., D.S.O., etc., J. J. Duffus, M.P., A. L. Elliott, M.P.P. Comrade George Walsh, publicity agent of the Oshawa Branch of the Legion, won the hearty applause of the diners with his song "The Sergeant-Major on Parade." The feature of the evening was the empty chair at the table under the Red Patch shrine, "Lest We Forget."

Officers Mess Hold Dance

The smart red and black mess uniforms of the officers of the Prince of Wales Rangers were in attractive contrast with beautiful evening gowns to form a gay picture at the Peterborough Armouries on Friday night. The officers mess was crowded and dancing and bridge were enjoyed. Guests were received by the group shown in this picture. From left to right they are: Col. H. J. Smith, V.D., of Trenton, Officer Commanding the 9th Infantry Brigade; Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne; Lt.-Col J. A. Dewart, M.C., Officer Commanding the Prince of Wales Rangers; Mrs. J. A. Dewart; Major R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne.

REV. H. SNIDER DIES IN TORONTO

Rev. Harold Snider, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Snider, 597 Water street, died in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, on Friday evening after a lingering illness. He was in his 30th year.

Born and raised in this city, he had a host of friends here. He attended St. Peter's school in both junior and senior grades, and then St. Augustine Seminary in Toronto, where he took his course in philosophy and theology.

Rev. Harold Snider

He was ordained to the priesthood in St. Peter's Cathedral on June 15, 1935, and had been assistant in the parishes of Kearney and Huntsville. Since August, 1936, he has been in poor health. He is survived by his father and mother and one brother, Dr. Eugene Snider of London, England, and Miss Barnadine Snider, R.N., of Peterborough. Funeral arrangements were not completed at press time.

MAIN STREET TOPICS

By an Examiner Reporter.

SEES AMPLE RAIN.

Herb McNeeland of Rawdon township is predicting a wet season for the farm crops. There will be plenty of rain, he says, and the crops should be heavy, especially for the grasses. Probably it is just a guess, but anything that rates on the side opposite to depression deserves a mention.

GOLF GREENS READY.

Col. Frank Bradburn will probably say "I told you so" about this item which really should have appeared on Friday, but some reporters are not as golf conscious as the Colonel and Ford Strickland. So, this is a belated note to remind the members of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club that the permanent greens were ready for play this afternoon, and that means for the rest of the season.

ELECTED DIRECTORS

The annual meetings of the class safety association held this week at Windsor, in conjunction with the annual convention and industrial safeguarding exhibition of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, the following elections of Peterborough men were announced: H. T. Crawford and H. A. Cranfield, directors of the Metal Trades Safety Association; J. J. Turner, director of the Textile and Allied Industries

ADDRESSED CLUB

Inspector E. C. Dunn of the traffic division of the Toronto Police Force was the guest speaker at the weekly dinner of the Friday Night Supper Club held in the Y.M.C.A. Inspector Dunn discussed Traffic and its problems and means to prevent many accidents. Two reels of pictures were also shown by Inspector Dunn. C. A. Browning of the Accidents Record Division of the Toronto force was also present along with Detective Sergeant William Meagher of the Peterborough force.

TIMES ARE CHANGED

The times of a number of C.P.R. trains in and out of Peterborough will be changed tomorrow, Sunday. Train No. 33 which now leaves Peterborough at 5.15 a.m. will leave at 4.45 a.m. Train No. 35 leaving now at 4.50 p.m. will leave at 4.55 p.m. Train No. 619 which now leaves at 6.15 p.m. on Sunday only will leave at 8.15 p.m. Train 602, now leaving Toronto at 5.40 p.m., arriving here at 8.10 will now leave at 5.15 and reach Peterborough at 7.40. Train 34, now leaving Toronto at 11.35 p.m. will start at 11.15, arriving at Peterborough at 1.30 a.m. instead of at 1.50.

OPERA 'IOLANTHE' TO BE PRESENTED

The Peterborough Lions Club are breaking into the last phase of the concert season with two offerings for the coming week, an introductory concert by the Lions Boys' Band in the Regent Theatre Sunday night and the production of Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera "Iolanthe" by the Eaton Operatic Society in the Collegiate auditorium next Thursday night.

The band is directed by William Suart who has been devoting the fall and winter months to the organizing of this company of teenage boys, most of whom didn't know a note of music when they began. Their program has been published, and should attract a full house. The Eaton Opera Company's "Iolanthe" has been highly praised by the press of Toronto and of several other cities in which it has been presented. The principals are all talented soloists supported by an excellent chorus, with sumptuous staging. It will be the first Gilbert and Sullivan operetta heard here in quite a number of years and will naturally appeal to all those who have heard it before, and deserves to be greeted with a capacity audience. Some of the principals are Charles Jolliffe, Alison Wallace, Betty Barron, Norman Cherrie, Arthur Harvey, Edith McIlroy, George Aldcroft, Helen Bruce, Lilyan Mullen and others.

Incidentally the receipts from these two programs are being used by the Lions Club to defray expenses connected with the Boys' Band.

HOWDEN AVENUE MAN IS ARRESTED

Joseph J. Emery, Howden Avenue, was arrested early this morning by Constable Bruce Menzies of North Monaghan on a charge of illegal sale of liquor and later he was arraigned before Magistrate Langley on the charge.

He pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment. Magistrate Langley remanded him until Tuesday, bail being fixed at $1,000.

Ray Milligan, Western Avenue, arrested on a charge of wife-beating was also remanded without bail until Tuesday. He pleaded not guilty.

Two blacklisted men were before the magistrate. A second offender was sent to jail for a month by Magistrate Langley, and the other man, on a first offence charge escaped with a fine of $10.00 and $4.50 costs.

SONS OF ENGLAND HONOR ST. GEORGE AT ANNUAL DINNER

The Sons of England celebrated their National Day on Friday evening with a banquet in the Paragon Rooms. The president of the lodge, W. G. P. Benton acting as toastmaster.

After a typical English dinner, roast beef and plum pudding, served by Bro. Charlie Coleman, the toast to the King was honored in the customary manner by singing the National Anthem. Before the toast, "The Day We Celebrate," the chairman welcomed the members of the lodge and their friends, reminding them that a special program for St. George's Day would be broadcast over the CBC stations Saturday evening, 9.15 to 10 p.m. This program has been arranged between the Supreme Secretary of the Sons of England and the program director of the Canadian Broadcasting Commission.

Dr. Kenner Speaks.

After honoring the toast, St. George's Day, Dr. H. R. H. Kenner responded with an eloquent address on the contribution the British Empire has made to the advancement of civilization. Touching in turn on Scotland, Ireland and England, he pointed out the contribution that each had made to the cause of civil and religious liberty. The great empire of which we are so proud to be a part has at its centre England, the home of great poets, statesmen and heroes.

A vocal solo by Miss Phyllis Rome was received with such enthusiasm that an encore was graciously given.

The toast to Canada, the land of adoption, followed by the sinking of O Canada, was responded to by Mr. Charles Shaw in his own inimicable manner, urging those present to show their appreciation of their adoption by becoming good citizens and assisting in the task of building up to the city as a good place to live in.

A vocal solo by Frank Biddle followed by an encore was enjoyed by all.

Toast to City.

The toast to the City was responded to by His Worship Mayor James Hamilton, who was heartily welcomed by the chairman. The Mayor extended to the members of the Sons of England the good wishes of the citizens of Peterborough. He referred to the industrial character of the city, also to the pioneers who coming from England, Scotland and Ireland had laid the foundation of a beautiful city, not only in location but in the charatcer of its citizenship.

A toast to the Ladies was proposed by Rev. Mr. Gault of St. George's church, was characterized by him as something of an Irish trick, as being a bachelor what did he know about the ladies. In his address he stressed the point that to-day there is no weaker sex and it is the sponsibility as well as the opportunity of women to take a larger place in the promotion of the cause of peace and good living.

A vote of thanks to all who assisted in the program in any way was moved by Bro. George Benton, a past president of the lodge, who presented a bouquet of roses to Miss Phyllis Rome and Miss Flowers, the accompanist: The singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem brought a successful evening to a close.

GIVEN JAIL TERM FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Pleading guilty in police court this morning to having obtained $44.70 in relief from the Central Relief Board under false pretenses Herbert Jackson was sentenced by Magistrate Langley to fifteen days in jail.

It was explained to the court that Jackson had obtained relief vouchers for his wife and child on the ground that he was living with them, whereas the truth was that they were out of the city.

"What did you do with the money, spend it on yourself?" asked the Magistrate and Jackson admitted that such was the case.

Warren Gamble Third Time Grand Champion Hobby Show

Wide Variety Of Hobbies Are Exhibited At Annual Show

Warren Gamble was announced grand prize winner with a total of 196 points when the Peterborough Boys' Hobby Show opened its two-day stand at the Y.M.C.A. on Friday night. It was the third consecutive year that young Gamble had walked off with first honours. Mac Powell was second with 158 points.

Opening the show in the absence of Mayor James Hamilton, Alderman R. M. Glover stressed the importance of every boy and girl, man and woman having a hobby through life. He scored the "watcher" who takes no active part in any sport or hobby. The man who goes to a baseball game, the woman who merely looks at flowers, should take a more active interest, he said. 'You should participate in whatever hobby you are interested in, he said. He paid tribute to the work of the boys and to Y.M.C.A. officials through whose efforts the show is being presented.

Other speakers were C. S. Cummer, president of the Board of Directors of the Y.M.C.A. and Charles Lacheur, acting chairman of the Boys' Work Committee. All were introduced by Stuart Laing, president of the Hobby Show.

Hobbies showed a wide variety of interest and exhibits were segregated in a dozen different departments, the work of nearly 80 exhibitors totalling nearly 800 articles. They were the work of juniors, under 19 years of age, and seniors, over that age, and were displayed in attractive layouts in the second floor auditorium of the building and in the boys' recreation room downstairs.

Once again the art department drew an outstanding range of exhibits. Work of al types was on view—pencil, charcoal, water colours, oils, crayons and inks, and the ribbon winners in each section were highly creditable pieces. Warren Gamble copped first honors with a showing of 31 pieces, which netted him 192 points. Next was Sam Rogow with 69 points. Rogow's work was undoubtedly the best in the building but the lacked a large number of exhibits to bring him leadership in the field.

Commendable was the exhibit of woodwork handicraft. The section included such ambitious pieces as jardiniere stands, book racks and tables, stools, magazine racks, Fred Craig's model of the Queen Mary attracted wide attention. The Seven Dwarfs entered the show this year; they were wood carvings by Ray Titterington.

Entries in the coin and stamp department were well up to the exhibits of past years, Len Thomas leading with 64 points and Mac Powell coming second with 18. In the radio Don McPherson copped first honors by showing five homemade sets. Photography showed great strides, outstanding work being exhibited by Hugh Kenner, one of whose subjetcs was his father, seated at table going through the age-old ceremony of carving the meat course. The soap department boasted only a few entries but the class of work was high. Jim Hawthorne captured first ribbon, second went to Jack Harvey.

The greatest ingenuity of the entire show was a model rocket projector, exhibited by Roy Hiscox gifted 17-year-old student at P.C.I. An elaborate affair, it could be controlled either by voice or by light beam. Different words cafied through a microphone made the projector turn on its axis, elevate its range, fire a cardboard disc. Similar results could be obtained by using the light beam.

Under miscellaneous there were hundreds of exhibits ranging in subject over a wide field. They included anything from collections of door keys to lapel buttons. Mac Powell and Jim Ferguson were leaders. Particular attention was won by the leathercraft show of carefully and artistically worked portfolios, book covers, a dunnage bag, and other leather goods, most of it the work of Frank Patterson. Ray Titterton placed second.

Model airplanes were once again a feature attraction. Several fine models, some of them capable of actual flight, were the work of Mac Powell, Fred Craig and Bob Nattress.

Several fine non-competitive exhibits brightened the show. Hundreds viewed th window dressing contest sponsored by the Quaker Oats company, in which Sam Rogow showed a fine sense of proportion and balance to win first award, Eric Taylor was second, Bob Ferguson third. A clever exhibit was provided by the manual training department of the Public schools.

Officers of the show were: Dr. H. M. Yelland, honorary president; Stuart Laing, president; Tom Hooper, vice-president; Ralph Johnson, secretary; Harry Vass, treasurer. Advisory committee were F. E. Johnston, A. Hope, J. C. McClenaghan, N. C. Munro, Cameron Gorrie.

Department winners were:

Art—1, Warren Gamble; 2 Sam Rogow; 3, Jack Craig; 4, Fred Craig; 5, Gord Diplock.

Stamps and Coins—1, Len Thomas; 2 Mac Powell; 3, Merton Pearce.

Miscellaneous Collections—1, Mac Powell; 2 Jim Ferguson.

Photography—1, Hugh Kenner; 2, Ken Gillespie; 3, Tom Stanley.

Radio—1, Don McPherson; 2, Tom McDonald .

Mechanical Models—1, Joe DeChantegny; 2, Fred Craig; 3, Bob Crocket.

Leathercraft—1, Frank Patterson; 2, Ray Titterington.

Model Airplanes—1, Mac Powell; 2, Fred Craig; 3, Bob Natress.

Soap Sculpture— 1, Jim Hawthorne; 2, Jack Harvey.

Manual Training—1, Ray Titterington; 2, Fred Craig.

Scoutcraft—1, Warren Gamble.

Examiner's Havelock Blast Pictures Are Given Readers In Record Time

The Examiner feels it is in a position to do a little discreet boasting about the clean scoop it scored with Friday's pictures of the blast at the Havelock quarry. Although news photographers from three papers were present, the Examiner was a day ahead of its rivals in showing its readers the pictures.

Jerry Richardson, well known news photographer for a large Toronto daily, was frankly amazed when he learned the Examiner intended to run the pictures on Friday. He admitted his paper could not dry negatives and turn out prints in thirty-five minutes as does this paper.

The blast was scheduled to go off at 11.30 a.m. but officials from the company's head office were late in arriving and delayed the explosion until 12.07 noon. With his three cameras to remove from their tripods, a half mile to travel over rough road, caught in a jam of cars, a bag to pick up at the company's office, the photographer reached Peterborough at 12.50 o'clock, his speedometer touching 80 a good deal of the way over rough roads. The car bounded clear off the road once near Indian River when it struck some bad bumps. He kept his foot to the floorboards and in some way or other the machine managed to regain the road.

FICTION AND FEATURES

One More Wedding

By HELEN WELSHIMER

READ THIS FIRST:

Garry Page, New York columnist, has just returned from abroad. At the pier he was greeted by Barbara Kingsley, who came to New York a few weeks previously, the day before Garry sailed for Europe, to fill a vacancy on a child magazine at the suggestion of her close friend, Natalie Kendall. Barbara and Garry became interested in each other when she was society editor of the Martinsville Post and Garry had come to Martinsville for a wedding. Jack Metcalf, an artist, and Ruth Merryweather, an attractive heiress, both close friends of Garry's had taken a kindly interest in Barbara during Garry's stay abroad. Julia, Barbara's cousin from Martinsville, in New York for a visit, moves into Barbara's apartment unexpectedly. Barbara returns from meeting Garry at the boat and finds a raucous party in progress. She is dismayed as Garry calls for her that evening. Barbara is furious to find the party still going when Garry brings her back to her apartment and orders Julia and the others to leave. Jimmy Minton, a notorious playboy, gets fresh and Garry knocks him down. In answer to a long distance plea from her former managing editor, Barbara has an acquaintance, Bruce Kemper, who is sick from dissipation, moved to a hospital. Kemper escapes from the hospital and returns to Barbara's apartment. When Garry enters, Kemper hides in the bedroom, armed with a gun. Garry sizes up the situation and leaves. Not long afterwards the telephone rings. Rushing from Barbara's apartment for help, Garry is struck by an automobile. At the hospital Barbara finds he is not seriously hurt. Suddenly, he asks her to marry him. She accepts with alacrity. She, however, fears threats that Jimmy Minton has made against him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

CHAPTER 18

BUT BARBARA put aside her fears of Jimmy Minton in the days and weeks that followed. Though the man had made threats openly that he would find a way to get even with Garry for the sock he had been given one night, the threats never materialized.

Ruth Merryweather came back from Paris, just before Christmas, prettier and thinner than ever. She brought Barbara her first word of Bill Jameson and Marie since the night that Julia had been their guest of honor at dinner.

"Bill discovered his idol wears false eyelashes. I mean it. She does. False eyelashes are all right, of course, of you can work the deception but Marie can't."

"Meaning what?" Barbara asked. They were having lunch at the Coq Rouge, and a snow storm was raging merrily in the street outside.

"Marie is smart enough to know that if she hadn'e dissembled a little Bill wouldn't have made her platform quite so high. Ot. he lover her. This isn't sour grapes, but she loved him more! But now she isn't comfortable up there and he won't let her down."

"But Bill wouldn't talk about her!" Barbara said slowly.

"Of course not. It's what he didn't say. He called to make a pretty speech about an offer in one of the family factories. I guess love is like any other disease. It can be healed. I'd been afraid to hear his voice. But I didn't feel a tremor when he telephoned. Just—just an emptiness. It was almost as though I didn't want to get better, and here I discovered I was healed."

She crumbled a roll slowly and Barbara watched her. If anything should happen to her and Garry, would she, too, feel that emptiness some day? Swiftly, she said inwardly, though she lived forever and forever, always she would wait for a telephone to ring, a letter to come. She would watch for broad shoulders in a crowd, hear a laugh strangely dear and turn swiftly. . . . No, love couldn't die. Not love such as she and Garry bore for each other.

She mentioned Marie to him that night and he held her closely and kissed her fears away. "Honey, if you turn me down I'll buy a banjo and sit under your window until you change your mind. I love you rather terribly."

Christmas came, and they rode through Central park in a cab in a snow storm, and came far dawn Fifth avenue to the churches where tall Christmas trees, adorned with dark blue lights, celebrated the ancient birth. They did not go around the corner to Barbara's apartment where she had decorated a slim tree with tinsel and lights but went to Garry's instead, where the Japanese servant served a perfect dinner.

"Next year," Garry said, "you'll be presiding at your own table, Barbara honey, I want to make a date with you." He leaned across the table. "The morning after my play opens will you go with me to the city hall for a license? Then we'll scare up a kindly minister—"

So Christmas ended, and during the holiday week Garry called one afternoon to say that his play was going into production at once. It would rehearse for three weeks, open in Washington the last of January and have its Broadway premiere by February first.

"And the next morning remember we have an important engagement, Babbs honey. How in the world did I ever merit you?"

The snow was white and fresh and clean that winter. The sky was a gayer blue than ever it had been back in Martinsville. Barbara, brushing her rusty curls one night because she was going to the theater with Garry, reminded herself that she had been neglecting everybody lately.

She didn't even miss them— Ruth Natalie, Alan and Jack. She harn't written to Peter for weeks. Somehow her life was so full with Garry's devotion, her calendar so uncertain because of the irregularity of his hours, that she had narrowed her life down to his.

The telephone rang softly in the living room.

"Barbara darling?" Garry had a good telephone voice, deep, pleasing, filled with minor cadences.

"Oh yes, Garry!" A carillon of gladness rang in Barbara's husky tones.

"Barbara, my sweet, will you forgive me and love as much as ever if I ask you to meet me at the theatre?"

"Nut!" As Barbara said it, the word became something nice. "Anything important happened?"

"Late copy," he moaned. "Hadley wanted to make some changes in a dialogue sequence. I didn't finish with him in time to get tomorrow's column done. I'm working on it now. I'll be along by the second act."

"Don't hurry—I don't mind."

"You're perfect! And Barbara, keep an eye on Wenda Ayer's work, will you? She's signing up with us tomorrow and going into rehearsal right away. Her show's closing Saturday."

Barbara laughed into the mouthpiece. "So that's why we are seeing a flop before the house goes dark. I wondered. Of course I'll watch the girl. I think I've seen her before—pretty and blonde— like Little Eva."

"Little Eva at 22. We can't offer her much of a part but the boss thinks she's a comer. I'll hurry, honey."

The seats were excellent. They always were when you saw a show on passes. In a few core weeks she would be seeing Garry's show, she told herself as she watched the first act through. The curtain went up for the second act. Garry had not come. She did not go into the foyer when the curtain rang down. She sat in her seat, watching the people. The house was half filled, probably mostly paper, she reflected. But the play had lasted its three weeks so the producer would have a share in a possible sale to the movies. She wondered whether Garry's play would be a movie, some day.

It was a long trail back to Martinsville and social reporting. The bell rang for the third act curtain.

Now and then she scanned the doors, wondering what detained Garry. He always came some time before the play was half over.

The curtain fell. The audience applauded politely, and Barbara powdered the seven freckles on her tilted nose and pushed back a shining lock of hair.

A friendly voice hailed her in the lobby. Natalie was holding out a hand.

"This is luck, Babbs! But why are you at a flop and what are you doing alone?"

"Hello, Natalie. I'm at a flop because Garry wanted to see Wenda Ayer in action and I'm alone because Garry was held up."

"When does Garry's play open?"

She explained but she wished Natalie would run along so she could hurry home. She wanted to be there when Garry telephoned.

Then Natalie spoke in a lower voice. "Babbs, I'm marrying Basil Worthington two weeks from Tuesday at 11 o'clock in the morning in a church. You'll receive an invitation in a day or two. You and Garry. You'll come, won't you?"

Even while Barbara congratulated Natalie—she decided that was the right verb in this case for Natalie had given the idea of marriage to the middle-aged broker—her heart was doing a Lohengrin caper of its own.

Lovely Rock Gardens Are Easy to Care For

Lily Pools Add Enchantment

You always have room for a tiny rock garden, a jewel-like lily pool. Spunky, amusing cacti thrive in this small sunny garden; white and yellow pigmy water lilies bloom happily in the little pool.

Cacti start easily from seed. Or for speedier results you can buy small plants. Put them in the rock garden, pots and all, when summer comes, then conceal the pots with sand. Learn from simple diagrams just how to place your rocks for proper drainage.

An old tub or half barrel makes a fine pool—and a single pigmy water-lily plant will produce as many as a hundred flowers in a season.

If you have a shady corner for a rock garden make it lovely with hepatica, trillium, plumy bleeding heart, and ferns. Plant a shady pool with parrot's feather, water hyacinth.

Learn from our practical 32-page booklet how to build and care for all kinds of delightful, inexpensive rock gardens, pools.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE ROCK GARDENS AND LILY POOLS to Examiner, Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

DOROTHY DIX

If Most People Did Not Think That Marriage Would Better Their Conditions There Would Be Fewer Trips to the Altar—but Cupid Is a Canny Fellow

DEAR MISS DIX—Should one get married until one greater than what they will lose, and that they will be hap- CURIOUS.

Answer:

Probably every marriage that has ever taken place was founded on the belief of the high contracting parties that they were bettering themselves by marrying. Otherwise there would be no incentive for a man and woman to enter into a relationship that they know will call for many sacrifices of their personal inclinations and habits, and that will deprive them of the freedom that the unmarried enjoy.

Every prospective bride and bridegroom must weigh the advantages and disadvantages of the bargain they are about to make, and decide that what they will gain will be greter than what they will lose, and that they will be happier in the new estate than they are in the old, or else the wedding bells would cease to ring.

Boys and girls think that marriage is the gateway to Paradise and that they will be perfectly happy if they can have their adored ones by their sides. They think that love will gild poverty and turn struggle and striving into a gay adventure. They think that bread and cheese will be nectar if only it is flavored with kisses. They think that they will crave no other amusement or excitement except each other's society.

Sometimes this is true. Sometimes they do gain their heart's desire and are better off married than they would have been apart, but very often they find that when they invested their all in Hearts Preferred they made a bad guess. It didn't boom as they expected. It slumped and they lost out.

Of course, people marry for many things besides love. Plenty of men and women marry for money or for social prestige. Young girls marry men old enought to be their grandfathers because the old men can give them sable coats and emerald bracelets. Lots of men marry women who are good cooks and housekeepers and who will make them comfortable and nurse them when they are sick, because wives come cheaper than efficient servants. Many rich Amrican girls marry foreigners for their titles. And many lonely people marry just for companionship. But all marry in the hope that they are bettering their conditions. Cupid runs an investment bureau and a lot of his customers go bankrupt.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—Sixteen years ago, before my baby was born, my husband deserted me for another woman. In the nerve-wracking months that followed my family cared for me. Since then I have not heard from him, but now out of a clear sky he desires a reconciliation with me. He claims that he was young and foolish when he left me. Perhaps he was, as we were married right after the war when everybody was bubbling over with war-mad romance. Do you think that two persons separated so long a time could possibly pick up the broken threads of a wrecked love and still find peace and comfort for approaching middle life? I'll admit that I still care a bit, but my family violently opposes it. What do you think?—M. A. L.

Answer:

I think that there is nothing else on earth so strange and incomprehensible as a woman's heart. The mystery is how some women can go on loving the unlovable, believing in those who have shown themselves utterly untrustworthy and hoping that the impossible will happen.

If a man is a dastard, it is the one who forsakes his wife in her direct hour of need; who walks off with another woman, leaving her to go alone down into the valley of the shadow to bring up his child; who adds the agony of jealousy to the agony of childbirth for her to bear.

Who is so heartless and so selfishly determined to spend his money for his own pleasure that he does not even provide for her physical care, but abandons her to starve like a stray cat in the streets for all he cares. There isn't a thief or a murderer in prison who wouldn't hang his head in shame before such a record. And yet you still love such a ma nand are thinking of taking him back.

Sixteen years he has left you to struggle along alone and to work for your child and rear it. Sixteen years without a word from him. Without a sign of repentance or even regret for the way he treated you. And now he comes back and expects you to forget and forgive, love and cherish him and make him comfortable for the balance of his life. And I'll bet my new hat that he is coming back poor and sick and needing somebody to support him.

If you even consider taking him back I think you should have your head examined for the sillies. He has shown he has no principle, no honor, no sense of duty or obligation, not one quality that goes to make a decent man. What do you want with him?

* * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I have worked ever since we were married and given all of my money to my husband; even my insurance names him as the beneficiary. Now I am along in years and can't work much longer and would like to feel that my future is secure should my husband die. But all of our property, our bank account and his insurance are tied up in such a way that his son or daughter by a previous marriage will get it should he die, and I will get nothing. The son is self-supporting and the daughter happily married to a good provider. I have coaxed, threatened and done everything I know of to induce my husband to fix things so that I will be taken care of, but he refuses, says nothing is going to happen to him, he is not going to die. But one never knows what will hapen. Yet my husband says he loves me devotedly.—PERPLEXED.

Answer:

Well, if he loves you he certainly takes a strange way of showing it. A man's first duty is to provide for his wife even before he does for his children, because the children are young and strong and able to work and take care of themselves, whereas an old woman is helpless.

In your case the law will protect you should your husband leave you penniless. A widow has certain rights that her husband cannot alienate from her.—DOROTHY DIX.

UNCLE WIGGILY BRINGING THE BEANS

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Who is Lady Baltimore?" asked Uncle Wiggily. "Excuse me, Lady," he went on, "for not twinkling my pink nose at you but I cannot do that. I am stooped over to keep Nurse Jane's beans dry."

"Oh, that's quite all right," said a voice.

"I can't see you — I dare not straighten up enough for that," said the rabbit gentleman his bent back still keeping the rain from the beans on the ground. "But you sound like a bird."

"Lady Baltimore is a bird," explained the Swallow who lived in Uncle Wiggily's barn. "She is a very pretty bird, with yellow feathers," explained the Swallow for Uncle Wiggily couldn't see.

"If you want to see a beautiful bird, you should look at my husband," sang Lady Baltimore, the oriole. "His feathers are orange and black."

"Like the Prineton football team," said Uncle Wiggily wishing he might see the oriole.

Bag Maker

"Yes," said the Swallow. "Mr. Baltimore Oriole is beautiful but you are the best bag-maker, Lady Baltimore."

"A bag-maker?" asked Uncle Wiggily hopeful like and with his back beginning to ache from stooping over thebeans so long to keep them dry. "Did you say a bag?"

"Yes," said Lady Baltimore who was called after the city of that name, "I built my nest in the shape of a bag that hangs from the tree branches. I have just finished making it and soon I shall lay some eggs in it."

"Oh, how I wish I had a bag the rain would not melt so I might put in it these beans to bring to Nurse Jane!" said the rabbit.

"That's just what I came here to do," said the oriole bird. "I heard from some of your Barn Swallows that you were having bean trouble. Now if you will stay stooped over your beans a little longer, to keep the rain from them, I will weave you a bag just like my hanging nest."

"But don't you have to build your bag nest up in a tree?" asked Mr. Longears. "If you do how am I to get it down here to put my spilled beans in it?"

"I shall weave this bag nest down low on a branch of the bush near where you are stooped over," said Lady Baltimore. "You can easily ing strings loose from the bush and you will have a water-proof bag. reach out and break the four hang- For my nest bags can stay out in the rain without getting soaked."

Hurries Back

"Oh, fine!" said Uncle Wiggily. "But hurry if you please. My back is aching very much."

"I shall hurry!" promised Lady Baltimore.

"And as soon as the bag is ready I shall pick up the beans for you and put them in it," said the Swallow.

"Oh, you are both very kind," said Uncle Wiggily.

Lady Baltimore, flitting here and there in the rain, found some grass string, bitsof cloth and wool from a sheep's back scattered over the fields and woods. Soon she had woven a hanging nest like a bag. It was fastened to a low branch where Uncle Wiggily could break it off. And what the bag was finished, the Swallow picked up every bean, none having been wet because Uncle Wiggily covered them, and soon he hopped home with them.

"Oh, what a wonderful adventure!" squeaked Nurse Jane when Mr. Longears gave her the beans. "And how clever of those birds."

The rabbit gentleman said the same thing. And if the rain drops will try falling up for a while instead of falling down, to see if they don't like the change, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's play house.

"The Authority on Authorities"

NO PEEK NECESSARY

MANY FAIR players cannot understand either the card reading or the safety plays of the real experts. Some of the stars' antics seem so uncanny to them, even after they are explained, that they can't accept the truth. They feel that their opponent must have taken a peek at their hands, whereas nothing but clear logic was needed.

	♠ K Q 7 ♥ A 9 6 4 ♦ K 4 ♣ A 9 8 2
♠ 9 6 3 ♥ Q J 5 3 ♦ Q J 10 9 ♣ 5 4	W. E. N. S.	♠ 10 8 4 2 ♥ None ♦ 8 7 6 5 2 ♣ J 10 7 3
	♠ A J 5 ♥ K 10 8 7 2 ♦ A 3 ♣ K Q 6

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the bidding was started by South with 1-Heart. When North jumped this to 3-Hearts, South called 4-No Trumps, North 5-No Trumps and South 6-Hearts.

The diamond Q was West's opening attack, which South won with the A. A glance at the combined holdings assured South of his contract provided the trumps were not trumped against him, and even if that were the case, he had a chance to assure himself of the loss of but one trick in the suit.

With that thought in mind, South led the heart 2 and played the 6 from dummy. The heart 4 was led to the K, and a third round was won with the A. One heart trick had to be given up to West, but that was the only trick claimed by the opponents.

East, only a fair player, suggested that the declarer would have had to see her hand to have tried such a finesse as that of the six spot. However, declarer was able to point out that, as he expected to lose one trick, that card would have served the purpose.

O'Rourke—Hynes

A pretty wedding was solemnized at six o'clock this (Saturday) morning in St. Peter's Cathedral, with the Rev. Dr. J. V. Masterson officiating, when Elizabeth Catherine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Hynes of Elm Street, became the bride of John O'Rourke, son of Mrs. Ellen O'Rourke of Cricket Place and the late William O'Rourke.

The bride wore a becoming afternoon dress of navy sheer over taffeta, a matching hat of straw with short veil, navy accessories and carried a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Lucille Hynes as bridesmaid for her sister, wore an attractive frock of navy sheer over white polka dot navy taffeta, navy hat, matching accessories and carried pink carnations. John Tobin attended the groom as best man.

At twelve o'clock a reception and wedding dinner was held at the bride's home for immediate relatives and friends. Decorations were prettily carried out in pink and white, with the three-tiered wedding cake on the bride's table, with pink candles in silver holders.

Mr. and Mrs. John O'Rourke will reside at Cricket Place.

The Examiner Went to a Birthday Party

Happy birthday to pretty little Eleanor White, who was four years old on Friday. Eleanor is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold White, lives at 145 Hunter Street East.

Eleanor had a birthday party on Friday afternoon, attended by more than a dozen of her young friends, who followed the age-old custom of hunting for candy in out of the way nooks and crannies, played games, ate birthday cake. LEFT shows Eleanor seated between Lorraine and Marie Derry, 165 Hunter Street East. Stairways still hold a fascination for the youngsters, it would appear from this picture at the RIGHT, showing Eleanor's guests. From the bottom of the stairs to the top on the left are Marilyn White, 515 Bonaccord Avenue; Carol Grace Raper, 571 Stewart Street; Nancy; White, 515 Bonnaccord Avenue;

Marion Jones, 464 Stewart Street; Phyllis Curry, 292 Woodbine Avenue; Helen Chartren, 472 Rogers Street; Dorothy McNeely, 569 Armour Road. From Bottom to top at the right are Teresa McFee, 130 Hunter Street East; Geraldine Mc-; Fee Margaret McNeely, 569 Armour Road; Autumn Dubay, 135 Hunter Street East; Anita Mason, 139 Hunter Street East.

Bride and Groom Honored at Ida

CAVAN, April 23.—On Thursday evening Ida community hall was the scene of a social gathering in honor of Ernest Lamb and his bride, the former Miss Emma Fee.

James Paul made a few remarks, congratulating the young couple and acting as chairman for the short program which folowed. Mr. and Mrs. Lamb were caled to the platform, where Clare Winslow read an address signed on behalf of Cavan Centre and Mount Pleasant friends and neighbors by Cliff Williamson, who brought forward the gift, a beautiful clock.

Mr. Lamb made a most appropriate reply.

Community singing was led by Mrs. R. Matchett with Miss Audrey Nill at the piano.

The Misses Bea and Nan Failis sang. Miss Gwenyth Staples recited and Messrs. Lavergne Failis and Archie Matchett spoke a few words.

Lunch was served, and the rest of the evening spent in dancing, for which music was supplied by Mrs. Lewis Pudsey, add her sister, Mrs. Gilmour on piano and violin.

JUST BETWEEN US WOMEN

"Smoke in the wind...by the way that it goes—we can discover the way the wind blows; smoke in the wind like a plume in the sky, stirred by each wind that goes wandering by.

"Things that we do and the things that we say—things that we think as we go on our way—show the direction and trend of the soul... Aimlessly drifting without a control? Or taking the road with a purpose supreme — out where the stars of its destiny gleam?..."

—Patience Strong.

Dear Friends:

Did you ever think of your likes and dislikes as indicators of your own personality? Tell me your likes and dislikes and I will know the sort of person you are, whether you are content to drift aimlessly, or have a sure purpose in life. And so I will tell you some of mine and you can write and tell me what opinion you have formed of me.

I like—driving in the early morn, with the wind blowing in my face, (I used to like horseback riding, but that's out now). I like to see the sunrise and seem to get closer to God then, but although the sunset colors are often lovely, it makes me sad.

I like to travel and see new places, meet new people and notice if they have a better method for living than I have. I also like to watch other people's reactions to certain things, how they handle themselves when a crises, whether they will face the music, or bluff their way out of it.

I—like new clothes, especially a new hat, and seldom pass a shoe store without looking at the shoes. Having a small foot I can generally get bargains in shoes of better quality, and that is pleasant. I like good line in dresses, elegance rather than trimmings, nothing loud in any way.

I like large cities, because I am more accustomed to them, and I like the stir and movement of them, possibly because I have had to be so quiet often, when I have been sick so much. I like humorous people who have a quick wit, interesting conversations, far places with different customs.

And I like to read intensely, have done so since I was four years old. History, news, and a love story with a happy ending, for so many do not end happily in real life. I like well-bred people, especially children. Those with musical voices and clear enunciation, adults I mean, and I like both classical and modern music.

Then I like peace and harmony, independence, cleanliness in all its forms, dependability, with justice and square dealing. And now, some of the things I don't like. Injustice, and overbearing. Treachery and all that goes with it. Two-faceness in man or woman. The slackers who lean on others and will not carry their own load, the slackers in dress, in food habits with carelessness in eating, those who are slack in manners, and careless in friendship.

I abhor quarrelling and loudness, gossips with their slimy trail trying to put another human being down in the mud. And I do not like to be cold, but due to low blood pressure I am seldom warm. I dislike also those who promise but do not fulfill, but do not stand too much of this from anyone as life is too short to bother with them.

And, heading the list, I loathe a hypocrite, for they pretend to have virtues which they never possessed, they lead you to have faith in them, they are liars and deceivers.

So there you have me in my main essentials, my likes and dislikes, so you can figure out the type of person I am. Patience Strong concludes with this: "Details—mere details of every day—small, unimportant — and yet they betray; whether we've conquered or whether we've sinned—words—deeds—the little things...Smoke in the wind." Hoping to hear from you and that sometimes I am able to help you.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

Adds Luxury

THE SEPARATE fur scarf always adds a note of luxury to the tailored suit. This spring is no exception.

Eight exquisitely matched sables are chosen by Lucille Ball, young moving picture actress, to wear with her tailored suit of pearl grey worsted. They are the last word in luxury furs.

A dusty pink cashmere sweater, wide black trimmed felt hat and black kid shoes, gloves and bag, complete her handsome costume.

The Examiner's Needlework Pattern

"Click-clack-click" go your flashing knitting needles — easily and quickly plying the soft wool that makes this dashing sweater-blouse. Mainly in stockinette stitch, the hip yoke and cuffs are ribbed for snugness, while that effective tic-tac-toe design of the yoke is just a simple open design. Pattern 1279 contains directions for making the blouse and a skirt in sizes 12-14 and 16-18 (all given in one pattern); illustrations of it and of all stitches used; material requirements. The blouse comes in sizes 12-14 and 16-18.

Send 20 cents in coins or stamps for this pattern to Examiner Needlecraft Dept., Peterborough. Write plainly PATTERN NUMBER, your NAME and ADDRESS.

Branch Notes

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The regular meeting of St. Luke's branch was held on Thursday evening with a good attendance.

The play "Barbara Makes a Splash" is to be presented in the Parish Hall on Tuesday, May 10, at 8 p.m. Tickets are now on sale and can be purchased from members of the branch.

The branch has two of their three bowling teams in the play-offs. The Hurons captained by Miss Long were in second place in the first half and in first place in the second half and the Cherokees, captained by W. Hill were tied for second place in the second half. The meeting next week will be in charge of Mrs. F. Curtis and her group and that means a good program.

For 16 Consecutive Years MORE PEOPLE HAVE TRAVELLED BY THIS GREAT FLEET than by any other Line

This simple fact eloquently demonstrates the world-wide confidence in the splendid traditions of British seamanship, service and discipline which continue to distinguish Cunard White Star after nearly a century of uninterrupted trans-Atlantic service. The ships of the Canadian Service fleet, sailing weekly via the short, scenic St. Lawrence route to Europe, play their part in upholding Cunard White Star's eminence in the travel world.

A wide range and frequency of sailings between Montreal, New York and Boston and the principal ports of England, Ireland, Scotland and France are maintained by a vast fleet of modern vessels, led by Britain's masterpiece the R.M.S. "QUEEN MARY" . . . a fleet offering a great variety of accommodation at moderate cost.

Run Down—Tired Out Only Weighed 96 lbs.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills are what weak, nervous, run down men and women need to help make them strong and well again.

They are a well balanced tonic for the treatment of those whose nerves are shattered, and for those feelings of faintness, weakness and dizziness caused by an overworked, run down constitution, or whose health is not up to par.

They help to infuse new life and energy into depressed, health shattered men and women who have come to think there is no relief for them.

Mrs. P. Broughton, Fenwick, Ont., writes:—"I was so run down and tired out all the time I did not care whether my housework was done or not.

I only weighed 96 pounds, but after taking three boxes of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills I now weigh 122 pounds, and do my own work for eight in the family.

I only wish I had started taking H. & N. Pills a year ago."

IN MEMORIAM

WATSON.—In loving memory of Thomas J. Watson, who died April 24, 1937, at Highland Grove, Ont.

The blow was great, the shock severe;
We little thought the end was near.
And only those who have lost can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
More each day we miss you, father;
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within our hearts concealed.
—Ever remembered by Son and Daughter, Laura and Carmon.

CALDER. — In loving memory of Mary Calder, who passed away April 25, 1936.

Time speeds on, two years have passed
Since death its gloom, its shadows cast
Within our home, where all seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light and ever will,
Her vacant place there is none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in Heaven we will meet again.
—Ever remembered by Husband and Family.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Deck wish to express their thanks to attending doctor and nurses of Nicholls Hospital, also Faye's many friends for kindness and prayers for her recovery from her serious accident. She is now home.

OVERSEAS MEN FULLY AWARE UNITED CANADA

"The only people who really know anything about an united Canada are men who went overseas to fight for Canada," declared Major Gordon Dingle of Toronto, acting president of the Canadian Corps Association and president of the Corps reunion to be held this summer, in a fighting speech that featured the annual Ypres dinner of the Peterborough Red Patch Club, in the banquet room of the Canadian Legion Hall Friday night.

One hundred and twenty-five former members of the 1st Canadian division, representing many different units of the Red Patch division, and comprising officers, noncoms and men gathered to observe the twenty-third anniversary of the Second Battle of Ypres, exchanged reminiscences of war days, and listened to excellent speeches and an enjoyable musical program. It was one of the most successful and colorful functions in the history of the Red Patch Club.

A most enjoyable dinner was served by Hooper's in most efficient fashion. The banquet room was appropriately decorated for the occasion and a notable feature was the setting of a vacant table draped with a flag in memory of the men who made the supreme sacrifice.

Early in the program the gathering stood for a moment of silence in memory of the late Harvey J. Staunton, past president of the Red Patch Club.

The community singing during the evening was lead by Bob Hendry.

Mel. Morrow, president of the club discharged the duties of toastmaster very smoothly and in his introductory remarks stressed the fact that the Red Patch organization was always ready to co-operate with other veterans' organizations in anything undertaken for the benefit of ex-service men.

The Canadian Corps

After the toast to the King had been loyally honored, Alex. Elliott, M.L.A. proposed the health of the Canadian Corps. In doing so he said that it was unfortunate that there were many people who did not understand the meaning of the Red Patch Club or the significance of its badge. Speaking of the Second Battle of Ypres Mr. Elliott said that in that engagement the Canadians had won a reputation that was maintained throughout the war.

The speaker said that to our forefathers we owed wonderful privileges of democracy and freedom and with the world in its present chaotic condition it might again be necessary for Canadians to show that they were ready once more to defend those privileges.

Major Dingle who began by referring to the fact that he had been born only 24 miles from Peterborough, in Lindsay, replied to the toast. In his speech he gave the history of the formation of the Canadian Corps Association in a most interesting manner and stressed the necessity of such an organization so that the men who fought for Canada might have one voice that could speak for them with authority. There were things the veterans wanted to know. For instance they wanted to know what had become of the canteen fund and they could find out if they had one voice to speak for them.

The Canadian Corps Association, Major Dingle said, meant something for Canada. There was too much provincialism, too much separation in this country. When the men of the Canadian Army were overseas they did not care whether the fellows alongsire them came from Halifax or Winnipeg or Regina—all they knew was they were Canadians and that was enough.

The men who had fought were the only people who really knew what an united Canada meant.

Major Dingle reminded the members of the Red Patch that it was their duty to carry on for Canada here at home and he predicted that out of the coming reunion of the corps would emerge something that would be of great Importance to this country.

Fallen Comrades

Walter Farr sang "For You Alone" in excellent voice and in response to an encore rendered effectively "The Desert Song."

Dan Dougles, secretary of the Red Patch Club proposed the impressive toast "Our Fallen Comrades" in an appropriate verse. The lights were then lowered and the gathering sang softly "Abide With Me." Followed a period of silence, then the poignant notes of the Last Post, followed by the Reveille, to conclude a tribute that was remarkably effective in its simplicity and its sincerity.

George Walsh contributed the old favorite "The Sergeant-Major on Parade' 'in professional style and had to come back with "On the Road to Mandalay" before the gathering was satisfied.

Lieut.-Col. J. J. Duffus, M.P., proposed the toast to the British Empire. The most important feature of that Empire was to him he said His Majesty the King, to whose qualities as the head of a family and as a patriot who had sacrificed much to assume the responsibilities of his position he paid an eloquent tribute. Mr. Duffus emphasized the part that the British Empire had always taken in promoting world peace and especially the most earnest endeavors that had been made by Britain during recent months to prevent warfare. He foresaw the possibility that one day Canada might become the military centre of the Empire.

The toast was honored by the signing of "Rule Britannia."

Greeted With Cheer

Lieut.-Col. T. L. McLoughlin of Bowmanville who was the last colonel of the old 2nd Battalion, the Iron Seconds, was greeted with the singing of "For He's A Jolly Good Fellow and three cheers when he arose to respond to the toast. Col. McLoughlin said that the British Empire was the greatest empire the world had ever known and that Canada had earned a foremost place in that Empire. 'Canadians should feel proud and should fortunate" said the speaker, "that they belong to an Empire that has always stood for right and for righteousness. The British Empire is the backbone of democracy today."

Col. McLoughlin voiced a warning against Fascism and Communism. The only ism that really counted, he said, were Christism and patriotism.

"All of us want peace,' 'he said, "but there is not a man in the old Canadian Corps that would not come forward if it were necessary to stand again for Canada and the Empire."

The final toast "Our City" was proposed by Captain J. F. Strickland, K.C. in a brief and witty speech in which he pointed out there was really no need of saying much about Peterborough because most of those present lived here and were able to appreciate the work of the civic governing bodies. As long as these bodies were motivated by the same desire to serve the community as was in evidence today there was no occasion to fear for the future.

Ald. Robert Cotton, in replying to the toast brought the greetings of Mayor Hamilton and the members of the city council to the Red Patch Club. Speaking of the council he said that while it was impossible to please everybody in what was done there was no doubt of the sincere desire of the membrs to be of service. Ald. Cotton expressed appreciation of what the exservicemen had done in fighting for Canada.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the program to a close.

Will Appear In "Iolanthe"

Phyllis (Helen Bruce) as the Arcadian Shepherdess and Strephon (George Alderoft) as the shepherd who appear in "Iolanthe" a Gilbert and Sullivan light opera which is being presented in Peterborough Collegiate auditorium on Thursday, April 28, under the auspices of the Lions' Club. The presentation will be made by the Eaton Operatic Society of Toronto, every member of which is a soloist.

Rolled Of $4 Youth Escapes And Flees Leading Thugs Into Arms Of Law

Toronto, April 22 (CP).

ANDREW GREIG, 19, told police today George Taylor and Robert Taylor got him out of a beverage room on a hoax last night and robbed him of $4. The Taylors were arrested on charges of robbery.

Greig raced along Oakwood avenue last night into the arms of Constable Lawrence and Brown who had stopped their patrol car when they saw two men running along the street. Greig asked for protection from the man chasing him.

Greig said the Taylors took him for a ride in a car and "rolled" him of $4. They were attempting to search him again when he broke free and raced off.

but only two were believed affected by the explosion.

Rescue squads reported numerous falls of slate and coal delayed progress, but the men were climbing over them whenever possible, and one entry was said to have been explored virtually its entire length.

Looked Like Mountain Going Up.

"It looked as if the whole mountain top was coming off," said Sergeant Paul F. Sprenger. He and J. E. Buchanan saw the blast from a filling station on a nearby highway.

"I've never seen anything like it in my life," he said.

Describing the miners who had begun rescue work by the time he and his companions had climbed the mountain, Sprenger said:

"Those miners were the most disciplined set of men I've ever seen. They were just as calm and cool as anything. They were picking up the bodies when we got there.

"We met one boy who had been up there looking for work coming down the mountain. He had been near the explosion and looked dazed. His face was peppered with blood. I don't think he was seriously hurt though.

"The fan house (housing machinery for ventilating the mine) was blown to bits. Mine cars and motors were blown of fthe tracks and down the mountain like a cyclone had hit them."

"What looked like a big fan blade was blown way down the mountain."

Highway Jammed.

Automobiles loaded with relatives, friends and others lined the highway near the mine and with bystanders helping, Sprenger strung a rope to hold the throngs back.

Ed Harris, a worker outside the entrance was burned by the flames from the mine.

"You couldn't describe it," he said. "One minute we were there busy and the next thing everything was in a mess. It's hard to think just what happened."

Sergeant Sprenger said he heard one explosion as he entered a filling station, turned and witnessed two more. He rushed up the mountainside to find the fan house, with machinery for ventilating the mine, blown to bits.

"Mine cars and motors were blown off the tracks and down the mountain like a cyclone had hit them," he said.

Hobart Harman, mine foreman, said he saw timber "just raining" after the explosion.

CANADIAN STOCK MART SPEEDS UP PICKS UP LOSSES

TORONTO, April 23 (C.P.).—The April recovery in Canadian stock markets speeded up in the last week and listings have now erased about two-thirds or more of the decline from the highs to the lows of the year in the average. The pick-up was attended by expanding volume and Friday's trade of 1,435,000 shares on the Toronto market was the heaviest since March 16 when 1,765,000 shares changed hands in a sharp decline.

In Canada the share market is getting considerable help from the promising outlook for a good wheat crop in the West. The advance of spring is reviving activity in new mining areas and a large number of companies are involved in raising new funds for new ventures or for further development of old ones, according to information coming from the Ontario Security Commission's office.

Noranda registered the best response to the view recently expressed by an industrial leader that copper has better than an even chance of advancing in price this year.

Silver Trails.

It posted a $3 gain for the week while International Nickel gained 90 cents, Consolidated Mining and Smelting $1.50, and Hudson Bay $1.25. The cheaper base metals moved ahead moderately. Silver stocks trailed the list and Eldorado was a feature on a rise of 28 cents to $2.71. Dome added more than $3 in the week.

The gold share index of the Toronto market closed yesterday at 117.08 compared with a low of 102.06, recorded on March 18 and a high of 125.85. The base metal share index recovered to 78.15 yesterday against a low of 64.47 and a high of 86.46 for the year.

Bids were raised for the industrial stocks on comparatively small trading, featuring the steels, the senior oils and the utilities. The index for the group touched low for the year on the last day of March at 97.66. In three weeks, therefore, the index has recovered to 114.65. The year's high was 126.85.

Reports that the British Government was contemplating the awarding of armament contracts in Canada have possibly had a supporting effect on the steels. National Steel Car, Canadian Car and Foundry, and Dominion Steel B were among the gainers.

DEFENCE CO-OPERATION

CANBERRA, April 23 (CP-Reuters)—The Australian government has decided to invite the Australian council of trades unions to form a trades union advisory panel to co-operate in the carrying out of defence plans in the event of government private factories being placed on a war footing. The panel would cooperate particularly in regard to labor conditions.

amounting to £5,000,000 ($25,000,000) yearly. The annuities represented repayment of advances made by Great Britain to enable Irish tenants to buy their lands. In retaliation, Britain levied high duties on Irish agricultural products imported into England.

Ireland was reported to have agreed to specified annual expenditures for defence purposes in lieu of the annuity payments, and Britain in turn to have promised to abolish her high tariffs on Irish farm products. Ireland planned to scale down her duties on British manufactures. The settlement was welcomed in Ireland, where the trade war caused suffering to agriculturists, especially cattle raisers.

The agreement of Ireland to build up her defences in turn will make possible, it was thought, Britain's agreement to withdraw her garrisons from certain Irish ports she has kept as naval bases since 1921.

In the partition of 1922 Ireland received the status of a sef-governing Dominion, while the six northern counties continued under a separate parliament.

Truck "Conks Out" In Racing Stork And Baby Is Born In Garage

Vancouver, April 22 (CP)

GEORGE Kenyon and his ancient truck lost a race with old man stork last night. Everything turned out all right—in a highway garage.

George, accompanied by his wife, was on a vegetable delivery route through New Westminster when she said she'd better get to hospital. He headed the machine —the throttle on the floor—toward Vancouver, 12 miles distant.

Three-quarters of the way there the truck wheezed to a stop. George shoved the truck into a garage. Hurried calls brought a dentist, policeman, nurse and a doctor. They ushered a baby girl into the world.

Today mother and daughter—in hospital—were "doing well."

OBITUARY

HARVEY LOUIS GIVEN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 23. — The funeral of the late Harvey Given, formerly of Millbrook, took place on Wednesday from Luke's Funeral Parlors, Oshawa, the service being conducted by Rev. C. R. Spencer, M.A., rector of St. John's Parish, Bowmanville, and formerly of the Parish of Cavan. The death occurred suddenly the previous Monday.

Deceased was the eldest son of the late W. S. Given and Mrs. Given, his father having for many years successfully carried on as the editor and proprietor of the Millbrook Reporter; their home here was on Tupper Street. Mr. Given, who was in his fiftieth year, had lived in the Canadian West, and also in North Dakota, but in January of this year had moved to Oshawa to reside, being employed as bookkeeper by the Mills Motor Sales.

Ten years ago, 1928, his marriage took place to Dorothy Mandley, at Toronto, and besides his sorrowing widow, the immediate survivors include one son Jack at home, his mother, Mrs. W. S. Given, and one sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Frederick Ellis, both of Shreveport, Louisiana, and one brother Reginald of the Ford Motor Company, Detroit, who with his wife, attended the funeral, as did also two aunts, Miss Phoebe Rusk and Mrs. C. Carter, both of Hamilton.

Interment was in the family burial plot in the Presbyterian Cemetery at Millbrook.

EXTORTIONIST ESCAPES TWEED POLICE AMBUSH

Ontario To Appeal Comba Case Immediately

Justice Latchford Delivers Minority Judgment, Holding Acquittal Was "Wrong in Law as in Fact"

TORONTO, April 25 (CP).—Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada against acquittal of John Comba for the murder of Ruth Hedderwick, 13, will be entered at once, it was announced today by the Ontario Attorney General's department.

Notice of the appeal is being served on Comba today at Renfrew.

The Ontario Appeal Court acquitted Comba on a majority judgment of four members of the court. The dissenting judgment of Chief Justice F. R. Latchford was delivered today.

Limit Set at May 3

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP).—The Ontario Attorney-General's department will have until May 3 to appeal the Ontario Court of Appeal decision quashing the murder conviction of John Comba, 26-year-old Pembroke cripple.

Mr. Justice A. L. Cannon of the Supreme Court of Canada allowed the extension after hearing the application by the Attorney-General's department.

The Minority Judgment

TORONTO, April 25 (CP)—In a minority judgment delivered today, Chief Justice F. R. Latchford said he hoped the Ontario appeal court's majority judgment acquitting John Comba of the murder of 13-year-old Ruth Hedderwick "would be set aside on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada."

The chief justice, only one of the five judges hearing Comba's appeal who disagreed that conviction should be quashed, asserted the acquittal judgment was "wrong in law as in fact."

Convicted at Pembroke Nov. 25 and sentenced to be hanged Feb. 10, Comba was released from jail a few days after the majority judgment of the appeal court was handed down April 12.

Four assenting judges held that evidence at the trial under Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier could not be regarded as sufficient on which to base conviction.

The chief justice commented there could be no possible doubt as to the powers of the court of appeal. It might allow or dismiss the appeal.

"What the appellant sought was not that this court might quash the conviction and direct a judgment and verdict of acquittal to be entered, but merely that, upon the quashing of the conviction, that he be granted a new trial," said the Latchford judgment.

Jurors Phoned Home

After recounting the opening representations of R. H. Greer, K.C., for Comba, he said:

"I may state that prior to the appeal I had an opportunity of ascertaining from Mr. Justice Chevrier that had he been aware that members of the jury, in order to telephone calls, had separated while the trial was proceeding, despite careful instructions to the contrary and repeated almost daily, that they should not communicate with others except through the sheriff of the county, he would have discharged the jury and declared a mistrial.

"The communications, however innocently made, could not have been made without violating the prohibition of section 945 of the code, and the section rendered a new trial imperative."

Chief Justice Latchford contended on that one ground alone the appeal court should have ordered a new trial. Crown counsel had not opposed a new trial.

"The court was certainly of one mind that the appeal should be allowed and a new trial directed," the minority judgment continued. "I so declared from the bench and no audible dissent was expressed by any member of the court.

Towards the end of the Appeal Court hearing, Chief Justice Latchford said he had a court reporter take note of what was happening in court.

"If anything could demonstrate the helplessness of the Crown it is the record there made," he commented.

Difference In Distances.

"While the evidence furnished by the Crown is that the distance from the home of the accused to the place where the girl's body was found as almost exactly three-quarters of a mile, Mr. Hope (Crown counsel)

FORD'S WORKMEN DEMAND MINIMUM OF $1,500 YEARLY

DETROIT, April 25 (A.P.).— The first known attempt of workers in the automobile industry to obtain a guarantee of an annual minimum wage was revealed to-day by the Ford Brotherhood of America, an independent labor organization.

The Brotherhood's goal is at least $1,500 a year for every hourly-rate worker in the mammoth Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company in suburban Dearborn, where it claims a membership of 21,400. During peak production periods the factory has nearly 90,000 employees.

The F.B.A. disclosed it has been negotiating with the company the past month and, after numerous conferences, submitted written contract proposals to the management on Saturday.

Louis J. Colombo, Sr., Ford counsel, represented the company in the negotiations, and turned over to Edsel Ford, president of the concern, the Brotherhood's proposals.

As far as could be learned, this was the first time that organized workers in the industry have sought contractual assurance of an annual minimum wage. It is known, however, at least one other group has had this in mind as one of its ultimate objectives.

President Roosevelt and Governor Frank Murphy, of Michigan, have advocated the establishment of such a plan.

The President, in an address in Detroit while campaigning for re-election in 1936, urged the motor car industry to set up an annual "minimum living wage" for its workers.

Henry Ford, founder of the motor company and father of its president, has an engagement—announced last week—to lunch with President Roosevelt at the White House on Wednesday. The subject of their discussion has not been announced.

Promise to Buy Cars

William S. McDowell, Sr., Brotherhood attorney, said that in return for the proposed wage guarantee F.B.A. members would sign an agreement that each would purchase a new car from the company every two years at the same price at which they are sold to dealers.

Under the plan, they would buy their cars within six months from the signing of the contract. They could either pay cash or have not more than one-third of their pay deducted as payments on an instalment basis.

McDowell said negotiations would be resumed after the management replies to the proposal. He said he expected its answer within two weeks. The contract, McDowell said,

Plane Production Lag Stirs Howl

British Press Turns on Government From All Sides, Scoring Indecision, Lack of Supplies, Change in Design

LONDON, April 25 (CP-HAVAS).—A section of the press today expressed concern over delays in the nation's rearmament program which have resulted in the dispatch of an aviation commission to Canada and the United States to study the possibility of purchasing aircraft there.

The Daly Telegraph (Conservative) said the departure of the commission has had the effect of disturbing rather than reassuring the public mind." In a long editorial on what it called the "crisis in aircraft construction" the paper declared immediate steps were necessary to reorganize the aviation industry.

"It is not that the plan of enlisting the productive resources of America is opposed." The Daily Telegraph said. "On the contrary it is generally and warmly approved as the best way of meeting the present emergency. But uneasy questionings are excited as to why such extreme resort should have been necessary and why our own productive resources should not be equal to all the nation's requirements even in the time of great emergency.

Supplies Lacking

"It is freely alleged for instance that the air ministry have no department of supply sufficient as in the Great War to meet out requirements and that there is no adequate department concerned with planning. It is also objected that our great resources are not properly coordinated to supply our needs, that production is held up by lack of some sort or other, that orders are delayed and that fulfilment of

2 PREMIERS SIGN ANGLO-IRISH PACT

LONDON, April 25.—(AP).— Neville Chamberlain and Eamon De Valera, Prime Ministers of Great Britain and Ireland, to-day signed an agreement intended to end old enmities between the two countries and solve their trade and defence problems.

The agreement, which fails to touch on the larger issue of the partition of Ireland, was signed formally in the Cabinet room at 10 Downing street.

The pact, to be published to-night, is expected to put farm products of Ireland, the former Irish Free State, on the same preferential basis as Britain accords the Dominions.

It is believed the two countries have agreed to abolish all retaliatory duties, product of their long economic conflict, and reduce tariffs.

Britain is expected to waive the land annuities, amounting to £5,000,000 ($25,000,000) a year, and other payments on condition Ireland spends a substantial amount on defence.

Loses 3 Naval Bases

Under the defence agreement it was predicted Britain would relinquish the right to three naval bases —Spike Island in Cork Harbor, Bere Island off County Cork, and Lough Swilly at Donegal. These would be fortified and equipped by Ireland.

In return for concessions on agricultural products, Ireland was expected to buy heavy machinery and defence supplies from Britain.

Anglo-Irish negotiations started Jan. 17 with Mr. De Valera eager for an accord which would include a union of Ireland with northern Ireland as envisaged by the new constitution he promulgated May 1, 1937.

The constitution, having been approved in a plebiscite by the former Free State electorate, went into effect Dec. 29, declaring all Ireland an independent state.

SEARCH IS FUTILE FOR 3 FISHERMEN OF BURNED CRAFT

GORE BAY, Ont., April 25. —(CP).—A fleet of Lake Huron fishing boats scoured the North Channel between Manitoulin Island and the Notrhern Ontario mainland today, searching for the bodies of three fishermen given up as dead when their fire-wrecked vessel was found on the shore of Barrie Island.

Hope the men, missing since Thursday, were alive was abandoned with the finding late Saturday near the blackened hull of equipment and clothing identified as belonging to Clifford McKinley, 20, Donald Merrylees, 25, and Louis Witty, 42. The boat apparently had drifted to Barrie Island, 20 miles west of here, after the gasoline tank exploded.

Willard Witty, brother of Louis, found the wreck Saturday. He reported the boy was burned to the water level. A glass guage on the fuel pump had melted from heat. Strewn along the shore were fish boxes, net boxes, two caps and other clothing. In the water was a fishing net.

An intensive search got under way Friday when the men were reported missing. An airplane was chartered to search the ice-filled waters of the north channel. The yacht Venture II, owned by R. J. Parker, general superintendent of the International Nickel Company, led a fleet of fishing vessels.

Gore Bay is at the head of a bay of the same name on the northern shore of Manitoulin Island, about 125 miles south-west of Sudbury.

Fusillade Of Shots Fail To Stop Speedy Fugitive

Gets Dummy Instead of $5,000 Demanded of Banker In Note Mailed at Peterborough—Car Is Stolen Later

TWEED, Ont., April 25 (CP).—A pile of newspaper clippings and an old leather satchel was the only loot a would be extortionist could claim today after braving a police ambush and a fusillade of shots to obtain what he thought would be $5,000.

The unidentified man ran a gauntlet of police in this district 25 miles north of Belleville Saturday night after making away from Lodgeroom United church where he had ordered W. E. Spackman, manager of the Tweed branch of the Bank of Montreal to leave the money under an implied threat of kidnapping.

Two cars were stolen in the district as police hunted for the "extortionist."

The bank manager had showed police an illiterate note he received Friday ordering him to leave the money at the church. Police gave him a bundle of newspaper clippings made up to resemble a bundle of money and laid plans to ambush the man when he tried to pick up his loot.

"The Note."

"O. K. Spackman," the note had warned, "it won't be healthy for you to disobey. Put $5,000 in 100 or smaller bills in a black bag. Leave it at the steps of the Lodgeroom church Saturday eight p.m. Don't call the cops til lyou return."

It was signed "Our Gang (The Kidnappers)." It had been mailed in Peterborough.

At the appointed time, Spackman drove up to the church, 4 miles west of Tweed, and deposited the bag containing the clippings and then drove away. A few minutes later, ambushed police saw a man come from behind a nearby hedge and pick up a bag.

The waiting constables jumped for the man but he ran swiftly off. They fired a volley of shot in his direction, but he kept on his way and was last seen jumping a fence.

Dr. M. G. Dales reported an hour later his automobile had been stolen. Early Sunday another machine that was stolen in Picton Friday night was found abandoned near here. Police said they believed the extortionist had come to Tweed in the abandoned car and escaped in Dr. Dale's automobile.

The car used by the would-be extortionist to make his getaway from Tweed and owned by Dr. M. G. Dales was found abandoned early to-day near Portland, east of Kingston.

Police here have only a meagre description of the man as it was quite dark when he entered the church grounds at Lodgeroom to obtain what he thought would be $5,000.

WINS FIRST PLACE

Peterborough once again was well represented at this spring's annual music festival held at Stratford, Donald Perks receiving an average of 68 points, the highest marks for class 108, original composition, hymn tune for four voices, amateur under 21 years. Palmer Stalley of Stratford ranked second with 60.

BUTTER PRICES SKID

TORONTO, April 25 (CP).—Butter prices in Toronto dropped eight cents a pound last week, in the main from 36 cents to 28. Usual seasonal increase in production was a contributing factor, dealers said.

Where Police Hid

Lodgeroom United Church, situated four miles west of Tweed, where an extortionist escaped on Saturday night with a dummy parcel, which had been placed by W. E. Spackman, local manager of the Bank of Montreal, in place of the $5,000 demanded, with the added threat that if the money was not forthcoming his life would be endangered. Local and Provincial police in hiding inside the church entrance were unable to halt the extortionist who picked up the parcel and escaped over a nearby fence.

766 DIE IN 1937 OVER ONTARIO IN CAR CRASHES

Toll is 220 Over 1936, Speed Greatest Factor

TORONTO, April 25 — (CP). — Ontario motor car accidents caused 766 deaths in 1937 compared with 546 in 1936, an increase of more than 40 per cent, according to official statistics of the Highway Department. There were 12,092 persons injured compared with 10251 in 1936.

Number of fatal accidents increased from 501 in 1936 to 686 last year. Total economic loss through car accidents in 1937 is estimated at $38,300,000. This includes monetary loss through deaths, injuries and property damage, including hospitalization and other costs arising out of collisions.

During 1937 there were 304 hit-and-run drivers involved in accidents as against 221 the previous year, this type of driver being responsible for 14 deaths and 158 injured. Police apprehended 170 hit-and-run motorists.

Excessive speed was given as the greatest contributing cause to accidents, with driving on the wrong side of the road next in responsibility. Figures also showed that the most dangerous time on highways was between five and eight o'clock in the evening.

Last year 230 drunken drivers were involved in accidents as compared with 177 in 1936, 16 of the accidents in 1937 producing fatalities, Ninety-six drivers with various physical defects figured in seven fatal accidents.

CZECH NAZIS CALL ASKS SELF-RULE ON GERMAN LINES

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, April 25. —(AP).—A demand for self-government under Nazi principles for the 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans, most of them living in a narrow border corridor contiguous to Greater Germany, faced the Czechoslovak government to-day.

Konrad Henlien, leader of the majority of Germans within Czechoslovakia, and a party congress at Karlovy Vary yesterday made this the keynote of his program, expected to be the text for Nazi orators in the campaign of the next three weeks preceding communal elections. In many of the voting communities the population is predominantly German.

A meeting to-day of the political ministers of the Cabinet—members of the Government representing political parties—which was called last Thursday was expected to discuss Henlein's speech.

Henlein was known to have conferred in Berlin with Field Marshal Hermann Goering before he made his speech, and it was believed the powerful influence of the German government was behind his demands.

He said there must be "revision of the (Czechoslovak) foreign policy whereby the State up to now has lined up in the ranks of German's enemies"—a reference authoritatively interpreted as demanding that Czechoslovakia sever her alliances with France and Soviet Russia.

"We desire neither civil war nor foreign war—but we cannot longer tolerate conditions which to us are a kind of war in the midst of peace," Henlein said.

REBELS LASH OUT ON 110-MILE LINE

HENDAYE, France, April 25 (AP) —Fury of the nsurgent attack increased today in all sectors of the 110-mile battlefront zig-zagging through eastern Spain from Teruel to the Mediterranean near Alcala de Chivert.

Surprise offensives from three directions co-ordinated the operations of insurgent forces on the recently dormant Teruel front with troops fighting southward along the coast toward Castellon and Valencia.

In surgent strategy for the moment appeared to be to flatten out the ragged line connecting Teruel with the coast.

Although government resistance was reported negligible between Albocacer and the coast, 18 miles to the east, General Franco was believed to be holding back his forces on the coastal road to Castellon in order to prevent them becoming over-extended and subject to the danger of a government flanking attack.

Wedding Gaiety Turns Tragedy As 2 Girls Burn To Death

Boy Scouts Parade For Royalty

Windsor, Eng., April 25 (AP).

ONE THOUSAND Boy Scouts from all parts of the British Isles paraded Sunday in the quadrangle of Windsor Castle before King George, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret.

The Queen, recovered from a cold, stood beside the King. Each of the paraders was a holder of the King's Scout badge or a medal for gallantry.

Later the Scouts went to St. George's Chapel for their annual national service in commemoration of St. George.

Eight Others Severely Injured After Flimsy Gown Takes Fire At Photographer's

COVENTRY, England, April 25.—(CP-Cable)—Lola Mitchell, 24-year-old dancing teacher, whose bridal party was turned from gaiety to tragedy yesterday when flames in a photographer's studio enveloped the flimsy gowns, today was recovering with nine others from severe burns. All were out of danger. Two of the party, a bridesmaid and a flower girl, were burned to death.

As the group posed for pictures immediately after the wedding the dress of Eunice Naylor, 20, one of the bridesmaids, caught fire from an electric heater. She shrieked and the bridegroom, Charles Mitchell, leaped to her side, tearing off the highly inflammable material.

When Josephine Russell, six, ran to give help, stamping on the burning dress, her dress similarly became a torch. The next moment the dresses of nearly the whole party were ablaze. They raced in panic from the wooden studio.

The bride, bridegroom, the latter's brother, the photographer, and five others of the party were burned severely. Eunice Naylor and Josephine Russell died.

Charge 200 Are Facing Starvation Around Toronto Over Relief Cut

Toronto, April 25 (CP).

EDWARD LACE, who said he was speaking on behalf of the Toronto township workers' union, charged today that 200 persons faced "starvation" in the township as a result of the relief cut. "It is a desperate situation," he said.

Lace said a union delegation today was refused co-operation by E. A. Horton, Deputy Minister of Public Welfare.

Mr. Horton denied the charge. "They had no appointment with me this morning," he said. "I was asked for an appointment last Friday and indicated I wouldn't be able to see them for at least two weeks. The local authorities and the relief supervisor have the matter well in hand."

School Areas Worst Example Of Over-Rule In Dominion

Institute Research Head Claims County Should Be Strengthened Or Eliminated

TORONTO, April 25 (C.P.). — Multiplicity of school districts is the most glaring instance of "over-government" in Canada, the Rowell Commission was told to-day.

Dr. Horace L. Brittain, director of the Citizens' Research Institute of Canada, said there was a lot of talk about "too much government," but few specific illustrations.

It was, for instance, properly said that 10 per cent. of the people were employed by the Government where actually less than 10 per cent. of those gainfully employed were working for the Governments, he said.

The chief hope for simplification of Government lay in the municipal field, especially in school administration, Dr. Brittain suggested. In many townships there were from 10 to 20 school districts, in contrast to which there were only 55 local school authorities in all Alberta in one year recently.

In Southern Ontario where transportation facilities were good, there was no excuse for not amalgamating school districts, for both the improvement of the quality of educa-

Storks To Be Kept Busy At Hospital

Washington, April 25. (AP).

PUBLIC WORKS officials are puzzling over the application of a small town for a self-liquidating loan to build a maternity hospital.

Examiners, doing some figuring, decided that each woman resident of the community would have to visit the hospital twice a year to make the institution self-liquidating. The name of the town was not disclosed.

Defence construction has caused a boom in machine tools in France.

HORSE AND BUGGY STRUCK BY AUTO

LINDSAY, Ont., April 25 (C.P.).—Richard Hamilton, Emily Township farmer, was injured on Saturday when the horse and buggy he was driving was struck by a car driven by Albert Johnston of Omemee.

The accident occurred near Omemee. The force of the impact demolished the buggy and hurled Hamilton to the pavement, causing injuries to his back, right arm, and right leg.

Although Hamilton said a lantern, attached to the buggy, was lighted, Traffic Officer William Kennedy discovered the wick was covered with cobwebs, and laid a charge of failing to have his vehicle lighted on the highway after dark against Hamilton.

Red Dust Storms, Rain And 3 Deaths Mar Annual Anzac Marches

Sydney, Australia, April 25 (CP).

TWO WAR veterans collapsed and died today and 200 others were overcome during the annual Anzac Day parade here commemorating the landing of Australian troops on the Gallipoli Peninsula April 25, 1915.

Tragedy also marred the observance in Melbourne where 70,000 huddled in the rain around the shrine of remembrance saw an air force plane crash nearby. The pilot was killed. Later Melbourne paraders were almost blotted out by a swirling red dust storm which enveloped the city.

The anniversary was celebrated with dawn ceremonies and special services in every part of the Commonwealth.

Planes To Survey Drought Area

R.C.A.F. Fighters to Trade Guns for Cameras on Job Over Prairie in Effort to Make It Grow Grain Again

OTTAWA, April 25 (CP).—Armed with cameras instead of machine guns four Royal Canadian Air Force airplanes will shortly begin survey operations west of Swift Current, Sask.

They will continue the aerial survey of the prairie drought area which started last year. Some 28,000 square miles of country in southwestern Saskatchewan and southern Alberta was photographed by airforce cameramen last summer and this year it is hoped to add another 29,000 square miles to the area upon which the government has complete topographical information.

The area to be photographed this year extends roughly from Swift Current west to the Canadian Pacific Railway line running between Macleod and Calgary.

In Saskatchewan it extends southward to the United States border and includes the southwest corner of that province.

The aerial survey is part of the government's activities in seeking to mitigate the effects of drought on the prairies, to plan water conservation works which will be useful in future dry years and to adjust land usage to soil and climatic conditions.

It was found an aerial photograph gave a complete picture of the land, showed the location of streams, lakes, sloughs and water courses and also the character of the soil.

Thus aerial photography is considered the speediest and most effective means of obtaining the information agricultural experts and

ABERHART TO SHUN PART IN ELECTION IN SASKATCHEWAN

CALGARY, April 25.—(CP).—Although Saskatchewan Social Crediters plan to contest every riding in the next provincial election, Premier William Aberhart of Alberta's Social Credit Government says he has no intention of participating in the Saskatchewan campaign "unless I receive a strong invitation to go."

Reports he planned to get "the west under my control" as a "generalissimo" are the product of a "distorted imagination," Mr. Aberhart said in an address at the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute.

"I have enough grief on my hands now without going seeking for more," he said. "Alberta is my own province. I am not running around looking for other problems to solve. Let those who desire the task have it."

D. M. Duggan, Alberta Conservative leader, told the Calgary Conservative Association April 14 that the present "dream" of the Alberta Social Credit movement was to make Mr. Aberhart Premier of a Saskatchewan Social Credit Government and later to make him a sort of "generalissimo" over the prairie provinces.

placed it in answer to a question from the bench at 'a mile and a half or a mile and a quarter.'

"It is not surprising that some of my associates thought that a walk of three miles, with rape and murder thrown in, could not be accomplished between 10 o'clock and 10.40 when the accused was seen by Enright, a witness."

Referring to Mr. Treer's move that the Appeal Court consider acquitting Comba, the Chief Justice said:

"I regarded that change thus suddenly imported into the appeal and changing completely its nature as unfair to the court and to the Crown—unprepared to meet it—unwarranted in law.

"It involved, if successful, the substitution of the opinion of the court for the opinion of 12 jurymen who had heard many witnesses, observed the demeanor of each, and were at least partially enabled to understand words like 'here,' 'there,' 'this way,' 'out,' 'in,' 'this fence,' 'that fence,' when interpreted by a witness with a pointer in hand directed to a plan displayed in court or to a photograph produced.

Jury Visits Scene.

"Even then so much was left indefinite as to time, places and distances that the jury asked permission of the learned Judge to visit the scene of the crime and the surroundings of that locality in the town of Renfrew and out of it referred to thus vaguely in evidence; and the permission having been accorded, had, properly supervised, visited the locality and were thus enabled fully to understand the material evidence which, in my opinion is, and must remain, unintelligible to this or any other court.

"Yet, what Mr. Greer suddenly springs, so to speak upon the court was that it should adjudge that the verdict of 'guilty' found by the jury was a verdict such as no 12 men should have reached.

"Mr. Hope appeared dazed at the assurance of counsel for the accused and seemed not to know what he ought to do or say. I did not long await his decision but protested immediately against such a radical change in the appeal.

"To my amazement opinions directly opposed to mine were at once expressed by three if not four— if four, then all—of my associates. Nevertheless I renewed my protest, but when the same opposition continued to be manifsted I subsided with the best grace I could assume.

"I confess that I entertained momentarily the thought of leaving the bench, and almost as suddenly realizing the consequences that such action would entail, abandoned the idea."

'I was quite willing to agree that each member of the court had the same right to form his opinion as I had to form mine. However, I doubted if any one of them had devoted as much time as I had to the consideration of the evidence and exhibits."

EGGS DROP TO 16 FARMERS' MARKET

Bouquets of hepaticas, first of Spring's flowers to greet the budding maples and beeches, were transported from the woodlands to the market on Saturday, and one Dummer farmer had a few of them rooted in pots. Giant pansies of hot house growth added a splash of color in a brilliant display, and rhubarb and green onions that were also grown indoors were other evidences of the season.

Apple trees at three for one dollar and raspberry bushes were other new features. The Latham variety of red raspberries sold at two cents a bush or root. Theye were offered in bundles of twenty-five for fifty cents.

Maple syrup was quoted at 30 cents a pint, 60 cents a quart and $2.25 a gallon, the price regaining some firmness with a lighter supply. Multiplier onions sold at four pounds for 25c, rhubarb was 10c a small bunch and onions 3 bunches for 10c. Eggs were 16 and 17 cents, butter 35c and 36c and chickens were unchanged at 25 cents a pound.

T. J. Carscadden of Orono was one of the rather numerous fruit men on the market. His prices were 35c for a peck of Starks, Spies at 50 and 60 cents, McIntoshes 40c, and cooking apples at 25c a peck. Erle Tully quoted $1 for certified seed potatoes and 65 cents for commercials, and some other No. 1 seed Cobblers were 75 cents.

SLAYING LOVERS SENDS 3 TO CHAIR

BELLEFONTE, Pa., April 25 (AP).—Three men died in Pennsylvania's oaken electric chair early today for a "lover's lane" holdup slaying that netted them 41 cents.

They were Edward Rose and John Oreszak, both 21, and Theodore Duminiak, 20, all of Chester, Pa., members of a gang which the judge who condemned to die called "the worst that ever came out of Chester."

The state charged the trio surprised Floyd Tranon, 38-year-old negro, and a girl friend parked in a car on a lonely road near Chester in July 1936. They shot Tranon as he attempted to flee after surrendering all his money and then attacked Tranon's companion.

NAZIS SPONSOR SPENDING SPREE TO AID AUSTRIA

New Rulers Want Babies, More Farm Production

VIENNA, April 25 —(AP)— The Nazis are pumping millions of marks into impoverished Austria for a social betterment program.

Austria's new masters want more babies, fewer suicides, less begging, greater agricultural production.

Money is the lever for achieving all. A Nazi principle is that people who have work, homes and children have no time for anti-Nazi political creeds, especially Communism.

An appropriation of 32,000,000 marks ($12,800,000) has been announced for founding Siedlugen (Homestead) colonies, low-rent housing projects, apartment blocks for government workers and homes for foresters and agricultural officials.

The Nazis are encouraging married couples to have children. Plans for a loan scheme to help couples establish homes and buy furniture are being formulated.

"Children are once more a blessing," is the slogan of the Nazis, dwelling on the virtual impossibility of many raising families under the poverty-stricken old regime.

The Nazis want to end beggary by detaining beggars and caring for them. Mendicancy is already waning.

them is hindered by frequent changes in designs.

"But unless effective co-ordination is achieved, we cannot hope to overtake the arrears or to raise production of our aircraft factories to full capacity. The emergency does not admit half measures. We must reason with the worst that may befall and take our measures with the thoroughness which dictated the creation of a Ministry of Munitions in the Great War, sparing nothing, ignoring nothing, and counting nothing done as long as anything remains to do. The nation has made up its mind as to what it wants and will be satisfied with nothing less."

The Daily Mail (Independent) said the sending of a mission to North America "never would have been necessary had British aircraft manufacturers been given instructions and large scale orders."

Want Ministry Probed.

"Some factories are working below capacity and with employees who are discouraged by never being able to go confidently ahead with their jobs," the Daily Mail said. "This will be the beginning of a parliamentary storm. According to the intentions of members of Parliament, it will end in a firm demand for a full inquiry into the administration of the Air Ministry."

Defence plans called for 1,750 first line planes by 1939, with an unrevealed number in reserve. But some observers said that with about 1,500 first line planes in service, the Government would have trouble filling its schedule.

One source said an immediate production increase of at least 50 per cent would be necessary to reach the goal, and that even greater production is necessitated by defence needs.

Only Small Orders Given

The Daily Mail (Independent) said a leading aircraft manufacturer blames the air ministry for the lag, because of small orders placed, causing skilled men to be laid off and then re-engaged, and because of changes in the official mind which caused finished work to be scrapped.

The paper urged an end to "red tape" and blamed "indecision and mismanagement," of the government's predecessors.

The backbone of British aircraft production is the "shadow factory" scheme. Under that plan various auxiliary manufacturers are given orders for plane parts which are assembled or stored.

Some authorities have doubted the efficacy of the system, since some plants produce more rapidly than others, and the pace of production of planes is established by the laggards.

In war time, it was said, one bomb on one plant might paralyze an entire string of shadow factories for lack of one part of the assembled plane.

An independent commentator said British factories are wasting money and effort on hand production methods.

Australia Preparing

MELBOURNE, April 25—(CP-Reuters)—The Royal Australian Air Force will be the most important Dominion air command in the British empire when the expansion from 96 to 198 airplanes has been completed.

Inter-command flights between squadrons of the R.A.F. and the R.A.A.F. are to be made to rest, over Australia's northern approaches, the defence policy laid down at the 1937 imperial conference.

There will be close liaison between the two long-range bomber squadrons to be stationed at Darwin, Northern Australia, and the R.A.F. squadrons at Singapore, Sarawak and British North Borneo.

It would be possible under the new plan to concentrate 500 war airplanes at Singapore within a few days.

Under Australia's defence policy automatic three-inch anti-aircraft guns of a modern British type, for use on mobile units, are already in production at the Maribyrnong munition works. A new and improved type of gun—stated by experts to be one of the most deadly ever devised, and details of which are being kept a close secret—will be produced later.

Attacks County.

He urged further that the county, as an administrative unit, should be either strengthened or eliminated—and he felt co-ordination of rural municipalities was more likely than the strengthening of county governments.

In Western Canada, government was carried on satisfactorily without counties.

Dr. Brittain suggested a "tremendous" amount could be done toward improving Government services by such co-ordination as there had been in agriculture in recent years, when persons interested in agricultural services had conferred frequently.

He contended there should be the closest co-operation between the various levels of Government in the drafting of budgets, for the welfare of the taxpayers, but constant conferences, "not just when someone thinks about it."

YOUNG LAWYER HELD FOR THEFT

BROCKVILLE, Ont., April 25 (C.P.). — Matthew M. Brown, young Brockville lawyer, was arrested here on Saturday on a charge of theft of $2,500 worth of securities from the estate of the late Alexander Clow of Younge Front Township.

Brown was brought before Magistrate George A. Wright and remanded for 60 days for observation in the Ontario Hospital here. The warrant was issued on information furnished by an unnamed relative of Clow's.

On March 16 last Brown's wife, the former Ruth Horrocks of Toronto, and their two small children, were found dead from asphyxiation in the gas-filled kitchen of their home. Brown told police he found the bodies on the floor in the centre of the room when he returned from work.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, April 25 — (CP). — With the exception of weighty steers, cattle trade was active on the Toronto Livestock Market to-day with prices steady to firm. Calves, sheep and lambs held to former levels. No hog price was set by early afternoon, but bids were lower.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 4,420; calves, 980; hogs, 1,880; sheep and lambs, 1,080.

A few weighty steers sold to packers at $5.50 to $6.50, but no sales were made to exporters. Good butcher steers and heifers brought $6 to $6.25, with one load at $6.50. Common butchers ranged down to $4.75.

Cows were firm at $4.75 to $5 for tops, some reaching $5.25. Common cows traded as low as $3.50, canners and cutters from $2.25 to $3.25. Good butcher bulls went at $4.25 to $4.50, one light grade bringing $5. Bolognas sold from $3.85 to $4. Fed calves were $5.75 to $7.50.

Choice veal calves were priced at $8 to $9, with a few tops at $9.50. Common light vealers were as low as $4.

Packers were bidding $9.75 for off-truck bacon hogs. Previous close was $9.85 to $10.

Good feed-lot lambs, including 400 from the West, sold at $10 cwt. Common lambs ranged down to $7. Some good spring lambs moved at $9 to $10 each. Sheep were mostly $2 to $5.50, with a few tops at $6.

EAST BUFFALO LIVESTOCK

Hogs, 1,750; bulk good and choice 160 to 240 lbs. averaging 180 to 210 lbs., $8.75; similar weights trucked in largely $8.50, few $8.60; 120 to 150 lbs., $8.40 to $8.50; packing cows, $7.10 to $7.35.

Cattle, 1,100; good steers and yearlings, $8.50 to $9; scattered loads to $9.50; medium steers and heifers, $7.75 to $8; plain and medium cows, $5.50 to $6.25; cutter grades, $4 to $5.25; medium bulls, $6.40 to $7; lightweights, $5.35 to $6.10.

Calves, 750; vealers, $10; plain and medium draggy, $6 to $8.50.

Sheep, 4,800; good to choice shorn lambs, $7.50 to $7.75; comparable woolskins, $8.50 to $8.75; few spring lambs, $11.50 down; shorn ews to $4.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

Winnipeg wheat futures drifted more than a cent lower to-day despite a small export business and unusually early rust reports from the United States southwest. At the final bell quotations were 1¾ to ¾ cents lower, May $1.21½, July $1.10⅞, and October 89⅜ cents.

Principal bearish influences were lower outside markets, easier stocks, favorable growing conditions in the majority of North American grain belts and forecast for scattered precipitation to-night. Private reports from Texas stated rust has begun to appear on wheat, which is heading out.

Improved moisture conditions in new South Wales, Australia, and cheaper Manitoba shippers' offers caused lower prices at Liverpool.

WESTWOOD W.I. REVIEWS WORK OF PAST YEAR

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WESTWOOD, April 25. — The annual meeting of Westwood Women's Institute was held on Tuesday afternoon in the Town Hall, with a large attendance, and the president, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall, in the chair.

The secretary's report on the year's work showed a year of activity and progress, with a considerable amount of charitable work done. The treasurer's report by Miss Edith Bray reported receipts $83.22, expenses 62.38, leaving a balance of $20.84. The corresponding secretary, Miss Edna Clysdale had written ten letters during the year.

Reports of standing committees were given: Canadian Industries, by Mrs. Gilbert Elmhurst; Junior Activities, by Mrs. Birdsall in the absence of Miss Virginia Lobb; Health and Education, by Mrs. J. Clysdale; Legislation by Mrs. W. Morris; Home Economics, by Mrs. E. W. Sargent; Community Activities and Relief, by Miss Mary Barrie; Peace Education, by Mrs. S. Graham.

The retiring president, Mrs. Birdsall, addressed the members, thanking them for their co-operation, and stating it had been an honor and a pleasure to be president, which office she has most efficiently filled for the past five years.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers followed, with Mrs. Birdsall officiating as the chairman, and resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. James Clysdale.

First vice-president, Mrs. Stewart Graham.

Second vice-president, Mrs. Fred Faux.

Secretary-treasurer, Miss Mary Barrie.

Corresponding treasurer, Mrs. Aubrey Wood.

District director, Mrs. F. E. Birdsall.

Director on executive, Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

Two directors on board, Miss Edith Douglas and Miss Edith Bray.

Program Committee, Mrs. Morris (convenor), Mrs. D. McColl, Mrs. W. Post, and Miss Rita Faux.

Relief Committee, Miss Jessie Davidson and Mrs. F. Neilson.

Pianist, Mrs. Birdsall; assistants, Mrs. J. S. Sargent and Miss M. Comstock.

Press secretary, Mrs. E. W. Sargent.

Auditors, Mrs. J. Thompson and Mrs. L. Doherty.

Convenors of standing committees were appointed as follows: Historical Research, Mrs. J. Thompson; Canadianization, Miss Jessie Davidson; Canadian Industries and Agriculture, Mrs. G. Elmhurst; Junior Activities, Miss Marie Seabourne; Legislation, Miss Kathleen Cameron; Health and Education, Mrs. D. N. Cameron; Home Economics, Mrs. J. Sargent; Community Activities and Relief, Mrs. F. Faux; Peace Education, Mrs. S. Graham; Publicity, Mrs. L. Doherty.

Meeting Programs.

It was decided to have current events and a contest at each meeting. The motion carried that a different current events convenor and contest convenor be appointed at each meeting for the month following, by a draw. For May, Miss Edna Clysdale was appointed for current events and Mrs. Aubrey Wood for a contest.

An executive meeting to arrange for next year's program will be held on Tuesday evening, April 26, at the home of Mrs. W. Morris.

It was decided to send Miss Edith Bray and Miss Edna Clysdale as delegates to the Girls' Conference at the O.A.C., Guelph, on May 12, and that each girl be given $6.00 to defray railway expenses.

Four members qualified for the perfect attendance prizes for the past year, namely: Mrs. W. Morris, Miss Edith Bray, Mrs. S. Graham, and Miss Mary Barrie.

A health magazine and home and country periodicals were distributed to the members.

The National Anthem played by the new pianist, Mrs. Birdsall, brought the meeting to a close. Dainty refreshments were served by the group in charge.

Presbytery Executive

With a brand new 1938 executive elected and confirmed in office at a session in St. James' United Church on Friday, big things are expected of the Peterborough presbytery of the Bay of Quinte Young People's Conference this season. Friday's session lasted all day and late into the evening and was a pronounced success from every angle. The new executive is shown here. In the front row, from LEFT to RIGHT, are: Bruce Dawson, Millbrook, past president; Mrs. Bruce Dawson; Barbara Dawson, of Stewart Hall, secretary; Robert Spence, Lakefield, president. In the back row, from left to right, are: Rev. C. H. Ferguson, Bethany, chairman of Religious Education; Robert G. Kitchen, Peterborough, Missionary Convenor; Don Charlton, Peterborough, treasurer and convenor of Boys' Work; and Rev. J. Maxwell Allen, Pembroke, president of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

Bark-Wine Diet Sends Aged Messiah Hydrant-Hopping In Reverse

New York, April 25. (AP). CHURCHGOERS IN the Bronx stood agape yesterday at the spectacle of a black-whiskered, wild-haired little man, bare of chest and knobby of knee, clad in green shorts and "sneakers," running lickety-split backwards and hopping fire hydrants.

In chaotic delight, dogs yapped at his heels and boys on bicycles trailed alongside, getting in smart licks of practise on the far-famed Bronx cheer. But the little man, in reverse, ran on.

Once again, Goliath Messiah was observing his birthday—his 72nd, he said—in his own unique fashion and, he said, "in the interest of humanity."

The self-styled Persian Messiah ran backwards three miles and then, scarcely panting explained that the secret of his whipcord muscles and glowing vitality was based on a diet of tree bark, fruit, green vegetables and a pint of wine daily.

2 IRISH PARTIES AGREE ON HYDE

DUBLIN, April 25 (CP Cable).—Ireland was still pleasantly surprised today that the two main parties, the Finna Fail headed by Prime Minister De Valera, and the Fine Gael of which William T. Cosgrave is leader, were able to lay aside their old enmities to agree upon a candidate for the presidency. The question is asked whether such co-operation can be extended.

The parties which for 16 years have engaged in a bitter political struggle, were able to get together and agree on Dr. Douglas Hyde, eminent Gaelic scholar, as the man for the job as presidency.

The fact that such co-operation was achieved was considered in some quarters as significant. The selection of a Protestant has already been interpreted as a gesture in the direction of Northern Ireland, predominantly Protestant.

Whether the Fine Gael is prepared to support the Government in an endeavor to attain a united Ireland is problematic.

DOG BITES, $10.29 EACH

BUFFALO, N.Y., April 25—(AP).—Miss Ella Forster obtained damages of $10.29 each for 34 bites, she testified she received from a chow dog—an aggregate of $350.

Charles K. Hagerty of Philadelphia, Pa., owner of the chow, was accompanied in court by several "character witnesses" who testified the dog was not vicious.

With The Boy Scouts

A well-attended association meeting was held in the new headquarters, and it is now up to every scoutmaster and cub leader to obtain their warrant. Only warranted officers will have power to vote at the annual meeting, it was voted.

The jamboree is being planned for the 24th of May in Lindsay. Scouts will have to arrange their own transportation. It is up to every scouter to get his group committee working on this problem. Why not solicit the help of the Dads.

The mothers' auxiliary of All Saints' group held a successful tea on Wednesday. This was the first event held by the mothers, and we extend them our sincere good wishes.

Akela George Brooks was unable to attend the cub pack on Friday, but Bagheira White jumped into the breach. District Cubmaster Gordon Clegg showed great strides in the advance of cubbing at All Saints. Any cubs who desire to pass special tests are asked to meet Akela at his home on the corner of Bolivar and Park street at 7.30 p.m. to-night Monday).

Sacred Heart Patrol leaders had a succesful meeting at the scouter's home. Taking advantage of the school holidays several boys were down at the Exhibition grounds on Thursday practising for the athletic badge. About 20 boys from All Saints were also seen around the track practising. Friday night's meeting was under supervision of Gerald Grady and Jimmy Amyotte, the main end of instructing being signalling. Several boys were out to a baseball practise on Saturday morning.

The Red and White six held a successful hike on Tuesday, travelling over Greenhill way. A similar hike is being planned for the Grey and Black sixes.

Scouter Rose of All Saints planned a full week's program for his boys in the Easter vacation. The results of these activities were some 65 tests passed in tenderfoot, second class, and first class work. On Friday morning, Ed. Reid was invested as a tenderfoot scout and on Friday evening at the regular troop meeting Jack Carter and Errol Dayman were invested into scouting. At the same meeting Ted Smith was presented with his second-class badge.

Among those to pass tests were Lloyd Williamson, Max Doughty and Orville Sullen, 2nd class; Ted Smith, 1st class cooking; Frank Stewart, 1st class first aid.

On Saturday night eight scouts met in St. John's Church, where they joined with brother scouts all over the world in a service of remembrance of St. George, patron saint of scouting. This program was started some years ago by a Liverpool troop, but has spread all over the world, all scouts trying to time their program at the same hour the world over. In Palestine, scouts actually hold their ceremony at the tomb of St. George. On the Liverpool troop committee is one Fred Kerr, an old Peterborough boy of 40 years ago, who is Canadian government immigration officer in Liverpool.

S.M. Houghton and A.S.M. Siddall led the St. George scouts in several games, and gave first aid demonstrations. Mr. Siddall is a member of St. John Ambulance Corps.

A court of honor meeting will be held in the Scouter's home on Orpington road on Wednesday next. On Sunday the scouts, cubs and mothers' auxiliary went to St. George's Church.—The Skipper.

Successful Sale Held At Hoard's

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, April 25. — The Women's Association of Hoards United Church held their semi-annual cooking sale in town on Saturday afternoon, which, judging by the success of the affair the reputation these ladies have gained for themselves in the realm of cooking, has become widely known. The money raised will go towards the general church expenses, Mrs. Frank Heagle, the president, revealed that during the past year the society had raised sufficient funds to have the outside of the church replastered.

Among those who assisted at the sale on Saturday were: Mrs. Frank Heagle, Mrs. Percy Oddie, Mrs. Charles Hoard, Mrs. Cliff Heagle, Mrs. Jack Rannie, Mrs. C. S. Reddick, Mrs. Harry Parr, and Mrs. James Thompson.

The Crippling Effect Of Rheumatism

Rheumatism is a constitutional disease caused by an accumulation of uric acid in the blood and is greatly aggravated by cold and dampness. It generally leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain and agony is almost unbearable.

Burdock Blood Bitters by invigorating the digestive organs, and eliminating the uric acid from the system will help in giving you relief from this torturing trouble.

MR. HENRY THORNTON, Beeton, Ont., writes:—"I have been a well digger for the past fifteen years, and five years ago I got rheumatism in my left hip and knee from the dampness in the wells.

I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do me any good until our druggist advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters, which I did, and it was only a short time until the rheumatism was completely out of my system."

FIRE DESTROYS MILLBROOK BARN

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, April 25. — J. R. Eakins lost a valuable barn, and an adjoining shed, through fire on Saturday afternoon, the cause apparently being grass which someone had set burning outside the Eakins' property, and just back of the buildings mentioned, on Centre street.

The fire was first discovered by B. B. Dawso, who was out working in his garden nearby, and who immediately rang in an alarm; however, the flames had made such headway before being noticed, that very little of the furniture, and other things stored in the barn, could be removed. The barn had stalls for three horses, a sleeping apartment, and another large room, was finished in planed lumber, and painted on the inside throughout, as well as on the outside; it had also the water laid on, with taps within the building.

The walls were double, and filled between with sawdust, which kept the fire smouldering a long time, and made it necessary for Mr. Eakins to have a man on guard all night. The firemen responded promptly when the bell rang between four and four-thirty on Saturday, but found it impossible to save much but a part of the walls which are still standing. The flames leaped the driveway between the barn and shed, destroying the latter also. The loss is only partially covered by insurance.

ASSISTED PASSAGES

MELBOURNE, April 25 — (CP Cable).—Prime Minister Joseph Lyons today announced the British and Australian governments had agreed that assisted passages to the commonwealth might be granted to unnominated Britons possessing, if married, more than £300 ($1,500), or an annual pension of £100, and, if single, no less than £50 on arrival.

VILLA TO TOUR

BIRMINGHAM, England—(CP).—Aston Villa, famous English soccer club, has definitely decided to tour Germany in the early summer. The first match will be played May 15 at Berlin.

LINDSAY PLANNING TO PAVE STREETS

LINDSAY, April 25—At a special meeting of the Town Council Saturday, it was decided to proceed with a street paving program this summer at an approximate cost of $20,895. Queen and Lindsay streets which are connecting links of Provincial highways, will be resurfaced at a cost of $18,895, while the remaining cost will be in patching the remainder of the town's pavement.

The Provincial Government will be asked to bear half the cost of the paving at the connecting links and a deputation will wait on the Minister of Highways next week to place the proposal before him.

The town's cost will be borne by the issuing of debentures and 30 per cent will be charged to the general rate and 20 per cent to the property owners on the streets to be paved.

Not Encouraging

For the first three months this year there have been 1,580 motor accidents in Toronto in which 17 persons have been killed and 671 injured. Included in this number are 33 hit-and-run cases. There is no statement made to indicate how many of these hit-and-run drivers have been caught, but we believe the percentage is very low. That in itself unfortunately will strengthen the belief in the minds of drivers that there is safety in running away. If it were known that the chances of such a driver were poor when it came to making an escape that in itself would discourage the practice.

At several places in the province it has been noticed that the tendency in court is to bear down harder on hit-and-run drivers when they have been brought in. Those who get the best treatment seem to be the ones who after an accident have stopped right there and have done all in their power to render assistance. If there is such a thing as a most-favored position before a court then such people seem to occupy it. And they should.

It is not saying much for our manhood when we find the hit-and-run business on the increase. It shows that we have too many people who will be kind and decent and reasonable and manly only because they have to, and not because they want to. It is not a mass problem and it will not diminish by passing of more laws. It is an individual matter, something which each car driver is an accident has to face for himself The present trend is not encouraging because it shows that in our citizenry we have too many who prefer to run away from the consequences of what they have done.

Why Allow It?

New York had a riot the other night when German-American Bund members gathered to celebrate the birthday of Hitler. Members of the American Legion were in attendance and they objected to some of the statements which were being made and then the fight started. On the following day Dr. Charles Weiss, crippled editor of a paper which supports the views of the Anti-Communist, Anti-Fascist and Anti-Nazi League of New York, was attacked in his office and left in an unconscious condition.

All that took place because there are people living in United States, earning their living there, enjoying the freedom which folk have in that country, and who yet persist in trying to live according to the rules made in Germany. They seek to build up in United States a purely Hitler following. And for what purpose?

This paper believes in the freedom of the individual, but it also believes in a degree of common sense and the sort of loyalty which honors the government of the country in which the individual elects to live. In this country it means that the form of government which we have is the only one which can be recognized. And it would mean the same thing in United States. If individuals find themselves enamored of the method of Germany then Germany is the place for them.

After An Explosion

From Grundy, Virginia, came the report of an explosion in a coal mine, couple with the news that 41 men were entombed under ground. Those who have witnessed mine accidents would look for a part of the story which always appears—telling of the wives and children, brothers, sisters and sweethearts gathering around the mine entrance waiting for the men to be brought to the surface.

People who live in a district where hazardous mining is not done can hardly comprehend the agony which is made evident after that rumbling noise down in the mine. As a rule the families live not far away; they hear it and they know what it means; if any of their men are on shift then they also know what that means.

There is no place they can go for information; there is no one who knows what has taken place down below; mine officials know no more about it than others. They know how many men have gone down. That's all. That's when the folk start to gather. They don't say much; they just stand there, children clinging to the skirts of the mothers, for even small children know what it is all about.

They know the hoist will operate as soon as possible. They may have to wait a long time before it comes up, but they never go away. Nothing else matters except that hoist at the pit-head. Finally it comes. It is not necessary for any person to go around and announce who has been brought up because these folk live much together and they all know. Then it is that some woman steps out and perhaps the children follow. Likely some of her friends go along. There is a smothered cry and then a little procession over to the house. The hoist has told its story of what has taken place under ground. The rest of the women just stand and wait, perhaps for hours. They know only too well they have little to hope for as the blast which takes one will also take another. That group of women and children who gather after a mine explosion presents a sight which plumbs the depth of human sorrow. It has been enacted once again at Grundy in Virginia.

Two Young Ladies

There was a letter in the mail this morning from some young lady in the city who is not much taken with the position she holds. She is working at domestic service. Just where we do not know because she does not give an address nor does she sign her name. Usually a letter of that kind receives no notice, but this one was considered because there was some reference to an advertisement she noticed in the Examiner under the heading of "Female Help Wanted." We quote one small part of it:

"It seems that every time I want to go out apart from my half-day off there is some reason why I have to stay in, and when a young man came home with me the other night we were sitting in the kitchen and the mistress of the house came out there twice. Some of the young folks were going for a car ride the other Saturday and they wanted me to get a lunch ready for them and I had to double hustle to get the tea dishes through in time to get off by 7 to keep a date for the pictures."

And so on and on. The young lady was apparently in the mood for complaining and so she complained to the newspaper. About the same time the letter came in we had clipped a small item from a Toronto paper which said:

"Geraldine McGregor, who has been sightless since birth, last night played her own composition, "Meditations of Spring," before a large audience at Eaton Auditorium."

We have no way of knowing whether the young lady who wrote her letter of complaint is a lover of music or not, but somehow or other we feel it might have been well for her to be present when Geraldine McGregor (blind since birth) played her own composition on "Meditations of Spring." From the name of the selection we gather it would be a sprightly and happy sort of composition. Music written about Spring is always like that. It generally represents the outpouring of a happy mind and tells in its own way of the coming of new leaves, grass, flowers, birds and all such things.

If the young lady who is rather filled with complaint had heard Geraldine McGregor (blind) playing what she herself had composed she might have realized that Geraldine had never seen a flower or a bird or a tree; had never witnessed the coming of new life; had never been able to watch how a tree barren of foliage was able to become a place of shade. If there were notes written for this composition Geraldine would never have been able to see them; she could not even see the piano keys on which she played, nor could she see the face of the people who listened. On a new and strange stage she would require assistance to reach and leave the piano. Geraldine has never had a date to go out at 7 in the evening to see the pictures; possibly there are many times when she would like to go out but she might find it advisable to stay in. And yet though sightless she learned to play the piano and then when she desired to write something of her own she grouped her ideas around Spring. It was not a dirge nor a lament, but rather the personification of happiness. If the young lady who wrote the letter of complaint happens to read this we rather devoutly hope she grasps the point.

Wallpaper 80 Years Old

The farm home occupied by Norman McGill near Janetville in Durham county was built by his grandfather, the late David McGill, over 100 years ago. That in itself is interesting and of historic value. But there is more: In 1858—and that is 80 years ago—there was wallpaper put on the parlor, and it is still there. It is not soiled nor has it faded or come loose.

A correspondent of the Lindsay Post writes that the paper has a silver grey ground with a dainty pattern of grape vines and leaves, and the green of the leaf and all else looks so fresh that one might well believe the paper had but recently been placed there. It is recorded that the folk living in the house are so taken with the way in which this paper has survived four score years they would not consider having the room repapered. And why should they? We know of no other place where the folk could tell visitors that the paper on this wall was put on eighty years ago.

Of course they can make wall paper more rapidly today; they can offer a very large range of patterns, but whether the makers of today could produce finer quality is open to question. Paper which will stay on for eighty years, retain its color and look fresh must have been made by a master hand.

The Ex-Kaiser Is Poor

Hitler is said to have made provision for paying the bills for Wilhelm Hohenzollern, former kaiser of Germany who is now living the life of an exile at Doorn in Holland. The report says the former kaiser owns nothing in Germany except sand waste and forest land He was at one time the holder of much property and it was valuable.

It is stated in the despatches that all these holdings have been dropped or probably confiscated. When a party of Canadian editors visited Germany a few years ago they were at Potsdam, just outside of Berlin. That is where Sans Souci, the magnificent palace and park created by Frederick the Great is located. Not far distant is the palace in which the kaiser was living prior to his hurried departure for Doorn, and near the entrance to the grounds is a small stone building of becoming design, and in there the first wife of the ex-kaiser is buried, and it was stated at the time that Wilhelm Hohenzollern would also be buried there as he retains possession of that building. The story of the history of this small structure was that it had been erected in the first place to house a valuable collection of coins belonging to some of the German rulers. The ex-kaiser may have been stripped of most of his holdings, but according to the story told by a guide who was formerly a member of the kaiser's personal body guard that little burial house as it is now remained in the possession of the former ruler of Germany.

Just A Suggestion

We read in the Chatham News that the gentlemen interested in the work of the Public General Hospital Board have planned to serve a "Pink Tea" in the dining room of one of the city hotels. The object is to raise some money for hospital purposes. We are not inclined to argue about the object; it seems to be all right.

The men will attend to the whole business. They will welcome the guests, escort them to the tea tables, serve them with victuals—no, delicacies, according to the News—which the men themselves prepared. Men will pour tea, pass it around and then wash the dishes. In case the News has not already reported the event we suggest the following just in a helpful way:

"Mr. Sylvester Bung poured tea. That is he poured it out of a granite tea pot into a china cup; there was a saucer beneath the cup. He likes to make people feel at home so he chucked in four lumps each time just to treat them all the same. He saw that a spoon was put in each cup and he advised the guests if the tea was too hot they could saucer it. Bung's the life of a party that way. He was dressed in a three-piece ensemble consisting of a pair of pants, a vest that buttoned up the front and a jacket to match. He wore braces and garters to match. The pants were floor length.

"Mark Bunk ushered the guests to the tables. He told the ladies to leave off their wraps so they could draw up closer to the table and have a better time generally. Mark considers the thing looks stiff when people sit about with all their raiment on, and he holds they won't feel the good of it when they go out in the cold air. When the crowd got a little thick Mark advised 'Step lively, ladies,' but he has a way with him so people don't mind.
